Hon. Mr. Challies—Suppose the Counties Council were to say that the provincial highway should not be constructed between Brighton and Grafton. It would be in bad condition as compared with the rest of the highway; but as the government pays 80 per cent is it wise to wait until the county council gives its consent. In my own municipality, the united counties of Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry, I don't know of one road that was taken over without requisition from the counties council. You will recall that the government had to step in and build connecting links. In my own town of Morrisburg we had that same condition, but after the connecting link was constructed no one was then opposed. They were all pleased with it. The general policy of the government is not to build roads against the will of the community.

Petitioned By Campbellford.

Reeve C. H. Davidson, Campbellford—In regard to the Brighton highway, I was one of a deputation that went to Toronto to insist on that road to Campbellford being taken over. In fact we went up two or three times. I can bear the Minister out on that. We are to blame ourselves. They all started grabbing for county-provincial roads, and now they wish to God they hadn't. However, I may say about the Brighton road that there was an understanding the Department wasn't going to spend much money on it just then. I don't know what happened afterward.

Replying to Warden Rickard, Reeve Davidson said that the requests to the Department were made by the council of Campbellford.

Since 1918, Mr. Challies continued, both urban and rural areas have received in road services from the government $98,388,245 more than was paid by the entire province in gasoline tax and automobile and kindred licenses.

"The province has spent on rural and urban roads the total of $224,620,085.85" the Provincial Secretary stated, "and received during the same time $119,231,840.65 from those sources of gasoline tax and licenses. That leaves an excess expenditure by the government of $95,388,245.20."

"That's where the gasoline tax goes. And these united counties received their share of it. I might point out that the cities such as Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, Windsor and so on make the biggest contribution to the gasoline tax, but it all goes into the general pot and is spent in the rural areas."

Deputy-reeve A. E. Burd, Hamilton township, said he did not think that the total receipts mentioned by Mr. Challies included the 20 per cent payments by the municipalities. The Minister replied that he was not certain on that point, and Mr. Burd remarked that from his enquiries he understood that the amount paid to the government by the counties of the province was about equal to the township grants received from the government.

Tourist Traffic Asset.

The lowest estimate of receipts from the tourist traffic last year was $120,000,00, Mr. Challies said. That figure was based on registrations, allowing three persons to a car, staying in Ontario one day.

"Since 1918 we have built 3,027.7 miles of King's Highway; 7,955 miles of county highways, and 41,290.3 miles of township roads; also 14,391 miles of northern development roads. When you consider all these facts which I have quoted, I don't think there can be much criticism as regards the highway system and what it means to Ontario.

Coaches and Trucks.

In regard to coaches and trucks not paying their share, it is a recognized fact that the coach is not a factor in the loss of railway revenue. It is the private car that causes the loss. At Islington outside Toronto the number of cars on Labor Day increased from 910 in 1914, to 18,666 in 1932. These are private cars. Anticipating the extension of the road system and its possible effect on the railways, Hon. George S. Henry went to the railways and asked them whether they were interested. He asked them if they wanted an exclusive franchise, and their reply was they were not interested, but they were interested in building hotels from Halifax to Vancouver for which they can't pay the debenture charges.

We have a well regulated system of trucks and coaches, at reasonable rates and controlled by the Department of Highways."

Ontario Licenses Cheaper

Mr. Challies next contrasted the automobile licenses in Ontario and Quebec, showing that the schedule is appreciable less in this province with only a few minor exceptions. For the Ford 8, Ontario's license fee is $7 and Quebec's $16.50; on the Chevrolet four Ontario charges $7 and Quebec $16.50; and on the "Chev" six Ontario charges $12 and Quebec $18.20. The Buick eight, Ontario $20; Quebec $30.30; the Marmon sixteen Ontario $40 and Quebec $37.80.

And on the half ton truck Ontario charged $10, and Quebec $20.50. For reasons which have been cited before to county councils, Mr. Challies regarded the proposal for the government to assume the entire cost of provincial highways as a dangerous change. He would prefer to increase the grants to the townships of any amendment were to be made to the present arrangement.

Rural Power Lines

"In 1924 an Act provided for a grant by the provincial government of 50 per cent of the cost of primary power lines in the rural Hydro system. In the following year that assistance was extended to primary lines, and in Northumberland and Durham we have expended in cash grants $257,715.54 as a bonus to rural Hydro lines and rural consumers of power.

I think that is the best money we ever spent. And talk about socialism in this province, that money was taken from the general treasury and given to one class of our community."

$160.25 Tax on 300 Acres

Hon. Mr. Challies emphatically asserted that taxation was not a provincial issue.

"It is what the counties and the townships spend; and don't try to pass the buck to the provincial government. In Kinloss township, Huron county, last year, a farmer names Foster G. Moffat with a farm of 300 acres assessed at $7,500 had a tax bill of only $160.25, and two dollars of that was for a dog tax. So the property was $158.25. Why? Because there was not a cent of county or township debt. That's plain and simple.

Did the province tell you to roll up debts? The fact is the great majority of municipalities levied on into the future. We didn't make provision for times like these. So we have to face the music. The fault is right there."

What critics of the government tried to create the impression that the province was bankrupt Mr. Challies said it was worth remembering that $3220,000,000 had been lent by the government to the 720 municipalities including Toronto. Their security and soundness was a guarantee to the province.

"A lot of the services I have mentioned must be maintained. We curtailed expenditures last year by $4,600,000, and if it had not been for adverse exchange affecting us to the amount of $2,350,000, and some $809,000 unemployment relief Ontario would have had a surplus of $1,164,000.

Administration of Justice

To Deputy-reeve N. A. MacColl's statement that the council objected to high cost of the administration of justice in all its aspects, last year's cost to the counties being $35,396 of which $13,021 was returned by the government, Mr. Challies asked whether $13,000 was excessive. He said the administration of justice should be judged by results and quoted statistics showing a notable decline in offences. For example in the last two years there was a decrease of 5,600 in the number of prisoners sentenced in Ontario, from 21,431 in 1930 to 15,804 in 1932.

"When you spent $374,985.15 on your roads and bridges and maintenance last year, surely you will not quibble over $15,000 for the administration of justice with such a record."

Hon. Mr. Challies turned over the pages of the minutes of the June, 1932, session of the council to the auditor's report and read several quotations. One of them was: "The year 1931 commenced with a cash deficit from 1930 to $199,057.36, towards which debentures were issued, the proceeds of which amounted to $138,772.05. The remainder, $60,285.31, was added to the deficit outstanding."

That money should have been budgeted for before the rate was struck. At the end of 1931 there was a deficit of $196,060.49.

"You paid a debenture levy of $3,469.80 in 1928 and in 1931 you paid $58,134.35. And by contrast that helps to explain who a 300-acre farm in Kinloss township had only $158 taxes last year."

Not Antagonistic.

Deputy-reeve MacColl, Campbellford, remarked that the meeting of the council was not antagonistic to the government, and proceed to outline the grievance against the various court fees which the members of the council regarded as excessive and out of line with general living costs today.

Mr. Challies said that Col. Price, Attorney-General, would be pleased to receive any recommendations from the council.

Reeve Stinson, Millbrook, said that the Crown Attorney cost the counties $6,000 last year, equivalent to twelve cars of wheat or 150 steers at 4 cents a pound. In 1921-22 his remuneration was about $1,600.

"Not one man in these counties is worth $6,000 a year," Mr. Stinson said. "And we believe the government would strengthen its position by making reductions in the fee system which we believe is not in accordance with the times. The Sheriff received $3,500 last year."

School grants and costs were also discussed at considerable length, and its was finally decided to send a deputation to Toronto to confer with the heads of Departments of the government regarding some of the complaints which the council has been discussing at almost every session during the last two years.

A vote of thanks to Hon. Mr. Challies was moved by Reeve Hooton, Cavan, and seconded by Reeve Davidson, Campbellford.

First Bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her Wonderfully

"My trouble is the Change. I was so weak I could hardly walk. I kept a girl to do my work. I would lie awake all night and I often wished I could die. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and tried that. The first bottle helped me. I am now on my fourth and I am gaining strength and energy all the time."

FRED McLAREN IS MURDERED; FINN MISSING

ly back sort of propping the the body up as if the man had made a last desperate effort to struggle up. The head and face were covered with blood and so frozen that nothing could be made out. From all appearances it was a case of very severe hemorrhage. McLaren was known to have suffered previously from ulcers of the stomach and had been treated for it.

Later that evening the undertaker from Millbrook and Constable Raper went to the house and brought the body into the parlors at Millbrook.

Foul Play

Monday morning while preparing the body for burial the undertaker, discovering cuts upon the head, called Dr. Turner and the first signs of foul play were brought to light. Closer examination revealed a long crosswise gash under the chin, another running downward on the forhead, while the back of the head was literally crushed in with a dozen blows each leaving a deep cleft in the skull.

Provincial Constable William Carey was summoned and a coroner's jury sworn in. After viewing the body the group visited the farm. Here daylight revealed what the cloak of night had hidden—a blood spattered chunk of hardwood, two feet long, shaped like a wedge with the sharp side covered from end to end with congealed blood and hair—and lying nearby similarly smeared, a rock, just big enough to clutch in a fist, a large fist

No Struggle

The signs were plain to read. There was no evidence of a struggle—the single, simple home-made cot stood snuggly against the wall, its make-shift mattress covered with an old rug and a couple of coats undisturbed. The unpainted table stood off to one side, upright. None of the three windows in the room, one facing into the woodshed at the east, the second facing west and the last looking south over the white covered farmlands, were broken. The partially rusted cook stove stood there, cold, a silent sentinel thrusting one finger upward as if in horror. Only a stool, the stool, filling the place of chairs in that humble abode, was upset, lying near the life-blood of the man who had carved it from a block of wood and nailed on its rough wooden seat.

No—there was no sign of struggle. It was plain, too plain, the victim—friend of all in the neighborhood, where he had lived from childhood, a man already beginning to grow old through the affliction of rheumatism which in its gnawing had impaired the use of his feet, but had yet failed to make any impression upon the quiet cheerfullness of his nature—was struck down. Not struck down as in fair fight, but as strikes the snake in the grass, sudden and unexpected. Blows had been rained upon an unprotected head, and not until the limp body lay upon the floor, unconscious, did the murderer cease his assault and hurl down his cudgel, and leaving his prey fled into the night. While the bitter winter air crept in through an open door to still a dying fire and snip out any spark of life left in the limp body huddled in an ever widening circle of deep crimson.

The law looked—and the cry went out for a stocky red-complexioned foreigner who was—missing. Today doors of the house are barred and Constable Raper stands on guard until investigations are complete.

Seen at Station

Enquiries in the neighborhood regarding this mysterious Finn, reveal that on the evening of Saturday, January 28, a man answering his description called at the Cavanville station and asked for a meal and night's lodging. Speaking to The Examiner last night Russel Card, son of Cavanville station agent, said: "About eight o'clock a week ago Saturday night a man short and stocky came in and asked to stay for the night. We gave him a meal and let him sleep in the station on a bench. I didn't see him go away in the morning, but father said he saw him going west shortly after breakfast. Asked to describe him, Russel stated he would be about 5 foot six or seven, very husky and would likely weigh around 170 or 180 pounds. He was bronzed as if he had been out in the wind and sun a lot, clean shaven with reddish hair. He wore a cap, and overalls I think but I am not very sure of that. His boots had rubber bottoms with either leather or rubber tops. I couldn't tell much about his coat, as he threw it on a bench, and I didn't see him when he went out in the morning. His English was very broken, and I took him for a Swede, but that is hard to tell. While here, he didn't say much, but we understood him to say he had come from the east.

Syer's Story

Ray Syer, who found McLaren's body, is apparently the only other man outside of McLaren who saw "Jake" during his stay in the neighborhood. Last night Mr. Syer told The Examiner of his chat with him. "It was last Sunday, a week ago. I was going to make my weekly visit to the other farm which adjoins this one on the other concession, and where I keep some extra stock. Mrs. Syer said she would go with me for the walk. We went across the fields—I guess it would be about three o'clock. We looked at the stock and then went to the house. I was just going to say 'Hello' to Fred a minute, so Mrs. Syer didn't bother coming in. When I walked in Fred had another man there. He said 'Ray,' this is Jake; he's a Finlander. He's out of work and looking for a job. I was just telling him he might get a job over at neighbor Hunter's.'

"I asked him if he had ever done any chorin' and he said, No. Well, I said, "you'd soon learn." Fred got up to get a pail of water and on the way out asked me if Mrs. Syer was along, and I said, Yes, she's outside.' While Fred was out I talked to the Finn and he seemed a nice sort of champ. His English was broken and very hard to understand. I asked him how long he had been out here, and he told me about two and a half years. He had been up in the Sudbury district working in the mines till they got slack and shut down and he got laid off. 'Where did you go them?' I said, and from what he said I gathered he meant Tweed, and that he had been working on the railroad. 'On the extra gang?' 'Ya," he said, 'extra gang'."

Well Built

When asked to give a description of the Finn, Mr. Syer said, "Well I couldn't tell about his height because he was sitting on a stool—a block of wood Fred had nailed a board on for a seat. However, I would judge he'd weigh about 180 pounds; he was well built. He had on boots with rubber soles, white rubber on the bottom, with the tops of leather I think, coming part way up his legs. Blue pants were tucked into them. Both knees were patched, and neatly at that. He wore two shirts; the outer one, open at the neck, was dark blue, while the inside one was lighter and buttoned at the neck like an undershirt. I don't remember about his cap or coat; don't believe he had either on at the time. His complexion was rather dark, sort of too dark for a Finn. I understand they're supposed to be fair skinned. He was clean shaven and looked as if he had been outside a lot—sort of tanned quite dark.

"Just as we were talking about the extra gang, Fred came in and said 'I don't see the wife around outside.' "I guess she's started home,' I said, and got up and went out. I walked around the house and Mrs. Syer was sitting on a porch there, and we went on home."

Questioned further, Mr. Syer stated he had never seen either McLaren or the Finn again. His first visit was Sunday just passed, when he discovered Fred's body. "McLaren was a quiet man," Mr. Syer said, "had always lived around the neighborhood and was well and favorably known. Up until last winter when the house was burned he had lived with his brother Sid down the other side of Cavanville for years. The past summer he spent working around among the farmers doing what he could, for he was sort of crippled with rheumatism. Last fall he came to me, and asked me if he could stay on my other place. I said he could, and he had been over there since September looking after the stock and living in the living room of the house."

Tells of Hobo

The second last time Fred McLaren came to Cavan, last Thursday, he paid a visit to the boys in Tinney's Garage. While there he bought a plug of tobacco from Harry Freemantle, who states he paid for it with a five dollar bill. While sitting beside the stove in the repair shop, Freemantle said, McLaren told him he had a "hobo out there, and he didn't know how long he was going to stay." "Earlier in the week, I think it was Tuesday," Freemantle said, "McLaren came in and bought a plug of tobacco and to pay for it took out a billfold from which he drew a $5, from among several other bills to get changed. I couldn't say how much was in it, but it's known he drew $50 out of the bank on January 25.

"Friday noon, McLaren came into my store and bought a large loaf of bread and a little over a pound of cheese, and 11 cents worth of hoarhound candy," said Ed. Papinau, general merchant at Cavan. He usually came up about twice a week and got a few things, but he never mentioned anything about a hobo being out there with him. But then he was always quiet. He sat here about a couple of hours and then started for home shortly after three o'clock."

Outstayed His Welcome

That Jake had overstayed his welcome at McLaren's, and was still there on Friday is evident from what McLaren told George Cobbley, blacksmith at Cavanville, when he dropped in for a few minutes right after dinner Friday noon. "I have a hobo up at my place, George," said Fred, "and I wish he'd go away." "That's all he had to say about him though," said Cobbley, speaking to The Examiner late last night. "Right after that he went out up street."

After leaving Papineau's store about three o'clock, McLaren was seen heading across the fields towards home by Harry Freemantle. A short while later the two children of Ira Giles, coming from school, were said to have seen him making his way along the tracks with his parcels ready for the week-end—and that is the last Fred McLaren was seen until his body was found on Sunday afternoon.

Inquest Adjourned

Monday morning a preliminary inquest under Dr. Turner was adjourned till Thursday at 2 o'clock. To-day a Provincial Police Inspector from Belleville, Constable Carey, with a photorapher, and Dr. Turner are combing the scene for further clues. While out across the province the dragnet of the law slowly closes and sifts its flotsam of "vags" for the missing "Jake."

One sister, Mrs. Charles Hard, near Millbrook and four brothers, William, section foreman at Havelock, Alex in the West, John whereabouts unknown, and Sidney at Cavan survive. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon.

lough and G. A. Ironside, president and secretary of the branch.

In connection with the relief work in the town, Councillor J. R. Battisby, chairman of the Relief Committee, sporsored a resolution extending the period of residence qualification in the town for the receiving of relief from three months to one year, a copy of the resolution to be sent to the member for presentation to the Government. This was seconded by Reeve C. H. Davidson. This action was taken because it was felt that many people in the rural districts were coming into the towns where better relief facilities were to be had, and it was felt that a three months' qualification was not sufficient to ensure their permanent residence.

Set Wage Scale.

Councillor John O'Sullivan, chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee, made a plea to the Council for consideration of the workingman in regard to the wage question, when he asked the Council as a whole to set the scale of wages to be paid by the town for the current year. A suggested rate made by him was adapted by the Council. The rate is: Laborer, 25 cents an hour; man and team, 45 cents an hour; the foreman, Earl Haig, 30 cents an hour to March 1, and from then to December 31 full time at 25 cents an hour.

At the request of Mayor Carr, the local Salvation Army were permitted to hold a tag day some time in May. This is an annual drive made by this organization.

Another request made by Mr. Lisle through the Mayor, was that certain trees on his street, Oak Street, be removed, they being an inconvenience. This matter was handed over to the Road and Bridge Committee to deal with.

It was also ordered that the Sanitary Inspector, who is the Chief of Police, place and remove quarantine cards, and the M.O.H. be notified to this effect instead of paying another official to do this as in the past.

Gasoline By-law.

No action was taken with a gasoline by-law presented by Reeve C. H. Davidson as chairman of the Property committee, it being felt that this measure needed correction and additions. A motion was passed referring it back to the committee for corrections, some of which included the interpretation of "dry cleaning establishment"; inclusion of explosives; and the definition of "building inspector." The by-law calls for the proper storage and handling of gasoline and other inflamable spirits with the necessary storage facilities and uses by private citizens and tradesmen. For the purpose of re-consideration Deputy Reeve N. A. MacColl and Councillor McKeel were added to the Propetry committee for this work.

Practicing the policy of economy the council laid on the table an appeal from the Sick Children's Hospital for the annual donation and also took no action with an application from P. J. Kelly for the position of road foreman. Neither would it consider a request from the New Toronto Council to petition the government for national unemployment insurance, it being felt by the council that this legislation would not assist or relieve the present conditions.

The council would not consider also the request from the Kitchener Council to take action to amend the Municipal Act making the qualification for municipal voters a $500 propetry assessment. And it laid on the table a request from the National Stationers Limited for a demonstration of a special voters' list printing machine.

The council is also getting concerned about two indigent patients who have been in the Gravenhurst institution for some time. Councilor Battisby brought forward the matter and sponsored a motion that the Mayor and M. O. H. be authorized to go to Gravenhurst in May and bring back a report on these patients, who are being paid for by the town.

ROUTES BURGLAR.

MINNEAPOLIS.—Whatever her weapon, Mrs. Margaret Moshier protects her cash box from burglars. Sunday night she drove a would-be bandit from her barbecue shop with a near-beer bottle. Two years ago she routed one with a shot gun. She might have shot him, she said, but she was tender hearted.

DEBT QUESTION TO BE STUDIED BY COMMONERS

yardstick. Hon. H. H. Stevens, opposed the plan and it may be debated again later in the session.

Canada's next Government loan will be for a "large" amount and may be available to small investors in $100 and $200 bonds, Mr. Rhodes said.

While reduction of interest charges was a desirable step, "it can make only a partial contribution toward that recovery to which we all turn our minds," said the Finance Minister.

In a brief review of Government financing, the Finance Minister said the conversion loan of two years ago—"and the magnitude of that operation at that time is not generally recognized in this country"—converted $638,000,000 or 60 per cent of the total bonds available for conversion. "The net result will be, when the full interest reductions come into effect in 1935-36, we shall have saved in interest annually the sum of $6,192,900."

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, said it shocked him to know Canada's aggregate debt was twelve billions, and the Government would welcome any scheme which would bring down the annual interest charges.

Grievances of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces against the present system of determining representation in Parliament were voiced in the House last night.

From Quebec J. A. Barrette (Cons., Berthier Maskinonge) claimed after this year's redistribution each Quebec member of the House of Commons would represent 44,219 people and each Ontario member would represent only 41,849.

For the Maritimes Robert Smith (Cons., Cumberland) argued the Progressive reduction in the representation of the provinces by the sea in recent years was out of harmony with the spirit if not the letter of the British North America Act.

Mr. Barrette introduced a resolution calling for a change which would make Ontario's population the basis of representation in the House of Commons instead of Quebec's.

He would give Ontario a fixed number of 82, as at present, and, proportionally, Quebec would have 69, New Brunswick 12 instead of 10, Manitoba 17 as at present, while Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia would each gain one.

Speaking for the Government, Hon. H. H. Stevens rejected Mr. Barrette's argument that the change could be brought about without an amendment to the British North America Act.

He asked that the resolution be withdrawn but after Mr. Smith had pressed the claims of the Maritimes and Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, former Minister of Marine, had expressed agreement with Mr. Stevens, although holding the present situation unfair to Quebec, Hon. Charles Stewart, former Minister of the Interior, adjourned debate. The subject may not be reached again this session.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

BIRTH OF B.N.A. ACT

ON THIS DATE, in 1867, in the House of Lords the Earl of Carnarvon, the colonial secretary, introduced a bill intituled "An Act for the Union of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and the Government thereof, and for purposes connected therewith," which nomenclature was soon shortened to the easier and more convenient British North America Act. The colonial secretary who had presided at the conference held in the Westminster Palace hotel the previous month, was an enthusiast; alone among British statesmen did he seem to grasp the significance of the measure and its potentialities. One sentence of his speech was a prophecy: "We are laying the foundation of a great state—perhaps one which at a future day may even overshadow this country."

The average British legislator was ignorant or indifferent. There was little delay in the Lords; in the Commons the measure was given only scant consideration by what was known as the "colonies group," the few who made a specialty of colonial affairs. There was, indeed, a school which believed that the measure would lead to independence or annexation to the United States; of this school, A. T. Galt wrote: "They want to get rid of us." The great John Bright showed some sympathy with Nova Scotia's claim that it had been draggoned into the agreement; but on the whole a bill to alter the position of a village pump would have attracted more attention. The bill was passed by the Commons, March 8 and was given the royal assent on March 29, and all was set for the inauguration of the Dominion of Canada on July 1 following.

Obituary

MRS. HONORA GUIRY

(Contributed)

A long, useful and holy life came to a close on Saturday, Jan. 28, when Mrs. Honora Guiry passed peacefully away at her residence, 75 Lindsay street, Lindsay. Mrs. Guiry was the daughter of the late James F. Crowley and Catherine Leahy, pioneers of Otonabee township. After her marriage to the late Garrett Guiry, who predeceased her almost seventeen years ago, she took up residence in Emily Township where for forty years she patiently and courageously fulfilled all the duties of a Christian wife and mother. Her self-sacrificing life was rewarded by the comfort and consolation of a devoted family; three of whom consecrated themselves to God in holy religion. The latter years of her life were spent in Lindsay, where she endeared herself to many who deeply regret her departure. All the members of her family had the privilege of attending their mother during her last short illness of three days.

Surviving are four sons: Rev. J. J. Guiry, P.P., Port Hope; John and Joseph of Emily township, and Herbert of Trout Creek; and five daughters: Sister Mary of Victory and Sister Clement of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay, Misses Mary and Ada of Lindsay, and Miss Alice, R.N., of New York; also eleven grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. John Shaughnessy, Peterborough.

The funeral took place on Monday from St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, when her son, Rev. Father Guiry sang Requiem Mass assisted by Rev. J. V. McAuley, of Enniskmore as deacon, Rev. P .F. Butler of Kinmount as sub-deacon, and Rev. K. Corkery as master of ceremonies. The sermon was preached by Rt. Rev. Monseignor McColl.

Other members of the clergy present were Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough; Very Rev. Dean O'Leary of Bracebridge; Rev. P. J. Galvin of Downeyville; Rev. J. Ferguson of Warkworth; Rev. V. J. Gillogly of Victoria Road, and Rev. C. Moloney, Rev. C. Begley, Rev. Dr. J. V. Masterson, Rev. C. Carol of Peterborough.

The pall-bearers were: Daniel Costello, W. J. Houlihan, James Guiry, James Shaughnessy, Frank Crowley and Leonard Clancy.

SILAS GREEN

HAVELOCK, Feb. 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Silas Green, relict of the late Maud McMullen Green, was held from the family residence, Ottawa street, Havelock, on Tuesday afternoon, and was largely attended by sorrowing friends and relatives.

Mr. Green, who was in his sixty-fourth year, had been ill for a number of months as the result of a slight stroke. However, the was able to be up and about as usual until two weeks before his death, when he took another stroke, and culminated in death on Sunday, Jan. 29th.

The funeral service was held at the United Church, with Rev. A. S. Kemp pastor in charge of the service there and at the graveside. Messrs. Steve McQuigge, R. Sanderson, E. Leeson, W. Seabrooke, Frank McKay and Fred. Chase were pallbearers, and bore the remains to their final resting place at Maple Grove cemetery.

The late Mr. Green was for many years a resident of this village and was well and favorably known, and highly respected. For many years he was employed as a cook with the bridge and building gang of the Canadian Pacific Railway. His wife predeceased him a few months ago, and no doubt the loss of his beloved helpmate hastened his death. He leaves to mourn the loss of a devoted father, two daughters, Mrs. L. Whitney and Mrs. H. Gordon of Havelock, and three sons, Tom and Kenneth of Havelock, and Earl of Toronto. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved family.

Wooden Paving Bricks Being Used As Fuel

CHICAGO, Feb. 7 (C.P.).—Piece by piece, the police said, one of the city's streets was disappearing. As rapidly as the city laid paving blocks they disappeared. They arrested Frank Valencia, a Negro, as he uses a wheelbarrow, loaded with wooden paving bricks.

"I use 'em for fuel," he told a judge. "The city is supposed to furnish relief, isn't it?"

He was fined.

Weddings

MANIECE—MORRISON

St. Luke's Church was filled last evening for the wedding at half-past seven o'clock of Helen Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Morrison of Dalhousie street, and Mr. Earl Maniece, only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Maniece of Mark street.

Owing to the recent tragic bereavement in the family of the officiating clergyman, the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, who bravely fulfilled his duties while sorrow darkened his household, the service was very simple, the choral element being dispensed with. Mr. W. Thompson played the wedding music.

Miss Alice Price was bridesmaid and Mr. Stanley Curtis best man.

Mr. Arthur Long and Mr. Gordon Morrison acted as ushers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely frock of brown cut velvet, with matching accessories, turban of gilt metallic cloth and corsage bouquet of roses.

An interesting feature of the wedding was the fact that it took place on the same date as the wedding of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Maniece, just thirty-two years ago yesterday.

NEW CHAIRMAN ON TARIFF BOARD WILL COMPLETE PRESENT ASSIZES

Mr. Justice Sedgewick it at Present Presiding at Assizes Here.

TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

Taken by surprise with the news of his appointment to the chairmanship of the Canadian Tariff Board, the Hon. Justice George Herbert Sedgewick, presiding at the Winter Assizes of the Supreme Court here this week, declined to make any comment on the appointment when interviewed this morning. "I am a little embarrassed by the unexpected sudenness of my appointment and I feel that I am not in a position to make any statement," he said.

Queried in regard to the immediate course he planned to take, Mr. Justice Sedgewick indicated that he would finish his duties at the Assizes here before resigning his post on the bench. At nine o'clock this morning he had received no official notification of his appointment and stated that the only word he had in the matter had been gained from the morning papers.

"Apparently they want to get things under way as quickly as possible but I am still on the job," he said. "I expect to finish it up. I am still a Judge and when my retirement has been effected I shall feel freer to talk."

Mr. Justice Sedgewick presided in the Court House to-day as the trial of Edward Jackson on a charge of murder proceeded. A manslaughter charge and eight other cases are on the docket for his attention before the Assizes are brought to a close. He said that he expected to finish and return to Toronto by Thursday or Friday.

As he awaited the time for the opening of court in his hotel room this morning, he was besieged by a flood of telephone calls from Toronto and other cities pertinent to his appointment.

VERIGIN ORDER IS PREMATURE

WILLING TO QUIT CANADA.

HALIFAX, February 7 (C.P.). — A claim the order was premature and contained certain irregularities was expected to be made to-day when a petition was to be presented to Mr. Justice Humphrey Hellish in Supreme Court concerning the proposed deportation of Peter Verigin, leader of the Doukhobors.

Peter G. Makaroff, personal counsel of Verigin, announced that J. J. Power, K.C., who is associated with himself and Lionel A. Ryan in the case, had telegraphed Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, informing them that Verigin held passports for Argentina, Mexico, and Costa Rica, and asking tant the Doukhobor chief be sent to one of those countries rather than Russia. Makaroff said the leader would undertake not to return to Canada, and would back his word wit hthe entire $20,000,000 assets of the brotherhood.

ANNUAL MEETING HALL POOR TRUST

George Evans is Re-elected Chairman of the Board.

The annual statutory meeting of the William Hall, Peterborough, Protestant Poor Trust was held on Monday in the secretary's office, 418 Water street.

There were present: George Evans, Esq., in the chair, and Messrs. A. W. Wray, H. B. Cowan, Alex. Gibson, T. H. Taylor and W. A. Richardson.

Following the disposal of routine business the annual statement was presented by the secretary, John Crane (as required by the Act governing this Trust, the statement is published elsewhere in this paper, in display).

In commenting on the report, the secretary pointed out that the Trust, incorporated in 1876, was created by a legacy of the late William Hall, of $30,000.00, the income to be used to aid the Protestant Poor of the (then) Town. At the time of the payment of the legacy, the payment was made in mortgages, many of which presented difficulties in collecting. However, the trustees have succeeded in keeping the fund intact and some years ago re-invested the mortgage funds in safe government and municipal bonds. That this procedure was a wise one is evidenced by the fact that the Trust has no unpaid interest or mortgages in which there might be doubt in collecting. The Trust has been enabled to carry on for over 50 years, and has assisted many who came under the provisions of the Trust.

The Trust of 30,000.00 is to-day invested as follows: $15,000.00 Province of Ontario Bonds, bearing 6 per cent. interest, and $15,000.00 City of Peterborough Debentures, bearing 5 per cent. interest.

The board is an elected one from a number of churches, and members at the present time, seven in all. The election of officers was then held, resulting as follows:

Chairman, George Evans. Secretary-Treasurer, John Crane. Relief and Investment Committees.—The whole Board.

Cathedral Players Repeated Comedy

"It Pays to Advertise," the successful three-act farce comedy produced by the Cathedral Players with such success last week in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, was repeated last evening for relief purposes, in the East City Community Hall, under the auspices of the Immaculate Conception Church.

The play was presented with much success by the cast, which included the Misses Marcelle McNulty, Peggy Roche, Helen Archambeault, Hilda Sullivan, and Messrs. Jack Madden, Jack McCabe, Ernest Archambault, Jack Roach, David Edward, F. J. Lonergan and Dr. E. M. Crough. The part of William Smith, taken by T. J. Ryan last week, was in the hands of George Lynch, director of the production, last evening, as Mr. Ryan was out of the city.

During intermissions and before the play, a very fine orchestra, led by J. Minicola, played some beautiful music that included such well-known numbers as the Lutspiel Overture, the Vanishing Army March, the March from Aida, the March of the Priests, by Mendelssohn, and the Double Eagle number. Miss Geraldine Collins sang very pleasingly between acts, accompanied by Miss Veronica Scollard.

WATERCRAFT MINSTREL SHOW ON WEDNESDAY

To-morrow, Wednesday night, the Canadian Watercraft Minstrels will present their show, "A Night in a Broadcasting Station," in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute.

The show is directed by Delbert Lucas and Homer Lundy and is said to be an extremely entertaining production. It includes a funny skit, entitled "The Coon Rehearsal," also the usual round of jokes, popular songs and music.

In the second part, a twenty-minute period will be devoted to music by Mel Leal and his Liftlock Mountaineers, an old-time orchestra which has been broadcasting with much success over CFCA in Toronto.

Tickets are 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for juniors. Come along and have an evening of fun and help the relief fund.

1932 FIRE LOSS IN PETERBORO' WAS $22,189.03

38 OUTBREAKS

Fire at the Bishop's Palace Was Largest During Past Year.

Thirty-eight outbreaks of fire last year accounted for property loss and damage amounting to $22,189.03 as compared with a loss of $44,034.55 in the year previous according to figures contained in the eleventh annual report to the City Council of Fire Chief George Gimblett, presented last night.

While the above figures for 1932 do not constitute a record, they bear very favourable comparison with the fire losses during the past twenty-four years. For the whole of that period the lowest losses were recorded in 1914 when they were $13,378. They reached the peak in 1916 with a loss of $2,262,956 mainly accounted for by the memorable blaze at the Quaker Oats Limited.

The outbreak of fire in February last at the Bishop's Palace took heaviest toll during last year. The total damage caused by that outbreak is placed at $10,901.82.

Following the heavy losses registered in February, the month following was light with the nominal sum of $27 being the only toll taken by fire. November was the best month of the whole year $21:50 being the first loss recorded.

1874 Inspections

The chief reports that the Fire Prevention Bureal made a total of 1874 inspections for the year, and 27 dilapidated buildings were ordered torn down or repaired and the debris cleaned up. In addition 52 chimneys were found to be defective and were ordered taken out or rebuilt. Under Fire Marshall's orders six fire escapes were also placed on various buildings in the city.

Among the recommendations the Chief makes to the Council, is the appointment of a permanent inspector for the Fire Prevention Bureau, for the reason that inspections have to be curtailed when men are on sick leave or vacation.

Establishment of a Pension Fund for the firemen similar to that in operation in several other cities, is also urged.

Chief Gimblett calls attention in his report to the fact that during the latter part of August this year the members of the Dominion Fire Chief's Association will meet in convention in this city.

He states in closing, "I desire to thank His Worship the Mayor and City Council, also the chairman of the Fire Water and Light Committee and other members for their co-operation and support in the discharge of my duties as chief officer of the Department."

Acknowledgment is also made by the Chief for the assistance and co-operation he has received from the City Clerk and other civic officials including the Police Department, and thanks are extended to the press "for the impartial manner in which they have reported the operations of the Department".

CONCILIATORY BOARDS URGED

SNAG IS FORECLOSURES.

OMAHA, Neb. Feb. 7.—(AP)—Establishment of conciliatory boards designed to establish the reasonableness of farm foreclosures was suggested today as possible solution of the rural mortgage situation in the United States.

The suggestion came following a meeting yesterday of the representatives of companies holding $1,000,000,000 in farm mortgages, who indicated a belief that the main hope of settlement lay in creation of the conciliatory bodies.

Farm mortgage moratoria, such as are now in effect in Iowa were termed "bad business" by F. B. Goudy of Omaha. Mr. Goudy, representing the Traveler's Insurance Company, was the main speaker and he asserted that the problem facing the loan companies today is to collect a reasonable portion of the income of the mortgaged farms to meet interest and taxes.

During the day there were rumblings of the farmer's "rebellion" in Iowa and Wisconsin. At Anita, Iowa, 2100 farmers succeeded in obtaining an immediate hearing in the case of Thomas T. Saunders, landlord, who was being sued by Chris Christensen, tenant, for settlement on a sale of chattels. Christensen won his point.

Among the clergy noticed among the congregation were the following: Rev. C. E. Whittaker, of St. John's Anglican Church, Blackstock; Rev. A. T. Weir, of Christ Church (Anglican), Omemee; Rev. W. Simpson, of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Millbrook; Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor of St Paul's Presbyterian Church, and Rev. C. D. Daniel, pastor of Mark Street United Church.

The service was fully choral and a surpliced choir was in attendance. Hymns included: "Holy Father in Thy Mercy," "Hush Blessed are the Dead," and "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

Preceded by the Rev. Mr. Hughes, who recited portions from the burial service, the casket was borne into the church by the west door on the shoulders of six youthful companions of the dead boy, and during the service rested at the foot of the chancel steps.

At the close of the service the casket was borne from the church, while the choir chanted the Nunc Dimittis: "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace..."

The bearers included 15-year-old William Hepburn, who was the companion of the dead boy on Saturday last. He and George Bousfield had skated on the Trent Valley Canal to Nassau, and had each taken a .22 rifle with them in anticipation of some rabbit shooting, on a subsequent ramble through the fields and woods. Other bearers, all close friends of the deceased boy, were: Eric Pearse, Roy Wood, Henry Blade, John Legon, John Davies.

Interment of the remains was made at Collingwood Cemetery this afternoon, the cortege leaving by road immediately at the close of the service.

With the Rev. T. J. O'Connor-Fenton presiding, the clergy of Peterborough Deanery, together with the visiting clergy of the Deanery of Victoria, framed a resolution of sympathy which is to be conveyed to the Rev. and Mrs. Bousfield and other members of the bereaved family.

EXPRESS APPRECIATION TO BOARD OF HEALTH

More than a score of ratepayers met the four members of the Board of Health at the conclusion of the City Council meeting last evening and expressed appreciation of the stand they had taken in the special session of the Board of Health yesterday morning. "We came over to congratulate you," a well known citizen, spokesman of the delegation, told Alderman Stocker, chairman of the Board, Mayor Denne and Aldermen McIntyre and Holland. "We wanted to express our thanks at the Council meeting but you were through a little sooner than we expected, so we are doing it here on the street. It was a good work and we hope you keep it up."

'Drunk' Narrowly Escapes Drowning

Celebrating his freedom, after a week in the county gaol, Andrew Turnbull, transient of Ottawa, narrowly escaped drowning in the Otonabee river yesterday afternoon.

Blind drunk, Turnbull staggered out upon the thin ice at the foot of Charlotte. He fell in a drunken stupor on the ice and was rescued by Board of Works' employees.

He was let out of jail yesterday after a sentence for drunkenness. To-day he was sent back by Police Magistrate Langley for another month. "I'll never touch again," he vowed to the Bench as he was led away.

Police Court

Arrested yesterday by Provincial Constable W. Warren, Wilbert Marois, aged 21, of Cavendish Township, was charged in police court to-day with breaking and entering the summer cottage of Dr. C. H. Kent, of Akron, Ohio. He was not permitted to plead, but was remanded for one week.

Marois crossed the thin ice of Clear Lake to Dr. Kent's cottage on February 1, according to police, and stole more than a $100 in wearing apparel, dishes, and kitchen utensils. Constable Warren found the stolen goods concealed in a barn on the mainland.

SPENDS NIGHT IN COLD IN ORDER TO GET JOB

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—(CP).—Sydney Gleed, Fairbank, read about the William Wrigley Company here, increasing its staff 10 per cent. yesterday, so he started out early yesterday and arrived at the plant at three o'clock in the afternoon prepared to camp out in the open all night so he might be the first in line when the place opened to-day.

The weather was terribly cold, and the policeman on the beat couldn't allow Gleed to remain there. So the cop phoned Wrigley officials. They came down to the plant, interviewed the cold, courageous applicant, found he filled their requirements and forthwith awarded him the job he so desired.

More than 1,000 men lined up outside the plant to-day asking for jobs.

BOWMANVILLE IS DEFEATED

Mercer and Mutton Play Brilliant Game in Nets as Port Hope Returned Victor.

BY 4 TO 2 COUNT.

BOWMANVILLE, February 7. — Port Hope defeated Bowmanville in an O.H.A. Junior fixture last night 4-2. Both teams played a much superior brand of hockey than on any previous meeting, and Mercer and Mutton, in the nets, had a busy evening. In the opening period the locals had many more shots on the vistors' net, but W. Bagnell was the only one to score for the locals on a long shot. McTavish and Bell scored two goals for Port Hope. In the second period Jim Phillips of Port Hope opened the scoring on a long drive that Mutton misjudged. Dunlop soon added another to the Bowmanville count on a rebound from Mercer's stick, making the score 3-2. Port Hope opened the scoring in the third, with B. Pillsworth taking the honors, on another long shot. Bowmanville missed a choice opportunity when the puck slammed around the Port Hope net in a scramble, but Mercer cleared just in time.

Port Hope — Goal, Mercer; defence, McTavish and Record; centre, O. Pillsworth; wings, Jim Phillips and Jack Phillips; subs., Bray, Bell, B Pillsworth, Cancilla.

Bowmanville — Goal, J. Mutton; defence, Williams and Thickson; centre, C. Osborne; wings, Dunlop and T. Bagnell; subs., W. Bagnell, B Mutton, L. Gunn, D. Osborne.

Maple Leafs To Test Revamped Canadiens

TORONTO, February 7 (C.P.).—It falls to Toronto Maple Leafs to give Leo Dandurand's somewhat renovated Canadiens a tryout. Leafs clinch with the Habitants to-night at Montreal.

Chunky Marty Burke won't be on defence and Leo Murray, a recruit, will be mssing from the front flanks, but otherwise Canadiens will be intact—and more. Old Gizzy Hart and old Bob Trapp and young Art Alexandre, all from Providence Reds of the Canadian-American League, will get tryouts.

Dandurand, just 24 hours after announcing he was about to shake up his famous team, announced the Providence trio had been acquired. At the same time he said Harold Starr, burly Ottawa Senator defenceman, would join Canadiens, but Starr won't play to-night.

SMELTERS WIN ON ROUND 5-3 AT HAVELOCK

Madoc to Meet Winner in O.H.A. Playdowns.

ALBIONS ON SHORT END.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—Madoc won from the local Albions here last night, handing the clubmen the small end of a two to one decision, thereby getting a chance to play in the O.H.A. playdowns. It was a clean fought battle throughout, most of the penalties going to the locals for minor offences. The visitors had the edge on the play all the way through.

McLaughlin drew first blood after thirty seconds of play on one of his famous solo rushes. He had lots of backing but it was an easy one and literally "dropped in." Hagerman and Blue were both thumbed for boarding, while McLaughlin got the gate for tripping. From then on the play dragged on without much happening.

Kennedy held out well in this stanza, stopping about ten as compared with Nickle's four. Neither team played good combination and were often bunched. Solo rushes proved fruitless and the first canto ended with the locals one up on the game and tied for place.

Better Combination.

Paul Voyer, Charlie Brennan and Ted Watson treated the fans to some better combination this time but failed to tally. Lawrence Sanderson warmed the bench for tripping Henderson, who seemed to be away for a sure goal, when the defence was playing forward. Jimmie Watson dropped in a nice one but it was called off side. Play speeded up about half-way through this period and there were plenty of spills. After some real smart plays by both teams Watson finally evened up the score in the dying minutes of the second. Lorne Jack received a little tap on the chin accidentally from Henderson. While the score of the game was now tied, Madoc was one goal ahead on the round and the locals were bound to tie it up or bust. They didn't tie it.

Blue, Henderson, Weir and Watson all played well for the visitors, and were dangerous around the nets. While Rupert, Meraw, Armstrong, and Akey were always ready for any breaks. Kennedy easily outclassed Nickle in goal with his many saves. McLaughlin and Jack played a good game as usual. The "kid line," J. Voyer, B. Hagerman and Chiles, didn't come in for as much praise as usual. Sanderson was valuable as a defenceman, but was a little lighter than his opponents, who by the way were pounds heavier than the local lads.

Scores Last Tally.

McLaughlin was thumbed twice in the last stanza for tripping. Henderson scored the last tally with only a few minutes to go on a drop from Charlie Brennan near home citadel. Just before this the visitors seemed to be "ragging," the puck going over the fence a couple of times. A final rush in the last seconds of the game resulted in Weir being sandwiched, and was laid out for a few minutes.

Teams:

Referee: A. Rose, of Peterborough, who handled the game to the satisfaction of all concerned.

OSHAWA LOSES SECOND GAME; WINS ON ROUND

Toronto Native Sons Score 4-2 Victory But Suffer Elimination.

SCORE ON ROUND 6-5.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—While Oshawa clinched the Big Four group championship at Maple Leaf Gardens, last night, they were given a strenuous battle by Toronto Native Sons, who, although winning the game, 4 to 2, were forced to concede the group to theM otor City crew by a 6-to-5 margin on the round. The Blue Imps won the first game played at Oshawa on Saturday by 4-to-1 count.

Three goals is quite a handicap to overcome, but the doughty Sons managed to do this last night only to lose the advantage in the final minutes when Cliff Maundrell, Oshawa's clever winger and the group's leading scorer, counted, to give his team their slim margin, which they managed to hold until the final gong.

What made it harder for the Sons to accept defeat is the fact that they had not lost a game in their regular schedule and had four victories to their credit over the new champions, their first defeat coming Saturday.

Native Sons were much the better team and had Oshawa hemmed in their own end for most of the contest.

CAMPBELLFORD RED SHIRTS WIN FROM TRENTON

Lakeshore Outfit Misses Many Chances to Score and Homesters Take 8-1 Victory.

GOULD PLAYS GOOD GAME.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 7 (Examiner Correspondence).— Campbellford Maroons had little trouble in taking an 8-1 decision from Ross Burtt's white-clad intermediates of Trenton in an O.H.A. fixture at Davidson's Areno on Monday night. Trenton were in close on many a play, but were either outguessed by Hulin or missed by inches. The Maroons sifted through the defence with ease, Joe Gould in the Trenton net having no chance on the eight that got by him, the score would have been in the two figures only for his good work. Fillion on the defence was the best man on the ice for Trenton, and along with Gould deserves any honors that are going. For the Maroons the Ingram brothers and the "kid" line of Copperwaite, Whitton, and Hendy were the pick. Hulin in goal also played a good game, but his defence afforded wonderful protection.

The first period opened with Campbellford right on the offensive. Fillion got the gate for tripping Davies, and the Maroons put on the pressure with the one man advantage. Gould was blocking them from all angles. Filion just returned to the ice when Miller was banished for dumping Freddie Ingram. Ingram brothers and Davis were right in on top of the net, but were outguessed. McKay backhanded one that Gould was lucky to stop the puck going inside his pads. Begin tested Hulin with a hot one from the left boards. Harry Ingram circled his own net and on a solo rush brought Gould to his knees with what was labelled for the back of the net. The Maroons' "kid" line were dropped over and stopped at a fast clip. "Bus" Whitton worked his way through with Copperwaite and took the latter's pass for the only goal of the period.

Take Offensive.

With ten minutes gone Trenton came to life and played their best hockey of the sixty minutes for the balance of the period. Bohan worked his way through on left wing for a goal, but Begin was offside and play was called back by Max Board. Hulin went off for tripping Bohan, and Whitton went in the nets, and gave a great exhibition of net minding, looked like a second Charlie Gardiner. With Trenton players all around him he did everything but swallow the puck. Davis at centre stickhandled nicely around centre to rag the time and got a big hand from the crowd. Whitton and Ingram were in with only Gould to beat, but he saved. Bohan was letting some hot ones go from left wing that had Hulin jumping. Davis pulled a smart play when he snared the puck at centre, went right into the goalmouth, and lifted over it. H Ingram was pulling off some nice rushes with no results. Miller and Johnson worked in on a smart rush, Miller went behind the net, centred out to Johnson, and he fell when Hulin came out to meet him. York was right through a minute later, with no one to take his pass.

The Maroons pressed hard, opening the middle session. F. Ingram got a goal but Davis was over the line ahead of the play. F. Ingram and McKay manipulated the second Maroon goal, the former getting credit for it. York got the gate for slashing. "Bus" Whitton took a pass from Copperwaithe outside the defense and picked the lower left hand corner for the third, half a minute later McKay went through was forced around the Trenton net and centered out to Copperwaithe and he missed. Powers gave Hunter a close one when he back handed Bohan's pass from behind. H. Ingram was right through only to have Gould come out to check him. Bohan and Hendy came together hard, the former went off for repairs. F. Ingram got the fourth on the best combination shown by the Maroons front line of the game, Davis and McKay both getting assists with thirty seconds to go. McArthur was chased for tripping.

Play Quiets Down

The last session was dull, the Maroons not exerting themselves, coasting along with a four goal lead. Copperwaithe got the gate for hooking, York followed him for slashing. F. Ingram, flashy Maroon wing got another when he was allowed to go around the net and poke it in. Fellion was benched for tripping. Whitton picked one from inside the blue line. F. Ingram fattened his average on an assist from Davis.

Rosenpott went right through, Hulin came out to meet him and fell, Rosenpott going into the net. Hendy got a rest for dumping Bohan. Trenton's only goal came with but two minutes left. York shot, Begin going in fast for the rebound.

Campbellford—Goal, Hulin; defense, McArthur and H. Ingram; centre, Davis; wings, McKay, F. Ingram; subs, Hendy, Copperwaithe, Whitton and Bush.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 7.—Wheat prices followed Chicago steadily upward on the Grain Exchange here yesterday and closed ⅞c to 1⅛c higher. Gains of more than a cent were registered in the United States market on the strength of unfavorable winter wheat crop reports.

Very little export was worked in Canadian wheat, but Liverpool was steady in spite of a limited demand.

Roots of the new-crop wheat plants in the United States winter-wheat area are said to have been exposed by recent mild temperatures and high winds, and further damage is feared if co'd weather follows.

World shipments of wheat this week are practically unchanged, but North America supplied more than it did last week. Supplies on ocean passage to Europe increased by 3,000,000 bushels.

A slight improvement was noted in demand for cash wheat, but the sales were small. Interest in cash coarse grains was light.

RANGERS SCORE 8 TO 2 VICTORY

Break Into City League Win Column at Expense of Normal Students.

The Ranger Meat Market team broke into the win column of the City Hockey League at the Brock last night, at the expense of Normal, taking the tilt 8 to 2 in a fast game. The ice was good and play was fast and exciting all the way through, but one-sided for the last half. Few penalties marred the affair, but considerable tumbling added to the amusement of a small crowd.

The count was 2-1 for the Murphy clan in the first session, and 4-1 for them going into the last chapter. The whole winning side played nice hockey, having a big edge on skating, combination and shooting. They checked their opponents up tightly most of the time. McCarral went fine in goal, his defence was strong and the forwards effective. Payne and Cournyea were outstanding. Widdess in goal for the losers made some nice stops but looked bad on long shots. His support was only fair. Smith and Kinlin worked hard.

The first was even and fast, Kinlin notching one early, and Watson and Cournyea both tallying on long ones just before the bell. Cournyear and Gibson, aided by Watson, got two more in the middle canto, with the Normal defence checking nicely to hold out the speedy Rangers, and McCarrol coolly clearing a bunch. Boyler and Payne got one each and Cournyea two in the third frame, after Smith had got the second Normal marker. The teams:

Normal.—Goal, McCarrol; defence, R. Doble and Ewing; centre, Jobb; wings, Nind and Smith; alternates, Kinlin, B. Doble and Reid.

Referee, Tommy Miller.

GOALIES PLAY BRILLIANT GAME

A SPEEDY CONTEST.

Carters slapped a 4-0 coat of whitewash on the luckless Westclox team in an East Peterborough League fixture at the Brock last night. The game was a speedy contest on fast ice, clean most of the way. A very small crowd attended, and saw the Truckers earn the win, having an edge, particularly the first half the game.

The score was 2-0 for Payne's squad to finish the first frame, and they added one in the second and another in the last go. The winners showed better combination and puck-carrying the first period, and had a little the better of it the second, except when short-handed. Westclox fought back hard in the third and threatened time and again to run in a couple of counters, but couldn't fool Foley.

Both goalies went fine, Doxie being hard to beat in every stanza. Foley had to step fast on a bunch and his shutout shows how he performed. He had a better defence than Doxie in front of him, while the opposing forward lines were about equal at backchecking. Epps starred again in this department and also did some nice rushing. Milliken and Dinesen looked good rushing at times, too. Magee shone for the winners, with Williams, Maudsley and the Jones' boy also going well.

Play Opens Fast

The opening chapter saw both sides turning on the steam, play moving up and down fast and the two goalies having some tough shots right on. Early in the setto, Magee took a pass from Maudsley and blazed in the first one. Lackey came through alone a few minutes later to make it two. The Carters were having most of the play but good backchecking kept them from further scoring, while the Alarm outfit did a bit of dangerous rushing too. No penalties were drawn during the first twenty minutes.

Each side in turn threatened hard for a while in the second, both Foley and Doxie making some great stops in close. J. White drew a penalty for relieving Epps before the bell had rung, and later Thirnbeck was benched for slashing. The Carters buzzed in close repeatedly but Doxie cleared cooly. Finally, William and Swanger combined in a fine rush, the former netting the rubber. Swanger drew a major penalty shortly after for slugging, and play was rougher and about even at the close.

Scores Final Goal

Almost from the faceoff to start the third, Magee tore up the left boards with the disc and wristled a high one into the corner of the net from defence to wind up the scoring. Westclox opened up and made Foley and his defence hustle to keep them out the rest of the way on fine rushing, although the Payne crew got in a few dangerous sorties also. H. White drew a penalty for tripping, and play was slower, even and marked by close checking around the centre zone at the end of the game.

The teams:

Westclox: Goal, Doxie; defence, H. White and Whatley; centre, Epps; wings, Milliken and Dinesen; alternates, J. White, Wood, Thirnbeck and Tuck.

Carters: Goal, Foley; defence, Lackey and Swanger; centre, Maudsley; wings, Williams and Magee; alternates, B. Jones, Meagher, H Jones and Saunt.

EAST SEYMOUR LEAGUE

BURNBRAE, Feb. 7. (Examiner Correspondence).—Visitors to the Seymour East hockey double-header on Saturday afternoon were treated to two fine battles by evenly-matched squads. Menie failed in the attempt to down English Line for the league leadership and after one overtime period the teams agreed to call it a draw with the score at one all. Pethericks provided the big upset of the day when they trounced Hoards by a 2 to 1 count.

With the ice very heavy at the start the Menie speed merchants could not get going, and the Line jumped into an early lead when Alex. Stevens blazed in a hot shot which just caught the inside of the post. The second period was well under way, and it began to look like another Line victory when Rannie poked one in from a scramble and though both teams put up a stiff fight, no score resulted in the third and overtime sessions. It would be unfair to pick any star players on either team as the heavy ice wore the energy and nerves ragged. While the checking was heavy there were few penalties handed out by Referee Dunk, and near the end of the game every player attended strictly to hockey. Ted Owens as usual played a wonderful game in the nets while Shillinglaw on defence was a tower of strength and his running mate, Locke, was no easy man to pass.

Alex Stevens was easily the best of the forwards with Harry Stevens and Little dishing up a good brand of hockey. Don Peake was an absentee because of illness and his weight was missed.

Doug. Milne was good both ways for Menie, but Nelson and Rannie could not get their combination working on the heavy ice. The others gave their best, but it was not quite enough to win.

English Line.—Goal, Owens; defence, Shillinglaw, Locke; forwards, A. Stevens, H. Stevens, Little; subs., T. Peake, Fry, J. Stevens, A. Potts, F. Potts.

Menie.—Goal, Eagleson; defence, Craighead, D. Milne; forwards, Rannie, K. Milne, Nelson; subs., E. Whitton, W. Whitton, Little, Linn, Wallace.

With Jeffs, Hoards' stellar defence man, under ban as a result of the decision of the Rawdon League in which he has been playing, the southern team was reduced to two subs., but put up a strong game, nevertheless. The first canto was scoreless, end-to-end plays featuring. Early in the second Hoards scored one of the soft variety when a shot by Rimington from a scramble slid around Turner to the goal-mouth, and Rannie eluded his check to tuck it away for a counter.

Pethericks soon evened up and removed the stain of their two scoreless defeats. Don Watson picked up Anderson's pass at centre, rushed to the corner and outguessing the defence scored the evener on a nice shot. Just before the period ended, Anderson caught the Hoard's forwards flat-footed, picked up the loose puck, passed to G. Petherick at the Hoards blue line and the centre man made no mistake to drive him the winning goal.

The third session was a torrid affair with the Pethericks gang playing almost strictly defensive hockey to hold out the desperate five-man attacks of the southern team.

The Hoards' regulars put up a hard game and Oddie and Hobbs kept breaking through time after time only to have their attempts blocked at the defence or their shots tossed aside by Turner. Jones, Rimington and Rannie were continually boring in for rebounds. Gunning brothers didn't weaken the team any when on.

Turner, in goal for the winners, was out standing and deserves much credit for the victory. Don Watson, on defence for the first period and forward the rest of the game, was the star of the afternoon, his rink-length rushes in the first period bringing the crowd to its feet, while he played sound defensive hockey in the final stanza. Southworth was good, especially in the first when penalties to Anderson and G. Kerr weakened the squad. Dorie arrived late, but played a strong game. An accidental collision with Oddie laid Dorie cold for a while, but he came back for the fighting finish. The rest played good hockey when on, Barnum turning in his best game to date, while G. Petherick's winning goal entitles him to special mention.

Hoards.—Goal, Roy Oddie; defence, K. Oddie, Hobbs; forwards, Rannie, Jones, Rimington; subs, H. Gunning, C. Gunning.

Pethericks.—Goal, Turner; defence, Anderson, D. Watson; forwards, G. Kerr, G. Petherick, D. Kerr; subs., Dorie, Southworth, A. Petherick, J. Watson, Barnum.

MONTHS BEFORE CARDINAL SHORT REGAINS HEALTH

RUTH IS 39 TO-DAY.

NEW YORK, February 7 (C.P.).—Joe Shaute, veteran left-handed pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, to-day added his name to the long list of satisfied athletes who have sent in their signed contract to the Dodger business office. Shaute was a "spot" pitcher in 1932, being especially effective against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The 1933 major league schedules probably will not be announced for several weeks, perhaps longer. The schedule-makers are delaying final action until the Pennsylvania Legislature rules definitely on the question of Sunday baseball.

Three clubs, the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League and the Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates of the National will be affected by the Legislature's decision, whichever way it may go.

The American League listed no mid-winter meeting this year, but the National League solons were booked for a session here to-day. So far as was known in advance, little but routine business was to be transacted.

Branch Rickey reveals that the St. Louis Cardinals have little or no hope that Charley Gelbert, victim of a hunting accident in the fall, would be able to play shortstop this season. He believes it will be months before Gelbert is fully recovered from the gunshot wound that badly injured the calf of one leg.

Gelbert himself thinks he will be able to play, but the Cardinals plan to pick a successor from among Jake Flowers, Sparky Adams, and Charley Wilson. Frankie Frisch will be switched to third base, with Rogers Hornsby at second.

The latest addition to the hold-out brigad is Erni Lombardi, burly Cincinnati catcher. He was given a raise by the Reds, but sent back his contract unsigned, intimating that he would be pleased to receive a contract for two or three years. Lombardi, who owns one of the biggest noses and perhaps the largest pair of feet in the majors, said he had been doctoring the latter all winter, and expected them to be in good shape for the coming season.

Babe Ruth reached his thirty-ninth birthday to-day in excellent physical trim, but no nearer to a solution of his salary differences with the New York Yankees.

The home-run king, although busily engaged getting organized for his annual jaunt to Florida to-morrow, said he'd find time for a small party.

"I'm going to have a cake, too," he added.

SPIRITED TUSSLE.

In a junior ladies' basketball fixture played last evening at the Y.W.C.A., the Westclox juniors won their fourth straight game when they handed the Wohelo Club a 7-4 beating.

The game was a spirited tussle with the Wohelo girls, who were trailing the Clockmakers by only one point in the league standing, forcing the play during the earlier part of the game. The Wohelos led at half time 4-1, with Olga Gillespie marking up three points and Audrey Livingstone one, while M. Blade tossed in a free throw for the Big Ben girls.

In the second half Westclox took command of the play, B. Blade accounting for four points nad M. Blade and Dorothy Routley one each. The Wohelos had several good scoring chances in this period but failed to score, making the final count 7-4 for the Westclox.

The teams—

Westclox—Forwards, B. Blade, M. Blade, D. Routley, P. Davis, C. Watman; defence, R. Puddick, A. Crary, G. Grant, L. Chartren.

ALBANY FRANCHISE FINDS PURCHASER

International League Also Adopts 168-game Schedule for 1933.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7. (AP)—The International Baseball League settled down to-day to a study of the muddled affairs of the Jersey City Club, sole remaining major item of unfinished business.

The League directors, called in special session yesterday, three of its most pressing problems with the announcement of the sale of the Albany franchise, the adoption of a 168-game schedule exclusive of the play-offs, and the approval of a player bonus for the team finishing at the top of the final standing.

The Albany franchise was sold to Joe Cambria of Baltimore who plans to continue operation of the club in the New York state capital. Relief pitchers with a penchant for leisurely response to calls for emergency duty, will find it expensive to delay games in the International next season.

The League directors decided to assess a fine of $5 on bull-pen pitchers slow to answer a summons to the mound. They must respond immediately, the directors decided, and complete their warm-up in the box.

(By C.J.P.)

This certainly isn't baseball weather but rumors and diamond gossip continue to float around, and it wont be very long till the Hot Stovers will step out in theopen with their dope. We understand, and this isn't gossip but a fact, that Red Hollingsworth has applied to the O.B.A.A. for a transfer from Peterborough to Oshawa. The sorrel-topped shortstop of the Petes is working in the Motor City and figures on playing with the Dukes this year. He should have no trouble makinga place as Red is young, lively, a good fielding shortstop and a pretty fair sticker. But what will the Petes do?

That City Hockey League tussle up the the Brock last night was a funny one, with more spills to the rush than one of these sack races they used to pull off at picnics. Rangers galloped through to an 8-2 win over Normal, having a big edge on play the last half the game You can't say those boys don't try—they were turning on a nickel, so fast in fact that they generally sat down to count their change. Lots of fun, and good practise for several real prospects.

* * * * * * *

Westclox sort of took it on the chin again up there last night, Carters hanging a zero on them while running in four goals themselves. It wasn't a bad game, but the winners looked better all right. They got a couple in the first, and one each in the next two, with the Clockmakers just shoving their heads into the horse-collar. More speed, teamplay and boring-in hockey gave them the win, and the Truckmen also bodied them harder at defence.

* * * * * * *

"Ghost" Epps did some fine pesting again at centre, being a terrific pain in the neck to all and sundry who tried going through him. Swanger got a bad clip in the nose but returned later to the fray. Magee blazed in a nice goal within half-minute of the first faceoff in the third. These were about the only standouts of a fairly fast game. For once, the players nearly outnumbered the fans, the latter being conspicuous by their absence except for a handful. They probably guessed the outcome, at that.

* * * * * * *

Bowmanville juniors took a 4-2 walloping by Port Hope last night, so the Rubbertown lads now must beat Cobourg tomorrow to keep in the running As the O.H.A. ordered Fenelon Falls to play off with Oshawa—which sounds like a screwy stunt to us—we'll just have to wait till this group is cleared up, and not play off till next week. Meantime, efforts are being made to have Lindsay juniors here for an exhibition game this Friday. We can't understand Fenelon not playing off with the other section of their group, which includes the Peterborough team.

* * * * * * *

Definite word was received to-day that Madoc, winner of the Central League, would be here tomorrow (Wednesday) at 8.30 at the Brock to play the Petes' intermediates, it being the next O.H.A. round, the return game being back in Madoc Friday. Madoc defeated Havelock twice in a row in the play-offs and are supposed to have a strong bunch of battlers this year, several names being familiar to hockey fans around here. They'll have a bunch of rooters up tomorrow and it ought to be some game. Abbie Rose will referee.

* * * * * * *

Down in Orillia, where they take their box lacrosse seriously, a big argument has been in progress over the "fastest game." Lacrossers have had the last word, saying their game was a speedier one. They admit that hockey players can skate faster than a man can run, but claim their no-offside rule means that the ball can travel faster from end to end than a puck. Oh, well, they're both plenty fast. Orillia is thinking of having a junior team next summer, and this might be a good idea here, too. There is also some talk of taking the Orillia team on a tour into New York State.

* * * * * * *

The game is playing to crowds of five to seven thousand now in spots like Rochester. A Peterborough team could doubtless make just as good a showing over there as any in the province, but who's going to back them for the dough necessary to start them on such a tour? Just a pipe dream, we suppose. And then again, the O.A.L.A. has issued a warning to all amateur players that teams cannot play with Rochester as the latter club is now under the investigation by the Ontario body.

* * * * * * *

Sport shorts: Madoc beat Havelock, 2-1, last night giving them the Central Ontario group by 5 goals to 3 . . . . George Street got a 2-1 decision over Maroons in a West End game last night . . . . It was 5-2 for Johnston's Service men over the Coca-Cola boys down at the Sacred Heart . . . . Jim Corbett, former heavyweight fight champ of the world, is in a bad way from heart trouble, being down to a welterweight now . . . . Westclox play an E.P.I. game in Lakefield Friday . . . . The Merrett benefit committee meets for a final checkup Thursday eve . . . . A whole raft of minor and big-time hockey play-offs are coming up fast these days around town . . . . And the basketball boys and gals will soon have most of the sporting spotlight again.

MARTY BURKE IS RELEASED BY CANADIENS

Leo Dandurand Secures Three Players From Providence Reds Club.

REVAMPED ROSTER.

(By H. M. Peters, C.P. Staff Writer)

MONTREAL, Feb. 7 (C.P.).—The mighty hockey machine which Montreal Canadiens built up to carry their "blue-blanc-rouge" colors into National Hockey League play-offs for six successive years, and to two successive Stanley Cup victories to-day was in the process of dissolution and reconstruction.

The first player to go was Marty Burke, a defensive stalwart for six years. Brief, cryptic announcement by Leo Dandurand, managing-director and part owner of the club, stated Burke "will not be in uniform" against Toronto Maple Leafs here to-night. Leo Murray, recently brought up from Providence, also will not be in uniform.

Reconstruction started last night when Dandurand, who made a special trip to Quebec to look over the Providence Reds of the Canadian-American League for the purpose, brought back with him three players from that club.

He secured Bob Trapp, a veteran defenceman, who will start alongside Sylvio Mantha as Canadiens' regular defence to-night; Art Alexandre, young ex-Montreal amateur, who has "made good" in one year of minor league seasoning; and Gizzy Hart, a member of Canadiens' team in 1927-28, and before that with Boston Bruins.

Front Line Reformed.

The front line which blazed through National Hockey League schedules and play-offs for year after year, will be reformed as the regular starting line to-night. Peerless Howie Morenz, choice for centre for two years on Canadian Press all-star hockey teams, will again be flanked by Aurel Joliat and Johnny Gagnon.

Further strengthening of the defence will take place on Saturday morning when Harold Starr, hard-hitting rearguard of Ottawa Senators, will join Canadiens and make the week-end road trip to Chicago with the club.

Dandurand still is far from having completed his plans to make Canadiens once more a great contending club. With last night's wholesale acquisitions, together with the coming of Starr on Saturday, his roster will be over a practical number. Providence is expecting three men to join them before Thursday night, when they again meet the Beavers at Quebec.

Three For Providence.

The dynamic little managing-director gave no hint of which three men he was sending to Providence. On Saturday, when he told his players he was reorganizing the club he intimated five were due for demotion or the auction block.

On the front line, in addition to Morenz, Joliat and Gagnon, the club now has a wealth of material from which to fashion its two spare lines. In the opinion of sport writers, Pete Lepine, George Mantha and Wildor Larochelle have satisfied the management.

Bob Trapp, the new defenceman, broke into National League ranks with Chicago Black Hawks several years ago. He left the League at the end of the 1927-28 season, joining St. Louis of the American Association. That league was subsequently declared outlaw, but Trapp was one of the two players reinstated by the N.H.L., joining the Reds in the middle of last year, and playing with them until last night.

Starr Is No Stranger.

Harold Starr, obtained from Ottawa Senators, is no stranger to Montreal, as he was secured by Maroons last year on loan when the Ottawa franchise was not operated.

INTERMEDIATES TO MEET MADOC

Smelters Play First Game Here on Wednesday, Away on Friday Night.

FACE STRONG SQUAD.

The next round of the intermediate O.H.A. playdowns in Peterborough starts here to-morrow (Wednesday) night, Madoc meeting the Petes at 8.30 at the Brock. The return game of the home and home series will be held in Madoc on Friday, goals counting on the round, Word was received here shortly before noon to-day that the O.H.A. had ordered the Petes to play Madoc, winner last night of the Central League, beating Havelock, 5-3 on the round. They won both play-off games.

The Madoc hockey squad is a strong one this year, playing a rugged brand of the game that has always marked this district. Nickel has been starring all winter in goal, and he has a powerful defence in Blue and Rupert. The centre spot is held down by one of the classiest stickhandlers and speedy centres in the league. Henderson; with Ware and Watson on the wings. Ware has often been on local and district ice, playing a scrappy style that has made him a feared forward. Meraw, Nickle and Akey alternates and round out a husky team that threatens to give the Petes a real fight.

The local outfit is at full strength again, and will have either Miller or Gillespie in goal; Howe LeBarr and Weir back on defence; Ellis, Dallin and Dundas on the front line; and Jarvis, Creighton and Hatton relieving them. Abbie Rose will referee. The ice should be first-class to-morrow, and as the goals count, the Petes will make a mighty effort, not only to win, but to run up a two or three-goal lead when they go back to the tough Madoc town. A huge crowd of fans from town and the district is expected to attend to-morrow's tilt.

HARVEY JACKSON GAINS 4TH PLACE IN N. H. L. STATISTICS

Star Member of Toronto Leaf "Kid Line" Makes Notable Gain on Leaders During Week—Northcott Still on Top.

MONTREAL, Feb. 7. — "Bill" Cook of the New York Rangers and Laurence Northcott, Montreal Maroons, each finds it impossible to shake off the other in the race for National Hockey League point-scoring honors.

To-day, as in last week's list, these two sterling wingmen were tied for top in the statistics sheet issued by President Frank Calder. Each had 31 points, two more than last week. Northcott's made up of 20 goals, highest in the league, and 11 assists, while Cook had 15 goals and 16 assists.

Most notable gain of the week was registered by Harvey ("Busher") Jackson, left wing of the Toronto Maple Leafs. With three goals and two assists, he brought his total up to 24, and advanced to fourth position in the Canadian division, only a point behind Johnny Gagnon of Canadiens. Second place in the section was still occupied by young Paul Haynes, Maroons, who rammed home three goals Saturday night to secure third place in the whole league with 13 goals, 16 assists, 29 points.

Others in the Canadian division to have over 20 points were Ward, Maroons, and Morenz, Canadiens, 23 each; Weiland, Ottawa, and Smith, Maroons, 21 each.

Complete domination of the Cook-Boucher-Cook trio of New York Rangers in the United States division was infringed upon by the advance of Paul Thompson, Chicago Hawk left-winger, who advanced to a tie with Boucher for third place in the division, behind the two Cooks.

"Bun" Cook has 18 goals and 9 assists, for 27 points; Thompson and Boucher, 24 each; Barry of Boston, 23; Cecil Dillon, Rangers, 22; and Stewart, Boston, 21.

First to reach the 100-minute mark in penalties is "Red" Horner, aggressive defenseman of the Maple Leafs. Johnson of Rangers is second, with 80 minutes, closely followed by Eddie Shore, Boston, with 78.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

Nelly
Is sick a-bed,
She dived in the water
And landed on her head.
—Shadow Sayings.

KNAR HAD found a swimming pool. It was really a rain puddle. However, as Knarf was a shadow and had made himself as small as the head of a clothespin, the rain puddle seemed to be as large as a swimming pool. Knarf had also built a spring board out of a match stick. The other shadows—Mij, Flor, Hanid and Yam—were watching to see what Knarf would do.

Knarf called over to the spider on the other side of the pool: "Is my bathing suit ready?" The spider was spinning Knarf a bathing suit, you see. The spider spun all the clothes for the shadows, even the bathing suits.

A New Bathing Suit

Well, the spider had Knar's bathing suit ready in a few seconds (it doesn't take long to spin a bathing suit for a shadow who is no bigger than the head of a clothespin), and Knarf took it and crawled inside an empty matchbox and put on the bathing suit. Then he returned to the swimming pool and walked out to the end of the spring board.

"I'm going to take a dive," he told the other shadows.

"You'd better not. The water isn't deep enough," Hanid warned him.

"It's deep enough for me," he answered.

The sky was still filled with heavy black rain clouds, but every now and then the sun peeped out.

"It's going to clear up," little Yam said.

"I don't care if it does or not," Knarf answered her. "I'm going to dive into my swimming pool. Why dont you all dive with me?"

It's So Very Easy!

"We don't know how to dive," Flor answered.

"I'll teach you," Knarf promised "It's really very easy. Do you want to see my dive?"

"No!" they cried, all together.

Knarf didn't pay any attention to them. He acted as though they had said: "Sure—let us see you dive." So he said: "I'll dive head-first. It's hard to dive head-first, but I'll show you how to do it. First you point your hands over your head—like this." Knarf pointed his hands over his head. He didn't notice that the sun had come out very strong by now, and that the water in the rain puddle (or was it a swimming pool?) was getting less and less. "Then you take a run, you give a spring and—" As he said this Knarf took a run, gave a spring and went high, high into the air. Then he came down, head first, straight into the swimming pool (or was it a rain puddle?) Alas, the water had all disappeared; the sun had dried it all up, so—plop, Knarf dived right into the mud. My, was he disappointed!

A Severe Cold Turned To Bronchitis

Mr. G. M. Kunger, R.R. No. 4, Winnipeg, Man., writes:—"Last winter I was bothered with a severe cold which turned to bronchitis.

A neighbor, who had been troubled with bronchitis, advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I had only taken two bottles when I found my trouble had left me.

Now when any of the family get a cold we just take 'Dr. Wood's' and avoid further trouble."

RALLY IS HELD AT MILLBROOK OF TUXIS BOYS

John Hunter Addresses Rally of East Durham Boys' Work Board.

MEMBERS ARE PRESENT

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. Pays Visit to St. Thomas Church Society.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—John Hunter, of Peterborough, ex-premier of the Older Boys' Parliament, was the speaker for the special service held in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening, under the auspices of the East Durham Boys' Work Board, the member-elect for 1933, George Lewis, of Welcome, reading the Old Testament lesson, while Grant Henry, of Millbrook, member in 1932, read the lesson from the New Testament, and introduced Mr. Hunter to the congregation.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., led in the opening prayer, and Mr. Lewis, in his brief address thanked the boys of East Durham for their support in his campaign, and especially mentioned the help given by Reeve P. Stinson and W. A. O'Brian, chairman of the Boys' Work Board, for making it possible for him to attend the twelfth Older Boys' Parliament, which met in McMaster University, Hamilton, during Christmas week.

St. Luke's Are Guests.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' Anglican Church sponsored a delightful social gathering in the Town Hall on Friday evening, the special guests of the occasion being the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, and the young people from Christ Church, Bailieboro.

Cameron Vance, president of the local branch of the A.Y.P.A., with other members of the executive, welcomed the guests, a jolly singsong from the society's song sheets appropriately opening the program, which continued with games, contests and dancing. Miss Jean Todd and her brothers, William and Walter, providing music for the latter. L. J. Morton acted as floor manager for the popular square dances.

A novel arrangement for the securing of partners included placing the girls' hats in a large container, gentlemen making choice of the piece of headgear that suited their fancy and having the owner as companion for the games, etc., which followed.

Dainty refreshments were served at the supper hour, Mrs. L. J. Morton being convenor of the committee responsible for this feature of the evening, dancing being resumed afterward for a time before hearty votes of thanks were accorded the hostess society and departure made for home.

News Briefs.

The Young People's Society enjoyed a skating party on the pond on Friday evening, and after a pleasant two or more hours on the ice, which was in very good condition, return was made to the church where sharpened appetites were ready to do full justice to the hot dogs, coffee and pie provided for the supper which "topped off" the event.

John Hunter, of Peterborough, and George Lewis, of Welcome, who were in town for the special young men's service on Sunday evening, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. O'Brian at the tea hour, Grant Henry joining them for the pleasant meal and social hour before the time of the public service in St. Andrew's Church.

Miss B. M. Turner, B.A., was in Bowmanville on Saturday attending a meeting of the Mothers' Allowance Board for Durham County, when business of considerable importance was disposed of. The chairman, F. W. Galbraith, of Port Hope, presided, and the investigator, Miss Fokkhard, was also in attendance.

Mrs. W. Cartwright Allen is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. (Dr) Norman Allen, in Toronto, and assisted her niece, Mrs. Stanley Baldwin (Cynthia Allen), with her post-nuptial reception last week.

Miss Maretta Gray, of Raeboro, was home for the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Gray.

For Wednesday, February 8

A DAY OF sudden events, with possible disruption and turmoil, may be predicted from the prevailing lunar influences. However, the mind will be found resourceful and ingenious enough to sidestep disaster and to come out of difficult situations with (if not flying colors) at least a modicum of profit and advancement.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden change in their affairs. A child born on this day should be particularly clever and original in its mentality, although restless and fond of change. It should be fairly successful in life.

BAILIEBORO.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Larmer, of Oshawa, were guests on Sunday of Mrs. B. Dawson.

Mr. and Mrs. M. White, of Toronto, spent the week-end the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lang.

Mrs. M. B. Perrin returned home on Saturday after spending the past fortnight in Toronto.

Among the Tuxis Boys of the district who attended the Tuxis service in Millbrook on Sunday evening were Messrs. N. Earl, C. Lang, Frank Barnard, A. Bateman, G. Dean and F. Barnard.

STURGEON FALLS CLERK'S OFFICE YIELDS EVIDENCE

FIND LOST STATEMENTS.

Examination Alleged to Have Shown Landlords Collected Back Rent.

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Feb. 7. (CP)—Suspecting not all documents relating to relief expenditures had been produced for the special commission now sitting here, relief investigator L. Spence accompanied by Auditor J. E. Boundy and W. H. Williams, K.C., Commission counsel, searched the office of W. L. Fortier, clerk-treasurer of the town, and seized a quantity of papers.

Among the documents seized were drafts of the monthly statements to the government, written in longhand, and the writing will be compared to show who was responsible for "padding" the returns of the government.

Rent Accounts

The searchers also declared they found rent accounts and statements from December, 1931 and examination of them showed, it was alleged, some landlords collected arrears of rent amounting to $75 or more. These rent accounts also explained, they said, many items in the rent book which had puzzled the commission. Fortier is alleged to have denied the statements were in his possession.

Mayor J. P. Marchildon, whose examination was to have continued to-day is suffering from influenza and was unable to attend. This morning the commission examined the seized papers.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Feb. 7 (C.P. Cable).—Replays of the second round matches of the Scottish Soccer Cup played to-day saw Clyde defeat Leith 5-0 and Partick Thistle defeat Ayr United 2-0.

"JUST MARRIED" SIGN IS TACKED ON PLAYER

HALIFAX, Feb. 7 (C.P.) — Frankie Lavigne, rated as one of the best defencemen in the Maritime Hockey League, is used to cheers and applause. Last night he drew roars of laughter every time he moved. He wondered why, until a lady called him to the boards and picked a "Just Married" sign off the back of his sweater. You see, Frankie signed a life contract Saturday night with Hazel Bryson of Truro. His embarrassment did not affect his game, and Halifax Wolverines trimmed the Edmonton Superiors, 2-0.

CHURCH LEAGUE

Four Church Hockey League games were played at All Saints' rink last night. The juvenile fixture went to All Saints over St. Andrew's, 12 to 0; the first junior game resulted in a 3-1 win for St. Paul's over Mark Street; in the second junior contest, All Saints and George Street played to a 1-1 tie; and the final junior one went to Knox, 2-0, over Trinity.

SEVERAL FORD PLANTS ARE BACK ON PRODUCTION

DETROIT, Feb. 7 (C.P.).—A number of Ford Motor Company branch assembly plants were back in production to-day and company officials predicted that normal production would be resumed some time this week in the Dearborn plant.

A general shut-down was ordered 10 days ago when a strike in the Briggs Manufacturing Company plant cut off the supply of automobile bodies. Ford officials said that all assembly plants that had been in production before the shut-down were ordered to resume yesterday.

CHANGES MADE FOLLOWING RIOT

Released Prisoner Says Tobacco Supplied, Letters Allowed, Food Good.

MORE RECREATION.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 7.—(CP).—Conditions in Portsmouth Penitentiary have greatly improved since the riot of October 17, a former convict declared here yesterday. He was a prisoner at that time and has just been released.

Fine cut tobacco and cigarette papers now are being given to prisoners, he said. They are now allowed to play ball and have more time for recreation. During the mornings they are allowed 10 minutes and the same period during afternoon for smoking. They are receiving two letters a month and one extra letter per month in lieu of a visit from relations.

The food is exceptionally good, although there were never complaints about the meals, said the former prisoner. He understood the barrier between visitors and prisoners is to be torn down and in future visits are to be made "over the counter."

The men are not all back at work, he said, because the gun cages are not yet completed within the shops.

The prisoners, he stated, stand by the new warden, Col. W. E. Megloughlin, as they believe he has the ability to handle men and officers and is showing no partiality to any person.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE SON-DAUGHTER."

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain"—these have their way in the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first two days of this week.

"The Son-Daughter" pictures the strange story of a lovely Chinese-American girl of San Francisco whose father, a stern patriot, puts her up at auction to the highest bidder, so that a huge sum of money may be gained for the revolutionists in China who are fighting to overthrow the proud Manchu dynasty.

It is a story without a laugh. A sense of humor would never do in a tale of this type. It would ruin it completely. So the terribly serious people plot and counter-plot and weave their little webs of intrigue and death and lies. Helen Hayes is the lovely Lien Wha, heroine of the strange tale, and Ramon Novarro is Tom Lee, the young prince who lives under an alias far from his celestial kingdom. Dr. Dong Tong (Lewis Stone) is the father of the maiden, Warner Oland is as smooth and silky as ever, and just as full of proverbs, in the role of the hateful Sea Crab, Ten Sha, and a new and extraordinary bad man is introduced in the role of Tay Fou Hy (Ralph Morgan), while, if we mistake not his beautiful voice, H. B. Warner has one of the minor parts.

Only the art of Ramon Novarro saves him from ridicule in the role of the shaven-polled Tom Lee, complete with pigtail and stiff Chinese clothes, and only the art of Helen Hayes saves her Chinese maiden from the peculiar anomaly of appearing very modest and very brazen, in turn. The Occident and Orient have a peculiar mingling in this tale, with Oland and Morgan carrying out the Eastern allusion in the best mode.

COUNSEL BREAKS NEWS TO REID IN DEATH CELL

estly. "There were five judges. Two dismissed the appeal. One recommended that the charge should have been manslaughter; another recommended executive clemency, and the last didn't give a written judgment."

"Then there are three against me," said the little man.

"No, only two. And I'm going to Ottawa. I'm sending a telegram off to-night and the papers are being sent there from Toronto.

"It won't do any good," replied "Shorty," hopelessly, and he rubbed his eyes.

"It may. I'll do everything."

Saw Reid To-day

Adjutant E. M. Falle of the Salvation Army, who has constantly and consistently ministered to the spiritual needs of Reid ever since his conviction on the capital charge, deferred his visit to the condemned cell until this morning.

"I was really surprised," said the Adjutant, "at the calm and resigned manner in which Reid accepted the news." He first learned of the decision of the appeal court judges through his counsel, Mr. O'Brien last evening; so for that reason I did not go to the gaol until this morning.

"He told me that he had slept well last night," Adjutant Falle remarked, "and that he was ready and prepared for the worst."

After having prayed with Reid, Adjutant Falle said he asked the condemned man if he wished to communicate with his relatives in England, where he claims to have two brothers and a sister. He was quite definite in his refusal, stating that he preferred that they should know nothing about the matter.

HALF WAY---

What with contributions made and promises sure the Relief Treasurer, Frank Adams, reports the objective as reaching the half-way mark of $10,000, representing donations from some 185 individuals, firms, and service clubs.

Have you made your contribution yet? If not, you will not want to let this opportunity pass of helping the Relief Committee bring happiness to the unemployed and their families at this time when it is most needed.

$1 MEANS $3 - $20,000 MEANS $60,000

And $60,000 will be wisely apportioned in food, etc., thereby reducing your taxes and maintaining that cherished hope that improved conditions will favor all in 1933.

"May your share of happiness only be exceeded by your willingness to share with others"

TARIFF BOARD IS APPOINTED; SEDGEWICK HEAD

accounted the ideal nominee for the chairmanship. It was only at considerable sacrifice of personal wishes and aspirations that he was induced to accept what was represented to him as a broader field of public service. Two possible French-Canadian nominations were deemed of high merit, and of these Mr. Hebert was selected. The third position has held back the appointment for many weeks. It was not until the close of the recent interprovincial conference that Mr. Bennett abandoned hope of securing the assent of Premier Brownlee of Alberta to take the post.

Ten days ago he turned to Mr. Campbell, graduate Prince of Wales College, P.E.I., and for the past 29 years a Saskatchewan farmer, a student of economics, and a member of Parliament who has achieved some note for his independence of thought and action.

The new board will have power to make inquiries under oath and will have the authority of a court of record. Its authority is widespread and under the commitments of the Imperial Conference agreements the Government undertakes to ask Parliament to ratify its recommendations where the board finds that United Kingdom manufacturers, having regard to labor conditions and standards of living, are not being given a fair basis of competition in the Canadian market. That qualification in effect makes the board's rulings mandatory in this respect.

RADIO STATION FEATURES SONG BY LOCAL MAN

A song by a local resident, Mr. Basil M. Stephens, of 113 Bennett Street, which he has written in collaboration with Wendell Given, nationally known composer, will be the feature of the program of Harry Grage, tenor soloist from the new Ohio station WJM, located in Massillon. This program is scheduled at 11 a.m. on Thursday.

The song, entitled "Crooning to the Moon," has already received quite a lot of fine publicity from various artists throughout the East

TOOK PILLS FOR 30 YEARS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF

Mr. Forsythe Endorses ALL-BRAN for Constipation

If you suffer from headaches, loss of appetite and energy or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read this voluntary letter:

"After taking pills and tablets for about thirty years for constipation, I started to take your ALL-BRAN three times a day according to directions. Today I can eat cheese, and that is binding, and certainly feel fine."—Mr. Ed. Forsythe. (Address furnished upon request.)

Science says ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. In addition, ALL-BRAN is rich in blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using patent medicines—so often habit-forming?

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. In serious cases use with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

know about a car is that if you step on a certain knob in the bottom of an automobile you move. Since they want to move fast, they press down hard and have a grin all over their face when they make pedestrians scurry in all directions.

"Easy, easy," I cautioned the chauffeur who drove me to the palace of the French high commissioner. "You nearly struck that old man back there!"

"Him?" came back the chauffeur. "Him? By the prophet's beard," he swore. "But I do want to strike him, that verminous son of the devil. Didn't you notice he is a Shiite? (The Shiites are a Moslem sect). I wish I could kill all the Shiites!"

"You'll land in jail, my boy!"

"In jail for killing Shiites?" he laughed till the tears came in his eyes.

Soldiers Bar Way

Black Senegalese soldiers barred the way, a whole battalion of them. Barbed wire was strung out in front of government buildings. Mounted Spahis, Moors from North Africa, who wear scarlet cloaks, cantered around in patrols, sabres drawn. Companies of the foreign legion straggled through the streets. Tonkinese infantrymen drawn by milk-white horses, manned by Bedouin, rumbled by. Soldiers, soldiers everywhere. Damascus swarms with them. Beyreuth is full of them. So is Tripoli and the whole of Syria. The mandatory power is nervous. The Syrians want free elections, a parliament, democratic institutions. Convocation of parliament has been postponed regularly every three onths for the past ten years. At every new adjournment the situation is tense.

France Has Mandate

France has the mandate over Syria. Not that Syria invited France to take the mandate. Tot a single Syrian was consulted about it. France simply took the mandate, chased King Feisal from Damascus and with the approval of Britain, whose ally Feisal was—and what an ally!—virtually appropriated the country. Nominally the war against Turkey was fought to liberate subject peoples like the Syrians and give them self-determination. At present France is making Syria safe for democracy, I suppose, teaching the Syrians how to be civilized It won't be long, though: either the French will get out or the business will explode once more.

Half the bazaar of Damascus lies in ruins. A French general turned his artillery on those crowded alleys in the days of the Druse revolt. Mosques, harems, business houses, banks, shops, coffee-houses, all of it was shelled to pieces and came down in fragments. Yet the revolt was not in Damascus. It was outside in the hills. The bombardment was merely a warning to the inhabitants not to join the revolt. The French general in question was hastily recalled, but the damage had been done. Nobody knows how many dead lie under those ruins. Shrubbery and roses grow there now. People who are building houses elsewhere come here to drag away stones. Others simply build a cabin right on top of the ruins, clear the skeletons out of the way, make a path and open a shop. Right before your very eyes you can see here how it is that archaeologists digging in the east find the one city built on top of the other.

World's Oldest Cities

Damascus, they say, is the oldest city in the world. It was a very old city even when Abraham moved from Ur to Canaan. When Mohammed first caught sight of Damascus from the Mount of Charity, that son of the sandy wastes of Araby actually thought he saw Paradise. The last few years have pushed the modernization process rapidly. Yet there are entire quarters of Damascus where the atmosphere and the environment which the great Kalifs knew is absolutely unchanged.

The caravans heavily laden still come shuffling along as they came six, seven, ten thousand years ago. Long processions of those strange, silent beasts with their Hapsburg-lips and their haughty stare file in and out from the desert and leave again over the trails that lead to those other lands of Thousand One Nights, Persia, Afghanistan, Cathy. . . . What is it that makes a camel look so superior, as if he felt himself the master even of man? An Arabic sage once told me: 'Allah, glory be to His Name, Allah has a hundred names. Man knows 99 of those names, but the camel knows the one-hundredth. Hence his pride!"

Here is the bazaar. Syrian women wear half-veils, which show their eyes, heavily daubed with mascara to accentuate the darkness; troubling eyes, gazelle eyes, how they flash! The usual cackle of the eastern market-place. It's Jerusalem multiplied a hundred times. Merchants calling, yelling, praising their wares.

Eastern Sales Talk

"Heh, hah, hu, believers! Moslim! Allah makes the grain grow. Here is the bread. Buy the bread. Buy the bread, true believers, the whitest bread in the city!"

"Fathers of families. Forget not that Allah is merciful. He loves children. Take some cucumbers home for your little ones! Cucumbers beloved of Kadisha, the spouse of the Prophet. He, Muslim, cucumbers, the sweetest, juiciest on earth!"

"Pilgrims to eternity! Hadjihs! Moslim! He, hallo here this way! Sons of righteous men! Fathers of generations! Hoh, buy my doubly roasted pistachios. They will sweeten the road to Paradise. Glory be to Allah, the sweetest pistachios right here. Praise Allah for these pistachias. He is merciful. He alone is God. Pistachios. Come and eat! May you burn in hellfire, you pestilential devils, if you don't buy my pistachios!"

A new note in advertising!

A sudden commotion in the bazaar. Horsemen ride through. The Arabic steeds stamp on the precious carpets spread in front of the booths. Why is it there is no outcry? Who are these cavaliers that they may ride with impunity over the tapestry? White-robed, falcon-eyed, black-bearded men they are, tall and taciturn, with unsmiling faces. The French soldiers stand still. Their eyes follow the horsemen. The ungodly in of the bazaar tones down to a whisper. here is a momentary lull in the eternal hullabaloo.

"Sssh," he whispers. This is the Sheik Tatsch Aladdin of the Druses!"

Of the Druses?

That explains everything. I catch the sheik's eyes, coal-black eyes, as he passes a group of French officers. They flare up like electric bulbs. The man's nostrils dilate. He tosses his head up with a gesture expressing haughtiness or disgust, you cannot tell which. They are not friends yet, Frenchmen and Druses, and no wonder.

RADIO NOTES

By R. H. CHILDERHOSE of City Radio Service.

Do not interchange tubes in your radio, unless you are certain they are all identical. Tubes can look alike, and fit each other's sockets, and yet be entirely different in characteristics. Placing a tube in the wrong socket often results in damage to the tube or the radio set. At one time one spare new tube assured you of your favorite program in the event of the burning-out of a tube in the set, but now, with some radios, it would be necessary to have on hand as many as six different types of tubes for emergencies.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

BOARD OF EDUCATION ADOPTS REPORT ON CADET TRAINING; RATEPAYERS ASK FOR ECONOMY

Vocational Committee Report is Sent Back by the Board.

DEPUTATION PRESENT.

Further Cut in Salaries Referred to Committee on Appointments.

Four matters of major importance cropped up at last evening's meeting of the Board of Education, and along with the routine items on the agenda succeeded in making the session one of the longest the board has experienced for some time. E. F. Reid was in the chair.

The board had barely got settled down to business when they were confronted by a delegation of twenty-nine citizens representing the taxpayers and property-owners of the city. Headed by William Tinker, who was a candidate for the Board of Education at the last municipal elections, the delegation made an urgent plea for consideration by the board in the striking of estimates for the current year, of the serious plight in which many of the taxpayers and property-owners found themselves.

They submitted that in view of the pressing need for economy created by increase of unemployment and the consequent inability of tenants and taxpayers to meet their obligations, the board should give serious thought to the advisability of further reducing teachers' salaries, and to making other economies wherever they found it at all possible.

Lengthy discussion followed the presentation of the report of the Advisory Vocational Committee,

SEARCH FAILS TO LOCATE FINN

FOUR PROVINCIALS.

Extensive search over the Cavan district yesterday by Provincial Police failed to locate any definite clues as to the whereabouts of "Jake", mysterious Finn, wanted for his connection in the alleged murder of Fred McLaren, Cavan farm laborer, whose body was found frozen in a welter of blood in a farmhouse and who is believed to have been beaten to death by heavy blows from a stick of cordwood.

More Provincial Police joined with Provincial Constable William Carey, of Cobourg, in the investigation of the killing yesterday. From Belleville came Inspector Lougheed, district inspector, and Contable Kelly, while Inspector Charles Gurnett, of the Criminal Investigation Department, Provincial Police, was assigned to the case by Chief Inspector Stringer.

Police are making their investigations with considerable secrecy. They would not admit yesterday that they had any clues or suspects in connection with the killing, but residents knew that they were directing their main efforts to arrest "Jake".

As it became known over a wide area that police were seeking the stocky transient, many calls were telephoned in indicating that he had been seen along the roads in recent days, but most of this volunteer information proved to be of little assistance, although all such leads were followed up.

SLEET AND SNOW HINDER TRAFFIC

Ontario Highways Transformed Into Sheets of Ice—No Fatal Crashes.

COLD WAVE ON HAND.

(By The Canadian Press)

Typical February weather of sleet and snow, accompanied by dropping temperatures to-day had transformed the highways of Ontario into sheets of ice, causing motorists and pedestrians to exercise extreme caution in their travel.

Two serious mishaps occurred at Hamilton, where Miss Sadie Hill, an employee of the Mountain Sanitarim and Robert Brooks, Toronto, were injured in separate motor accidents.

At London Mrs. Archie Schussler was injured when the taxi she was riding in skidded into a trolley car. In a head-on collision between their two motor cars, Harvey Jeffery and Percy Hodgins suffered lacerations and bruises.

Windsor reported a snowfall of three inches, while at Toronto the rainfall overshadowed the snowfall. One-half inch of rain was reported to one-fifth inch fall of snow. A foot of snow at Goderich threatened to disrupt highway traffic.

TAX COLLECTOR FOR 33 YEARS INTENDS TO QUIT

William J. Green Asked Council to Name Man to Take Over Rolls.

85 YEARS OLD.

Succeeded Henry Denne, Father of Present Mayor, in 1900.

After 33 years as Peterborough's tax collector, William J. Green is resigning at the age of 85 years.

The city's veteran collector of taxes has informed the City Council of his desire to resign. It has been rumored for some months that Mr. Green was considering retiring from his civic office.

He informed the Council by letter that he desired that another collector be appointed to become responsible for the 1933 tax roll. His letter has been referred to the Finance Committee for consideration, and his successor will likely be appointed soon.

Roll Ready in May

The 1933 roll will not be ready for the collector's office until the first week in May, but it is probable that the new tax collector will have been appointed long before that time, since it is desirable that he should receive some instruction in his duties from Mr. Green.

"Yes," Mr. Green told The Examiner to-day, "I am resigning, but it is likely that I'll be around the office here for some time yet, because I have been advised that I will be needed to train my successor."

It was February 2, 1900, that Mr. Green stepped into the office as tax collector. He succeeded Henry Denne, father of Mayor Roland Denne, who had suffered a stroke at that time.

"I finished the 1899 roll for Mr. Denne and I've been here ever since doing my best," said Mr. Green.

That his many years of faithful, conscientious service to the city has been appreciated by successive City Councils is well known, because all who have come in close contact with the city's business have repeatedly expressed esteem for the city's veteran tax collector.

On Sunday, February 12, Mr. Green will be 85 years old. Despite his age he walks to and from his office with almost the same quickness and agility of a youth. His interest in sports has never flagged,

The former heavyweight champion has been gravely ill from a heart affliction for eight days. His physician, Dr. G. Willard Dickie, has abandoned hope for his recovery.

"It is difficult to say about heart cases," Dr. Dickie said. "They may go on indifinitely, but Mr. Corbett is weakened now and it is improbable that he will live long."

Will Likely Appeal Jackson Murder Case

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., intimated to The Examiner this afternoon that he intends to launch an appeal on behalf of Edward Franklin Jackson, now under sentence of death for the murder of his Negro companion Eugene Lee in Dummer Township on October 17 last.

Mr. Gordon said he was preparing notice of appeal which he would serve upon the Attorney General of Ontario in the course of a day or so. The appeal is to be based on the ground that the rightful verdict should have been one of manslaughter.

HAROLD KEYNON GOES ON TRIAL DRUNKEN PARTY

Charged With Manslaughter in Case of Death of Fred Fletcher.

SKULL FRACTURED.

Witnesses Relate Events During Party in Giving Evidence.

The morning after a drunken New Year's brawl in the home of R. S. Condie, 306 Aylmer street in which Fred Fletcher, C.P.R. section man, was fatally injured, left Harry Hendrichon, alias Harold Kenyon, of Montreal, aged 20, in the hands of a jury this morning on two counts of manslaughter and causing grievous bodily harm.

The sordid story of a brave bout with booze as a gesture of welcome to the new year has been already told twice, and its repetition this morning merely added staleness to its repellent details.

Cost $3,000

More trouble with transients might be one form of summarizing today's trial. Unofficially it was reported that the Jackson trial would cost the county approximately $3,000 probably less.

Fred Fletcher was found dead New Year's morning by Bertha Elliott, when she entered the kitchen of the Condie house where she was employed as a maid. Shortly after her arrival, the prisoner brought her Fletcher's clothes and told her to give them to him when he got up. It was then they realized the man was dead. Miss Elliott said she saw spots of blood behind the door in Kenyon's room.

Passing Sentence Brings to Climax Trial of Jackson

Prisoner Is Found Guilty Of Murdering Eugene Lee, His Companion, On The Ninth Line Of Dummer On October 17th Last.

JURY HAD CASE FOR OVER TWO HOURS RETURNED ONCE TO ASK TWO QUESTIONS.

Prisoner Takes Verdict And Sentence Without a Tremor —Walks Back To Cell With Same Light, Airy, Athletic Steps.

Edward Franklin Jackson was sentenced last night by Mr. Justice Sedgewick to be hanged on Friday, May 5, for the murder of his companion, Eugene Lee, on the ninth line of Dummer October 17th last.

The trial jury brought in a verdict of guilty at 11.02 p.m. after deliberating more than two hours and a quarter. They retired at 8.45 o'clock, and returned first at 10.25 o'clock for direction by His Lordship on two questions.

Prior to the late adjournment of the court, Mr. Justice Sedgewick expressed his agreement with the verdict, saying that he could not see how they could have come to any other decision.

Proceeding to the final grim stage of the day's legal drama after Thos. M. Battle, K.C., of Toronto, special Crown prosecutor, had formally moved for sentence, Mr. Justice Sedgewick told the prisoner to stand up, and asked him if he had anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon him according to law.

Jackson stood up in the box, looked blankly at His Lordship for a moment, dropped his eyes toward G. N. Gordon, K.C., his counsel, sitting in front of him, then returned his gaze to the judge.

Jackson said nothing. After a slight pause in a silence that was tense with the emotions of the swiftly approaching climax, Mr. Justice Sedgewick said: "Jackson I wish there was something I could say that could be of some help to you. I can't think of anything. You have had a fair trial."

Manifestly affected by the extreme duty which had yet to be done, His Lordship in a level tone that only accentuated the strain of condemning this man to die, said in the grim pronouncement that seemingly permits no deviation:

"The sentence of the court is that you Edward Franklin Jackson be taken back to the place from which you came and be kept in close confinement until Friday the 5th day of May, and that on that day you be taken to the place of execution and there be hanged by the neck till you are dead....And may God have mercy on your soul!"

Jackson was immediately taken down to the cells. He walked with the same light, airy, athletic steps and upright shoulders as when he had first been conducted into the court room at 2 p.m. for the beginning of his trial. In masked contrast Mr. Justice Sedgewick sat with his face buried in his hands while the formulary of adjournment was called out by Police Sergeant Thomas, then picking up his record book walked slowly and with the bowed air of concentration of a man who has performed an un-

COLD WAVE HITS ALL OF CANADA

Two Deaths Recorded in West Where Blizzards, Sub-Zero Weather Rules.

HIGHWAYS BLOCKED.

A cold wave extending from northwestern Canada and reaching into the Maritimes gripped the Dominion to-day. Two deaths were recorded in the west where blizzards and sub-zero temperatures ruled.

The prairies of the west and Northern Ontario were the coldest areas with recordings far below zero. Atikokan village near Fort William recorded 55 below. Moosonee, on James Bay, read 22 below, and Sault Ste. Marie 14 below.

In the West snowfalls of blizzard proportions blocked highways, delayed trains and hampered air travel. Snow was also reported in both Southern and Northern Ontario. Kitchener, Goderich and Stratford recorded heavy falls.

Near Inwood, Man., the frozen body of Peter Myron, 51, was found in his shack. Walter Green was found frozen to death near his home at Leask, Sask.

Toronto recorded a temperature of 14 to-day as cars skidded about on frozen streets. London reported 10 above; Kingston 32, and Ottawa 10.

20 PER CENT CUT MADE IN GRANTS FOR EDUCATION

Academic High Schools Only Exception to Plan for Department Saving.

$1,000,000 REDUCTION.

Henry Believes Economies Will Not Impair Provincial Standards.

TORONTO, February 8. — A 20 per cent. slash in the legislative grants to all grades of schools in Ontario, except ing academic High Schools where the reduction is to be only 10 per cent., was announced last night by Premier Henry, as head of the Provincial Department of Education.

The cuts will apply to grants now being earned, in the current school year which began last September, and will, it was roughly estimated by the Prime Minister, mean a departmental saving of between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

They are in keeping with the repeatedly-avowed policy of the Government to cut expenditures to the bone this year. They more or less constitute a reply to school board deputations which have waited on Queen's Park recently urging the Government to state its policy for this year, in order that they (the boards) might make allowance in their budgets for whatever action the Government proposed taking.

"The Government feels," said Mr. Henry, "that the decrease in the public revenue necessitates these reductions in school grants, but believes that with the co-operation of the local school authorities such economies may be effected throughout the system as will not impair the standards of education."

Last Year's Cut.

What is believed to have been a forerunner of the present extensive retrenchment is the 10 per cent. cut imposed by the Department of Education last fall in connection with the Public and Separate School grants and the Vocational School grants. Of the estimated saving of approximately $500 000 from that reduction, $450,000 was effected on the Public and Separate School grants. These were cut for the whole school year, beginning September, 1931, and ending June, 1932 In the case of the Vocational Schools the deduction made concerned only the latter half of their administrative period, that is, from January to June, 1932.

Figures released yesterday by Premier Henry from the education department's financial statement for last year, which soon will be tabled in the Legislature, would indicate the total paid in grants to the public and separate schools during 1931-1932 was $3,486,000. Agricultural and horticultural classes drew $190,000; correspondence courses, $20,000; consolidated schools, $43,000; kindergarten schools, $13,000; Spring and Summer schools, $80,000; continuation schools, $29,000; auxiliary classes, $52,000, and fifth forms $60,000.

The amount paid to high schools and collegiate institutes was $420,000; and to vocational schools, $1,915,000. Manual training and household science earned $70,000; night high schools were paid $14,000 and cadet training drew $3,700. All told the education expenditure for the year reached the large figure of $12,916,000.

Special departmental grants do not come under the new retrenchment policy although by terms of revised regulations which were issued by the department only a few days ago, a 20 per cent. cut has been imposed, it is reported, in connection with one branch of rural school activity. Special grants for rural school libraries have been cut off entirely, according to reports, although the equivalent of the school's loss in this connection will be made up, it is said, in regular grants on equipment.

AIM TO EXTEND PAY CUT BILL STIRS DEBATE

All-day Battle Side-tracked in Evening Without Passing.

RHODES, DUFF CLASH.

Liberals Charge Partisanship in Naming of Campbell to Tariff Board.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8 (C.P.).—Private members of the House of Commons have another chance to get their pet ideas before the Government and Parliament to-day. So far this session the most contentious private member resolution has been J. S. Woodsworth's demand for the establishment of a co-operative commonwealth which may come up again to-day.

Keen interest attaches to the stand the Liberals will take on the motion which would bring a Socialist order of society into existence in Canada. Although a number of Conservatives have already matched wits with the Farmer and Labor members of the question, no Liberal has spoken.

Yesterday Hon. H. A. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, made good progress in getting his estimates through the Committee of Supply. Funds to take care of public buildings and harbor and river improvements in all the provinces were voted with very little question.

Opposition.

The House also set its approval on the Government's proposal to continue the 10 per cent. reduction in Civil Service salaries and members' indemnities for another year. It encountered stiff opposition from one or two members, particularly William Duff (Lib., Antigonish-Guysboro) and Jean-Francois Pouliot (Lib., Temiscouata).

Resolutions were introduced, prefacing submission of bills cutting 10 per cent. from sessional indemnities of members and senators and the salaries of civil servants. It is proposed to levy an additional 10 per cent. income tax against Judges, Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Army and Navy officers.

For three hours the House discussed the resolution which, in effect, extends for another year the salary cuts already in effect. The debate was side-tracked in the evening to make way for departmental estimates.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, piloted the resolution in the House.

"If in our need," he said, "we must ask sacrifices from the public, we could not hold up our heads if we asked everybody in Canada to make a sacrifice and did not ourselves."

Practically every country had been forced to cut its national payroll, said the Finance Minister.

FLAT FINE PLAN HINTED BY PRICE AT HAMILTON

States System Would Set Up Uniformity in Highway Penalties.

ELIMINATE TROUBLE.

Department Gradually Transferring Magistrates From Fee System.

HAMILTON, Feb. 8—A broad hint that the Province of Ontario may establish a flat fine system for Highway Traffic Act offences was furnished the annual banquet of the Hamilton Automobile Club at the Royal Connaught Hotel here last night by Attorney-General William H. Price of Toronto.

One of the great difficulties in dealing with road traffic arose, Col. Price contended, from the lack of uniformity in policing the highways. A particular obstacle to this uniformity, he said, lay in the efforts of some municipalities to use their policing authority "as a collecting bureau to bring profit to their coffers." The laying of a multipilicity of charges for practically the same offence, and the resultant inconvenience to the travelling public, had been receiving his department's constant attention.

Flat Fine.

"Generally speaking," he added, "in the smaller places the fee system is in vogue, as the municipalities do not want to pay salaries. I have been wondering whether there might not be some solution of this difficulty by making a flat fine which would include costs.

"A motorist would then know exactly what he would have to pay for an offence; there would be no doubt as to the amount. If the motorist wanted to pay it then, he could do so and have it over. Our Provincial police, as you know are equipped with triplicate receipts where they can accept the amount of a prospective fine. One of these receipts is given to the motorist, the other is kept and the third sent in to the department. This makes a very good check on payment of money as a convenience to the public. I think it would be a very good thing if municipalities used this method.

"The great trouble is enforcing highway laws and regulations arises from the distances which motorists travel and the inconvenience to come back a couple of hundred miles to a court on a day fixed by the magistrate or the constable, which may not suit the motorist."

Eliminating Fees.

Col. Price declared that the department had been steadily transferring the magistrates from the fee system, and had been proceeding along similar lines with the police.

Tracing the steady development of the highway system in Ontario, Col. Price stressed the point that in comparison to the tremendous expense of the work that has been accomplished, the license fee and gas tax charged to the motorist, for use of the road system, was comparatively small. Up to the end of 1932 the province, said he, had expended for construction of highways, county roads and colonisation roads, no less than $255,477,606. The annual expenditure for

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

IN THESE DAYS when detective stories are popular, many readers young and old alike believe that they have instinct, or at least qualities which would lead them to discover clues leading to the solution of thefts and crimes, should they have a chance to exercise them.

* * * * * *

They seldom think of things the other way around, with an appreciation of how easy it would be for anyone to track them down.

* * * * * *

They are constantly leaving trails of what they do in the simple and innocent activities of their days.

* * * * * *

Yet they wonder how it is that someone in the family or a companion perhaps, discovers what they have been doing or "what they are up to."

* * * * * *

It may be with no wish to conceal their actions that things are not spoken of earlier, but the opportunity may not have arisen or the "right time" for which they were looking, has not come.

* * * * * *

Then, when they do speak of the thing, it is they who are amazed for they can see the information is not totally a surprise to the hearer.

* * * * * *

"How does mother always know when I have been at her work basket, even for a needle and thread?" is the query of surprise, often voiced by some daughters. How, indeed!

* * * * * *

The needle is left on a table or bureau, wherever the sewing stopped. Then on putting it away, the needle case is found lying open, and the end of the thread on the spool not fastened off.

* * * * * *

And who had been writing at father's desk? Not that it would in itself be disliked, but the stopper to the ink bottle is off, and that is annoying. The ink gets dusty and the next time father writes he is bothered with tiny specks on the pen, which make strokes uneven.

* * * * * *

Or when there is pasting to be done, and the top is not replaced on the tube or the cover on the paste jar, clues are not wanting to point with insistent accuracy to someone, not the owner of the tube or jar, having been using the said paste.

* * * * * *

When the cracker jar lid is not put on straight, mother does not have to look inside and find the lowered contents, to know somebody has had an especial treat.

* * * * * *

But it isn't always children who leave trails of their activities in their wake. Older folk share with them the same traits of leaving trails which simplify detection of activities.

* * * * * *

Careless trails are untidy, and make extra work for the homemaker.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

A prominent New York dentist has objected to an article recently published in this column which was entitled "Candy Wins Approval."

In the article I stated that the old idea that candy contributed to tooth decay had been explained by modern medical research on the basis that if children ate candy they would not eat enough fruits and vegetables which give them proper minerals to build teeth, and that, therefore, any child who ate candy should also eat some fruits and vegetables.

This suggestion of mine was based upon considerable research in various laboratories, and sufficiently authoritative that Dr. Frederick F. Tisdall of Toronto stated it before the American Academy of Periodontology. However, I am very glad, for the sake of fairness, to print the view of the matter which the New York dentist holds, as follows:

"Reliable investigators on the causes of tooth decay have not yet denied the theories of Miller. These still are the best we have. While some day they may seem gross and lack detail, nevertheless, it is indisputable that definite factors do bring about tooth decay, and these generate from food debris lying on the teeth in places where it is not easily removed.

"Tooth structure is the soil in which decay occurs. If the tooth structures are poor, lack phosphorus and calcium, they furnish good soil for tooth decay. If the structures are good, rich in phosphorus and calcium, then they are poor soil for decay.

"Again, there probably are dissolving or buffing substances in the saliva, or perhaps even phosphorus and calcium, which find their way into the enamel. But this again is like rain falling on the soil and generating the seeds. The rain (the saliva) lacking these protecting substances, permits decay to proceed.

"It is quite true that numerous articles, in substance, much the same as your newspaper article, are appearing in our scientific journals. These are given as matters of opinion, and open to discussion.

"Cleanliness of the mouth is of the greatest value in preventing tooth decay. Let us not set it aside until we have established something better."

I am inclined to agree with this letter, and I do not believe that my article was very far out of line with it. I do not believe that the doctor intends to take all candy away from children any more than I intended that they should eat as much of it as they wanted to.

New Spring Fashions Show Longer Skirts

PARIS, Feb. 3 (A.P.) — Longer skirts were again starred in the Spring style shows when Worth exhibited daytime models eight or ten inches from the ground in length, and afternoon frocks of ankle length.

Worth's show ended the 1933 displays of the leading designers. His clothes were designed with a straight silhouette and displayed a wide variety of trims, such as fanciful belts, gold and silver ornaments, and diamond brooches.

A gray wool frock had a wide red straw braid belt, and a beige flax frock was finished with a small collar embroidered in gold thread. A navy wool frock was studded with glistening paillettes woven into the cloth.

Schiaparelli's satin jersey is popular for sportwear. It has a polished luster, contrasting with the dull fabrics which have held sway so long.

BOARD OF EDUCATION ADOPTS REPORT ON CADET TRAINING

which recommended that after October 1 next the night school fees be revised to $3 for resident and $5 for non-resident pupils; and that the evening classes for artistic designing, ornamental lettering and commercial French be discontinued.

The report was referred back by the board to the Advisory Vocational Committee with the recommendations that the night school fees be set at $5 for both city and county pupils, and that in addition to the evening classes for artistic designing, ornamental lettering and commercial French, the two auto mechanics' classes and the applied electricity and boat-building classes also be discontinued.

Cadet Corps to Remain.

It was nip and tuck with the cadet question, and it looked at one time as if Peterborough intended to follow the recent move made by Toronto and disband the entire cadet organization in both the public schools and the Collegiate and Vocational Institute. The organization was saved, however, upon adoption of the report of the special committee to enquire into causes of inefficiency in the Collegiate cadet corps.

Dr. A. Moir's motion to discontinue cadet training throughout the schools under the Board of Education was strenuously opposed by Dr. G. R. Scott. John R. Marshall moved adoption of the report of the special committee, of which he was chairman. It was seconded by I. P. McNabb, and carried by a small majority.

The final major question under discussion was precipitated following introduction of a motion by W. J. Hancock, seconded by J. A. McKone, asking that the salaries of the Collegiate and Vocational Institute teachers be reduced by a further ten per cent. on and after September 1, 1933. The question was referred to the Committee on Appointments.

Estimates for the current year were not struck by the board, as is customary at the February meeting. It was intimated by the chairman that the board were unable to strike the estimates as the Department of Education had not yet decided what the grants would be this year. It is expected that announcement will be made by the Minister of Education probably on Thursday of this week.

The Deputation.

Introduced by Dr. Scott, Mr. Tinker, who headed the deputation of ratepayers and property-owners, stated: "The property-owners of this city are in a bad way and bankruptcy is staring them in the face. I appreciate the seriousness of the words I am about to say, but unless conditions improve or the opportunity be given to us to pay our rents and taxes, we cannot hold out much longer."

Even if property-owners were able to collect twelve months' rent, Mr. Tinker pointed out, it was almost impossible to carry on under the present burden of high taxation. It was an awful thing, he said, for property-owners who had perhaps been twenty, thirty or fourty years in acquiring property to feel their equity in that property being lost. He felt sure the Board of Education would do all they could to relieve the situation.

Thomas Walker, realtor, remarked: "I can honestly say, speaking from the owners' standpoint, that if the owners of property had given defaulting tenants three months' notice to quit there would have been a revolution in this city. The idea of our being here is to bear pressure on you people in the hope that you will make our burden lighter," Mr. Walker explained.

The speaker added that in order to accomplish that end the delegation proposed that the board should reduce teachers' salaries.

A. T. Williams, who said he was an employee of the De Laval Company, referred to the short time and the wage cuts that the majority of the workers had been subject to. He had an equity in a house which he had not yet fully paid for, he explained, and he stated, "If you gentlemen could lower the costs a little, as the hospital has done, it would help."

He suggested that what Peterborough needed was "an Oxford movement—the display of a little more brotherly love."

W. M. Langford, realtor, said: "I like my friends here feel we are not getting a fair deal. Two members of the board I spoke to have had their incomes cut by forty or fifty per cent., and I feel if we consider ninety per cent. of the people, they have been cut from 25 to 100 per cent. The man with no job at all has been cut 100 per cent., we must admit that."

The speaker believed that the people of this city had met their tax obligations well up to the present, but he contended many of the citizens had been forced to borrow money to do so. The next move, he suggested, might be that people would find it impossible to meet their taxes, and then the city would be in the same position as Windsor. "Maybe I am taking a pessimistic view of the situation," he said, "but it has already hit Windsor and other cities, so let us take warning in time and make an effort to cut expenses. I am not speaking for myself alone, but for all these other gentlemen, representative of the ratepayers and property-owners of the city," he concluded.

Mr. Reid assured the delegation that the members of the board appreciated the gravity of the situation. "We have been working on the estimates," he said "but have not yet been able to get them completed."

Up to the present, Mr. Reid stated, the board had been able to effect certain reductions, but in view of the fact that the Department of Education was not yet in a position to announce on what percentage the grants would be made this year, the board was unable to strike the estimates. Word would probably be received from the department on Thursday of the present week, he believed.

Evening Classes.

Presented by John R. Marshall on behalf of James Dutton, the report of the Advisory Vocational Committee recommended that the fees for resident pupils attending night classes be $3 per pupil, and that the fees for non-resident pupils be $5.

In addition, it was recommended that the classes in artistic designing, ornamental lettering and commercial French be discontinued, and further, that the committee receive an appropriation of $2,260 for the current year.

The report was considered clause by clause, and a motion was moved by J. A. McKone and seconded by V. J. McElderry, K.C., that a fee of $10 per pupil be levied for night school to take effect from October 1 next.

The question arose as to whether the board had the power to raise the fee to such a figure, and A. M. Moon, former shop instructor in the Vocational School and now inspector of Vocational Schools for the province, who happened to be on an official visit to the school, was requested to provide some enlightenment on the matter.

Mr. Moon stated that he was merely in Peterborough for the purpose of inspecting the school and had no authority to make any statement with regard to the question of fees. "I feel the proper course for you to take," he said, "would be to write for information to the department."

Mr. Reid.—If we decided to close the night classes altogether, what attitude do you think the Department would take.

Mr. Moon.—Any closing of night classes would be considered by the Department to be a violation of the agreement entered into with the Department by the Board.

He added that he knew of one case where a Board of Education had charged a fee of $6 per pupil in the night classes. At present the Department was carrying on negotiations with that Board, and an unsatisfactory situation had arisen. Mr. Moon referred to night classes as being "the poor man's university."

Dr. J. J. Craig.—It is a certain fact we entered into an agreement with the Department of Education and we cannot take drastic steps in this matter without first consulting the Department.

Mr. McElderry.—The Department made cuts in their grants without consulting us.

An amendment was moved by I. P. McNabb, seconded by Dr. A. Moir, that the fees for both resident and non-resident night school pupils be recommended by the Board at $5.

The purpose of the $10 fee explained Mr. McKone was so that the taxpayer should be relieved of the burden of paying anything for night classes. He did not believe that night classes should be a charge on the taxpayer.

"If you carry that argument to its conclusion you might apply it to the day classes as well," Mr. Marshall observed. He believed that any move to increase the fee was a move in the wrong direction. It was essential that night classes should be available for people who could not afford to pay for other forms of advanced education. So long as the Board was maintaining night classes, he contended, it was the duty of the Board to provide classes that would benefit the mass of the people. He was in favor of eliminating classes that might be considered unnecessary in view of present conditions.

Mr. McElderry.—Would you name some of the classes you think might be eliminated?

In addition to the three classes mentioned in the report, Mr. Marshall said he believed the classes in dressmaking, millinery and cooking could be dispensed with. They had been largely attended by young married women as a hobby.

Mr. McNabb.—We have got to keep our heads in this matter. There are many worthy people attending night classes, and as Mr. Moon has said such classes are "the poor man's university."

"I feel that we are going far enough increasing the fee to $5 for residents and non-residents," he said.

Dr. Moir agreed with Mr. McNabb and expressed the opinion that the proposed jump to $10 was probably too drastic. He felt the fee should be kept at a reasonable level.

H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, said that 100 students had attended the cooking classes during the present term. Of that number, Mr. Kenner stated, 45 were factory girls; 27 clerks in stores and offices; 7, domestics; 3, teachers; 9 unemployed, and 9 housewives. In the sewing classes the students included 56 factory girls; 43 clerks in stores and offices; 16 domestics, 7 teachers; 32 unemployed; 4 miscellaneous; and 8 housewives.

The vote carried in favor of the clause in the report relative to the discontinuance of certain classes, it was decided after some discussion that it be recommended to the committee that in addition to the three classes they had already named, the auto mechanics, applied electricity and boat building classes also be discontinued. The recommendation was made on motion of Dr. G. R. Scott, seconded by J. A. McKone, and if put into effect by the committee will effect a saving of approximately $1,328, according to Mr. Kenner's estimate.

After the cadet question had been brought forward by the chairman, Dr. A. Moir said he would like to move discontinuance of the cadet corps in view of the need for economy. While it was desirable to have a cadet corps, he noted that Toronto Board of Education had abandoned the organization.

It had been mentioned at a previous meeting, said Dr. Moir that the cadet movement was operated without cost to the taxpayer. That was hardly true, he believed. It did not matter if it was the government or the Board that was paying the cost, it all come down in the final analysis to the fact that the taxpayer was footing the bill.

"Yes," replied Dr. Moir, in answer to a question, "my motion includes abolition of the Collegiate Cadet Corps and also the Public School Cadet Corps."

The motion was seconded by J. A. McKone.

Dr. Scott pointed out that when Toronto had decided to scrap the cadet corps they had provided for an alternative system of physical training in the schools. If it was the proposal to have a physical training course in Peterborough schools to replace the cadet corps, he might consider supporting Dr. Moir's motion, otherwise he would not be in favor of it.

An amendment was moved by Mr. Marshall and seconded by Mr. McNabb that the report of the Special Committee, which was brought in at the January meeting of the Board and which recommended the retention of the cadet corps with certain changes in regard to its scope and instructor, be adopted. The amendment carried by a small majority.

When the members of the Board felt that their work was about over, Mr. Hancock introduced a motion seeking a further ten per cent. reduction in the salaries of the teachers of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School to take effect as from September 1 next.

Discussion which ensued centered around the question as to whether or not the Board had the right under the terms of the last agreement that was made with the teachers to cut salaries again before the end of the present calendar year.

On motion of Dr. Scott, seconded by Mr. Marshall, it was decided that the whole question of teachers' salaries be referred to the Committee on Appointments.

CARD TO LEAD AT NO TRUMPS

Ordinarily you hold a suit of at least four cards that has not been bid. The proper card to lead depends upon the number held, the honors of the suit that you possess, and cards of re-entry held in side suits.

Of course it is unusual to hold an established suit against a modern no-trump call, but some fluke may put you in that enviable position. Then you try to drop all opposing cards of your long suit by leading off its winners. As a rule either five or six cards of a suit must be headed by four top honors to expect your suit to be established. In case you hold no high side honor, to regain entry to your hand, it is better to lead your fourth-best card from any suit that is not almost certainly established, than it is to pick off a few tricks with its top cards.

Suppose you hold A-K-Q-7-3, and no side honors, you had best lead the 7, thereby giving opponents the trick, and allowing your partner to lead back your suit when he gains entry. In this way you may hope to win four tricks in your suit. If you lead off the three top honors you need not expect to win more than those first three tricks. In case you hold a side high honor, lead off your three top honors, hoping to win another trick in your suit when you gain entry with your side honor.

More often than not your partner will hold only two cards of your suit of five or six cards, so you often must part with the first trick so that partner may be able to lead your suit back before his second card has been played.

The usual rule for leading an honor at no trumps is to do so when you hold at least three honors, two of which touch. The A-Q-10 are the only three honors of which do not appear in sequence, or "touch," as it is called. If touching honors are to be led, always lead the higher of them, unless those happen to be A-K, then ordinarily the K should be led, as the Ace indicates an established suit. Lead the Q from A-Q-J; the J is led from A-J-10 or K-J-10. The K is led from A-K-J or A-K-10, in case re-entry is held; otherwise the lower honor is led, to lose the first trick, hoping to win the balance of tricks in the suit.

As a matter of practical fact, it does not average to pay to lead an honor from three held in a four-card suit. It is better to trust partner to hold the Ace, K or 9, than to lead the Q from Q-J-10-6. Lead the 6 from so short a suit or you are apt to find that the declaring side holds two stops to your suit.

In case a suit does not call for an honor to be led, lead your fourth-best card of the suit, so that you partner may utilize the "rule-of-eleven," than was given a few days ago. Irregular leads are more liable to bother your partner than the declarer, as the latter sees all 26 cards of his side.

Short leads at no trumps may work out well, but straight leads are best in the long run. The odds are two to one that the declaring side holds strength missing from your hand.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

Since, as a recent song-hit puts it, "it's winter again," I have chosen the hot oil facial as the first of the series of masks and facials that I propose to describe for the edification of my readers. For wintry weather is very much inclined to dry and roughen human skin. And there's nothing quite like an occasional hot oil facial to keep the skin smooth and supple during the cold season.

The hot oil facial is designed primarily for dry, leathery skins. But even the oily type of skin can profit by an occasional oil facial during cold weather. For such a facial will counteract any harmful effects of exposure to the elements. There are two oils that may be used for this facial, namely, sweet almond oil, and pure olive oil. The sweet almond oil should be used by fair-skinned individuals who wish to retain their fair coloring. While the olive oil should be used by dark-complexioned individuals who have no desire to lighten their skins.

Before administering a sweet almond oil or olive oil facial, cleanse your skin thoroughly, employing your usual cleasing method. Then heat a quantity of the chosen oil, and allow it to cool sufficiently to enable you to appy it to your skin without any danger of burning. Pat a generous quantity of the warmed oil into your skin with your fingertips. Next, take narrow strips of gauze, dip them into the heated oil, and arrange them over your face and neck. To hold these strips in place, take a larger piece of gauze, cut holes in it for your eyes, nose and mouth, and bind it about your face. Permit the oil-soaked strips to remain on your face as long as possible, so that your skin will obtain the full benefits of the nourishing oil.

When you remove the oil mask, take a soft cloth or several absorbent cleansing tissues, and blot up any excess oil. And as the final step, apply a good skin tonic or astringent to remove any remaining vestige of oil, to close the pores, and to tone up the skin. This procedure wil soften and nourish the skin, and keep it smooth and lovely during the entire winter season.

ABOUT THE COMMUNISTS.

A Montreal correspondent, whose letter appears in to-day's issue, takes us to task for suggesting that Canadian Communists would support the Woodsworth-MacPhail Co-operative Commonwealth program, and asks us to name some of the prominent Communists who are so doing.

Our acquaintance with Communists being fortunately limited—they are a rare animal in this district—we are not able to comply with this request, but as a matter of simple common sense, it is surely evident that when the next election drags around that believers in the Soviet system will throw their support to the new movement.

Our correspondent does not surely mean to suggest that Mr. Bennett will get any help from the Communist party, nor that the Liberal party can count on any assistance from that quarter in their next appeal to the electorate.

But between the Soviet and the Co-operative system there is much in common, even although the Reds seek their ends by force and the C.C.F. party advocates a bloodless revolution.

Some features of the C.C.F. program are obviously Communism, others are as plainly Socialism, but the whole bill-of-fare must surely have its appeal for Canadian Communists in preference to the old parties' adherence to the capitalistic system.

Undoubtedly some of the most violent of the Reds regard the Woodsworth campaign as too milk-and-watery to suit their book; they would rather adopt the bomb method of attaining their end, but in the long run even these ultra-Communists are not likely to withhold support from the movement.

CANADIAN LAW AT ITS BEST.

The conduct of the murder trial at the Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario here yesterday furnished an admirable demonstration of Canadian law at its best.

Placed on trial for his life was a negro from the United States, a foreigner with little or none of this world's goods, astray from another land without a friend in this part of the world.

Yet the legal rights and privileges of this wanderer were protected as would have been those of one of the foremost of our own citizens.

He was defended ably by a King's Counsel, the prosecutor was fairness itself in his handling of the case, the Supreme Court judge on the bench saw to it that the whole machinery of the law operated fairly and justly, on one occasion holding up the proceedings for half an hour in order that a missing witness might be heard, and declaring that with a man's life at stake the court could not afford to prevent all the available testimony being offered.

It was pointed out to the jury that, although a foreigner and a man of colored blood, the prisoner was entitled to all the protection that would be given a Canadian citizen.

The whole course of the trial, the dignified atmosphere of the hearing, the insistence upon fair play for the accused, the business-like celerity with which a jury was selected, and the hearing of evidence commenced combined to illustrate once more that in our system of justice this country need apologize to none other anywhere.

THE PHILPOTT CRUSADE.

The decision of Elmore Philpott, editorial writer with the Toronto Globe and Liberal candidate in the West Hamilton provincial by-election in 1931, to resign from his newspaper work and begin a platform crusade designed to influence the Liberal party to lead a national movement to end unemployment "and restore harmony between farmers' incomes and expense," is an interesting political development.

Mr. Philpott, while giving out few details as to how he hopes to bring it about, is in favor of what he calls "full and friendly team work" within certain limits between the Liberal party and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

He doubtless has his campaign mapped out, but it must be admitted that to the outsider an attempt to form an alliance beween Liberals and C.C.F. adherents seems an impossible task.

On the one hand, the vast majority of Liberals in this country are not prepared to endorse or support a movement that is frankly Socialist in its objective.

On the other, the C.C.F. leaders are likely to refuse to have anything to do with the official Liberal party, inasmuch as the Co-operative Commonwealth speakers are declaring from every platform that nothing can be expected from either of the old parties, both of which, they remark, are firmly wedded to the capitalistic system.

If Mr. Philpott, whose enthusiasm and ability and eloquence are unchallenged, is able to effect a working agreement between the two in the face of those conditions he will be hailed as a miracle worker.

In any case, the people will await his first speech with interest.

THE NEW TARIFF BOARD

The announcement at Ottawa that the long-awaited Tariff Board has at last been appointed and the personnel of the board itself have both been noted with much satisfaction throughout the country.

From a Peterborough viewpoint, there is special interest in the selection as chairman of the board of Mr. Justice G. H. Sedgewick of the Supreme Court of Ontario, principally because he is the brother of a well-known local citizen, and to a minor degree because the announcement of his appointment found him presiding at the local sessions of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Sedgewick has had a distinguished career both as a member of the bar and as a jurist, and the public generally has a high opinion of his capabilities and his qualifications. It is an open secret that he would have preferred to have retained his seat on the bench, but that he has yielded to the Premier's plea and accepted his new and responsible position from a keen sense of public duty. He is in every way capable of excellent service in the post to which he has been signed.

The inclusion of Milton N. Campbell, Progressive member for Mackenzie, Saskatchewan, was the surprise feature of the announcement. Mr. Campbell, a former Liberal, was elected to Parliament as a Progressive in 1921, and has been a member of the Progressive group in the House ever since. He has been a keen student of public affairs, particularly of those problems particularly affecting the prairie farmers, and his presence on the board should give the West adequate representation.

The third member, Charles Hebert, B.A., of Montreal, a young and distinguished student of economics and a member of a well-known French-Canadian family, brings admirable qualifications to the position for which he has been selected, and his appointment will be acceptable, it is to be imagined, to French-Canadians generally.

The new board has very responsible and important duties to perform, particularly in regard to the Imperial Conference trade treaties, and it is gratifying to hear that its work is to commence at once. Much depends upon how this organization functions, and the eyes of the whole country will be on its activities.

JUST SOWING THE WIND.

(From the Toronto Globe)

Mr. J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., has the reputation of being an astute politician, and he has lived up to it on recent occasions. Following the by-election in Calgary, the Albertan of that city pointed out that he manoeuvred a local contest into a fight on a national question, for he had made the Canadian Commonwealth Federation the issue. He has forced on Parliament a debate on his pet subject by asking it to resolve that "the Government should immediately take measures looking to the setting up of a co-operative commonwealth in which all natural resources and the socially necessary machinery of production will be used in the interests of the people, and not for the benefit of the few." Of course, Mr. Woodsworth and his colleagues know Parliament will resolve no such thing, but it gives them a chance to display their stock in trade, a great collection of words devoid of practical or practicable plans.

Commenting on a recent address in Peterborough by Miss MacPhail, The Examiner paid tribute to her skill in holding the audience, and then said: "It would be interesting, however, to cross-examine individual members of Miss MacPhail's audience with a view to ascertaining how many can explain just how the promised transformation is to be brought about, for it must be admitted that there was a vagueness about the whole program that leaves most people out on the end of the limb when they are called upon to outline the proposed plan for Canada's rescue from the present depression." Miss MacPhail seems to be clear on one point, at least: that if the printing presses could be put to work there would be plenty of money. Mr. Garland, her confrere from Alberta, is not sure this is the remedy. As for Mr. Woodsworth, for years he has been trying to get Parliament to abolish Section 98 of the Criminal Code, which is intended as a safeguard against Reds and other revolutionists. He has not succeeded, but presumably he is still definite on this point, although his bigger program is just so much socialistic haze.

Nevertheless, Mr. Woodsworth is an astute politician. He knows how to stage a debate in Parliament to give publicity to his cause, and how to carry on a campaign to catch public attention when so many people are wondering if there is a way out of the troubled situation. The member for North Winnipeg Centre never had so fine a chance before, and he is making the most of it.

It is in vain, however, that one looks in his speeches for anything except the general promotion of the ism with which he has been associated for years. If he had a workable basis for "using the socially necessary machinery of production" in "the interests of the people, and not for the benefit of the few," he would naturally start at a given point and try to apply his principle, without seeking an indefinite blanket resolution. He should at least get paper and pencil and figure out the cost of his scheme and tell the public whence the money is coming for the big venture. It would hardly do to depend upon the banks, for the depositors would probably rush to take out their savings if they saw Mr. Woodsworth, Miss MacPhail, etc., arriving with trucks. In Russia they did this things so suddenly that there was no chance for escape, and Miss MacPhail protests that she is an anti-revolutionist. In Great Britain they had the idea that socialism could make over the nation, and tried to do it in a peaceful way, but except for piling up unbearably heavy debts they got nowhere. Mr. Woodsworth need not fear the capitalists will steal his ideas if he discloses them. If they discovered he had something worth while they probably would help him—on the quiet, if he wished—and let him have all the credit.

Miss MacPhail told the House of Commons that in 1932 corporations and municipalities in Canada defaulted on their bonds to the extent of $45,000,000, thus wiping out so much credit. Supposing Mr. Woodsworth gets down to brass tacks and introduces a workable plan whereby these bonds will be restored to their old status. Let us have something specific that is not pure politics and agitation.

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 37

Kane was at breakfast the next morning when the idea struck him. He pushed back his chair, summoned his waiter, paid his check and hurriedly left the breakfast room. A half hour later he presented himself at the office of the chief of police.

John Lee greeted him perfunctorily. Without invitation, he kropped into the handiest chair, pushed his slouch hat to the back of his head and, motioning with his cane to lend emphasis to his words, proceeded to tell the chief what he thought of him.

When Jere Kane was aroused he cared not for the feelings of any who happened to get in his way. He spoke plainly, harshly, sometimes with biting sarcasm.

"You have made a perfect ass of yourself, chief," he accused. "If you don't do something about it before it's too late you're going to be the laughing stock of the whole state."

Lee scowled at him, but, secretly, he had too much respect for the other man's reputation to do what he would have done to anyone else who spoke in this manner to him—eject him from his office. He knew that if Kane came to him this morning after the treatment that had been accorded him he must have something important to say.

"I mean about Lillian Hull," the man went on. "If I had not been so dumb I would have tried to show you how wrong you were at Bailey's house that night. But you had me so roiled that I did not think of it."

"What are you driving at?" John Lee demanded ill-naturedly.

"You are still convinced that that poor kid killed Bailey?"

"I have turned the case over to the district attorney," Lee returned hotly. "He thinks enough of the evidence against her to file charges, which he did late yesterday."

"And what about that attack on Nanette LeRoi?"

"I will admit," Lee said slowly, "that the evidence against Hull in that case is purely circumstantial, but it is strong enough to get a conviction."

Kane sat back in his chair and rudely put his feet up on a rung of Lee's chair. "All right," he said, "let's get down to bare facts. Your evidence against Hull is circumstantial."

"Yes."

"And your evidence in the LeRoi case is circumstantial."

"Yes, but remember, I have a confession in the Bailey case."

Kane uttered a cry of disgust. "You know, as well as I do, that that confession wouldn't hold water in court if she repudiated it."

Lee admitted that he had not thought of that possibility.

"The police never do," the other man grunted, "until it is too late. All they think about is getting a confession."

"But what if she doesn't repudiate the confession," the chief said defensively.

"You can rest assured that she will. That girl is going to be provided with a smart lawyer. You're going to have to have the evidence to convict her, and it is going to have to be mighty strong."

"I'm getting that evidence," gruffly.

"Yes, and I'll bet that I can shoot every bit of it full of holes. However, I'm not here to defend Lillian Hull. I'm here to help you."

John Lee glowered at his visitor. "I don't need any help," he exclaimed angrily. "I have been chief of police of Los Angeles for fifteen years and—"

"And the newspapers are riding you for being one of the worst police officials in the country," Kane finished chidingly. "You can't deny that fact. Don't be an ass, chief. Listen to reason. I want to see justice done in this case, not because it particularly interests me but because my hobby is criminology and I want—"

"An amateur detective," Lee sneered. "There are millions of them, and if I need any of their help I'll put an ad in the papers."

He turned back to his desk, indicating that so far as he was concerned the interview was ended. But Kane was not so easily rebuffed. He had come here for an express purpose and he was going to see that that purpose was accomplished.

"Chief," he said calmly, "you know as well as I do that the murder of Richard Bailey and the assault on Nanette LeRoi are tied up."

"Of course they are. Any fool would know that."

"Very well, then," arising, "I'm advising you for your own good to release Lillian Hull at once."

John Lee turned slowly and contemplated the other with scornful eyes. Finally he snarled, "Jere Kane, you must have lost your head."

"Very well, perhaps I have." His hand was on the door and he prepared to make his exit. "Nevertheless, if you don't take my advice you're going to lose yours, at least politically." He hesitated a moment for the import of his words to sink in. Then: "Think it over, chief."

"Maybe we'd better talk this over," the chief said with just a trace of humility.

Kane returned to his chair. He leaned forward and pointed his cane menacingly at the police official.

"Nanette LeRoi was shot some time be ween twelve and one o'clock," he said evenly. "It was just xactly one o'clock when you received the telephone call advising you of the attack on her."

"Yes?" doubtfully.

"At some time before twelve o'clock I received a telephone call from you at my hotel. You told me that you had Lillian Hull and the other two here in your office—"

"By George!" Lee brought his hand down on his leg with a resounding whack. "She was here with us when LeRoi was shot."

"Exactly. Now what are you going to do about it?"

John Lee gazed at the other man helplessly. He had visions of the newspapers appearing with great screaming headlines proclaiming that "Police Chief Pulls Another Blunder." He could see himself caricatured on the front pages and the public meeting him with sardonic laughter whenever he ventured forth on the streets.

"What can I do?" he asked spinelessly.

All of Kane's animosity toward the chief vanished as he gazed upon his almost flaccid surrender.

"You can do either one of two things," he said evenly. "You can send an innocent girl to the gallows or you can set her free. Use your own judgment."

"But," Lee protested, "I can't go on with her prosecution if she's innocent. If I release her the newspapers are going to hop on me—"

"Will you accept my help?"

"Very well," Kane agreed. "First of all, get the district attorney on the wire. I will talk to him."

In a moment Lee handed him the instrument. Kane spoke brusquely, presenting a concise delineation of the situation and concluded with:

"I will be personally responsible for her and will have her ready for you whenever you desire her."

The district attorney asked to speak to the chief. John Lee took the instrument. Kane could hear the voice crackling through the receiver. The chief turned white and then red. His eyes bulged and his lips grew taut. Finally he hung up and muttered:

"Why you dirty—"

A short time later, under Lee's instructions, a matron brought Lillian to them. Kane smiled reassuringly, but she was frightened. The chief said:

"I'm going to release you in Mr. Kane's custody. But I'm warning you—"

"Please let me handle that," Kane cut in quietly. He said to the girl:

"There has been a terrible mistake, Miss Hull. The chief is releasing you in my care only on your promise that you will say absolutely nothing to any of your friends. If you are asked any questions you are merely to say that a friend managed to arrange bond for you."

"But I thought murder was not a bailable offense," she protested. "That's what Lucy told me."

"Under certain circumstances and with the proper influence," Kane assured her, "bond can be arranged."

"And don't forget," Lee warned her, "the charges against you still stand."

She cast a frightened look at Kane and he nodded. She cast an uneasy glance about her then:

"I'm afraid," she moaned. "If something happens to me—"

THE KNOT IN THE OAK

I knew a man who, just to see what would happen, tied a knot in an oak tree.

It was a very little oak, slim and pliant; and the man was young, too, and full of curiosity.

He took the young oak in his hands and twisted it easily and made a simple knot and then put a splint around it so it would still grow straight.

Then he waited.

The tree grew older and thicker and taller and high above the house. And the man grew older, too, and thickened and lost some of his straightness. Nearly 50 years of living came to the man and to the tree. Storms beat upon both of them. The heat and cold of living tried both of them.

The trunk of the tree was sturdy. Bark grew around the knot and after a while no man, just by looking at the great tree, could have told that a knot had been tied in its heart. It looked like any other tree.

But always in his heart the man was curious and wondered what the inside of the knotted oak was like. He worked with woods and he loved wood, this man, and he wondered many a time what sort of pattern that young knot had made in the mature tree....But he died without ever knowing the secret of the oak.

After his death, however, the tree came down and was cut into wood for stoves and fireplaces. And someone, then, remembered the story of the knot and looked for the place where it had been. Surely there would be signs in the wood of a struggle and a victory.

But there was hardly a sign. The tree had made little of that knot, had not trouble to scar itself, and where the knot had been there was no more than a faint blemish in the heart of the tree....The tree had not remembered. It had larger affairs than this—business of growing tall and strong, business of putting forth leaves, business of making a pleasant shade all around—and had neglected none of these in self-pity or in regret.

* * *

That's all. But I'm thinking that many a proud man might learn something about living—from that strong, though knotted, tree. For so many of us remember our scars and forget our victories.

Officers Elected For Havelock Club

HAVELOCK, Feb. 7. (Examiner Correspondence). The annual meeting of the Recreation Club was held in the club rooms here recently, with a large and enthusiastic attendance of the members. The chief business in hand was the election of officers for the current year. Following are the officers elect:

President, John Evans; Past President, L. G. Hageran; Vice Presidents, representing the various departments of the C.P.R., R. A. Miller, Jos. Hoffman, F. J. Hooper, G. C. Craig, Wm. McLaughlin, J. H. Harvey, Wm. McLaren, D. A. Forde, A. T. Armstrong, W. H. Gordon, J. H. Moore, Dr. Thompson, J. W. Anderson (Peterborough), Thos. White and John Howe; Secretary-Treasurer, J. H. Moore; committees, Finance and Publicity, President and officers; membership, E. Pirie, D. McAdam, G. C. Craig, J. H. Moore, Charles Dickenson, Robert Crawford, T. C. Jamieson, and C. L. Roberts; Property, H. W. Roche, D. A. Lorde and C. L. Hubel; Club rooms, J. H. Moore, L. G. Hagerman, H. J. Bush, D. A. McAdam and J. McQuigge; Horseshoe courts, Wm. Rice, Wm. Bullied, D. Poste and W. Stevenson; Tennis courts, Lorne Hooper, George Aboud and Glenn Wright; Bowling green, J. H. Moore, L. G. Hagerman, H. T. Mathison, C. F. Roberts, A. McDonald; Softball, E. Pirie, W. Copp, W. McLaughlin and T. C. Jamieson; Christmas and relief, H. W. Roche, J. H. Moore, G. C. Craig, R. Crawford and J. Howe; Constitution and by-laws, H. W. Roche, F. J. Hooper, G. C. Craig, J. H. Moore, R. Crawford and W. H. Gordon.

The balance sheet of the club for 1932, showed receipts of $1181.75; expenditures $1058.02, leaving a cash balance on hand of $123.74.

The high-light of the financial report was the exceedingly large sum expended by the club on Christmas cheer and relief for the past five years. The handsome sum of $909.33 has been devoted to this work. Other expenditures were for construction of tennis courts and bowling green, horseshoe pitches and the lease of a spacious clubroom which is a boon to the older men, who spend many pleasant afternoons and evenings in the company of old friends and fellow pensioners, the while they play a friendly game of cards, checkers, and other games with kindred spirits.

The retiring president, L. G. Hagerman, spoke a few words thanking the members for the splendid support given him during his term of office, and bespoke for his successor Mr. J. Evans, the same measure of loyalty and co-operation as he had received.

Quotations For To-Day

Humility is to make a right estimate of one's self. It is no humility for a man to think less of himself than he ought, though it might rather puzzle him to do that.—

President, General Motors of Canada, Limited, Industrialist

This is the signature of a most human and approachable man who would be so always, no matter how great his success or high his position. For he is essentially unassuming, natural, kindly inclined. He is generous, plain-spoken and well-meaning at all times. He is never sharp practised, though shrewd and sharp thinking in the conduct of his affairs. He possesses an unusualy high degree of honesty. He weights ideas and plans carefully before he adopts them, but once adopted, he is resolute, even stubborn, in carrying them out. He can not only build a strong fort, he can hold it once built. Conscientiousness is fundamental in his make-up, manifesting itself in the administration of his business and determining his interests outside of business. Any cause that appealed primarily to his sense of responsibility would enlist his co-operation. He would therefore he particularly active in humanitarian undertakings and civil affairs.

NO COMMUNISTIC BACKING.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—To the question which you ask in Friday's paper, "Is it not a fact that every Communist in Canada is giving the C.C.F. support?" the answer is emphatically "No." For proof of that look at any Communist publication and read the scurrilous terms in which Mr. Woodsworth and his fellow-workers are referred to. Perhaps The Examiner will oblige with the names of some of the prominent Communists who are giving the C. C. F. movement support. I enclose a cartoon from a Communist paper which is not exactly flattering to Mr. Woodsworth.

To anyone who even cursorily examines the C.C.F. program with its reliance on democracy as a means of achieving its aims, it should be apparent that it has no connection with Communism, which is the negation of democracy and is based entirely on autocracy, the closest parallel to which in this country is to be found in the manner in which the present oligarchy of privilege at Ottawa is over-riding the rights of parliament and handing out tariff favors to its friends by orders-in-council or in the pseudo-liberalism of the Taschereau Government at Quebec, corrupt to the core, with a leader mouthing our need of a Mussolini.

Your statement about Communist support of the C.C.F. is about as accurate as your charge that the new party proposes to take the farms and place them under public managership.

It has been the practice of the Insulls and the Youngs, who have gotten the United States into even a worse mess than our Liberals and Tories have done for Canada, to pin the label of Communism on every public man who stood up against their debauchery of business and goverment alike in the United States. Does The Examiner propose to graduate in the school of that great Greek philosopher, Sam Insull?

MR. TINKER'S PLAN

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—At the risk of appearing to interfere in matters which the electors of Peterborough have placed out of my reach for the present, I would like to make a few remarks upon "economy in education."

When I announced a platform of economy for 1933, it was, I think, assumed by many that the only plan of economy I had was by way of salary reductions and I expect some votes were lost by myself for that reason. I still think that revision in salaries is overdue, and that the taxpayers' capacity to pay should be considered when budgeting for education, or anything else.

It has been assumed by Boards of Education in the last few years that the only source of revenue was from the taxpayer, yet twenty or more years ago fees were paid by all high school students. The privilege of attending the high school, or collegiate, was appreciated by students who attended, because such attendance had to be paid for, and was often paid for by sacrifices of the parents.

Now, however, practically anyone can attend free, and as a matter of fact is expected to attend whether interested or not. Must listen to lectures he cannot enjoy and practically wasting his and his teachers' time, as well as the taxpayers' money, until he is 16 years of age.

My suggestion is that the old time fees should be instituted, until this depression passes at least and give the taxpayers a little relief from the present strain.

Yours truly
WM. TINKER.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

"THE BAGMAN OF EMPIRE"

On this date, in 1846, there was born at Salisburyn, N.B., a boy who was to become not only a great educator but also a powerful orator and one of the most forceful exponents of the British Commonwealth of nations, then only imagined by a few men like himself. George R. Parkin. He was one of the founders of the Imperial Federation League, that body of enthusiasts who in the 80's and 90's thought they had solved all the problems of empire. Dr. Parkin left his chair as principal of Fredericton Collegiate Institute to carry the flag into practical economics, toured the whole empire, establishing leagues in the then distinct Australian colonies, New Zealand and South Africa and won the compliment from Lord Rosebery that he was "The Bagman of Empire." (Bagman being the English equivalent of our commercial traveller).

Then there came a pause. George Parkin was as eager and eloquent as ever; but the time was not ripe. And while it had seemed fated that the rest of his life was to be spent in London destiny decided otherwise. Upper Canada College at Toronto was in difficulties; it needed a man to meet the crisis; and George R. Parkin responded to the call. He stayed in Toronto for seven years, always at every opportunity preaching the gospel of empire unity. Then he was called to London to become manager of the Rhodes scholarships in which capacity he continued his work for empire until his death in 1927. He had sown the seed; the harvest came at the Empire conference at Ottawa in 1932.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (C.P.). — Stocks worked higher in quiet dealings to-day. Rails came to the fore in the late trading after an earlier advance had been checked by heaviness of tobacco shares, and toward the close advances of around a point appeared for Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Dupont, Case, American Telephone and United States Steel Preferred. New York Central and Pennsylvania firmed moderately, together with Allied Chemical, General Motors, Consolidated Gas and Borden. Tobaccos halved extreme losses of to 2 points. National Biscuit was off nearly a point. Sales approximated 700,000 shares.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Feb. 8—(CP)— The profit-selling seems to be over for the present in the Sandard Mining Market and Stocks were under accumulation again today especially in the afternoon session. There was considerable churning about of prices until the early afternoon, their firmness prevailed.

The base metal shares, led by nickel were in strong demand. A report that International Nickel had received big orders for nickel for munition purposes gave the big leader a buoyant advance to a close of 10.10 up 90. Falconbridge followed with an advance of 30 while Noranda got up to 24.70 for a gain of 90.

The high-priced gold shares showed no weakness though most of closed off a little. Lake Shore at $38 was down 50, Dome at 17.50 was off 25 and Hollinger was down 6 while McIntyre was higher and Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves practically unchanged.

Buying of Eldorado featured the afternoon session accompanied by a price advance of 10 to 1.56.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, February 8 (C.P.). — Nickel crowded everything else to the side lines in the trading to-day on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The big base metal issue with a turnover at more than 16,000 closed at 10⅛ for a gain of ⅞, buying was inspired by the prospect of an agreement for copper marketing and also by a report International Nickel had recently received some important orders.

General tone was much stronger to-day. All the interlisted shares were strong except C.P.R., which lost a fraction. Braziliin and Ford gained fractions and Smelters advanced more than 5 points, on the strength of the better tone for the coppers.

After being under selling pressure most of the day, Imperial Oil firmed in the afternoon, B.A. Oil lost a small fraction, while Pete gained ⅝.

The Utilities section was rather sluggish, but price changes were mostly on the upside. Bell Telephone came back to 89, Montreal Power picked up half a point, and B.C. Power A was slightly strongsumers Gas and Power Corporation.

RECALL IN VIEW FOR PADEREWSKI

Held as Only Man With Sympathy of Entire Poland—Next President.

TROUBLE WITH GERMANY.

(By Marylia Chrzanowska)

WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 8 (A.P.) —Should the strained relations with Germany become more critical as a result of Adolf Hitler's activities as German Chancellor in the next few months, it was considered today that Ignaz Jan Paderewski, famous pianist and statesman, has a good chance of being favored as Poland's next President.

The election will be in June. Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, the Republic's constitutional dictator, was generally expected to favor the recall of Paderewski if Hitler's actions cause trouble. (Paderewski is now in Providence, R.I.).

A few days ago the Krakaw newspaper, Gnos Narodu, said Paderewski was the only man who has the sympathy of the entire nation.

BANKS PLANNING LOWER INTEREST UPON DEPOSITS

Two Per Cent Rate Instead of Three Seen as New Possibility.

NEW YORK BANKS LEAD.

Explain Purpose of Reduction is to Assist Federal Government.

TORONTO, February 8. — For the purpose of cheapening money and thus increasng the price of Federal Government bonds, which, in turn, will enable the Government more easily to refund issues at lower rates of interest, the Canadan Bankers 'Association is considering the reduction of rates of interest on current and saving deposits, it was learned last night on excellent authority.

Extent Not Determined.

It was stated that the banks had agreed on a reduction of the rate of interest, but had not decided whether the rate on savings deposits would be dropped from 3 per cent, to 2 per cent. or from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent., and what the reduction would be on current deposits, now paying from 1½ per cent. to 2 per cent.

An announcement will be made within a short time, it was said, by the Canadian Bankers' Association on the subject, and th eannouncement will contain the amount of the reduction.

The purpose of the reduction, it was explained, was to assist the Federal Government and conditions generally.

In New York.

Two imoprtant banks in New York City, one of them the Bowery Savings Bank, announced a reduction in interest on deposits on Monday of 3½ per cent. to 3 per cent. Several other banks of importance in the United States have taken similar steps within the past few weeks.

Should the Canadian banks agree to reduce, the move will be part of a general movement reflecting the conditions of the times." The speech of Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes delivered on Monday in the House of Commons is taken in financial circles as leading up to a reduction in the interest rates.

25 PRISONERS TO FACE TRIAL

Over 300 Others Will Be Punished for Share in Kingston Outbreak.

CASES IN PUBLIC COURT.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 8 (C.P.).— Twenty-five prisoners from Portsmouth Penitentiary will appear in public court as a result of the rioting of last October, the Canadian Press was informed officially to-day. More than 300 other prisoners will be punished for their share in the disturbances, most of them coming before prison court and not having to face criminal charges. The 25 who will appear in court are the ring-leaders, and against each there will be several charges.

Two prisoners yesterday were committed for trial. They were J. Vandervagt and Willard Millich. When the prosecutions resume tomorrow, Convicts John Jolliffe and George Bailey will be charged.

Bailey is 22 and was sentenced at Belleville in September, 1930, to a three-year term. He had three previous convictions, and while awaiting transfer to the Ontario Reformatory attempted to break from the Belleville Jail.

Jolliffe is 24 and was sentenced at Guelph to four years in the Penitentiary for burglary and theft and attempted prison-break. He has had seven previous convictions, and is at present serving his second term in the Penitentiary.

It is understood Tim Buck, former leader of the Communist party of Canada, and Sam Behan, sentenced for armed robbery, will be called before the court after most of the others have appeared.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Feb. 8 (A.P.)—Firmness in overseas markets accounted for gains of ¼c in wheat prices earl yto-day. Pit trade from the start, however, was extremely dull and top levels during the first hour were easily held due more to the lack of offerings than to any particular support. Gains of ½ to ⅝ cent were held at mid-session, with May at 47¾; July at 48½, and October at 49½.

Most of the buying was credited to locals, Eastern interests and Chicago houses. Early reports indicate only a mere handful of wheat was worked for export overnight, chiefly out of Vancouver.

Liverpool wheat held fractional gains from the start and values in the closing stages were ½d to ⅝d higher per 100 pounds. While noon quotations at Buenos Aires were ¼c to ¼c higher per bushel.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Depression Hits 2 Hamilton Squirrels As Winter Store In Piano Is Confiscated

HAMILTON, Feb. 8. —(CP)— "A little music would be a change," thought Mrs. A. Barritt, as she strolled over and pulled out the piano bench. She sat down and prepared to play a few tunes, only to discover she couldn't play the piano for nuts.

It seemed rather strange, because usually she doesn't have much trouble with the ivories. However, investigation revealed the following articles inside the piano: Four handkerchiefs, a nail file, several pieces of bacon, bits of bread, half a dozen unused three-cent stamps, six large turkey feathers and the aforementioned nuts.

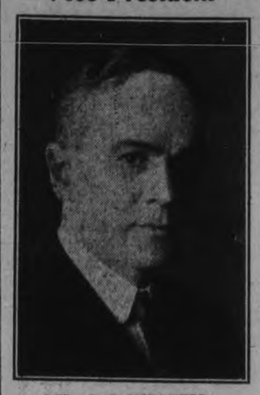
Still further investigation revealed the fact a couple of squirrels had established a home inside the piano and had stocked their larder with plenty of provisions. A hole was found in the back of the piano. And now the depression has hit the squirrels, for their supply has been confiscated.

FREIGHT RATE INCREASE WOULD REMEDY PROBLEM, SAYS BEATTY

C.P.R. Head Carries Argument for Unification of Railways Another Step Forward.

IN WINNIPEG ADDRESS.

Vice-President



Mr. A. J. MITCHELL

Vice-President, Western Canada Flour Mills Company, Limited, who was elected as a Vice-President of North American Life Assurance Company recently.

(Special to The Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 8.—E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, carried his argument for the unification of the Canadian two railways for management purposes, an important step forwards in an address delivered here this afternoon before the Canadian Club of this city. To-day's utterance had been keenly looked forward to in expectation that Mr. Beatty would deal with arguments that have been advanced against his proposal and that he would reveal something further of what was in his mind concerning that which Canada might hope to gain from his proposed solution of the railway problem.

In neither particular were his listeners disappointed. His replies to critics were pointed and effective, and in referring the sharing earning with the holders of Canadian National securities, he foreshadowed some sort of partnership arrangement between the people of Canada as owners of the Canadian National, and the shareholders of the C.P.R. under which, while the joint railways would have benefits of private administration there would exist a common treasury from which an equitable division of net earnings would work towards the relief of the country in meeting interest charges as well as operating deficits.

Against Rate Increase

Mr. Beatty reiterated his statement that unification as he saw it would effect a saving to the country of $75,000,000 annually. He said that it had been stated that the remedy for the railway difficulty lay in a wholesale increase in freight rates, a point of view with which he entirely disagreed. While the railways were suffering, so also was the country's business and this was distinctly not the time for consideration of rate increases.

Mr. Beatty dealt at some length with the effect of unification upon labor, pointing out that, wisely handled, there need be no discomfort or dislocation. He believed that the result would immeasurably improve the position of railway labor in Canada when the industry was organized on rational lines, providing a permanent staff with a fixed measure of work.

Referring to the action of the Senate Committee last Thursday in passing the preamble of the proposed Railway Bill, Mr. Beatty said that was an approval of the principle of co-operation without consolidation decided upon, no doubt in the view that this should be fully tried out before adopting more extreme measures. Mr. Beatty added that in the interest of Canada more drastic measures should be taken at an early a date as possible.

GREAT WATERLOO BRIDGE WILL BE RECONSTRUCTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (C.P.). — A special London cable to the New York Times says the London County Council has accepted the Government's plan for reconstruction of Waterloo Bridge, lately one of the metropolis' major engineering problems.

According to the cable the bridge is to be widened and strengthened, providing for four lanes of traffic at a cost of £685,000. Under plans of the Ministry of Transport the Government will contribute 60 per cent. of the total.

The Council rejected a Laborite motion for construction of a new bridge of five arches, designed to carry six lanes of traffic.

INFLATION INEVITABLE OUTLOOK OF J. C. REAVE

KINCARDINE, Ont., Feb. 8 (C.P.). —"I don't know of a single responsible economist who doesn't agree inflation is inevitable," said J. C. LONDON, February 8 (C.P.. — Payment of £100,000,000 (about $500,000,000 at par) in a lump sum to the United States as full and final settlement of Great Britain's war debt was proposed in the House of Commons to-day by Geoffrey Mander, a Liberal.

A representative of Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequr, said in the Chancellor's absence that Mr. Chamberlain was aware of various suggestions of that nature, but that he would express no opinion upon them pending the debts negotiations at Washington next month.

Great Britain's debts to the United States now stands at approximately $4,499,520,000.

REID TO SPEND REST OF LIFE IN PENITENTIARY

consideration the case of Henry Walter Reid, sentenced to be executed on the sixth day of January, 1933, reprieved, and the execution of whose sentence was postponed by order of the court on the tenth day of the present month, and is pleased to order that the death sentence passed upon that prisoner be commuted to life imprisonment in the Kingston Penitentiary. Please repeat back this telegram immediately after its receipt. Confirmation will follow by to-day's mail.

"Signed,

"Thomas Mulvey, Under-Secretary of State."

Just twenty-four hours after J. A. O'Brien had previously seen Henry Walter Reid in the death cell at the County Gaol, and had informed the condemned man that the Appeal Court had rendered their decision against him, Mr. O'Brien again visited the gaol and thrust through the bars of Reid's cell a telegram he had received from the Hon. Hugh Guthrie at Ottawa, containing a message of hope.

Recounting the manner in which Reid received the tidings yesterday afternoon, Mr. O'Brien stated that the little man was overjoyed and full of gratitude. "I shall never be able to live long enough to repay you," was Reid's mode of expressing his gratitude, as a wide grin spread across his features.

"I simply handed Reid the telegram as I had received it from the Minister of Justice," said Mr. O'Brien, "and told him to read it. I did not tell him that the death sentence had been commuted or anything else, but that was undoubtedly the construction which he himself placed upon the message."

The telegram received here at 3.30 p.m. yesterday was worded: "Could see you to-morrow, but may inform you that favorable recommendation has already been made."

For the second time within a period of a few weeks the scaffold has been erected in the gaol yard, in preparation for the carrying out of the extreme penalty of the law. Reid was originally sentenced to die on January 6, but was granted a reprieve until February 10 on the order of Mr. Justice Wright, after the case had been referred by the Federal Government to the Attorney General of Ontario.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION NEWS

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL.

Mrs. E. Wand, presidetn of the Peterborough Home and School Council, addressed members of Confederation Home and School Association at their regular monthly meeting on Monday evening. A short business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. T. Monk, preceded the program. Rev. J. L. Hughes was chairman for the remainder of the proceedings.

Mrs. Wand made special reference to the founder of Home and School Clubs, the late Mrs. A. C. Courtice, whose work in this connection began in 1916, and arose from the work of the Local Council of Women. "Founder's Day" is being observed by all Home and School Clubs this month in memory of Mrs. Courtice. From a small beginning, the Federation now has 25,000 members.

The work of Home and School Associations was ably dealt with by Mrs. Wand, who used a triangle to illustrate the connection of home, school and church as centred round the child. The main objects of the club were to establish cooperation between home and school, and to cultivate parent training. The home was the strongest factor, and must be cheerful, with good examples set by the parents. Ten ways of killing a club were given by the speaker, and caused much laughter.

Mrs. E. W. Cooper sang two delightful songs, "A Dream" and "When you come home," Mrs. R. King playing the accompaniments. Two favorite Scotch songs, "Annie Laurie" and "Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond," were sung by Mr. Alex Kirkcaldy, with Mrs. J. L. Hughes accompanying.

The second speaker of the evening, Rev. E. R. James, was introduced by the chairman. Mr. James gave a thoughtful talk on "Religious Education in the Home." He impressed the importance of reverence to parents, and spoke of the Chinese race as a splendid example in this respect. The Roman Empire was broken up, mainly through disobedience in the home. Children should be given a right mental conception of God, and the teaching should be definite. The name of Jesus should be taught to be used with the greatest respect, and this error was often great in adults as well as children. The religious life of the child should not be left to the Sunday school teacher, but should be developed in the home.

Mrs. Monk voiced the feelings of the members in a hearty vote of thanks to the speakers, soloists and chairman for their services.

Although she is an expert horsewoman, she does not desire to take out a jockey's license.

Year's. He and Fletcher, Condie and Henrichon were drinking down stairs when the first flare of trouble flashed up.

"I asked Fletcher if he was a Canadian. He said he was no —— of a Frenchman. When it quieted down again I went upstairs to bed.

"Before I went down to the others the prisoner was in my room an hour or an hour and a half. We were eating tomatoes, and I was cooking a chicken for the next day."

Tessier said that he went downstairs to the kitchen and "lost my memory."

"Must have been powerful brandy," Mr. Justice Sedgewick remarked. "How do you know you went upstairs?"

"I don't know," witness said.

To Mr. Gordon, Tessier said that as the prisoner was a French-Canadian, he told Fletcher that if he wanted to fight "to come outside." Fletcher did not go out, and the argument passed over.

Lorenzo Coulombe, a roomer on the third floor back, testified that at seven minutes to twelve New Year's Eve he west down to the bathroom on the second floor. Tessier's room was open, and Coulombe saw Kenyon and Tessier around a stove in the room.

"About 12.30 I heard a noise on the second floor. It was like some one falling on the floor, and a second noise was the same but not so loud. Ten minutes or so later I heard a voice say, 'black eye.' I think it was Kenyon. At first I heard some one say, "What's going on?' I think it was Condie's."

Towards one o'clock witness heard Condie say down on the ground floor, "Good night, I'll see you in the morning." I heard nothing more until morning. I went down cellar to get some coal. I saw Fletcher on a couch. I wasn't sure whether he was sleeping or dead."

Walter Miller continuing the evidence, said he had been at Condie's a week before New Year's. "I came in about 10 p.m. New Year's Eve and went up to my room on the third floor. About midnight I was awakened by sounds of a fight. It sounded like some one trying to put a man out of his room. I then heard Condie calling upstairs, 'What's going on?'"

Skull Fractured.

Dr. Herbert Young told the jury that Fletcher died of a fractured skull and hemmorhage in the brain. The right eye was black, and there were abrasions on the face.

Dr. Fitzpatrick, who performed the post mortem, supplemented the medical evidence. He also stated that if Fletcher's skull had been fractured in the bedroom he would have collapsed there, and could not have walked to the stairs.

Police Constable Piercy said he saw blood spots on the top nine stairs in the Condie house.

"I questioned Kenyon. He said there had been a scuffle and he had hit Fletcher a couple of 'pucks'."

Golfing Woes

JORDAN VALLEY, O., Feb. 8. (CP).—Frank W. Frewen, prominent architect, hit a golf ball at precisely 2 p.m. last September 4. The ball went in in the wrong direction.

To-day Mrs. Marion Johnson sued Frewman for $1,500 damages caused by Frewman's drive which broke her right arm, she said. The complaint charges that Frewen was "an inexperienced and unskilled player—unable to drive the ball where it should be driven."

PASSING OF SENTENCE BRINGS TO CLIMAX TRIAL OF JACKSON

wholesome duty he would have preferred to avoid passed slowly to his private room.

Of the two personalities in the court's recessional it was not the prisoner who seemed the figure of doom.

While the jury was out from 8.45 until 11 o'clock Jackson chatted with the police constables, and again with chin up and head to one side gazed off into space with whatever thoughts come to such a man facing a mortal crisis.

One remark passed on by a policeman was: "Well, there's not so much to live for any way," an admission of defeat and futility in a world that needs so much of the light and kindly glow of that divine spark that should glow in humanity. Again he said: "If they find me guilty it is because I can't prove myself innocent because no one saw it all."

The jury's verdict was announced by Herb R. Martin, foreman. About one hundred persons remained in court for its ultimate moments. The afternoon crowd was so large that many men were unable to gain admission.

Evidence Repeated.

The evidence submitted during the trial was almost a literal repetition of the testimony at the coroner's enquiry at Lakefield last October. No defense was presented, Mr. Gordon deciding not to call Jackson to the witness stand to tell his story of the shooting of Eugene Lee, 62, the negro who came into Dummer township with him last June 22, bought 200 acres of scrub bush property from Mrs. William Saltern on which they had started to build a house in the clearing they had cut, over which they finally quarrelled.

No new feature developed in the Crown's reconstruction of the crime, and even the conviction was more or less generally predicted.

Mr. Gordon's Appeal.

"I ask you to remember that Lee was armed," Mr. Gordon said, in addressing the jury. "He was carrying an automatic pistol with a magazine full of bullets and one in the barrel. Why he was armed is something for you to consider. My suggestion to you is that Lee was armed because there had been some difference of opinion and carried it to shoot first if necessary, Jackson being the more powerful man physically."

Mr. Gordon said that the evidence of Ruby Saltern should be very seriously considered, because a little girl of second book education was open to suggestion and susceptible to forming ideas from conversations in her home which gradually became settled opinions.

"She says Lee did nothing. But he was turned side ways from her. His right side was away from her, and that being so she could not see whether he made any move with his right hand. So on that point she did not know what did take place, and being a child she would not be looking for anything of that kind. There is no evidence before you that Lee did not make the first move toward his automatic pistol in his pocket. That was the statement given by Jackson to Constable Silvester."

Mr. Gordon contended that the first shot fired was the fatal one, and that the others were fired by the prisoner in the excitement and terror of the experience he had just faced. He shot until there was no opportunity for Lee to shoot him. He used more force than was necessary, and more than threatened him. But the first shot or two probably did not seem in that flash of excitement to be of fatal effect, and the others followed without a realization by the prisoner of the actual effects of the first one or two.

Crown Counsel's Summation.

In viewing the evidence for the Crown, Mr. Battle told the jury that such questions as any infringement of civil rights the prisoner may have possessed, and the purchase of any more cement and lime were of no importance and certainly were not to be regarded as sufficient provocation for shooting.

"Why did Jackson shoot him? You probably will wonder why. Jackson was the man who made the occasion when he went over to Saltern's. Nothing that was said was sufficient reason for what was done. As to whether there was any provocation, the prisoner told the police that Lee pushed him over an automobile wheel. If the little girl couldn't see, as the defense alleges, any movement by Lee to draw a revolver at least the girl could have seen Lee push Jackson if he had done so. But she says that Lee did nothing that might have provoked the prisoner.

We show what actually took place, but we can't show the inner workings of the man's mind or how he worked himself up. We show by Lee's clothing that it was not an easy matter, a matter of an instant, for Lee to get his revolver out of his pocket.

The Crown has given you evidence to show that there was no lawful excuse for the shooting of Lee."

Conclusion of Evidence

Ruby Saltern, 12, eyewitness of the shooting, who said she had not been attending school since then, was the little girl mentioned by her uncle Harry who asked him to fix a nail in her shoe, while Lee and Jackson were talking in the yard near the back kitchen door.

"I was standing in the doorway looking at Mr. Lee and Jackson. I was there all the time. Mr. Jackson asked Mr. Lee if he was goingt to get some more lime and cement. Mr. Lee said: "How much will it take." Mr. Jackson said: "Five or six bushels of each."

Mr. Jackson asked: "Are you going to get it?"

Mr. Lee said: "I don't know whether I am or not."

That's all that was said. When Mr. Lee said that, Mr. Jackson pulled out a revolver and began shooting. Mr. Lee fell down dead."

Ruby told Mr. Battle that Mr. Lee did not do anything to Mr. Jackson. She said that Jackson had a .22 rifle in his left hand while he was firing the revolver.

The little girl said that Jackson had been kind to her.

Mr. Gordon: Was there any bad temper between the men while they were talking?

"Not as far as I could see," Ruby replied.

Sarah Jane Salter

Mrs. William Salter testified that she had known Lee and Jackson last summer when they bought 200 acres from her.

"I made the deed to Lee. He paid $200 for it. Mr. Jackson said later that he made Lee alter the deed. That was about August 20. On the market Jackson told me that "If Lee were a younger man he would have torn him to strings for doing a thing like that." It was some dispute over the property deed.

Mr. Gordon objected to a character reference which witness began, and was sustained by His Lordship.

"When I got home from town late in the afternoon I lay down on the bed. My daughter came in and told me Jackson was coming over. I got up and as I reached the door I heard two or three shots. My daughter came running to me. We went upstairs. I first looked out and saw the back kitchen full of smoke. I looked out the window and saw Mr. Lee lying face down on the ground. He was pointing a gun at Lee's head and said, "Do you want any more old man."

Afterwards my elder daughter asked Mr. Jackson if he had anything against us. He said: "No, there's the man on the ground," and pointed at Lee's body."

Mrs. Saltern said she heard Jackson say that if the law in this country was to hang a man he was ready to be hanged. She stated that Lee had come to her house to sleep because the nights had grown cold. Jackson would have been taken in also if he had requested it. Jackson seemed to be a good-natured man. The only display of temper was when he spoke about a dispute over the partnership and deed of the property.

William Saltern.

Retracing the evidence of previous witnesses, William Saltern said that when the "Reid trial was on in Peterborough I told him he could come in with us and when we went back he was staying with us. I was loading wood on the afternoon of the shooting. Something told me to go home. I don't know why. I had no more reason to go home then than to fly to England. When I got about 12 feet from the house I heard shots. I thought it was an accident. I ran through the back kitchen to the south door. I saw Jackson pointing the .22 rifle at Lee's head on the ground. He said, 'Do you want any more old man?' The rifle was about 3 feet from Lee's head. Lee was dead.

Before the police came Jackson said Lee had pushed him over an automobile wheel that was lying on the ground and started to "pull his gat, so what could I do but shoot him."

Jackson asked me to turn Lee's body over and see if there was a revolver in his pocket. I said, "No, the law will look after that." Jackson said he was sorry it had happened..

"If I had shot him in the arm I'd have only got a short term," Jackson said.

Mr. Saltern identified Jackson's .22 calibre rifle which was produced as the first exhibit. The revolver was also put in as an exhibit.

To Mr. Gordon witness said both Lee and Jackson had told him they had been in the United States army. Jackson was a hard-working jovial man. Salter said he had never seen him in bad temper.

Ernest Crozier

Ernest Crosier stated that he had been working with William Saltern, whose evidence he corroborated. Witness heard the shooting as he approached the house, and saw Lee lying face down on the ground.

Lee said: You didn't dream you hear those shots repeated again tonight.

"On the previous Sunday Rollie Saltern and I were over at Jackson's. Rollie asked me if I had ever seen Jackson's revolver. Jackson went to car and got it. I looked it over and handed it back. He fired six shots in the air."

Jackson showed me a small tree with six bullet marks in it. He said he could put six shots in a two-inch circle.

"Jackson told me that Lee was lazy, wouldn't carry water or start a fire. He said that if he was guilty of murder in shooting in self-defense he was willing to hang. He broke down in house and started to cry. He told me I would be a witness against him, and if he didn't come back he was leaving everything to Bill. If he came back he would pay. He said he was sorry it happened where it did, but it might have been in the house, and would have been worse."

Dr. Alex Fraser

Dr. Alex Fraser of Lakefield described the wounds in Lee's body. Death was caused by two gunshot wounds through the right lung. Either would have caused death by hemorrhage.

A third bullet pierced the chest between the 7th and 8th ribs, passed through the liver and left the body between the 11th and 12th ribs. Bullet number four cut through the right arm and number five caused a skin wound in the wrist and number six grazed the left elbow.

Death was almost instantaneous, Dr. Fraser said.

Dr. J. C. Smith, Lakefield, testified that he had been at Saltern's the night of the shooting, and had seen the body of Eugene Lee.

"I assisted Dr. Fraser in the post-mortem examination the following day.

Constable Silvester

David Silvester, provincial constable, said he was called to Saltern's the night of October 17 last.

"I met two men there. I asked, where was the man who did the shooting. The accused stepped forward and said, "I'm the man." He handed me a revolver from his coat pocket. He went into the house and Jackson made a statement. I told him if he wanted to make a voluntary statement it would be taken down in writing and used against him at his trial. He said, "All right, let's get it over with."

He then told me his story as follows: "I am 42 years old and single. I was born in Chicago, Ill. I came to Dummer township about June 15, 1932, with Eugene Lee and bought 200 acres of land from Mrs. William Saltern with the intention of farming. We were to go into partnership. During the last week I have been living at our camp and Lee was living at Saltern's house.

Discussed Cement

About 4 o'clock this evening I came over to Saltern's to see Mr. Lee about the balance of materials, lime and cement to finish our cellar with. I asked him when he was going to get the materials. He asked me, 'how much more do you need,' I replied, 'five bags of lime and five of cement.' He replied, 'it seems you are using an awful lot of stuff on this job and I'll get it when I'm ready.'

"I replied: 'All right, but don't for get you're living in a warm house and I'm outside in the cold.'

"Lee said to me: 'If you are cold I'll warm you up, and he shoved me over a truck wheel that was lying on the ground, and at the same time reached for his "gat.' When I saw what he was doing I pulled my gun and brought it out shooting without taking aim. I'm very sorry it happened.

"There had been previous trouble between Lee and me about August 27 last over the lease of the property. He had the deed made out in his own name at the office of Mr. Strickland in Peterborough, and when I learned of that I had it changed by Mr. Strickland to read 'Jackson and Lee.' The place had been in Lee's name for two months before I knew it.

"After the deed was changed Lee told me he would see I wouldn't live to enjoy it. I paid no attention to his remarks as I knew he was old and fussy. Ten days ago he took his pistol and shot two or three holes in a sapling at our camp and said: 'If I can hit that three-inch sapling, as broad as you are you'd be easy. Tonight when he pulled his gun these things came to my mind.

"I have read over this statement. It is all given voluntarily and is true and correct. I wish to add that on May 13, 1932, in Milwaukee, Wis., Lee was going to shoot Robert Cabbell at the National Soldiers' Home in Wisconsin, and I took the gun from him, almost getting shot myself in doing so. Lee is a pensioner from the Spanish-American war. He was captain of a company at the Soldiers' Home and I was sergeant."

The statement was witnessed by Constables Silvester and Piercy and Dr. J. C. Smith.

Constable Piercy found a revolver in Lee's clothing. There was a Ford truck about five feet from the kitchen door. On the way back to Peterborough I asked Jackson where the other man had came from. He said Lee was just Kentucky trash. The next day I went back to the farm and found two bullets. One was flattened out on the ground and the other had buried itself in the ground.

To Mr. Gordon, witness said Lee's automatic revolver was loaded, a bullet in the barrel and a clip of them in the magazine.

Constable Wm. Piercey told of examining Lee's clothing as he lay dead at Saltern's. He was wearing an outer smock that came down below the pants pockets. Over the smock was his hip overalls buttoned at the hip.

"Jackson had told me in the house that Lee had tried three times to pull out a revolver from his pocket, but it got caught. So I went out to see if there was a revolver. I expected to find it in a handy position. I felt around in the hip pockets, but it wasn't there. I put my hand between the overalls and smock and could feel the revolver in the right trousers pocket. I had to undo the button in the overalls pocket slit and pull up the smock before I could get my hand on it. The slit was too small for my hand.

Mr. Gordon—But you have a big hand. Lee was a small man, diminutive.

Rollie Saltern, son of William Saltern, and David Webster, undertaker at Lakefield were the last witnesses.

BABYLON'S SKY-SCRAPERS ARE HOUSING MILLIONS OF PEOPLE

up the task when after six months hard labor no progress was visible

One million people lived in the skyscrapers. The top storeys were connected by bridges. These bridges were the famous hanging gardens. The kings of Babylonia built them to get away from the miasmic malaria vapors that rose from the river flats. Nebuchadnezzar hit upon the idea of building a prehistoric New York high up in the air for the sake of the beauties of his harem, who hailed from the mountainous regions of Persia or Judea and who, being used to pure air, languished in the torrid heat of the Euphrates valley.

Chaldean tablets which have just been deciphered by a German archaeological group of scientists, and which give the above astonishing details, further reveal that Nebuchadnezzar was in the habit of taking royal visitors about a mile up the river in the evenngs for the purpose of having his guests admire the city from that distance. On such evenings every inhabitant of the thirty skyscrapers was commanded to have a lighted lamp in his window.

Like New York To-day.

"Nothing new under the sun," said Solomon. New Yorkers to-day will take a visitor to Brooklyn Bridge at dark to show him the unusual spectacle of Manhattan's office buildings with their millions of illumined windows scintillating like so many jewels in the nocturnal sky. While the visitor in Gotham in contemplating the dazzling scene must content himself with the thunderous roar of the traffic over the bridge, Nebuchadnezzar provided a different setting for his guests. On the river boats, huge flat-bottomed floating palaces, string bands played sweet music and dancing maidens whiled away the time required for the rowers to reach that famous bend in the Euphrates from where the spectacle of the illumined city could be seen to best advantage.

Good fortune would have it that we struck the leader of the archaeological expedition which has been excavating and decipnering around the ruins of Babylon for years. He is the famous Professor Balla of Jena University, a somewhat eccentric savant, but one of the world's greatest authorities on Chaldean civilization. The Arabic tribes venerate him as a holy man, as I had occasion to discover in 1929 when Professor Balla went out alone in the desert to stop Bedu tribes who were riding on Jerusalem to exterminate "all the Jews," after having been excited to a frenzied pitch of fanaticism by false reports that Jews had bombed the Mosque of Omar.

Banquet Hall Bared.

The professor took me over some desolate sand hills to a spot where a marble floor had been bared. This, he explained, was undoubtedly the banquet hall of Belshazzar, on the walls of which appeared that mysterious writing, "Mene meme tekel upharsin," which Daniel alone could interpret. This was the centre of Babylon. In front of this hall, the central chamber of the palace was the main square. As we sat down on the crumpling stones in the mid-day sun, Professor Balla went back four thousand years, and with the aid of his amazing knowledge of the past reconstructed for us a day and a night in the Babylon of Czar Nebuchad and Czar Belshaa.

Market Comes to Life

We saw the market place come to life again. Dignified Persians and Medes dressed in long silken garments strolled between the booths. High above the multitude the veiled women of the harems of king and princes looked down from the guirlanded bridges with their rows of palm trees upon the swarming crowd below. Chaldean soothsayers and magicians, Assyrian bowmen and warriors with black beards clipped square. Judean exiles. Egyptian merchants carried in golden litters. Phoenicean traders preceded by bodyguards of Philistine giants to make an impression. Masses of peasants from the fertile grain fields in the valley of Tigris and Euphrates. Caravans swished by. Long rows of gaily caparisoned camels with tinkling silver bells were setting out on wedding journeys, or bringing brides home. Other caravans were coming from Persia, loaded with carpets of Buchara and Teheran with spices from Araby, woven textures from Cathay, iron from the mines of Africa for the armorers.

And then Professor Balla made the temple of Bell and Mardruk come to life again. It was a treasure-house crammed with fantastic riches that he evoked. He made me see an edifice of bewildering dimensions of which the foundations exist to this day. In that temple were exposed golden vassels of the Hebrew sanctuary in Jerusalem, the golden flowers stripped from the cedar walls in Askalon. Golden statues set with jewels of the gods of one hundred and twenty-seven conquered peoples, all of them grouped in a submissive pose around the mammoth image of Bell, the God of the Universe, the All-Conquering. The roof was hung with the jeweled swords and shields of vanquished kings and satraps. Fifty thousand priests assured a perpetual service of adoration in that sanctuary, not to mention nearly as many priestesses of Astaroth, the Magna Mater of antiquity. Immense herds of cattle and sheep were required every day for the sacrifices. On a high holy day no less than 100,000 oxen were immolated on the marble altars.

Million Visitors Daily

From the ends of the known world people streamed into the city. The transient population alone amounted to a million a day. There were always armies marching in return from conquest, laden with new spoils, driving armies of slaves and women before them. There were parks built on artificial hills, cool gardens where the citizens could escape from the heat of the day. Zoological gardens also, probably the lions' den into which Daniel was thrown, where the king at times amused himself with feeding slaves to the ferocious tigers presented him by the rajahs of Hind. Twelve hundred white elephants stood in the king's stable, their harnesses encrusted with loads of rubies and emeralds.

And then toward twilight Babylon lit up in a fantastic glow of millions of lanterns. Great fires leaped up from the pylons in front of Bell's temple, until a lurid glow painted the heavens scarlet, making the city visible for hundreds of miles around in the desert.

It must have been on one of those nights that Nebuchadnezzar climbed to one of the starry chambers near the roof of his palace, and, looking on the city, exclaimed: "This is the Babylon that I built!"

And to-day? What is Babylon like? I will not try to describe it. Isaiah has done this long ago. This is what Isaiah forsaw:

"And Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, the glory of the Chaldees' excellency, shall be as when Javhe overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah. It shall never be inhabited, neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch his tent there: neither shall the shepherds make their folds there:

"But wild beasts of the desert shall lie there: and their houses shall be full of doleful creatures: and owls shall dwell there and satyrs shall dance there. And the wild beasts of the islands shall cry in their desolate houses, and the dragons in their pleasant places . . . .

"How hath the oppressor ceased, the golden city ceased!"

Isaiah was right, literally.

"How did it happen?" I asked Professor Balla.

For answer the professor led me over piles of rubbish and dust to a few small palm trees. At my feet was a still backwater, a stinking stagnant pool, full of reptilian monsters.

"This was once the main stream of the Euphrates. It dried up. Then the desert conquered these people," he said.

FEDERAL PROBE SEEN IN STRIKE

VIOLENCE CONTINUES.

DETROIT, Feb. 8. (AP)—A Federal investigation of alleged Communistic activity in two strikes among automobile body workers here was a possibility to-day.

A request for intervention by Secretary of Labor William N. Doak was made last night by Cal M. Wideman, Democratic representative elect in congress. Wideman communicated with Washington following receipt of a petition which said that "an attempt is being made by certain groups who are opposed to our form of government to wrest control of said strike from loyal American citizens."

The move to enlist the aid of the federal government in sifting the underlying causes of the strikes and arbitrating differences followed the walkout yesterday of 3,000 workers at the Hudson Motor Car Company plant. This move affected a total of 6,000 employees.

With a strike at the Briggs' body plant in its third week, officials yesterday announced that production had reached normal with the filling of the strikers' places.

More violence was reported at the Briggs plant. Street cars carrying workers to and from the plant were stopped in spite of a plea issued yesterday by the management of the municipally owned property stating that the street railways had maintained a strict neutrality during the strike and asking that the rights of its passengers be respected. One man was shot, another stabbed and three others beaten.

DENIES TELEGRAM.

TORONTO, Feb. 8. (CP) — The West Elgin by-election of 1899, when Donald McNish, Liberal, was elected was the most "corrupt" he had ever known, declared W. T. R. Preston, Port Hope to-day in testimony during his action for $20,000 damages against P. D. Ross, publisher of the Ottawa Journal. Mr. Preston alleges certain passages of Mr. Ross' book, "retrospects of a newspaper person" are derogatory.

In one passage, Mr. Preston is refered to as "hug-the-machine" Preston, the soubriquet supposedly originating from a telegram sent to the successful candidate in the by-election and which Mr. Preston denied having sent.

Referring to the by-election, Mr. Preston to-day declared an army of outsiders had come into the constituency and added: "It could not have been worse."

Mr. McCarthy then quoted from the sessional papers report, 1901, that Donald McNish, Alexander Smith and W. T. R. Preston had entered the riding for the sole purpose of electing McNish. Reading further the "said Preston admitted having procured the assistance of D. F. McDonald, Parry Sound; J. J. Bell, one Sullivan and one Hopkins.

Blame Unattached

"The Commission," Mr. McCarthy read, referring to the commission which investigated charges of malpractice in the riding, "cannot trace to these persons any knowledge of or participation in illegal practice"

Mr. Preston declared he had no idea as to who sent the telegram of congratulation to McNish.

When Mr. McCarthy again referred to the outsiders brought into West Elgin, Mr. Preston said: "I know they were honest men. Not one of them bought a vote. I never bought a vote in my life."

The message to Mr. McNish, as published in the St. Thomas Evening Journal, now the Times-Journal, following the election, read as follows:

"Toronto, Jan. 12—Heartiest congratulations. Sorry to the bottom of my heart I cannot be with you to-night. To be supported by such a noble army of workers should make you the proudest man in Ontario. Shake with the boys for me, and hug the members of the much-abused threshing machine for 'Auld Lang Syne.' Preston."

CUT IN GRANTS MEANS $3,000 TO PETERBORO'

Provincial Grant to Board of Education is Approximately $30,047.

ESTIMATES NOT STRUCK.

Special Meeting of Board Will Be Held to Discuss 1933 Estimates.

Approximately $30,047 in grants is made by the Provincial Government to Peterborough schools, stated E. F. Reid, chairman of the Board of Education when interviewed by The Examiner this morning regarding the announcement of the Provincial Government of a further ten per cent. cut (making a total twenty per cent. reduction) in educatoinal grants. The proposed government reduction in grants will mean a total decrease of revenue to the Board of about $3,000 it was estimated.

Taking into consideration the ten per cent. reduction in grants made by the Government last Fall, the educational grants were apportioned to the various schools in the city last year, as follows:

Collegiate Institute	$ 2,010.00
Vocational School	17,044.35
Public Schools	9,893.00
Normal School (rental for class rooms in Public schools)	1,100.00
	$30,047.35

The Board of Education met last evening, but were unable to bring down their estimates as is customary at the February meeting, as they were not at that time in possession of any information as to what deductions in educational grants the government proposed to make this year.

Provisional estimates had been prepared, it is learned, the figures being based on a ten per cent. cut in grants, and substantial saving to the local taxpayers had been figured upon.

Announcement of the twenty per cent. reduction in educational grants, Mr. Reid stated this morning, simply means that the Board would have to revise the estimates.

Special Meeting.

"Will the Board call a special meeting?" Mr. Reid was asked.

"Yes," he replied, "we will have to, although I am not in the position to say when that meeting will be held. In view of certain motions that were put through at last night's meeting of the Board he pointed out, there would have to be some committee meetings before the Board could put down to business on the estimates. The meeting would probably be called within the next two weeks.

Mr. Reid declined to state what estimates the Board had struck in basing their calcuations on a ten per cent. cut, although he vouchsafed the information that the Board had figured on considerable economies and had pared the estimates as closely as was consistent with efficiency. He held out little hope now of any considerable benefit being given to the local taxpayer, indicating that the deductions made by the Provincial Government would have to be borne locally to a great extent.

MENTION NICKLE AS NEW JUDGE

Name of Former Attorney-General of Ontario Considered in Ottawa.

SUCCEED SEDGEWICK.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—With the appointment of Justice George H. Sedgewick as chairman of the Federal Tariff Board, a vacancy is created on the Ontario Supreme Court Bench.

Among those prominently mentioned in this connection is Hon. W. F. Nickle of Kingston, former Attorney-General of Ontario, and for several years a colleague of Prime Minister Bennett in the Federal House of Commons.

Mr. Bennett and Mr. Nickle were in the limelight together before the war when they protested vigorously against Government loans to Mackenzie & Mann and the Canadian Northern Railway, and went so far as to vote against their party.

It is believed Mr. Nickle will have the refusal of a judicial appointment to the Supreme Court of Ontario.

THE ORION CONSTELLATION

Is Evidence That The Creation Of The Heavens And The Earth Were Not An Instant Creation.

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

God could have created the whole world in a flash, and quicker than we can think creation. God said let there be light and there was light. The thought is not the time instantanteousness but the fact of light creation by a word.

Orion constellation contains two stars of the first magnitude, four of the second, four of the third, three of the fourth, and over twenty of the fifth. Of the sixth magnitude there are a great multitude. This constellation abounds in nebulous stars. With the exception of that wonderful star Betelgeux, all the rest of the constellation are in an early stage of development. Our world has not yet been made. Much of it is in a stage of evolution.

Orion lies across the celestial equator and wholly south of the ecliptic. This constellation is partly within the Milky Way. It is visible from parts of the world. Astronomers have discovered that about four thousand years ago it was wholly situated south of the celestial equator. This fact suggests that there has been and is an evolution of stars and worlds from nebulous matter, but also that there has been an evolution of place or position.

Little wonder, then, that the modern scientist takes such an interest in the problem of how our world came to be. Where there is a big question mark behind someunknown, there human curiosity will linger. Orion is one of the best known and the largest of the constellations. Sir Walter Scott in "The Lay of the Last Minstrel" sings, "Orion's Studded Belt" from which dangles his famous hunting knife. The poet Bryant muses, about "The Constellations" I have seen

The great Orion, with his jewelled belt,
That large limbed warrior of the skies, go down
Into the gloom".

Homer sings of him "As the tallest and most beautiful man," and so tall was he that he could wade the sea. Orion boasted he could conquer any animal the sea could produce. Juno accepted the challenge. He commanded a scorpion to come forth from the ground. The scorpion bit the boaster. The poisoned bite was his death. After a long time Diana who pitied the boaster made request that he be placed among the stars on the opposite side of the heavens so that he might never again be molested by the poisonous reptile. Scorpion and Orion are so placed in the heavens that just as Scrpion rises in the eastern sky that Orion dips below the western horizon. They never come within sight of each other. Orion became one of the humblest after boastfulness was self-discovered as the cause of his undoing. In many of these old legends much moral wisdom and reproof was written.

"When the Scorpion comes Orion flees to the utmost end of earth."

King Edward School Heads Penny Bank

Thrift is a habit that still persists among the pupils of Peterborough public schools, as is shown by the latest returns from the Penny Bank of Ontario.

At the end of December last, the seven combined public schools in this city had on deposit in the Penny Bank the total sum of $15,033.92 as compared with a total on deposit at the previous year ending of $15,053.80.

The total amount on deposit at the end of 1932 for the 474 schools in Ontario that are depositing was $1,243,347.68, a slight decrease from the corresponding period of a year previous when the the amount on deposit was $1,317,978.92. The figures represent the combined savings of approximately 180,000 children.

Twenty-two of the schools in the Province had 80 per cent of their attendance or over making deposits on each banking day during November and December.

King Edward School Peterborough comes within that category with 83 percent of the pupils making deposits during the two month period referred to.

The standing of the six other public schools of this city, during the last two months of last year was as follows: South Central 71 per cent; Queen Alexandra 69 per cent; King George 59 per cent; Queen Mary 44 per cent; Central, 39 per cent; Prince of Wales 36 per cent.

PETERBOROUGH JUNIORS PLAY FALLS THURSDAY

The Peterborough juniors will not go to Fenelon Falls this evening as announced elsewhere in to-day's paper. The Falls' team objected to the O.H.A. because of such short notice with the result that the game in Fenelon Falls was put back till Thursday night, with the return one being held here Friday. The Petes will leave the Brock tomorrow evening.

LIMB OF FALLING TREE KILLS POWASSAN MAN

POWASSAN, Ont., Feb. 8.—(CP)—James Hogan, 27, is dead today, victim of a strange accident. With two brothers, Joseph and William, and a friend, Hogan was cutting wood near his home. They built a fire to cook a luncheon, and the blaze, unknown to them, spread to a nearby tree. Without warning the tree broke at the base and a limb struck James on the head, killing him instantly.

It takes 5000 pounds of tube-roses to make 2½ pounds of perfume essence.

OLD PETERBORO' BOY ELECTED LIEUT.-GOVERNOR OF MONTANA

Frank Cooney is Expected to Move Up to Governor's Office.

BORN IN NORWOOD.

The possibility that Frank Cooney, a native of Peterborough district, will be called upon to fill the post as Governor of the State of Montana looms large on the political horizon of that State at the present time. Mr. Cooney at present holds the post of Lieutenant-Governor of Montana, having been elected to that office by the largest majority polled by any candidate on the state ticket last November.

Mr. Cooney was born in Norwood, Ontario, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cooney. His mother was formerly Miss Mary O'Callaghan of Peterborough. Both his father and mother lived in this city sixty years ago, and are still remembered by old residents.

Mr. Cooney's rise from the Lieutenant-Governorship to the Governorship of Montana is foreseen in the possibility of the appointment of Senator Walsh of Montana to President-elect Roosevelt's new Cabinet. In such a case it is expected that the present Governor of the State, Governor J. E. Erickson, will be appointed to fill out Walsh's term in the Senate. Lieutenant-Governor Cooney would automatically take the Governor's chair.

Mr. Cooney, residing at Helena, the capital of Montana, has a family of five boys and two girls. He and his wife are planning a motor trip to Peterborough for the coming summer.

The Depression

There was once a Mathematician,
With symbols and numerals filled,
When a Comet burst high in the heavens,
Told how many pieces were spilled.
With electrons and atoms he figured,
From morn till the setting of sun,
With logarithms, light years, and neons,
Great Einstein was put on the run.
Bright Venus was only a "local,"
Orion a mere week-end jaunt, to stop him at nebule's portal
Would be the N'th kind of a taunt.
But alas there's a limit to all things,
This Super Math. now stands aghast;
We asked him to figure precisely
How long this depression would last?

MAY REVISE FEE SCHEDULE

Board of Education Discusses Revision of Collegiate Auditorium Rental.

THOUGHT TOO HIGH.

Suggestion that the time was ripe for re-adjustment of the schedule of fees charged by the Board of Education for use by various public bodies of the Collegiate Auditorium, was last evening made by Dr. J. J. Craig.

Discussion on the subject was again brought about at last evening's meeting of the Board, following the reading of correspondence from the Madrigal Singers' organization; The Canadian Watercraft Minstrels and the U.F.O. organization.

The former asked for a reduction in the rental fee for the auditorium for the annual concert of the Madrigals, to be held at the end of the month, while the Minstrels requested that they be allowed free use of the hall in order that they might turn the entire proceeds of a charity concert over to relief. The third request from the U.F.O. was also for a reduction of the fee levied by the Board for the recent meeting at which Miss Agnes McPhail was one of the main speakers.

It was stated during the course of discussion that the requests opened up a big question, although Dr. Craig pointed out that the rate had been fixed by the Board at the peak of prosperity. He thought it might be well to consider that more use might be made of the hall if the fees were reduced.

On motion of Dr. Craig, seconded by Dr. G. R. Scott, the applications were referred to the Supervision Committee, with power to act.

A request by Principal H. R. H. Kenner for a grant of $700 for books, scientific apparatus and art equipment was acceded to on motion of Mrs. W. R. Morris, seconded by I. P. McNabb. Last year the amount of the grant for this purpose amounted to $1,050.

During the month of January there was an average attedance of 95 per cent. at the Collegiate Institute. A low attendance average was shown in the public schools of 90 per cent. The decline in attendance was attributed by Inspector A. Mowat, to an epidemic of colds and mumps.

WATERCRAFT MINSTREL SHOW SET FOR TO-NIGHT

Don't forget that to-night is the night of the big minstrel show in the audiorium of the Collegiate Institute, when Canadian Watercraft Minstrels present their "Night in a Broadcasting Station," directed by Delbert Lucas and Homer Lundy.

The boys have arranged a very fine entertainment, with plenty of popular songs, funny stories and snappy music. The entire proceeds go to the City Relief Campaign now in progress and the show deserves a fine crowd.

In the second portion, Mel Leal and his Liftlock Mountaineers will play for twenty minutes, in a program of old-time music.

Don't forget—to-night's the night.

FEVER MACHINE NEW INVENTION

Treats Disease By Power of Radio Waves to Raise Temperature of Body.

PERFECTLY CONTROLLED.

(By F. B. Colton, A.P. Science Writer.)

MONTREAL, February 8 (C.P.).—A "fever machine" which treats disease by the power of radio waves to raise the temperature of the body was described to-day before the American College of Physicans.

It is a new application of radio, treating disease instead of sending messages, and was reported by Dr. Walter M. Simpson of Dayton Ohio. The machine is used in treating diseases that are sometimes cured and often improved by producing artificial "fevers" in the body.

Among these diseases are general paresis, a form of paralysis that attacks many insane persons, some forms of arthritis, a disease of the joints, and diseases that affect the bodily extremities — arms and legs, feet and hands.

In the past these ailments have been treated successfully by deliberately infecting the patients with malaria, relapsing fever, or rat-bite fever to raise the body's temperature. Now with the new radio fever machine, temperatures can be raised to any desired height under perfect control and without the necessity of infecting the patient with another disease, said Dr Simpson.

Mrs. Fred McIndoo Elected Treasurer

FAIRMOUNT, Feb. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of the Fairmount W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Carman Seymour recently, when Mrs. Fred. McIndoo was elected treasurer, taking Mrs. J. Sanderson's place.

It was decided that new material be purchased from the expense fund, and the ladies all join in helping to make clothing to be packed in the bale. A debate was discussed, and if possible to secure debators, will be held around the 20th of this month.

The chapter of the Study Book was taken by Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge and Mrs. Carman Seymour telling about Western Canada in its early and present ages.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by Mrs. Carman Seymour and Mrs. Ada McBain.

"Gossip and Such"

THE ARRIVAL OF SIR MALcolm Campbell at Daytona Beach to make 1933 attempt to break his record of better than 253 miles an hour is especially interesting because of the little excitement it is creating. Maybe Sir Malcolm is making a mistake in trying for a new record each year. His brilliant, daring effort on Dayton beach sands have become old stuff to the sporting public.

WHEN THE LATE H. O. D. Seagrave, the late Ray Peech and the late Frank Lockhart were making their gallant attempts at world speed records, the folks were thrilled at their speed marks, which were far slower than those set up by Sir Malcolm in the last few years.

THE WORLD WAS JUST BEginning to realize then that, perhaps, after all that there might be no limit to the speed attainable with an automobile. Now that Sir Malcolm has eclipsed the efforts of all others and gone far beyond what was dreamed impossible five years ago, the public takes it all for granted.

* * *

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL, the twentieth century's reincarnation of Old Man Mercury, is back again to put on his one-man show—or rather—his one-car show. The job Sir Malcolm will exhibit down on the sands at Daytona Beach, Fla., and which you may see there — if your eyes are fast enough to follow it—isn't a new one. It's one of the oldest cars now in operation, the Bluebird II, but by any odds the fastest.

THE 1933 BLUEBIRD II IS the same car displayed by Sir Malcolm last year with this difference; its speed has been stepped up via a more powerful motor and there has been a change or two in several of the gadgets.

THE BLUEBIRD II CANnot compete with any of the slick, sleek jobs you have seen on the floor of any auto show. It has no claim to free wheeling, floating power, no-draft ventilation, automatic choke, spring suspension, thermostatic shock absorbers or any other of the new trends. But aged as she is, she can run miles around any car now in existence.

THE BLUEBIRD II IS REported to have a potential speed of 300 miles an hour. That's five miles a minute, and you swap strap hangers who go white when the speedometer touches 60. It is hardly probable that Sir Malcolm, in this attempt, will attain any such speed. That he will break his own record, barring accident or trouble, is quite possible.

MORE POWER TO HIM.

CAMPBELL, ONE OF THE most unique figures in the world of sport, or mechanical engineering, is a quiet, modest man. He stands higher in his field than Helen Wills Moody, Bobby Jones, Babe Ruth or any other great sports figure. Though they stand head and shoulders above all, they, at least have competition. Sir Malcolm's so good, he hasn't any competition.

TORONTO CURLERS WIN FROM PETES IN FIRST ROUND BY 37-20 SCORE

Orillia, Unionville, Thornhill and Granites Reach Semi-finals.

IN ONTARIO TANKARD.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—With thirteen rinks competing, Chatham being the only default in the original draw, the Ontario Tankard competition reached the semi-final round here yesterday, the surviving rinks being Toronto Granites, Unionville, Orillia and Thornhill.

Thornhill reached the semi-finals without having to deliver a stone. The North Yonge Street villagers won by default from Chatham in the morning round, and drew a bye in the afternoon.

Several surprises marked the day's play. The Glanford rinks that captured the Hamilton group honor in such convincing fashion from the strong Hamilton Thistles, were easy victims to the Kitchener Granites, being overwhelmed by a margin of 23 shots. However, they returned to form in the Burden Trophy round later on, and scored a victory over Forest.

Barrie Beaten.

The defeat of the Barrie rinks provided the upset of the afternoon In two long-drawn-out games played at the Granite Club, which were almost an endurance contest, Orillia handed the Lake Simcoe curlers a beating by five shots, the margin of victory being obtained by Dr. Harvie's rink in a stern struggle with S. J. Meredith's formidable Barrie combination. Orillia eliminated Grand Valley in the morning draw.

Toronto Granites had little difficulty of disposing of Fergus in the morning round, and Peterborough in the afternoon. In each match the Granites outscored their rivals on both rinks.

Unionville Ousts Kitchener.

Unionville also furnished part of the upsets. In the morning draw the rinks from this club defeated Forest by seven shots, and in the afternoon they accounted for the Kitchener Granites by two shots. It was a battle right down to the final end in this match, both games being close.

One of the closest games of the day was provided by Kingston and Fergus in the Burden Trophy competition. Kingston won by one shot, although one of the Kingston rinks was beaten by sixteen shots. However, the other Limestone City quartet won by seventeen shots.

The finals in the Tankard will be played at the Toronto Club this afternoon. The Burden Trophy finals will not be played until tomorrow.

THREE SEATS LESS

TORONTO.—Three seats will be lost to Toronto under the redistribution bill to be introduced to the Ontario legislature, according to a tentative plan discussed recently at a conference of city members of the Ontario legislature, the Telegram says in a news story to-day.

Under the plan, the paper says, the total reduction of seats in the province will be between 25 and 30, leaving the House with between 82 and 85 seats.

PORT COLBORNE SAILORS TIE CATARACTS FOR THIRD PLACE

Fan Heximer Scores Four Counters in Former Team's 4-2 Victory Over Toronto Varsity—Grey and Mountain Give Assists.

(By Canadian Press.)

Port Colborne had climbed into a third-place tie with Niagara Falls Cataracts in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A, meeting University of Toronto for the first time this season, at Toronto last night, the Sailors earned a 4-2 victory which carried with it four points. From a goal-scoring point, Heximer was the whole team, the flashy winger garnering his team's four counters.

Hamilton Tigers assisted materially in the Sailors' advance when they came from behind to down the Cataracts 2-1, at Hamilton, and further consolidate their position at the top of the group.

While Heximer was responsible for the goal-scoring of his team, he was assisted materially by his centre-man, Harry Gray, who made the play for two of the tallies. Mountain, the third man on this line, also assisted in one of the scores.

Check Effectively.

The blue and white back-checked consistently and prevented any combination on the part of their opponents, but they failed in their attempts to advance the puck goalward.

Both their goals, scored in the second stanza, came when Port Colborne were playing short-handed due to penalties. Maxie Fullerton and Cunningham notched them, following passes from Skin Dewar and Art Brant.

Ability to muffle Cataract's big guns, Jerry Shannon and Maxie Kaminsky, proved the deciding factor in Hamilton's victory. Shannon, who leads the group's point-getters, was effectively muzzled, but Kaminsky picked up a point, when he assisted Chet Steele score Cataract's solitary marker.

Bellingham, moved up from Patricias, Hamilton's Senior B outfit, proved his ability when he poked in the tying goal halfway through the first session. "Toe" Blake gave him a neat pass for the counter.

LENNOX LIONS DEFEAT HAWKS BY 3-2 COUNT

E. Morrin Scores Winning Counter to Break Tie in Lakefield Game.

GREYHOUNDS LOSE 2-0.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 8. (Examiner Correspondence). — The Lennox Lions after holding a two goal lead through the first two periods of a striking district hockey fixture, went down to defeat before the Black Hawks, when just before the bell rang to call finis to the game, which looked like overtime, E. Morrin scored the winning counter for a 3-2 victory.

Percy Marsden rammed in a long shot in the first period after eight minutes' hard play. Hamblin and Pearson were each given a brief rest in the penalty box for too vigorous body checking.

Percy Marsden scored again five minutes after Braden Blewett rang the bell to open the second period, Pearson getting the assist.

Ted Webster, the Black Hawk goalie, got a penalty for tripping Pearson and "Mackay" Payne filled the nets in his absence. Glen Wannamaker also got a short rest for tripping his opponent.

The Lions stepped into the third with a comfortable lead of two and their play was strongly defensive but the Hawks were warmup and Glen Wannamaker scored after eight minutes of play, and two minutes later 'Mackey" Payne shot one past Chief Webster who had taken advantage of the depression to let his mind wander.

The two teams with less than 10 minutes to go and a tie score settled down to business and sticks were carried a little high, in fact the Lions who got three penalties, Pearson, Graham and Hamblin, whose absence weakened the Lions' team and made possible the victory of the Black Hawks who won by Eric Morin's shot less than three minutes of the end of the game.

The Marsdens, "Red" Graham and W. Morin shone in the Lions' group while Eric Morin, Glen Wannamaker and Payne were the pick of the Hawks.

Lennox Lions—C. Webster, goal; H. Hamblin, r. defence; Fred Marsden, l. defence; O'Neil, centre; Stenner r. wing; W. Morin, l. wing; P. Marsden, Pearson, T. Graham, subs.

Davis' Black Hawks—T. Webster, goal; E. Morin, r. defence; Lawless, l. defence; Davis, centre; G. Wannamaker, r. wing; K. Wannamaker, l. wing; Stewart, F. Wannamaker, subs.

The Buckhorn Bruins are going strong, leading the second section of the District League and winning a signal victory of 2-0 over the Gill Grayhounds on Monday night in the second fixture. This meant a shut-out for Ev. Blewett, the smiling goalie of the Bruin camp.

The combination was poor and the stick handling only fair, but the speed was terrific and the amount of "kick" which the players got out of the game was a big feature. They enjoyed the game which was not rough, although the penalty list was fairly long with the Gills and Trudes being conspicuous occupants of the box. There were hectic moments when the sticks were high but nothing to mar the harmony.

The Wilson brothers and Graham were the best of the Bruins with E. Blewett a tower of strength in the nets. Ed. Bickell, Harry Gill and Riseboro were probably the strongest of the Greyhound line.

M. Montgomery scored on a pass fro "Si" Blewett after 9 minutes of the first period and five minutes later "Bunt" Graham came to the fore with another which ended the scoring of the game.

Both the last periods were without count and the last without a penalty.

Buckhorn Bruins — E. Blewett, goal; W. Trude, r. defence; S. Trude, l. defence; V. Graham, centre; C. Wilson, r. wing; M. Wilson, l. wing; M. Montgomery, R. Montgomery, W. Blewett, M. Hall, G. Nicholls, subs.

MADOC WINS 2-0 VICTORY

Ross and McGuire Are Marksmen in Campbellford Juniors' Defeat.

FEW PENALTIES.

MADOC, Feb. 8 (Examiner Correspondence).—In the fastest game of the season Madoc and Campbellford Juniors battled to a 2-0 decision in favor of the former, in a Junior O.H.A. fixture here on Tuesday.

Good hockey with unfailing good temper prevailed, both teams playing their best and showing good combination. Shots rained on both goalies in rapid succession, but Nickle, Madoc's alert goalie, was not to be outguessed and succeeded in meeting the puck with unerring skill and unfailing good luck. Turner for Campbellford did splendid work, but was unable to keep out fast ones in first and third period.

Penalties were few, Campbellford drawing three and Madoc two for minor faults. James Watson of Madoc as referee succeeded in giving satisfaction to both team and spectators alike.

Ross Scores First

During the first period, Ross for Madoc made the first counter, and though several attacks were made by Campbellford's combination on Madoc's goal, the gong found the score 1-0 for Madoc, with only one penalty inflicted.

The second period went scoreless, though West and Ashley made splendid and determined efforts to count again. Maguire for Madoc and Armstrong kept the visitors guessing, while Runions and Bush were outstanding for Campbellford.

Play Becomes Faster

In the third period the game was fast and furious. The bell rang repeatedly for holding and off-sides, but this period was characterized by determined attacks on Madoc's goal, which goalie and defence combined to defeat.

Campbellford drew two penalties and Madoc one. McGuire for Madoc succeeded in tallying early in the period and in spite of repeated shots and excellent combination Campbellford failed to count.

The victory gave Madoc Junior team second place in the district, and they will play Belleville Juniors on Thursday on the home rink and on Saturday night in Belleville, with goals to count on the round.

Line-up:—

Campbellford.—Goal, Turner; defence, Milne and Oddie; centre, Runions; wings, Bush and Lambert; subs., Couch, Couch, Cubbitt and Oke.

Madoc.—Goal, C. Nickle; defence, D. Ashley and K. West; centre, Rashotte; wings, McGuire and Armstrong; alternates, Akey, Terry, Ross.

Canuck Veterans Play Prominent Part in 2-0 Win Over Cup Holders.

MAROONS WIN 1-0.

TORONTO, Feb. 8 (C.P.)—Leo Dandurand still had the floor today and maybe if he stays up there on the hockey rostrum his Canadiens will find it in their hearts to go right on pleasing the dapper, desperate chieftain who can't bear to see the Flying Frenchmen grounded.

The old guard warmed the Dandurand heart last night by returning to form for long enough to beat Toronto Maple Leafs, 2-0, before 11,500 Montreal fans who hadn't found anything cheering for some weeks in the various displays of Canadiens.

It was a good win, coming as it did on the heels of Leo's shake-up threats, but the Leafs managed to outplay the Canucks during most of the three periods and the veterans with whom Dandurand was reported dissatisfied were the stars. So if anything was proved it was that George Hainsworth still can stop pucks and all the fighting spirit hasn't departed the French camp.

Shake-up Not Ended

Candiens only fired 19 dead-on shots at Lorne Chatbot, but one by Gerald Carson in the first period and another by Aurel Joliat in the third eluded the Leaf custodian. Toronto's 29 shots were blocked by Hainsworth.

After it was over Dandurand decided against ridding himself of Marty Burke, stocky defenceman who watched the battle from the side-lines, and announced Burke would play in the next Canadien game. He also sent Defenceman Bob Trapp and Centreman Leo Murray back to Providence Reds of the Canadian-American League.

These moves left Dandurand with just about the same team that was losing consistently until last night and led to the belief the shake-up was not yet ended.

Maroons Gain

Montreal Maroons pulled up to a position three games behind Toronto in the National League's Canadian section with a 1-0 win at New York over the Americans. The victory gave Maroons a working margin of three points over Americans.

Hooley Smith scored the only goal of the contest late in the third period from Jimmy Ward's pass, to run the Maroon unbeaten string to seven games. Since Dave Kerr replaced Flat Walsh in goal the Redmen have won six games and tied one. The former Toronto amateur goaler has tucked three shutouts in the string.

Touring Cheese Hunter Competes For Fans' Attention at Hockey Tilt

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 8.—(CP)—A frostbitten mouse commended attention and almost wrecked an International Hockey League game between Windsor Bulldogs and Detroit Olympics at the local arena.

Tossed on the ice as the teams came out for the third period, the mouse became the centre of attraction. Although Olympics were fighting desperately to wipe out Windsor's one-goal lead the customers had eyes only for the four-footed animal that scurried from one end of the rink to the other beneath flying skates and waving sticks. The house played no favorites but focussed its attention on the goal tenders, Normie Smith and Abbe Cox. Both had visits from the touring cheese hunter.

The life of the strangest visitor a professional hockey game has ever had, was suddenly snuffed out late in the third period. Big Bob Davis of the Olympics was chasing the puck when the mouse crossed his path. Bob felled the little fellow with one swoop of his stick and the one ring circus was over.

JERSEY CITY CLUB HAS NOT BEEN SOLD.

Calacurcio Given Another Week to Solve Difficult Problem.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—After attempting for three hours to bring order out of chaos in Jersey City's tangled financial and managerial affairs, the International Baseball League yesterday issued a final ultimatum to Sam Colacurcio, giving the youthful owner until Feb. 17 either to prove to the directors he can operate the club, or sell the franchise.

Apparently the situation at the end of the long session was no no further advanced than it was a month ago when a committee of three, headed by President Charles A. Knapp, and including George Weiss of Newark and Warren Giles of Rochester, was empowered to act.

Although not officially announced, it was understood the league still had a responsible buyer under consideration. No names were mentioned, but Walter Johnson is generally considered to be the league choice to take over the managerial reins in case Colocurcio does not operate the club.

Hockey Gossip

SOUTHEND LEAGUE.

The Southend Hockey League games, postponed last night, will be held to-morrow at the Sacred Heart rink. Warne Bros. bantams will not meet Canucks, this game having no bearing on the standing; but Rangers' juveniles go on against Albion Knitting at seven, Pirates play an intermediate fixture with Park Hill at eight, and Northenders and Canuck intermediates finish up at nine.

CAMPBELL MAY REMAIN AT DAYTONA TILL MARCH

The British sportsman went over the nine-mile course yesterday and inspection showed the sands improved but expressed concern over the new contour of the shore line which resulted from a storm of last November.

It is probable, racing officials said, that the course will be smoothed and the rugged shore line curves ironed out by the tides in time, but under present conditions, Sir Malcolm declared, "it would be impossible to set a straight course in the Bluebird," his rebuilt racing car.

Major Magnates to Tighten Regulations Against Granting Players Bonuses.

HIGH PAID INDUSTRY.

(By Herbert W. Barker, A.P. Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (A.P.)—Salary cuts for 1932, and the coming 1933 season represent an aggregate saving of $1,250,000 to harassed major league club owners and the end is not yet in sight.

Even though they lopped about $400,000 off player salaries last year and virtually double that amount for 1933, the magnates declare that baseball wages generally speaking still are higher than in other lines of business.

One club owner, attending the mid-winter meetings here, said he had slashed his salaries 25 per cent in the last two years as compared with the 1931 level, but that the total still was twice what it was when his team won a pennant right after the war.

Barring a decisive upturn in receipts and attendance this year, club owners are virtually committed to further retrenchment next season.

Against Bonuses

National League owners, gathering here in midwinter session yesterday, discussed their most pressing problems for nearly five hours, but actually decided definitely upon only two questions:

First, they tightened the regulations against the granting of player bonuses by adopting a rule forbidding any club to deal with its players contingent on where the club finishes in the pennant race;

Second, they laid plans to start East-West competition earlier in the season.

The anti-bonus rule, heretofore, simple forbade clubs to grant extra money for playing achievements such as healthy batting averages, number of home runs, or number of pitching victories.

Revised schedule plans provide that National League clubs in the West shall invade the East on May 2, eight days earlier than usual, and that Eastern clubs shall make their first Western trip May 16, two weeks earlier than custom.

REDMEN MEET 6-3 SETBACK

Gross, Roth and Carr Play Big Part in Buffalo's King League Victory.

BULLDOGS WIN 3-2.

TORONTO, Feb. 8. (CP) — The "dynamite trio" of Buffalo Bisons to-day had halted the rejuvenated Cleveland Indians, who were on the war-path in the International Hockey League during the past two weeks. After five successive games without a reverse met defeat at Fort Erie last night when Bisons downed them 6-3.

The regular Bisons' front-line trio of Lloyd Gross, Roter Roth and Lorne Carr, played a big part in the victory, garnering four goals between them. Carr picked up four points, scoring two goals and assisting in two others. Roth notched a pair of tallies, while Gross was credited with a pair of assists.

Windsor, the last victims of Cleveland, enraged their cross-river foemen, Detroit Olympics and banged in three quick counters to earn a 3-2 decision before Windsor fans.

Breaks Triple Deadlock

Buffalo's win broke the three-way deadlock at the top of the league and left Bisons occupying the driver's seat alone. Incidentally it was a goalless tie with Buffalo at Cleveland that heralded Indians' string of successes.

Young Bud Schultz and Leo Godin scored the other Buffalo tallies.

Fields Leads Bulldogs

Whitey Fields led the Bulldogs to their second victory since he joined them last Friday, netting two of their three tallies. It was the first defeat in three games for Detroit on Windsor ice.

A quick succession of penalities in the second stanza lost the game for Olympics. Taking advantage of two successive penalties to the visitors, Bulldogs poked three pucks past Abbie Cox to wipe out a two-goal advantage Detroit had earned in the initial session, and take a lead which they protected until the final whistle.

Jack Arbour, leading the Bulldogs since the resignation of Herz Mitchell, scored the third Windsor tally. Alex Gray, veteran centre assisted in the trio of goals. Leroy Goldsworthy garnered one of the Detroit counters and helped Makarsky score the other.

POLICE NEEDED.

HUTCHINSON, Kas.—John Stringos set a wolf trap at the door of his chicken house to catch the thief who periodically pilfered a pullet. He called in the police when the trap and a hen both disappeared.

Donald Campbell, son of Sir Malcolm Campbell, holder of the world land speed record, knows a thing or two about driving cars as he demonstrates by taking the wheel of his father's famous Bluebird, which holds the world's straightaway speed record.

MADOC ICES STRONG SQUAD

Will Likely Give Blue and White Lively Tussle in O.H.A. Playdowns.

FIRST GAME TO-NIGHT.

The first round of the O.H.A. intermediate playdowns for this section of the province commences at the Brock Street rink at 8.30 to-night, Madoc playing the Petes. It's goals to count on the round, second game being in Madoc Friday, and the winner probably meeting the winner of the Belleville grouping in the second round. A good sheet of ice is promised for the important game here to-night.

The Smelters lost just two games so far this year, and won both their play-off games. The Petes did not lose a contest during their schedule, but dropped one game to Bowmanville in the play-offs, winning out, however, on the round. The Madoc outfit had to beat such teams as Deloro, Marmora and Havelock, places always noted for a rugged, speedy brand of hockey. The survivors will likely give the local Blue and White a real battle here and at home.

Several of the visiting squad are well-known here, and they will likely get a following from the district. This is the way they will probably line up: Goal, C. Nickle; defence, L. Blue and T. Rupert; centre, J. Henderson; wings, R. Weir and J. Watson; alternates, L. Meraw, T. Armstrong, F. Akey and C. Wallbridge. Of this bunch, Blue, Henderson, Weir and Watson are probably the best, though it's said to be a smart team all-around. Nickle is a classy goal-tender.

The Petes will be at full strength again and anxious to not only win but take a nice lead back to Madoc Friday. On a good sheet of ice, they should be hard to beat but will likely be extended in what promises to be a fast and hard-hitting game. Another large crowd is expected to see this O.H.A. playdown fixture.

THEATRES

"MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS"

The play which was such a whirlwind success in war time, "Maid of the Mountains" is coming to the Regent Theatre in picture form this week, starting today.

It is interesting to note that Cheddar, England, was the scene of several of the most beautiful scenes in this picture. Three nights were taken in filming scenes there for this famous picture. Seventy members of the Cheddar branch of the British Legion who were engaged as minor characters for two nights had their services requisitioned for the third night as special police to keep back the large crowds which had assembled to witness the filming.

The scene which appears oftenest in the picture is the Horseshoe Bend, around which an old tale is woven of a king whose hose, while out hunting, became unmanageable and bolted nearby. The king promised to right a wrong if saved, and the horse, say the historians, paused on the very brink of the precipice.

These cliffs are often referred to as the English Alps. Beneath them are the most famous limestone caverns in England, wherein are numerous stalactites and stalagmites. Within human memory, a family was raised in one of these caves. Upon these rocks, grows the Cheddar pink, found nowhere else in England.

SPORTS Day by Day

HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

Hockey tonight, and an O.H.A. intermediate playoff game at that! Madoc versus the Petes at 8.30 in the Brock, first game of the home and home series, second being in Madoc Friday. We figure the Petes ought to take the Central League champs, but the past six months or so our guesswork has been hitting down around the .230 mark, and one never knows. Fans who like to be in at the death, particularly when it comes to the O.H.A. playdowns, had better get a load of that game this p.m. It may be the last home appearance of the Petes this year, but we certainly hope not. Madoc plays a bruising game, their defence in particular spreading the opposition flatter than soup on a plate; and backed by a good goalie. But the Petes arent so dusty, either.

* * * * * *

Fluffy little bits of diamond dust continue to float around in the chill February air, reminding sports followers that hockey does not last forever, and that baseball—unlike prosperity—is just around the corner. In fact, baseball gossip is being batted around pretty freely in the newspapers of towns throughout Ontario these days. The latest dirt we're run across was in the Lindsay Post the other day. It seems that Lindsay knows nothing about that story from Oshawa that a strong intermediate lakeshore ball loop would be formed before long, including Scugog town.

* * * * * *

The Post thinks this quite unlikely and comes to bat as follows: "It would be more sensible from travelling cost angles, to put a team in the East Peterborough League next year if a franchise could be secured here. The jump to the Electric City could be made from here with not too much trouble and if all the playing material locally was pooled and an experienced baseballer put in charge, they mightn't do so badly. And as for crowds and expenses, a satisfactory arrangement could probably be made and unless the team they could pick here is a lot worse than it looks the crowds would be good. For if there's anything your true Peterborite or Peterboronian likes, it's to see Lindsay playing the Petes."

* * * * * *

There you are, E.P.L. moguls, what do you think of it? We think it's well worth considering as the East Peterborough League looks to be in for a revival anyway this summer, and why not go the whole hog? Foster's A.C. will be one new entry, and our old enemies from Scugogville—and they's got quite a few boys who haven't forgotten baseball there despite the softball epidemic—could supply the villain motif. Finances will be the only trouble, but that's enough grief to send the world around with a severe headache. As for any profits—why, that may be found under "P" in the dictionary.

* * * * * *

In designs that are dark and ways that are queer, the O.H.A. is peculiar. First, Fenelon Falls was ordered to play Oshawa, in a different grouping altogether, while the Petes were told to sit back on their hunkers and wait till that Bowmanville-Port Hope mess was cleared up. But, finally, sane reason or something returned, at least in some measure, and late yesterday we heard officially that the Petes would journey to Fenelon Falls tonight, yeah tonight, with the return game back here Friday. Port Hope and Bowmanville? Oh, they can continue messing around and when they do declare a playoff team, then the Petes-Falls' winners will take 'em on. Still kind of screwy, but suits both us and the Falls' gang, and may teach the Hopers and the Rubbertown crews to shake a leg after this. The Oshawa juniors are none of our affair, at least, for the time being.

* * * * * *

The championship in hockey of the Y.M.C.A. is at stake tomorrow at 5.30 up at the Brock, with the Business Men tackling a younger crew in the Y's Men's Club. Chris Graham who was a star for the Petes in the old seven-man game 'way back when, etc., will be out with the business men. Here's their line-up: Goal, Rev. C. D. Daniel; defence, Charlie Quinlan and C. F. Cummer; centre, Jack Gillespie; wings, Chris Graham and Bill Stanbury; alternates, Ken Graham and Doug Loomis. Ankle up there and get a load of hockey as it was played when you and I were young—although some of the fellows play the modern game. It's free gratis.

* * * * * *

The E. P. L. will likely complete its schedule next week and the play-offs commence the following week. Best three out of five games and Norwood and Carters likely to be the finalists. If so, they'll play a couple of games here and a couple in Norwood, and toss up for the odd one—always provided it goes to five contests. The Peck Trophy is at stake. Some of the players would like to prolong the schedule, but it's too risky business this late in the season.

* * * * * *

And the playoffs in the C.G.E. Shop League commence sometime after Saturday, maybe Monday. First and second teams in each group will play a home and home series, goals counting. The winner of each group will then play a two-game series for the Shop championship. The last of the scheduled games will be run off at the Brock Saturday. Eight teams make up this league, four seniors and four intermediates. At present, Switchgear is leading the seniors and the Machinists are in front of the others. Neither can be shaken out of first place. Toolroom won last year, but must capture their game Saturday against Drafting Room to gain a place in the playdowns. Lot of good hockey in this loop every Saturday.

* * * * * *

Private reflections: Keough Kids blanked the Taxi Drivers 5-0 at the Brock last night; guess they told 'em to put it on the cuff and roll up their sleeves . . . . If superstitious pucksters continue to put their sweaters on backwards, we won't know whether they're coming or going—sometimes, we don't know anyway . . . . Lots of fun at the City League gab-fest last p.m., some teams wanting a double schedule and the leading two saying "nope"; this is one little pot of hot water we're going to detour around . . . . Church teams playing tomorrow might call up C. Sproat to find out what's what; we've lost track . . . . We'll have to check up on our accident insurance before going to Fenelon to-night; they don't like losing back there in the north, but then they may take an easy win . . . . Some of these months, our senior baseball executive ought to shovel its way out and take a look-see around.

POOR SPORTSMANSHIP

To The Sports Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—First of all I would like to call your attention to an editorial in the sports column of your paper last Fall in which reference was made to the poor sportsmanship shown by the Millbrook lacrosse team and some of its supporters. I would just like to say that in hockey as in lacrosse, they do not set a complimentary example of sportsmanship.

I witnessed a hockey game between the Cavan team and one of the Millbrook teams on Saturday, Feb. 4th, and I must say that not only some of the Millbrook players but many of their supporters have a very poor conception of what "good sportsmanship" means.

The Cavan team has met defeat at the hands of their Millbrook opponents three times this season, and have taken it in a sportsmanlike manner. But, when Cavan presented a strong team on Saturday night and defeated their Millbrook opponents 7 to 3, they were handicapped by the presence of an incapable referee who must have seen the game through a pair of smoked glasses—that is as far as the Millbrook team was concerned. He certainly was blind to a lot of their rough stuff.

Perhaps you recall the lacrosse game in which a Peterborough player "mixed it up" with the little 17-year-old dough-boy from Millbrook. I would just like to say here that this same little fellow, who only weighs about 210 lbs., is as poor a sportsman in hockey, as he was in lacrosse, and should get wise to himself before someone teaches him a lesson.

The action of the player who is a Millbrook school teacher, in abusing one of the youthful, out-of-town spectators was another example of the poor sportsmanship they showed when defeated. Had he been in the right, why did he cool down so quickly when the manager of the Cavan team took off his coat and give him to understand that he had more than a youngster to deal with. Such action was very disgusting to say the least, and was a very poor example for a school teacher to set.

Now, just a word to the would-be Millbrook supporters who line the fence and think that hockey teams can exist on cheers and jeers alone. Do they not realize that the Rink Committee cannot carry on without financial support and abandoned the rink once this season for that reason? Do they not know that each hockey team is paying for the games they play, and in reality paying for them to stand around the fence and try to act smart and making nasty remarks which they think are wisecracks.

In conclusion, I would just like to say that although there are a great many sportsmen in your village, they are far over-shadowed by these "parasites" who "line the boards" and see a hockey game at the expense of the players.

I hope that in the future, visiting teams will be shown a little consideration and that a capable referee will be in charge.

Yours truly,

A PERSON WHO LIKES FAIR PLAY!

AMMUNITION STOLEN.

WINDSOR.—Police to-day were still searching for thieves who stole $56 worth of rifle and revolver ammunition from the store of George H. Wilkinson here. The robbers made a careful selection of ammunition, evidently trying out the various sizes in their guns. Several unusual types of shells were included in the stolen charges. The thieves evidently climbed a fire escape and opened a window.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

When I see a piano
I think more and more,
It has so many keys
Yet can't open a door.
—Shadow Sayings.

Little Yam didn't think much of the way in which her mistress (the little girl named May) played on the piano. Just the same Yam enjoyed her mistress' playing a great deal. So did the other shadows, Mij, Flor, Hanid and Knarf.

As soon as little May sat down upon the piano stool and started to touch the keys of the piano, the five shadows made themselves as small as peas (which is an easy thing for shadows to do) and began jumping up and down upon the keys. They jumped upon the black keys, and jumped upon the white keys. If there had been any other color of keys, they would have jumped upon them, too.

I'm sorry to say that the shadows for once at least, did not show good manners. I don't think that you would jump up and down upon the keys of a piano even if someone weren't playing upon it. Of course, I may be mistaken. That's just what I think.

The little girl noticed the shadows upon the keys, but she didn't pay much attention to them. She did not notice, for example, that when her own shadow Yam came down (with both feet!) upon any of the keys, you heard a wrong note. The little girl thought that she had hit a wrong note with her finger. She blamed herself, not her shadow.

It was great fun for Yam to come down (with both feet!) upon a key, and soon all the shadows were following her example. My goodness, you can't imagine how terrible the little girl's playing sounded with all those wrong notes thrown in. Her playing sounded like cats and dogs fighting.

Then suddenly mother's voice was heard calling in to the little girl: more carefully."

"Yes mother, I'll try. But it's so hard, and I'm making so many mistakes." All at once the shadows felt sorry for the poor little girl. So they stopped playing on the piano, and the moment they stopped playing, the little girl was able to go on playing. Perhaps that sounds mixed up to you but it's really true.

Those whose birthday it is may be surprised at a sudden opportunity for change or journey which will result in benefit and probably more profitable and congenial surroundings and associates. KING HENRY AND HIS SIX WIVES

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 7. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The life of one of England's most colorful kings, Henry the Eighth, was the theme of an address before the Campbellford Rotar club yesterday by Stanley H. Neale, who in a very descriptive manner told the story of this much discussed monarch, drawing his information from history and legend, the latter being culled from keepers of Old Country cathedrals and historic buildings and woven together to make a very interesting and accurate story.

King Henry the speaker said, was for the first twenty years of his reign just a king. He was a strong man and what people would call to-day a go-getter.

Then it was that the matter of wives entered into his life. He first married Katherine of Aragon who made him a good wife and was beloved of the people. There was no male issue from this union however, although there was a daughter born, Princess Mary. Henry, the speaker said, was strongly concerned about a male heir, not wishing the country to be thrown into bloodshed through a woman ascending to the throne. It was possible he pointed out that this was prevalent in his mind when after twenty years he realized that his wife had been the wife of his late brother, and this was contrary to the rule of the church. Cardinal Wolsey and Bishop Cromwell were too close to the king to disagree with him about the matter, even when he applied to the Pope, Clement, for a divorce. This the Pope refused and started to fight the king. Thowing aside the jurisdiction of the Pope, Henry proceeded to arrange for his divorce and established himself head of the church in England. There was very little change in the constitution of the country at the time of the Reformation the speaker declared and very little happened in England that was out of the ordinary.

The second wife of King Henry was Anne Boleyn, daughter of a country knight and a court favorite. This wife of the monarch never called herself queen for she was aware of the insecurity of her position and knew also that only the birth of a son would establish her position. This however was not to be Princess Elizabeth being the outcome of this union. She knew that her time was short and tried to hold the king with her old time frivolities, but what appealed to the king in a maid of honour did not appeal to him in a wife. She was accused of illicit relations with the gentlemen at court, which was treason, judged before a packed court and suffered death by beheading.

Jane Seymour, a maid of honour of his late wife, was Henry's next choice and she gave him a son, later Edward the Sixth, but she died ten days after the birth. The birth of this child meant a lot to him. After her death he lived a secluded life for three years, but the child Edward, being a weakly boy, he was advised to marry again, which he did not greatly desire.

Then Anne of Cleves was brought over from Holland for the King's fourth wife, which she nominally was until he had obtained a divorce and granted her an annuity for life. She was never really queen of England, however.

Catherine Howard was the monarch's fifth choice, but she did not last long, being accused of adultery after investigations by Archbishop Crowmell and was beheaded along with her friend Lady Rockford, who had withheld these facts from the king.

Catharine Parr was the sixth and last wife of Henry, she suviving him by many years. It was then Edward the Sixth came to the throne, but being a minor the Earl of Somerset was made protector, and it was during the short reign of the king the Church of England Prayer Book was first brought into being.

The meeting was presided over by Vice-president H. N. Carr.

FRESH CHARGES FACING INSULL

Simcoe Judge Substitutes New Counts After Cancelling Former Ones.

BARRIE, Ont., Feb. 7. (CP) — Despite the vigorous appeal of J. C. McRuer, K.C., counsel for Martin J. Insull, that his client be discharged under the terms of the Extradition Act, Judge Dudley Holmes, senior judge of Simcoe County, to-day dismissed the original charges of larceny and embezzlement standing against Insull and ordered the surety released and Insull's $50,000 bail bond delivered for cancellation.

However, Insull will face extradition proceedings on charges of larcency, embezzlement and theft by a bailee in Toronto on March 6. The charges were substituted for those on which he appeared in court here on request of Edward Bayly, K.C., Deputy Attorney General of Ontario, who is acting in a private capacity for the state of Illinois, which seeks Insull's extradition.

New Information

On Jan. 27, Mr. Bayly applied for the swearing out of a new warrant against Insull, based on additional information he had received from Chicago, and also for a venue for the extradition proceedings. His request was granted and again released on bail of $50,000, plus $5 000 on the new charge, theft by a bailee.

His original bail, set by Judge Holmes following his arrest at Barrie some months ago, expired to-day and his appearance in court was a formality to comply with the provisions of the law.

The effect of to-day's proceedings is Insull will not have to appear in Simcoe County court again but all proceedings will take place in Toronto. Adjournment was made there until March 6 and the new bail bond of $5,000 granted in Toronto is the only bail outstanding as the $50,000 bond was cancelled to-day.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make 16 ounces of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

FARM MARKET IS CONSIDERED

RELIEF KITCHEN TO CLOSE

LINDSAY, Feb. 8 (Examiner Correspondence).—The question of the establishment of a local market for farm products has been taken up by the Rotary Club, which has appointed a committee to investigate its possibilities. The Town Council, too, has the question under consideration. At last night's Council session a deputation of farmers asked that the restrictions preventing them from selling meat in town in quantities less than one-quarter be removed. A few days ago a farmer was charged in the local Police Court with violation of the by-law and was given suspended sentence. The Council deferred decision until another meeting.

Both the Public Library Board and the Board of Health have notified the Council that they have slashed their estimates for the coming year, the former making a seventeen cent reduction and the latter ten per cent.

The local relief kitchen in the Armories, which has proved a blessing to the unemployed, will close this week. For some time past the meals served daily have averaged about eight, and it was felt that the overhead was too high for feeding such a small number. Lunches will be served at the Armories in the future.

The Town Council has decided to look into the possibilities of heating the town buildings with wood. The county has undertaken the experiment with success. Good body hardwood is very cheap in the north country.

A request was submitted to the Council from property holders, asking that the town pay the rent of unemployed people who were unable to meet that obligation. Many families, it was pointed out, are facing dispossession unless the rent is paid. No action was taken.

Lindsay Council will likely sponsor a resolution asking the Government to give the people of the Province use of the huge surplus of power owned by the Hydro Commission. Councillor O'Reilly claimed that the Government was paying big money for the power which is going to waste. He thought it should be used to heat Ontario homes and provided at cost.

Bailieboro Society Gives Church Money

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The monthly meeting of the United Church Ladies' Aid was held in the church on Thursday when the ladies voted twenty dollars to the Church Board to help meet certain financial obligations.

During the fall and winter season the local society has been holding a series of social evenings, which have proved to be very popular, and the residents of the village and surrounding district rally in splendid crowds to these social functions.

District Notes.

The thaw which came in the district on Wednesday and Thursday caused severe washouts in the wheat fields and new seeds. During the downfall of rain, which fell in torrents, the creeks and drains filled to overflowing. The land is very wet, owing to the frequent heavy rainfalls, and it takes only a small amount of water to make a flood.

ONE HUNDRED PRESENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 8 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The A.Y.P.A. of Christ Church, Campbellford, were hosts on Monday to the organizations from Marmora and Deloro, when about one hundred young people gathered in the Parish Hall, Campbellford, and enjoyed a very entertaining program arranged by the Campbellford branch. Miss Muriel Linton being in charge of this portion of the work. A welcome to the visiting branches was extended by Franklin Linton, who occupied the chair for the evening. A few words of appreciation at the very successful evening and an invitation to the Marmora and Deloro young people to gather again in Campbellford for a joint meeting, were given by the Rev. T. H. Floyd, rector of Christ Church.

The program was as follows: A.Y.P.A. Boys' Trio—Sid Hopping, J. Bygott and Franklin Linton; guitar solo, Frank Beaudoin; dance and song, Lillian Runnions and Mary Smith; saxaphone solo, Fred Dorie; vocal solo, Irene Sutton; Dynamite Trio—A. Dunk, F. Rutherford, and P. O'Sullivan; recitation, Miss Enid Richardson; violin solo, Ronald Richardson; dance, Miss Velma Craig of Havelock; harmonica solo, E. Sutton.

After the program a very delicious lunch was served to the visitors, the evening concluding with an informal dance, volunteer musicians providing the music. Arrangements were made for a dance to be staged in the Parish Hall on the evening of February 17.

AIM TO EXTEND PAY CUT BILL

United States and Australia went further in that direction than Canada.

Hon. Fernand Rinfret, former Secretary of State and Mayor of Mont. said the salary cut was proper and Mitchell Hepburn, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, said .. was "a step in the right direction."

The resolution was still in committee when the House shifted to estimates.

Campbell's Appointment

Appointment of Milton Neil Campbell, Progressive member for Mackenzie, Sask., and a farmer by occupation, to the Tariff Board was the main subject of discussion in the corridors of Parliament.

The Liberals argue that there could scarcely be a more partisan selection. They say Mr. Campbell has supported the Government right along. The Conservatives, on the other hand, hail it as a proof that the Government has risen above party considerations in naming a man outside the Conservative ranks.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie said it was regarded throughout Canada as an "excellent appointment." This brought the retort from Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King that the Liberal party felt "no more partisan appointment could possible have been made." Mr. King's remark is significant, in that on previous occasions he has made it celar that he would not consider himself bound, should he return to power, by the acts of a Tariff Board if partisans were named to it.

Support for the resolution on the ground that the cost of Government in Canada was too high, came from M. F. Hepburn (Lib., West Elgin) He thought that the Government was making a move in the right direction. He thought also that that were other ways in which expenses might be cut down. Certain of the Lieutenants Governors might be eliminated. There was no necessity for 245 members of the Dominion Parliament. The number of cabinet ministers might be cut down.

He doubted whether the appointments of the members of the Tariff Board of $10,000 and $12,000 per annum were necessary, Mr. Hepburn said. The appointment of M. N. Campbell at $10,000 a year might be regarded as an unnecessary expense. He knew nothing about Mr. Campbell's qualifications for the position of tariff commissioner excepting that he (Mr. Campbell) had supported the Conservatives.

RADIO NOTES

By R. H. CHILDERHOSE of City Radio Service.

Mr. R. H.—Two weak tubes in your Westinghouse Model 80 Radio would greatly cut down the efficiency of the set; but wouldn't be likely to render it entirely useless. No, you couldn't use the set either with the wires disconnected from the tubes, or with the tubes removed entirely. If your set is dead, it will be due to some other trouble in it.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

FLAT FINE PLAN HINTED BY PRICE

police patrol was more than $200,000, and was paid out of the Attorney-General's Department. The annual expenditure of the entire Highways Department exceeded $16,000,000.

"In addition to the above enormous outlay," said Col. Price, "it might be borne in mind that the motor car plays a great part in the increase of crime. Before its advent, the bank and the store hold-up was practically unknown, as without the aid of a motor car a getaway was impossible. This class of crime has great increased and, consequently, necessitates a very greatly increased provincial police force. This is only one of the many instances which could be cited where the motor car has caused an extra outlay by the Government of expenses.

Small Share.

"Against this enormous total of over $270,000,000 the motorists of Ontario have contributed less than 50 per cent.—to be exact, the total levy against motorists since the first license was issued is $129,892,277.60, made up by $73,492,785.60 in various license fees, and $58,499,492 in gas tax."

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

TORONTO, Feb. 8. — Ontario grain, approximate prices track shipping point: Wheat, 40c to 42c; oats, 20c to 22c; barley, 30c to 32c; corn, 32c to 34c; rye, 29c to 30c; buckwheat, 28c to 30c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—A decline in butter prices featured the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Butter declined an ¼ of a cent at 20½c a pound for cariots or less of No. 1 grass make. Receipts were 186 boxes.

Despite heavy receipts, egg quotations ruled steady. Graded fresh extras, in cariots or less, were quoted at 21c, firsts at 19c, pullets at 18c and seconds at 17c. A half-cent range on both sides of the general prices was reported. Receipts totalled 3,109 cases, as compared with 892 cases Monday.

Ontario cheese remained unchanged at 9c for current white, 10c for current colored, and 10½c to 11¼c a pound for early make. Receipts were only seven boxes.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes were firm at 75c per 80-pound bag, as were Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at 80c to 85c per 80-pound bag, and at 90c to 95c per 90-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Heavy snowfalls throughout much of the United States winter wheat belt tended yesterday to alleviate fear of crop damage and to ease prices down.

Soil and snow drifting, together with severe low temperatures, were reported in extreme southwest sections, but buyers were not aggressive pending more definite indications of injury to wheat. Special notice, however, was taken of signs of a second cold wave developing over Alaska.

Wheat closed nervous unchanged to ⅝c off, compared with Monday's finish; corn unchanged to ⅛c decline; oats unchanged to ⅜c up, and provisions at 7c to 15c advance.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 8. — Lack of any selling pressure kept wheat prices steady on the Grain Exchange here yesterday in the face of easiness at Chicago and absence of export business in Canadian wheat. Values closed a dull session ⅛c lower to unchanged.

May closed at 47¼c, July at 48c, and October at 49½c.

Weather conditions in the United States South-west continued unfavorable, with low temperatures and dust storms. This was considered the main factor in Chicago's downward trend.

Pit trade here was small in volume and mixed and local in character. Liverpool closed fractionally higher, but Buenos Aires was off a fraction.

Spreads on cash wheat and on coarse grains were unchanged in dull trade.

The Principal of a Boys' College writes—

"Last term several of my boys seemed run down generally. I used Virol with extraordinary results. The whole system was braced up and the effect on the boys was marvellous. I cannot too highly recommend its use for delicate children."

If you are a little anxious about your own child — be on the safe side and give Virol. Virol strengthens weak and ailing children and fortifies against infection.

Archbishop Stringer Urges Financial Aid

HALIFAX, Feb. 8. —(CP)— "By self denial and by zealous work, brave missionaries have carried our faith to these far northern regions. Their work must not go for naught. Whether these people will be served by God's ministers or remain in the darkness of heathenism depends on the work that is done in the next few months."

This was the burden of an appeal voiced to members of the Church of England by His Grace I. O. Stringer, Archbishop of Rupert's Land, for support of the restoration fund committee in securing $750,000 to replace the diocese's lost endowments.

"I believe this crisis will mark a new era in the Church of England if we take up the burden and march in step as a united church," he said.

WILLIAM C. PEARCE

MARMORA, Feb. 8 (Examiner Correspondence). — The sudden death on Monday of William Campion Pearce removes a very familiar figure in the life of Marmora. Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Pearce and was born Nov. 10, 1871. Despite physical infirmity, he was of a very active nature and every day when health permitted, made his friendly calls to homes and business places in the village. He was ever ready to sympathize with the afflicted or needy in their distress and he also took a kindly interest in the affairs of the young. He was a staunch advocate of the cause of temperance. He was punctillious in religious observances and would often say to his friends and acquaintances "Christ died for me." He delighted in being punctual at all gatherings. The deceased was a member of St. Paul's Sunday school and the A.Y.P.A. He was also a member of Marmora L.O.L. 319 and Marmora L.T.B. 177. For a number of years, he has resided on Madoc street at the residence of his sisters, the Misses Mary and Ada Pearce. He is further survived by two brothers, H. R. and F. S., also of Marmora.

The funeral services, which were of a private nature, were held at the home of his brother, Mr. H. R. Pearce, at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday and were conducted by the rector, Rev. A. B. Caldwell. Dramatic Scene As Young Man Is Again Arrested

Harold Hendrichon Found Not Guilty Of Manslaughter By Jury But Is Later Arrested For The Montreal Police.

MOTHER RUSHES TO GREET HER SON BUT ONLY TO HAVE HIM TAKEN AGAIN.

A mother's happiness, loosed and soaring from taut anxiety, was swiftly dashed to the depths again as Mrs. Constance Henrichon of Montreal heard a jury in the assize court Wednesday afternoon declare her son not guilty of manslaughter and the judge discharge him with fatherly advice, and then saw three police officers swoop down on him as he stepped from the prisoner's box and arrest him on a charge of an alleged hold up offense in Montreal.

It must have been five minutes before she realized that this sons of hers, who reached his majority in jail only last Sunday, was not going with her. Mr. Justice Sedgewick glanced over his glasses, perhaps comprehendingly, at the ominous action of the police as they waited at the open gate of the dock. G. N. Gordon, K.C., the youth's counsel, must have been aware that some thing was amiss as he laid out papers and document for the next case immediately proceeding, and at the same time noticed the little group file out through a side door, Harold Henrichon in the lead followed by Detective Meagher, Constable Piercey and Chief Constable Newhall, with the mother close behind them.

Court Goes On Its Way

Meagher, Piercey and the young man who was again a prisoner, after scarcely a moment's freedom, disappeared into the jail. Chief Newhall remained in the connecting corridor, Mrs. Henrichon, oblivious of knots of spectators who stopped on their way out wondering what was going on, spoke excitedly to Chief Newhall. Leaving him, she ran up the stairs and into the court room, and leaned on the railing, which excludes the public, ten feet behind Mr. Gordon.

But, the court was going about its business. The criminal cases had been disposed of. The special Crown Prosecutor had gone, the last of the jurors were down stairs in the county treasurer's office, Mr. Justice Sedgewick had reverted to the civil list, and a witness was in the box. Mr. Gordon was examining him about some document, but the mother was leaning there behind him over the rail. He had seen her, and it was obvious that he was undecided for the moment what to do, even as he went on with his questions.

This was all a matter of only a

PRESTON LOSES $20,000 ACTION AGAINST ROSS

Jury, Out 2 Hours, Decides Plaintiff Had "Honorable Public Career."

COSTS WITH ACTION.

Written Verdict Brought in—Preston Walks From Court Without Comment.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.— P. D. Ross, publisher of the Ottawa Journal, was not guilty of libeling W. T. R. Preston of Port Hope in his book, "Retrospects of a Newspaper Person," a special jury in York Assizes decided yesterday, after deliberating for two hours on the mass of evidence given in the three-day suit for $20,000 damages brought by Mr. Preston.

The jury took the somewhat unusual course of bringing in a written verdict, which in addition to finding the defendant not guilty of libel, stated that "We find that Mr. Preston has had an honorable public career."

There was a touch of drama in the brief proceedings which brought to a close a series of libel actions against the Ottawa Journal which started 30 years ago. Mr. Ross, sitting with his counsel, D. L. McCarthy, K.C., showed no reaction as the clerk of the court read the verdict. His ancient adversary sat hunched up at his table and, on hearing the verdict, immediately busied himself with his papers, which he stuffed into a brief bag. He appeared physically exhausted after his address to the jury, lasting one hour and 40 minutes.

"Mr Preston, on that verdict there is nothing for me to do but to endorse the records with judgment for the defendant with costs," said Mr. Justice Kerwin.

Mr. Preston nodded.

Special Jury Costs

At this stage G. F. Sullivan, assistant counsel for Mr. Ross, calling His Lordship's attention to a section of the Jury Act, asked that the costs of the action include costs of the special jury.

"Mr. Preston, who asked for the special jury?" inquired His Lordship of the plaintiff.

"The defendants, My Lord," answered Mr. Preston, nodding in the direction of Mr. Ross.

"But I understand that while they applied for it, you gave your consent?"

"It was fully understood that the case was to come before Your Lordship in the usual way before a common jury," replied Mr. Preston. "I do not think I should be saddled with special costs."

His Lordship found, however, that the judgment dismissing the action with costs would have to include costs of the special jury selected for the trial.

Mr. Preston walked out of court with a smile on hisface.

"No, I have nothing to say," he said to reporters. "It's all over now."

The charge was laid by the Humane Society.

BUCK HEAD MAN KINGSTON RIOTS GUARD STATES

PREPARED FOR SEIGE.

Two Convicts Committed for Trial—Guard Gives Details of Trouble.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 9 (C.P.).—Tim Buck, former leader of the Communist Party of Canada, was one of the chief leaders of the Penitentiary riots at Portsmouth Prison last October, according to Guard W. H. Godwin, who to-day testified during the preliminary hearing of Convict George Bailey, charged with rioting and destroying prison property. Bailey, together with Convict John Jolliffe, was committed for trial.

No more convicts will be brought into court till Monday, when Magistrate J. M. Farrell will hear two more. In all, it is expected 25 prisoners will appear on charges of "riotously assembling" and "causing damage," while 300 others implicated in the disturbance will be tried by prison court.

According to the guard, it was Buck who issued all the orders to the convicts assembled in the shop dome, industrial heart of the prison; he ordered the barricading of the doors; continually addressed the convicts and shouting "One for all and all for one," urged them to prepare for a long seige.

"On Tim Buck's orders, everything available was piled against the doors," said Godwin, but these doors were later broken down by penitentiary trucks after the convicts had tried to shove the guards up to the door to prevent others from entering.

No Statement.

Neither of the committed men would make any statement to-day, both merely questioning witnesses briefly at times.

FIVE SUSPECTS HELD BY POLICE

Great Dragnet is Spread in Toronto Following Bank Robbery.

BANKS CLOSELY WATCHED

TORONTO, Feb. 9 (C.P.)—Five men—among whom may be two bank-robbers—are being held at police headquarters to-day for identification. Brought in by an extensive dragnet over the city's underworld, the five will be taken before employees of the Kenilworth and Queen Street branch of the Bank of Toronto, robbed yesterday of $5,000 by two bandits who escaped after locking the employees in the vault.

Squads of detectives, scouring the city in one of its greatest manhunts, picked up the five men in various sections. One youth was picked up in the vicinity of the bank. Bank employees will attempt to identify the bandits to-day.

Police vigilance over banks has greatly increased in all parts of the city, it was learned, and particularly in the extreme East end. Two banks close together, not many blocks from the bank robbed yesterday, have been under close surveillance for some days, and it is understood police were in that vicinity when the Bank of Toronto robbery occurred.

Last Friday, the Royal Bank at Wellesley and Church streets was robbed by two men. One of the alleged bandits was shot in a revolver duel with a policeman. The other escaped with $3,500.

BARRIE MAY CUT 3 MILLS FROM EDUCATION NEEDS

BARRIE, Ont., February 9 (C.P.) — Barrie Board of Education will likely ask the town for more than $17,000 less than last year, equivalent to about 3½ mills reduction in the tax rate for 1933, if a report of the Finance Committee is adopted at the regular meeting of the board on Monday next.

It is understood the committee will recommend a reduction in levy of more than $15,000 for Collegiate Institute and more than $1,800 for the Public Schools, as compared with 1932.

Teachers Offer To Take 10% Cut

LINDSAY, Ont., February 9 (C.P.). — Collegiate and Public School teachers of Lindsay have offered to take a 10 per cent. reduction in wages, it was announced to-day. The reduction, which will mean a saving of more than $7,000 to the town, will date back to the first of the year, although all the teachers are fully protected by contracts until June.

TWO ARRESTED, EXTORTION PLOT UPON LINDBERGH

Youths Attempt to Cash Cheque "Planted" in Stump By Police.

BOTH DENY GUILT.

Action Follows Threats to Noted Flier Second Son Would Be Kidnapped.

ROANOKE, Va., February 9 (C.P.) — Police took into custody today Joe Bryant, 19, and Norman Harvey, 26, in what they charge was a crude attempt to extort $50,000 from Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, under threat to kidnap his second son.

The two youths, both residents of Roanoke, are being held for United States authorities.

A denial that the yhad any connection with threatening letters or that they engaged in correspondence with a Roanoke policeman who represented himself as representative of Colonel Lindbergh, was made by both men.

Bryant and Harvey were arrested on a ruse employed by police when Bryant took a $17,000 cheque that had been planted in a stump in a wooded section in the Weaver Heights area some days ago, to the State and City Bank to obtain cash.

Bryant walked into the bank and went to the window at which W. M. Skelton is teller. Bank tellers and cashiers had been tipped off for two or three weeks to be on the alert for this cheque, and Mr. Skelton recognized it at once.

Cash Please.

"I want to get this cashed," said the youth.

Skelton handed the cheque to Leigh Stevens, assistant cashier, and asked him to get the bundle of money ready.

Stevens stopped in the rear part of the building and telephoned police headquarters, then took his time to tie up several pads of blank receipts that were nearly the size of currency. He tied the pads in a bundle of brown paper and placed it in a sack, and when he returned to the window, he saw plainclothesmen were waiting, and turned the bag over to Skelton. Bryant walked away wearing a happy smile.

The Weather

Last night, in addition to providing the coldest dip for some years, namely 24 degrees below zero, also gave a heavenly illumination rarely seen. The moon, nearly full, was the centre of a lunar halo, or rainbow. This was very large, and had all the colors of the solar rainbow, in a subdued tint. In addition there was a secondary halo, about the same size, with the moon on the southern edge. This circle, at times, was also perfect. There were also to be seen, occasionally, segments of circles on the southern sky. Altogether the display was the finest I have ever seen. The coloring was due to the rays of the moon shining through ice crystals in the upper atmosphere. While last night was decidedly cold, we have frequently had it much colder. On Jan. 28, 1925, we had it 36 degrees below zero. This was on a Dollar Day. Our lowest temperature was 38 degrees below on Monday, Feb. 17, 1896, with 38 degrees below, though I have heard stories of 40 below in the 1870's.—W.P.

6 FIREMEN DIE ONE IS MISSING AS HOTEL BURNS

Two Victims Trapped By Explosion—Others Crushed Under Falling Walls.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 9 (C.P.).—Six firemen were killed, one was missing and 17 others were injured in a spectacular fire that destroyed the four-story Maillard Hotel, historic downtown landmark, early to-day, during a 15 below zero temperature. The loss was estimated at $250,000.

After seven hours' work, only the body of Captain Ed. Smith had been recovered from the ruins. He had been killed in the collapse of a rear wall which buried him and at least three others.

Buried in Cellar.

Two more were buried under debris in the basement. Senior Captain George Cogan, brother of Fire Chief Patrick Cogan, and Fire Inspector Clarence Urban were trapped after an explosion brought the roof down on them as they stood on the first floor, carrying them to the cellar. Fireman Walter Hoye, who had entered the shop with them, was rescued an hour later. Rescuers talked with Cogan, but were unable to reach him or Urban, and at 7 a.m. little hope was held that they would be rescued alive.

The three missing, almost certainly dead, were Captain Thomas Shandy, Pipeman John G. Brandt and Fireman Franklin Kane. They were on a ladder in an alley, working with Smith, when the rear wall collapsed and presumably buried them.

INFIDELS LEAVE

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

BAGDAD, Jan. 14.—There is no shame in begging in the East. Every beggar, so say the sages, presents an opportunity to praise Allah — by giving charity. Without wanting to be irreverent, I must say that the opportunity is constant, ubiquitous and universal. There is no reason why, if the mood takes you, one should not go on praising Allah from dawn till sunset. I was welcomed to Bagdad by a whole flock of the individuals who insisted at the top of their lungs that I praise Allah forthwith and not be backward about it either. The crowd assailed me in snaches of all the languages of the world. One of those Ali Babas, a gaunt and bony fellow with a black beard who wore a collection of the strangest rags I ever laid eyes on, apparently took me for a German. Herr Baron!" he began, tugging at my sleeves. "Herr Baron!". . .

Playing in Luck

CHICAGO, Feb. 9. —(AP)— This is the story of a man without a jail. He is Joe Lousanne, 60, of Clarendon Hills, fined for striking a tax collector. The fine wasn't paid, but they couldn't put Joe in jail at Clarendon Hills because the village hasn't any. So the sheriff at Wheaton was asked to take care of Joe, but he declined, saying he had too many boarders already. Downer's Grove was asked to lend its jail, but refused. Hinsdale agreed to take Joe as a temporary proposition, but changed the offer when it was learned his commitment papers were not in order. So Hinsdale sent him back home.

Dash From Lympne, England, To Natal In Three And a Half Days Adds Another Jewel To Air Crown Held By Famous British Pilot.

RECORDS INCLUDE DASHES ENGLAND-INDIA; LONDON-CAPE TOWN, IRELAND-N. BRUNSWICK

NATAL, Brazil, Feb. 9.—(C. P. and A. P. Cable)—Captain James Mollison brought another of his great air adventures to a triumphant conclusion when he set his plane down here this evening after a flight from England, which involved a 2,000 mile hop across the South Atlantic.

The great British airman, who was the first man to fly alone westward across the North Atlantic, landed here three days and 10 hours after taking off from Lympne, England—just within his estimated schedule of three and a half days.

The flight, done in stages from England to Senegal, on the west coast of Africa from where Mollison today made the ocean flight, was the latest addition to a wonderful list of flights in which Mollison has girdled the far corners of the earth.

He took off from Lympne at 8.11 a.m., Greenwich time, Monday, and landed here at 6.20 p.m., Greenwich time, today. He made the ocean flight in roughly 18 hours, essaying it after the briefest of rests at Senegal.

Mollison's Flights

Completion of his England-South America flight to-day was one more great jewel in the brilliant air crown held by Captain James Mollison.

Great long-distance flights he has successfully accomplished include:

1931—England to Australia in 8 days, 19 hours.
1931—India to England, 3 days, 11 hours.
1932—London to Cape Town, 4 days, 17 hours.
1932—Ireland to New Brunswick 24 hours, 10 minutes (first solo westward crossing of the North Atlantic).
1933—England to Brazil, 3 days, 10 hours.

Staff Trussed in Vault Take Half Hour to Escape, Spread Alarm.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—Two well-dressed gunmen slipped casually into the Bank of Toronto at Kenilworth Avenue and Queen Street east just at closing time yesterday afternoon and carried out one of the most carefully planned hold-ups on recent police records.

Trussing the staff of three and leaving them on their knees in the dark vault, they scooped up a little more than $5,000 and disappeared without a single trace to show how or where they went.

Whether the bandits planned it knowingly, they chose to rob a bank in the extreme east end of the city at a time when Chief Constable Draper, several inspectors and a large number of other ranks in the police force were attending a funeral in the extreme west end of Toronto.

Malcolm To Test Course On Friday

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 9 (C.P.). — Sir Malcolm Campbell plans to take his Bluebird racing car over the beach course for a test run Friday if the sands improve and then try for a new land speed record.

West winds have driven waves over the course, ruffling the sands instead of smoothing them, however, and there was doubt the run could be made unless the winds shift to the north-east and smooth out the drive.

Sir Malcolm plans to remain here through March if necessary to await proper beach conditions for the run. Officials of the American Automobile Association have announced they are ready to extend the sanction period beyond the scheduled expiration February 20 if necessary.

MORNING CALL MADDENS MAN INTO BLIND RAGE

IN SMITH TOWNSHIP.

Victim, Clarence Blodgett, Refuses to Lay Charge Against Assailant.

Jim Dugan, hired man at Clarence (Con.) Blodgett's farm on the second line of Smith Township, doesn't like getting out of bed these cold mornings. In fact, when he's repeatedly urged to leave his downy cot Dugan goes berserk with rage according to Blodgett, who walked into the police station today looking as though he had been badly treated by an iron-fisted pugilist. Most of his face was covered by bandages.

"Yes," he told police, "Dugan did it. He struck me with a piece of cordwood and nearly choked me."

Blodgett said that at 6 o'clock this morning he got up and called Dugan. After returning from the woodshed with an armful of firewood he noticed that his hired man was still beneath the sheets.

"I called to him, 'Heh, aint you going to get up to-day. Climb out.' Then the storm broke. He jumped out of bed raging like a bull, grabbed a stick of cordwood and started hitting me. He grabbed me around the throat, too, and nearly choked me to death. Then he started after my wife, hitting her, too."

A neighbor took Blodgett to the Clinic, where his injuries were dressed. Four stitches were required for a deep gash over his right eye. His nose was damaged and there was a deep gash under his chin. Red marks on his neck indicated the choking he had received.

But Blodgett was in a charitable mood for all the ill-treatment he had received at the hands of his hired man. "No," he said "I don't want to lay a charge against him. As long as he pays my doctor's bill and minds his own business from now on I won't do anything about this morning's affair."

Police said, "Well, if you won't lay an information against him we can't do anything about it."

Dugan was a transient until last fall. Blodgett took him from the police station at that time where he had found a nights' shelter and gave the man a job on his farm. "He's a good worker," Blodgett explained.

24 BELOW ZERO IS REGISTERED

Last Night Was the Coldest in Several Years in This District.

LIKE OLD WINTERS.

The lowest temperature in some years was recorded here last night when the thermometer took a sudden dip to 24 degrees below zero. Office and factory workers reluctantly crawled from between the sheets this morning, to be prodded into unwonted activity as soon as they got outdoors, by Jack Frost's icy fingers.

It didn't require thermometers to inform the man in the street that the mercury was sinking tingling ears and noses and cold hands and feet made the fact painfully apparent, and despite icy sidewalks and slippery streets pedestrian traffic was speeded up to a maximum

The exact time at which the mercury hit the 24 below mark is not definitely known, but according to Walter Peters, official weatherman, it was sometime between the hours of 9 p.m. and 8 a.m. At 9 o'clock last night, the mercury had dropped to 10 degrees below the zero line, while at 8 o'clock this morning it had re-established itself at 3 below, and was reported to be steadily climbing.

Mr. Peters was uncertain as to how long ago it was since Peterborough last experienced such cold weather; he would have to search back over his records, he said.

He described the present cold snap as being "just a reversion to type. It is the real kind of weather we used to have a few winters ago," he remarked.

DAIRY FARMERS PRESS CLAIMS IN THE COMMONS

Wheat Problems Have Received Too Much Attention Lately.

DIVIDE COMMITTEE.

Export Market Board Not Needed Declares Conservative Member.

OTTAWA, February 9 (C.P.). — Cow-milking, year-round farmers of Eastern Canada have served notice on the Government that the wheat-growers of the West are not the only farmers entitled to attention. Western agricultural representatives in the opinion of a group of Easterners, mostly Quebec Conservatives, have had their own way in the councils of the nation far too long.

The move launched yesterday to divide the agriculture committee into two parts, one to deal with wheat and the other to deal with general agricultural matters, arose out of a feeling the hard-working Eastern farmer has been neglected while the more vociferous Westerner had more success in getting his grievances corrected. Dr. F. H. Pickel (Cons., Brome-Missisquoi) launched the scheme, and was backed by an Ontario Conservative, W. A. Tummon of Hastings.

In pressing the claims of the farmer Dr. Pickel did not pass his own leaders. "I must admit," he said, "that the present Government has not been over-exerting itself in trying to correct matters." No Government in recent years, he added had done all it could.

Know Nothing About Milking.

Grain growers of the West, said Dr Pickel, came to Parliament and claimed they know everything about agriculture, while 70 per cent. of them did not know how to milk a cow. The Eastern farmer had a year-round job, while the Western-

MANY ROAD CRASHES.

Bone-chilling and biting, a northwest wind swept down upon Ontario's benumbed citizenry to-day and added to the discomforts which they faced yesterday in the year's coldest snap.

Temperatures ranging from zero downward were common throughout the province, and little consolation was to be derived from the Meteorological Bureau's forecast of "very cold" for to-day.

In the north-western section of the province, Kenora gasped through 41-below-zero weather, and to the east, at Armstrong, a 52-below mark was recorded. Atikokan, near Fort William, registered the lowest of all—55 below.

Ferry service between the American Sault and its sister city on the Canadian side was maintained with difficulty, and similar trouble was encountered at Sarnia, where the ferries running to Port Huron had to thread their way through heavy ice floes blown in from the St. Clair River.

Streets and highways, icy-coated, were responsible for numerous minor accidents, but not one fatality had been reported.

Widow Of Former Leader May Guide Doukhobors

HUNTERS FIGHT FOR USE OF DOGS

HIGHER WOLF BOUNTY.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—Use of dogs for deer hunting was favored unanimously by the Ontario Hunters' Game Protective Association, in convention at King Edward Hotel yesterday, in a resolution requesting the Government to repeal the present regulation prohibiting the use of dogs for this purpose, which came into effect last year.

As an inducement to the Government to grant its request, the association also recommended that dogs used for deer hunting be taxed. The revenue derived from this source, it was contended, would amount to a considerable sum.

Recommendations that the wolf bounty be increased from $25 to $40, and that regulations requiring gun licenses, now in existence in 21 counties, be made a provincial regulation, were also passed.

Conservation of wild life as a subject on school curriculum was also urged, and recommendation made that the season for hunting waterfowl and migatory wild fowl be changed from October 1 to December 31 instead of September 15 to December 15.

Officers re-elected were: Hon. presidents, G. G. Green, Bradford, and W. J. Moody, Kitchener; president, H. W. Hunsberry, Jordan Station; first vice-president Aubrey Davis Newmarket; second vice-president, William Gastle, Hamilton; treasurer, J. C. Richardson, Toronto, and secretary, Emerson Robertson, Toronto.

JUNE 1934 SET FOR ELECTION

Two Provincial Seats in Peterborough County Likely Be United.

HASTINGS DROP ONE.

Among many of the great changes forecasted in the ridings of Ontario before the next Provincial election is the combining of Peterborough East and Peterborough City, according to The Havelock Standard of which T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., is owner and publisher.

"In all probability", states The Standard, "the Peterborough's will be thrown together in one seat, as the representation in Peterborough County is now only 15,666 while the City seat number 28,492."

It is likely that one Hastings seat will also disappear and that many other old established ridings will have to go by the board.

"Present plans of the Henry Government", states Mr. Lancaster's paper, "are reported to call for an election in June 1934, and unless unforseen circumstances arise in the meantime there is little probability of the Ontario Government appealing to the country before that time".

"As a matter of fact, the Government could defer issuance of a writ for the election until January 1935, and still be within it's rights, but such a policy would bring on a winter campaign and Ontario, it is authoratively reported, has seen its last winter election".

STRATFORD, Ont., Feb. 9.—(CP)—"Farming is the best occupation there is today and I intend to keep at it for a long time yet," was the statement of Alex Hotson here, now nearing his 84th birthday. He owns 100 acres of land near Avonbank 12 miles from here and thinks nothing of walking the distance. Mr. Hotson is the only surviving members of first board of directors of the Avonbank Cheese and Butter Company organized 53 years ago and recalls the days when cheese sold to wholesalers at six cents per pound.

CHARRED RUINS YIELD ONE BODY

$50,000 PROPERTY LOSS.

TISDALE, Sask., Feb. 9 (C.P.).—Firemen and townsmen, braving sub-zero weather, worked to-day amid the ice-coated ruins of the Imperial Hotel, seeking the bodies of its fire victims. Seven persons met death, including an invalid mother and her three daughters, but only one body had been recovered from the debris early to-day.

From a pile of wreckage, buried in ice, searchers brought the charred body of Jack F. Marsh, a Saskatoon traveller, after a hunt of many hours. Still to be found were the remains of Mrs. C. Courture, 45-year-old proprietress of the hotel; her daughters, Dolly, a 22-year-old nurse; Margaret, 18, and Simone, 13; Fraser Page, a Prince Albert commercial traveller, and Emma Ray, a maid.

Inquest Under Way.

Plans for an inquest and investigation were under way to-day as relatives arrived to make funeral arrangements for the victims.

The fire, which originated in the hotel early Wednesday morning, caused property loss of $50,000. The flames spread to adjacent business places, completing the destruction of the hotel, a general store, hardware establishment and cafe.

So cold was the weather—45 below with a north-west wind—that water froze in the single pump engine and hose. The volunteers, their cheeks frozen stiff, built fires under the pump engine and kept on with their work.

Lost Hubby

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9 (C.P.).—Leaving the district attorney's office early to-day, Lewis Stone, veteran actor, remarked, "I must look like all the husbands that ever forgot to go home."

An excited woman had told District Attorney Buron Fitts she thought Stone was the husband who left her 16 years ago.

Stone was summoned.

"No," the woman said as he confronted her, "I've made a mistake. He's not the man."

The actor bowed politely and left.

Canadian Musicians Widely Booked In U.S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (C.P.).—Canadian singers and musicians will be much more active in the United States within the near future than they have been in the past. Action taken by the Community Concert Service, a Canadian organization operating in some 18 cities of the Dominion, to gain reciprocity for Canadian musicians has borne fruit, it became known to-day.

Extensive bookings throughout the United States have been secured for such well-known Canadian artists as Madame Jeanne Dusseau, Gertrude Huntley Greene, pianist; Malcolm and Godden, piano team; the Hart House String Quartette of Toronto, and two well-known French-Canadian singers, as well as a number of others.

BLIZZARD AT OWEN SOUND

OWEN SOUND, Ont.—The worst storm of the winter raged around this district to-day and a strong south wind promised trouble for travellers. Motors reached the city from Toronto by way of Barrie but indications were roads would soon be blocked by drifting snow. It was five below zero this morning.

LAW EXPLAINED AS TO THE USE DOGS HUNTING

General Misunderstanding Has Arisen as to Provisions Of Act.

TROUBLE CLEARED UP

Claiming that a general misunderstanding of the provisions of the Game and Fisheries Act governing the use of dogs, Fred Marshall, Inspector of Game and Fisheries in Peterborough County, drew attention to certain sections of the Act in an interview to-day.

"Sub-section C C of Section 1: 'Dog' shall mean any dog, male or female." From this it is evident that the law applies to all dogs regardless of breed, Mr. Marshall declared.

"Sub-section 2A of Section: 10 The Department may upon application by a resident of Ontario issue a permit authorizing the use of dogs for the hunting of foxes during the regular open season in an area where deer are not usually found." The Department does not presume to know every area where deer are usually found, Mr. Marshall pointed out, and it is a condition of these permits that they only grant the privilege of using dogs where deer are not usually found, and the owner is responsible if his dog hunts elsewhere.

"Sub-section 2 of Section 31: It shall be unlawful for the owner of any dog to permit such dog to run at large in a locality which deer, moose or caribou usually inhabit or in which they are usually found."

"Sub-section 3 of Section 31: Any person harboring or claiming to be the owner of such dog shall be deemed to be the owner thereof, and any dog found running deer, moose or caribou shall be deemed to be at large with the permission of the owner and may be killed on sight by any person, and he shall not be liable to any penalty thereof.

"Penalty: Any licensee or permitee who violates the conditions of his license or permit shall for each such offence incur a penalty of not less than $10 and not more than $300.

"No resident shall hunt, take, trap, shoot, kill or molest any fur-bearing animal except under authority of a license or permit, but this shall not apply to a farmer or his sons trapping upon the lands of such farmer animals other than beaver and otter during the various open seasons, nor shall this apply to the taking of bear and wolf."

Mr. Marshall declared: "It is illegal, therefore to take by any means or to attempt to take any fur-bearing animal except wolf and bear without first having procured a license and, if dogs are to be used for foxes, a permit to use same. The only other exception to this is that a farmer or his sons may trap but not otherwise take fur-bearing animals on his own land without a license."

DAIRY FARMERS PRESS CLAIMS

For these reasons he thought the Agriculture Committee, now dominated by wheat growers, should be broken up to give other branches of agriculture a chance to get some consideration.

Westerners took the issue up and opposed the division of the committee, deploring the discussion as an attempt to divide the East and the West.

In the last ten years 85 meetings of the committee had been devoted to wheat, said Mr. Tummon, while only 71 dealt with all other branches of agriculture.

Both Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, and his predecessor Hon. W. R. Motherwell, believed there was ample opportunity for dealing wth all agricultural matters in the present committee. The resolution, however, stands for further discussion.

Mr. Pickel caused somewhat of a sensation when he declared that with the exception of beef, Canadian farm produce was bringing a higher price at the present time than the produce of any other country in the world. Pressed for proof he mentioned butter and eggs in the United States where he claimed the price was much lower than in Canada. He did not develop the point.

Mr. Pickel read statistics to show that apart from wheat and cheese, 97 per cent of Canada's agricultural products are consumed within the Dominion. "We don't need an export marketing board that we hear so much talk about," he declared. "At least the east doesn't want it."

In the course of his remarks Mr. Pickel declared that Canadians made the worst butter in the world —and the best —cheese. For that reason he urged that the government initiate a campaign to educate the people to make more cheese and less butter.

E. W. Tummon (Cons, Hastings South) seconded the resolution and he congratulated Mr. Pickel on his move.

Investigation under the Combines Act into the affairs of the milk distributors of Canada was urged by R. B. Hanson (Conservative, York-Sunbury), after the House had listened to their characterization by Dr. Follin Horace Pickel (Conservative, Brome-Missisquoi) as "highwaymen and robbers."

Investigation Suggested.

"There is a large field of investigation with regard to the distribution of milk," said Mr. Henson. "The trouble with the act is that a foundation charge must be laid by some private individual. It is not the business of any public functionary to start in motion the machinery of the law. That was the weakness of the act from the very beginning."

"This question has been privately discussed between members of the Agriculture Committee," said Mr. Tummon. "I think the passing of the resolution would serve a very useful purpose. There were years in which discussion of wheat was the basis of practically all meetings of the Agriculture Committee; and he proceeded to quote statistics showing that in the last 10 years 85 meetings of this committee had dealt with wheat alone, leaving only 71 meetings for the consideration of all other branches of agriculture.

Col. H. A. Mullins (Cons., Marquette) could see no purpose in separating the committee, but he would suggest a division of the committee's time so that all sections could be dealt with. Last year, he said, almost the entire time of the committee was occupied with discussion of Garnet wheat.

The mehber for Marquette entered into a vigorous discussion of livestock marketing, hog grading and Western freight rates when called to order by the Speaker for digressing from the resolution. Col. Mullins replied that he could not get these matters discussed in committee and therefore sought this opportunity to bring them before the House. He ended with a warning that, "Unless we can get more families back on the land and make them successful—then God help this country."

One reason that the problems of Eastern farmers were not in the forefront of Agriculture Committee discussions, said Agnes MacPhail was that most of the Western farmers were organized and well represented in the House, while most of the Eastern representatives were professional men. She believed in organization and co-operation as a means of getting satisfaction in the House.

G. B. Wilson (Cons., Wentworth) supported the resolution and would go further by dividing the Agriculture Committee into various divisions to deal with fruit, livestock, grain, and other branches of the industry.

weather, the rainbow that circled the moon last night attracted widespread interest and caused more than one person to halt in their tracks and gaze heavenward in wondering admiration.

The phenomenon which appears to have been observed over the whole of Central Ontario, is described in the morning papers by Professor Chant professor of astrophysics as a "lunar halo." The "rainbow" was a complete cricle of soft radiance with the colors of the spectrum painly visible commencing with red inside and blending to blue at the outer edge. The moon was in the centre of it.

Many spectators in Peterborough saw the "lunar halo," and it was described to The Examiner by one of a group of persons who was called from the Armouries to see the spectacle, as having resembled the triple link sign of the Odd Fellows' Order. Many reports were received by The Examiner early this morning from the district regarding the strange appearance of the heavens.

Professor Chant declares that the halo was caused by an abundance of moisture in the air, either as droplets of fog or particles of ice. No special weather predictions could be based upon the effect, he stated.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

DANCERS WIELD THEIR KNIVES

But that is as far as he got. There was a real German coming just behind me in whose company I had travelled all the way from Damascus. This man had succeeded in exasperating me on our joint trip with two hours of steady pounding at the treaty of Versailles, the Polish Corridor and other such delectable subjects.

"I am not the Baron" I said turning to the chief of the beggars. "I am only the secretary. The Baron is coming over there, behind me, see!"

"I needn't say any more. Off they were, the whole mob of them, straight for the German tourist. Revenge is sweet. Who won the war anyway?

Eastern Dervish

My European friends in Bagdad informed me that I had come just in time as one of the most famous dervishes from Anatolia banished by Kemal Pasha had that day arrived in town and would give a performance the same evening in a well-known little mosque deep in the native quarter. We went there after dinner. The mosque was jammed with believers. Primitive torches illumined the interior. Before the main card on the bill, there were several side-attractions: dancing houris, who stepped around jigling the bangs on their hands and feet to the beat of the tom-tom. The Moslem sheiks peered at the dancers without saying a word. I dare say they had seen a better performance and so had I. There was no applause. The spectators were apparently saving their breath and energy for later.

At last the Dervish himself made his appearance, accompanied by about twenty assistants. He was easily recognized as the star of the company, for he must have weighed three hundred pounds. One solid mass of flesh that man, a joy of rotundity. Since he wore only a loincloth, he looked more like a pile of greasy automobile tires with a head on top than anything else I can think of; the one roll of fat shimmying on top of the other. His eyes were scarcely visible, just two black points of glittering jet in the depths of a huge pork-chop. He tried to make a sort of curtsy to the congregation. But he could only make his head bend a little. the rest of him just quivered.

The Old Maestro

The hoofing girls who had all squatted down in a semi-circle, pulled their veils straight and seized tambourines and tom-toms. All at once there was a piercing yell, like a steam-whistle, shrill and out of tune. It went to the marrow of your bones. It was as if an electric shock went through the audience. The Dervish had given the signal that he was about to start. "Allaaaah!" he yelled and again, "Alaaaah!" and off he was as the tom-toms began their monotonous cadence.

Around and around he whirled with dizzy speed while his assistants whirled in opposite direction, all of them screaming as if possessed of the devil. The sheiks began to sway their bodies to the rhythm of the tom-toms: Allah-one Akbar-two, one-two, one-two, steadily without pause or interruption. Gradually the rhythm increased. From a marching tempo, it became a canter, from a canter a wild gallop, like that of the horses in front of the fire reels in the old days.

Human Shower Bath

The Dervish was streaming perspiration. So were all the dervishes. Only the boss was almost like a waterfall. As he whirled around, drops of his perspiration were flying around in all directions. It would have been irreverent to put up an umbrella in that mosque, but I wished just the same I had sat further back instead of insisting at the start of the show to sit in the front row with the dancing ladies. Half an hour more and I would have been soaked to the skin under that human shower.

Fortunately the Dervish stopped all at once. He snatched a huge, crooked scimitar, as sharp as a razor-blade, from a corner and began to slash himself with all his might on his head, on his shoulders, on his stomach. No blood flowed. He had reached the stage of auto-hypnotism where there is no pain. Just like an anaesthetic his dance had worked on him. Only he was not asleep, mind you, and no blood flowed either. He flung the sword away in a corner where it rattled ominously, missing me by a couple of inches. His helpers handed him daggers as he began to whirl around again. He jabbed a dagger into his cheek. It produced no pain apparently either. The next dagger went into his breast. Another one in his shoulder. Another in his thigh; is his stomach, in his arms. There they hung quivering in those rolls of flesh, as he kept on whirling, a human arsenal.

Flutes and drums began a new tune. The first was Allah-Akbar, this one was Akbar-Allah. Just the reverse. The dervishes went on whirling, wilder and wilder. Now they too, that is the helpers, began to slash themselves. But unlike the boss they succeeded in drawing blood all right. Blood? Before five minutes they were literally bathing in it. It streamed over their bodies, down to the floor. Their feet slipped and slithered in it. The audience was screaming and yelling for more.

"Time to go!" my English friends nudged me. "Time to go! You can ever tell from now on. There need be only one of them to resent our presence here and they'd make mince-meat of us.

"Why?" I asked. "On general principals," came the answer: "Why should they let an infidel dog live anyway?"

Public School Wins From Grove 4th 3-1

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, February 9. — The Public School Team defeated The Grove 4th Team on Saturday in a hard-fought game. The Grove played a better combination but the Public School boys had more weight —in speed the teams were evenly matched.

Budden played a good goal, but Yale was even better. The latter stopped some hot ones for The Grove, showed better skill in shooting and but for Yale's good work, the score would have been reversed.

The score was 3-1 for the Public School. Public school, G. Charlton from B. Johnston 2; Grove: Dunn 13; Public school, Johnston 4, Public school, Johnston.

The Public school have a promising kid line of subs who gave a good account of themselves, Junkin, Jenkinson and E. Riel. Bernard Johnston was exceedingly good, and Irwin Charlton on defence was to be reckoned with. Robertson and Dunn(I) were the outstanding players for The Grove. Allan Wight was referee.

PAIR OF GUNMEN GET $5,000 CASH

tered the bank door at five minutes to three. Once inside, they discovered two other customers there, a man and a woman. Strolling nonchalantly to a desk, they busied themselves filling out cheque forms until the man and the woman departed.

Then one bandit walked briskly to the front of the teller's cage and levelled his revolver. His companion at the same time slipped in through a gate to the rear of the cage and there ordered the manager, J. H. Fenton; his teller, Alex. Mackay, and the ledger keeper, Wesley Spence, to line up in a row.

Evidently taking a lesson from the hold-up in the Royal Bank at Wellesley and Church Streets earlier in the week, the two thugs were not taking chances on any shooting by the bank staff. They produced cord and began to tie up the three employees.

While they were engaged in this, the telephone rang. One of the gunmen ordered the ledger-keeper, Spence, to answer it, and pointed his weapon at the lad while he told the caller that "the manager was busy."

After this interruption, the gunmen finished gagging the staff and tying their wrists behind their back. Then they placed them in the vault, on their knees, closing the shell door, and leaving the heavy steel outer door open.

What they did after that, beyond removing $5,000, remains a mystery.

Hour's Delay.

It was fully half an hour before the teller, Alex. McKay, of 25 Kennedy Avenue, got his hands free. He then released the bank manager, J. H. Fenton, and the ledger keeper, Wesley Spence. Fenton managed to slide the split-pin away and open the shell door.

The police were telephoned and in short order squads of men in uniform and plain clothes officers were swarming the district.

No possibilities were left uninvestigated. The police even stopped street cars travelling along King and Queen Streets and examined passengers. Realizing that the hoodlums had a long start, they lost no time in communicating with police departments between Toronto, Montreal and Niagara Falls, while northern points were also notified.

Worked Coolly.

The two robbers, both fairly well dressed men of about 25 years, and medium size, went about their business with coolness and determination. Their means of escape remains a mystery. No one in the vicinity of the bank noted either their entrance or departure.

At approximately 2.55 p.m. the two entered the bank. There were two customers inside at the time, a man and a woman. The man concluded his business first.

The two thugs loitered beside one of the desks outside the counter, apparently engaged in making out deposit slips or cheques.

As the door closed behind the woman, one of the thugs, the man with a small black moustache, stepped up to the teller's cage, produced a gun-metal .38 calibre revolver, and ordered the manager and his two employees to "reach for the sky."

INCONSISTENCY.

It would be difficult to find a more striking case of inconsistency than was demonstrated the other night by the Toronto City Council in voting in favor of a surtax on incomes of $10,000 and over—and then turning down a resolution that would have reduced the salaries of members of the Council and Board of Control.

The majority of Toronto's Council had no hesitation in voting to hit somebody else on the plea that the city required additional revenue, but when it came to the matter of striking at their own pockets the bulk of the members were not having any.

If the situation is such as to justify clapping heavier taxes upon a few people in the community, then it is certainly serious enough for economising in every direction, and there is no reason why members of the civic government should not accept their share of the sacrifice.

It is easy enough to pass the buck to somebody else, but not so pleasant to take a stand that will entail a personal loss; in their attitude on these two questions the majority of the members of the Toronto City Council have shown themselves much more alive to their own interests than they are to those of the community generally.

Their action in regard to the surtax on incomes would have been much easier to defend had they first signified their willingness to make their own contribution to a better financial condition.

A GREAT CANADIAN PORT.

A valuable contribution to the campaign to encourage the routing of Canadian products by way of Canadian rail, ships and harbors has been made by the Shipping Register in issuing a splendidly prepared special edition devoted to the harbor of Saint John, N. B.

The question of making more use of Canadian transportation, always a live one in the Maritimes, has taken on a new and more general interest by reason of the Imperial Economic Conference, and the ruling that Canadian grain must be shipped through Canadian ports to be sure of the 6 cents per bushel bonus.

This special number is full of valuable information on the whole subject, and particularly in regard to the facilities offered by the port of Saint John; it cannot be read by any Canadian without a new appreciation of the extent and importance of this great harbor.

In a foreword the Harbor Commission points out that the port of Saint John, once the fourth greatest seaport in the world, once more sees the tide of trade set in towards the flood. Saint John, say the commissioners, "has been quick to feel the impulse of the Imperial Economic Conference."

There is no hint of pessimism in the Harbor Commission's message, or anywhere in the pages of this interesting volume; on the contrary, a perusal of the Shipping Register would prove a good tonic for those who believe the country is on the rocks without a life-saving station in sight.

A SIGNIFICANT REDUCTION.

The announcement that the Ontario Government proposes to reduce its grants to public schools and vocational schools by 20 per cent. and to high schools and collegiate institutes to 10 per cent. should be a plain warning to school boards throughout the province to trim their sails.

From the harassed taxpayers everywhere there is coming a demand for relief from tax burdens in general, and from some of the load caused by educational expenditures in particular.

The reasonableness of that demand, The Examiner submits, has been established by this latest action of the Ontario department itself, which in curtailing its annual grants is not only affecting a provincial saving of considerable proportions, is saying in effect to all those entrusted with the administration of educational affairs that the time has arrived for the inauguration of a policy of genuine economy.

Expenditures upon education in recent years have increased by leaps and bounds; even in times of general prosperity the upward trend was giving considerable concern, and to-day with municipalities everywhere reporting a substantial arrearage in tax collections and with the certain prospect that an even greater portion of this year's taxes will go uncollected, the situation demands serious consideration and calls for courage and backbone from those in charge of the administration of educational affairs.

The deputation which waited upon the local Board of Education on Tuesday night spoke for the vast majority of taxpayers.

AUTOMOBILE MARKERS.

The Examiner is taken to task by a correspondent to-day because of a recent article in regard to automobile license markers.

Apparently this particular citizen—and probably a good many others—has missed the point we were intending to stress in the editorial complained of.

The Examiner is well aware of the fact that many car-owners are having difficulty in finding the ready money with which to purchase automobile licenses, and a short time ago we urged upon the Government the advisability of considering an instalment system of payments to meet the situation, which is surely evidence that we are not anxious to press too hard upon those who are suffering from depleted incomes.

What we were objecting to is the unbusinesslike way in which this marker business has always been handled—in good times as well as in bad.

Instead of putting licenses on sale well in advance, they have on some occasions not even been available at the end of the year, and the result has been that it was not until well on into the new year that there was any rush to secure licenses—a condition requiring needless checking up.

This does not apply in other branches of governmental services. There are no days of grace in regard to liquor permits, for example, and the citizen who goes hunting knows that he has to have his license when he starts out.

It is only in this business of automobile licenses that there is any difficulty or any delay—and in other portions of the continent these conditions are never found.

The motorists know they must have new markers to start the year, and they get them; they would do the same thing here if they had not learned that it will be months before anybody bothers about the matter.

Let the licenses be sold on the instalment plan if considered advisable, make it as easy to pay as possible, but in any case let the thing be handled in a businesslike way.

HOW MUCH DO THEY KNOW?

Again the Russian barter scheme was debated at Ottawa. We believe that the majority of the people in the Dominion would have no objection to trading with Russia. They would favor it if the business were on a fair and plainly-stated basis, and if it were known that the responsible party in Canada—the government—were dealing with the same institution in Russia. Beyond that we see no reason whatever to urge that the Canadian people are called upon to put up the finances and assume all the risk.

There were a number taking part in the debate on that question at Ottawa, and we could not but wonder how many of them would be able to explain exactly how such a deal would be carried out. Do they understand just how the machinery of exchange would operate? Would they favor taking $8,000,000 of our own money and buying Canadian cattle from our own people, and then dealing in oil and coal from Russia, and arranging for its sale until such time as we had equalized the amount? At present the government has heard from a commission man only, and his purpose is to collect his percentage on the business. We wonder if many who told so readily about the deal know exactly of what they are speaking.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

BADMINTON.

When you win at Badminton you're supposed to say "sorry." At Badminton, in fact, one is always "sorry." In most games solicitude for one's opponent is not a marked characteristic. In Badminton, for some curious reason, it's the outstanding characteristic. If your fair (or otherwise) antagonist nets a drive you're "sorry." If you don't net a drive, and score, you're "sorry." You're "sorry" when you hit outside the line, and you're "sorry" when you don't. The whole game, it seems, is one genial round of grief.

Nevertheless, we're not at all sorry that Ottawa has gone and carried off, for the second time, the Ontario Badminton championships. Or the lion's share of them. It's a lot of compensation when our football and hockey teams provide us with all the sorrow we need.

And let no one try to run off with the notion that Badminton isn't a real game, or that it's just for "pansies." It isn't. We'll wager a fiver against a Technocrat dollar that we can take Mr. King Clancy and Mr. Hec Kilrea, put them in a Badminton singles and take them out after three sets feeling as though they had been bodied by Mr. Eddie Shore for three consecutive evenings. This providing one or both of them hadn't broken an ankle, or something—a thing that sometimes happens in Badminton, even to great athletes.

In Badminton you've just got to be in condition. One may be portly and wrestle or be on a football line, but not chase a little feathery bird all over a hard court. Take, for example, the sort of mixed doubles where your nice, angelic-looking female partner tells you that she'll "play the net," which means that she stands up in front of the net ducking everything she shouldn't duck, while you're kept running back and forward across the back of the courts. No man who hasn't the speed of Eddie Tolan and the wind of Tom Longboat can do that.

There's only one worse thing in Badminton that we know of. It's when your lady partner, whom you've just met (and whose name you didn't catch) tells you that she'll "play her own court," which means that she thinks she's good, and what's more, that you—seeing that you asked her to play with you—ought to be good, too. A game like that is a strain. Along comes the bird, right between the two of you, and you, with a sort of "after you, Alphonse," stand there to let her take it, which she doesn't, the bird falling on the court right at your feet. Talk about looks! There is something in the eyes of a woman partner on an occasion like that that you never see anywhere else, and don't want to: a sort of pained contempt and scorn that makes you want to get down on all fours and crawl off the courts. We don't wonder that doctors say Badminton's bad for a weak heart.

Nevertheless, 'tis a great game. The encyclopaedias tell that it was born in 1873—in England, of course—though it wasn't until after the war that it really caught on. When it first came to Canada people said that it would be like Tom Thumb golf or cross-word puzzles, a sort of passing craze, but it hasn't been. It has grown and grown, until now there are more than 500 Badminton courts in Canada, and provincial championships and national championships, and all sorts of other championships.

Nowhere in Canada is it played better than right here in Ottawa. In the Robertson sisters—Ruth and Margaret—this city has two of the smartest players that ever touched a shuttlecock. Ruth has the subtlety and skill, Margaret the smash and dash, things which win championships in Badminton. Here's wishing more power to their racquets.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And now, added to the list of Canadian political parties, we have Mr. Philpott—a doughty fighter, even if he has to fight alone.

The uncontributed portion of the Relief Fund quota is a challenge to those citizens who have not assumed their share of this worth-while effort.

The Federal Government has accepted resolutions introduced by a Progressive and a Liberal member respectively. That sounds more like business than politics.

According to General Ormond's report, Communists had a share in fomenting the recent prison riots. Those Reds are dangerous even when they're locked up, it would seem.

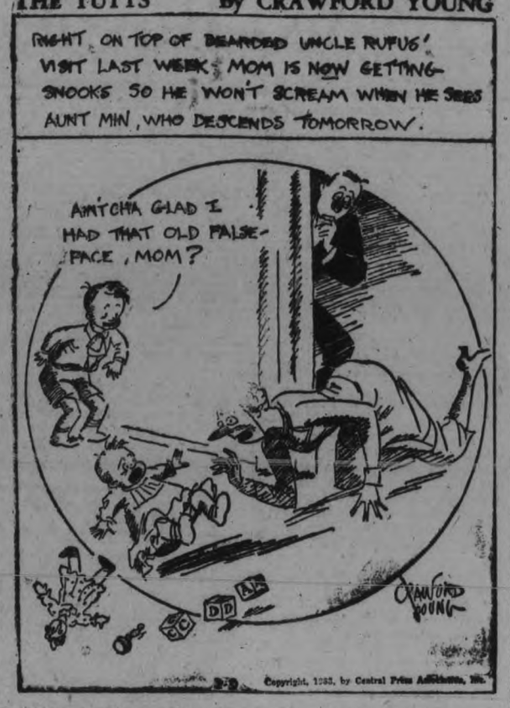
THE TUTTS By CRAWFORD YOUNG



MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 38

"Nothing is going to happen to you," Kane reassured the girl.

"I'm afraid!" she repeated.

"There's nothing to be afraid of," he tried to comfort her. "Chief Lee will station a man near you. If you need help you will only have to scream. Everything will be cleared up in twenty-four hours——"

"You mean you know who the murderer is?" Lee demanded unbelievingly.

"I think I do," the other man returned calmly.

"Who is it?" anxiously.

"That I am not at liberty to disclose—yet. When I turn the criminal over to you I want to have an airtight case and," he added meaningly, "not one that will be open to shafts of ridicule."

The chief gave a hopeless wave of his hand and sank back limply in his chair, to await the pleasure of the other man.

Kane said, "I want you to provide an escort for Miss Hull. See that she gets home safely and please have a man stationed within her call." To Lillian: "I'll see you later today."

This the chief readily assented to and presently, in company with Sergeant James, Lillian Hull left them. When they were alone Kane asked:

"Would you permit me to visit the murder scene?"

"Of course."

Kane thanked him and made ready to leave. Eager to assist in every way the man who had saved him from ridicule Lee detained him for a moment while he summoned a car with chauffeur.

A half hour later Jere Kane alighted from the police car at the murder house. Detective O'Hara was awaiting him.

"The chief telephoned that you were coming," he said with a grin, "and told me to help you in any way possible." An expression of relief crossed his face. "I'm glad to see you back on the case, too," he added enthusiastically.

Kane smiled his thanks. Then he went directly to Bailey's den, after giving instructions to O'Hara not to disturb him under any circumstances. Doffing his hat and laying his cane and gloves on the table he set to work.

First of all, he went through the bookcase thoroughly. The top shelf—the one which had been disturbed on the night of the murder—revealed nothing which would aid him. As a matter of fact, there was little left in this compartment after the murderer had dragged its contents to the floor.

Hastily, he ran over the contents of the second shelf. Mostly there were novels of the cheap, lurid love motif which had been so popular not long before. He surmised that Bailey had gathered these in a futile effort to find some plot worthy of motion picture production.

The third shelf was about equally divided between detective fiction and the better class of novel, while the lower shelf was given over chiefly to technical volumes and histories. Among these he found three volumes which attracted his interest. He drew them out, one by one, and found them to be treatises on the lives of the Borgias of ancient Italy.

How congruous, Kane thought, that a man labeled with the reputation that Bailey bore should have in his library the story of the family whose moral laxities and blood-thirstiness were traditional. There was one, a translation from the German of Klabund, that aroused his interest. He opened it and read how this particular writer had traced the origin of the Borgias back to the mating of a horse and a god of Olympus. At the end of the chapter was this notation:

"I wonder if I am descended from the Borgias."

Disgustedly, he closed the book and started to replace it on the shelf. Something—he didn't know what—impelled him to withdraw it again and glance at the fly leaf. There, in the emboldened handwriting of Nanette and with her signature was this inscription:

"You should find much inspiration in this book."

He snapped the cover and replaced it on the shelf. Quickly, he drew out the other two volumes on the same subject and looked at the fly leaf and on them he found the same inscription with Nanette's signature, but in a different handwriting.

Apparently satisfied he replaced them on the shelf and carefully closed the glass covers. He took another turn about the den, studying it closely. He found but one other thing that interested him at all. It was a tightly folded newspaper on the table.

Curiously, he opened it and found it to be dated Saturday—that was the day of Bailey's death. He tossed it back onto the table, but his aim was bad and it slipped onto the floor and partly opened. He reached to pick it up when his gaze fell on a portion of the picture of Nanette which had attracted him when he looked at the paper Saturday.

When he opened the paper to the photograph reproduction he was not attracted so much by the actress' likeness as that of her companion. It was Dorothy. Now, he realized where he had seen her before. But what interested him most were two words pencilled across the face of the picture:

"Oh yeah?"

He tossed the paper onto the table again and abruptly left the room. O'Hara was sitting in the drawing room reading the morning paper. He did not even look up as Kane passed through on his way outside.

After a peremptory study of the large yard, and particularly the garage he returned to the house, told O'Hara that he was finished, and prepared to take his leave when the telephone rang. The detective answered and then called him.

"It's for you," he said.

Kane answered curtly. But when Lucy Wilbur's voice came to him, throbbing with emotion, he said:

"I didn't expect you back so soon."

"Never mind about that," she cried. "What have you done with Lillian?"

"Why," he told her, "I sent her home."

"She isn't there. I went to the jail to see her and they told me you had managed her release. I went to her apartment and I couldn't raise anyone."

"Where are you now?"

She told him she was in the lobby of the apartment building in which the girl resided.

"Wait there for me," he ordered. "I will come immediately."

Kane dashed from the house and ordered the police driver to take him to the apartment building on Highland avenue. The car lurched forward and raced off. Presently, the machine slid to a stop at the given destination. Kane leaped out and ran in. Lucy was waiting for him.

"I pounded on the door," she said excitably, "but I couldn't make Lil answer."

"Did you try the telephone?"

"Yes, but she didn't answer."

They went to the elevator and were whisked to the fourth floor. A moment later they were at the door of the girl's apartment. Kane tried the door but it was locked. He pounded heavily on the panel but there was no response.

"Have you been here ever since you brought her home?"

"Yes, sir," the detective replied meekly, "just like you said."

"You are sure you have been within call every moment?"

"Every moment," the other assured.

"Have you seen anyone go in this apartment?"

"No, sir, I haven't."

The sergeant hurried away. Lucy stared helplessly at Kane, unable to speak. He tried the door again: he pounded on it. But no one answered.

Interminable moments passed before the detective returned with the grumbling man he had gone after. The caretaker was prone to argue over his right to open the door for strangers but the officer shut him up with:

"Open that door or I'll lock you up."

Without another word the janitor inserted his key, fumbled with it for a moment and pushed open the door. The apartment was dark. Kane rushed in ahead of the others. When he saw what had happened he tried to prevent Lucy from entering, but he was too late.

She screamed and pushed past him. Lillian Hull was lying on the floor, a smear of red stain on the bosom of her dress.

Kane dropped beside her and felt her pulse. Slowly, he removed his hat. "She's dead," he murmured.

THE MAGNIFICENT PEACH

It was long, long ago in an orchard by the river.

Along that river grew cottonwood and sycamore. And the fluff from the cottonwood drifted in the breeze and the sycamores stood beautifully white against the early autumn sky. And the sweetness of the locust trees hung in the air. And I was a small boy, no more than 10 years old, who'd been plundering the fig trees that grew taller than any house in town. Eating my fill and shaking a purple cloud of them down to the powdery earth for the black pigs to devour.

And afterwards, coming up through the fig orchard, I opened a gate and there, right in front of me, hung the largest, most beautiful peach in all the world. I thought so then, I think so still. Above my head, too far for me to reach, it hung, all pink and golden and avarice seized that small boy and his mouth watered and he knew life would hardly be worth while unless he had that peach.

So he spat on his dirty hands and climbed into the tree. Crawled out on a limb and stretched to the magnificent peach. It was twice as large as his two fists together; as large, at least as my two fists now. His hand went under it, tilted it gently, and it dropped into the small palm. Holding it carefully, he came down the tree and sat against the trunk in the soft, silted earth and feasted greedily. First with his eyes and then with his young teeth and finally with all of his small being.

And there was never such a peach before, and never has there been such a peach since. I have been hungry and have enjoyed rough food. I have been thirsty and have dropped to my knees to drink from a cool, noisy stream. But never such luscious meat, such perfumed juices have I known as then on that fair afternoon. There are words to describe, but I cannot find them. The best I can do is remember the greedy joy of that small boy and how the sweetness ran down his throat and spilled out of his mouth and down his neck and the wasps came bothering around; but even they could not dilute the exquisite pleasure of the moment.

There are no such peaches any more. There could not be. Because that small boy is no longer small. For other small boys such peaches do exist; but not for him, grown older, grown larger. For him there can be only the precious memory of that one small boy with a most magnificent peach in his most deplorably dirty hands and the warmth of the afternoon and the thirst in his throat and the sweet juice slaking it. And there's no way to find such a peach except through the gate that leads back to childhood, and that's forever locked.... Unless you have the key to memory and that key will take you back to many an enchanted orchard and many a fragrant moment.

SATISFACTORY REPORTS READ FOR HAVELOCK UNITED CHURCH

Mission Band Awarded Prize for General Proficiency by W.M.S. Presbyterial.

CHOIR REPORT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 9. — The congregational meeting of the United church here was held recently when the reports of the several church organizations were read, and everything considered proved most satisfactory especially from the spiritual standpoint, there being an indication of growth in all departments.

The Mission Band, under the able leadership of Mrs. Kemp, reached its allocation, and won the prizes at the recent meeting of the W.M.S. Presbyterial for general proficiency and the best poster.

The Trail Rangers with Ronald Kemp supervising, are working very hard to fit themselves for the work to come, and to win their badges by passing stiff examinations.

The Young People's League, with Miss Barbara Fennell at its head, is alive and active and helping to advance the Master's Kingdom on earth. The W.M.S. is a great asset to the church, and its members have shown throughout the year that the last command our our Lord is still a vital force among them in Havelock.

The choir under the leadership of R. Bonney, has done its share to promote the worship of the King of Kings, and the beautiful solos, duets, quartets and anthems have ascended Sabbath after Sabbath as sweet incense to the throne above.

Mr. Roberts, superintendent of the Sunday school, reported a small balance on hand, and considering the removal of many families, the attendance was good.

The Ladies' Aid, under the able and energetic supervision of the President, Miss Minnie Williams, gave such an uplifting and gratifying report that a request was made for its publication. It accomplished wonderful work and wound up the year with a balance of $64.92 on hand.

Hearty votes of thanks were extended to the esteemed pastor, Rev. S. A. Kemp, for his loving care of his flock, and for his unremitting attention to the sick and aged of the congregation.

This is the signature of a man who, although he is very ambitious, is inclined to preoccupation with ideas and in consequence lacks in aggressiveness. As a matter of fact, there is a decided indication of desire to eschew activity for a life of contemplation and philosophy. By reason of extreme delicacy of perception and fineness of feeling this man is wrung with pity for the irony implict in living—for humanity at large and for himself, too, for he possesses a detached attitude and a standing off, sees himself as one of the actors on the stage. But he is carried along on the wave of his outstanding ability from success to success, activity to activity. He has an unusual mentality which functions in part deductively but in larger part intuitively. He is very receptive, and sensitive to the point of susceptibility and tender with a tinge of bitterness.

12 Inches Of Snow Falls In District

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 9.— (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.) — Sweeping down on Campbelford and district late yesterday evening a severe snow storm blanketed the countryside to a depth of twelve inches and added that touch of winter that residents of the district have been looking for for many weeks past. Cars went out of fashion in the township and sleighs came into their own as many of the roads were blocked with the heavy snow fall, which fortunately, however, did not drift very badly, there being very little wind. However, this winter condition came as a great benefit to many of the unemployed of town who were called out this morning to remove the snow from the streets and crossings. This has been the heaviest single fall of snow in the district this winter.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A ROMANCE OF POLITICS

On this date, in 1884, there took place a reconciliation between Sir John A. Macdonald and Donald A. Smith, which ended an estrangement of six years. That estrangement began on May 10, 1878, on the day of the closing of the session. Mr. Smith, then M.P. for Selkirk, who had voted against Macdonald on the Pacific Scandal issue, rose to a question of privilege just when the Commoners were expecting the call of Black Rod for prorogation. He had hardly begun before he was interrupted by Hon. Charles Tupper with the remark: "A more cowardly thing I have never seen ventured on in this house"; because there would be no opportunity for Macdonald to reply. Smith retorted: "The charge of being a coward I throw back upon the hon. gentleman" and then Sir John interjected: "Let the poor man go on. There is not a word of truth in that statement. The hon gentleman is stating what is a falsehood," to which Dr Tupper added: "As false a statement as ever issued from the mouth of any man." It is also said that Sir John wound up the matter by shouting: "I can lick that man Smith quicker than hell can scorch a feather."

Macdonald and Smith kept out of each other's way, but if their paths crossed they never exchanged a single word until the crisis in the financing of the Canadian Pacific railway by the Stephen Syndicate (Smith's connection with the organization had been kept in the background) compelled George Stephen to send Smith to Ottawa to make a final appeal to the government for aid. Sir John received him as if the incidents of '73 and '78 had never been and when he reported to Stephen the latter wrote to Sir John expressing his gratitude "for your kind and cordial reception of Smith yesterday. He said nothing, but I know he felt a good deal, and I know—without his saying it—that he is today a much happier man."

Thereafter the relations between John and Don were most friendly. In January, 1886, Sir John wrote to Mr. Smith saying: "I have seen Lord Lansdowne and he is very anxious of recommending you for a ribbon and star as a K.C.M.G. I hope you won't refuse....You persuaded Stephen to accept the honor. Let me persuade you." And so Don A. Smith became Sir Donald and soon afterwards was elected M.P. for Montreal West, for which he sat until 1896 when he went to London as high commissioner, to be the next year created Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Feb. 9. (AP)— The stock market moved higher to-day under leadership of rail shares.

Stocks gaining 1 to 2 included New York Central, America Telephone, Air Reduction, United States Smelting, Delaware and Hudson, Eastman Kodak, Consolidated Gas, Union, and both United States Steel common and prefered. Coca Cola rose 4. General Motors, General Electric, Du Pont, Case and Westinghouse advanced major fractions. Standard Oil of New Jersey was up a point. Turnover approximated 1,100,000 shares.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Feb. 9 (C.P.).—Toronto Exchange had a big day due to the trading in International Nickel, the Distillery issues and the oil shares. The rumor factory was busy again, this time with the liquor issues. Expectation that the ban on liquor exports will be removed was responsible for the buying of Walkers Common and Distillery Seagram.

Nickel advanced to 10 3-8 but profit-taking sent it back to 10 below its close yesterday. Smelters gained a point. Other inter-listed shares closed with gains. Ford closed at 7⅛, while a gain of about 3-8 was registered for Brazilian and 7-8 for C.P.R.

The oil shares were under a buying drive to-day and International Pete moved up to 12¼ and closed near the top. Imperial, British American and McColl Frontenac all did better.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, February 9 (C.P.).—Profit-taking gave the base metal shares a mild shake-out to-day on the Standard Mining Market, but in the last half-hour the price level firmed. Gold shares were slightly off color, but stiffened in the last hour.

The nickel and copper stocks had the play in the early part of the session with rising prices, and then profit-selling by traders brought the price down. Nickel closed down 20 at 9.90. Noranda was scarcely changed at the close.

The gold share market moved along quietly within a narrow range. Lake Shore dropped about 75 to 37.50, Dome 40 to $17, Teck-Hughes 5 to 4.65, and Hollinger 20 to 7.70 while McIntyre and Wright-Hargreaves closed practically unchanged.

Bigelow, at present serving a sentence at Ontario Reformatory at Guelph following his conviction on a charge of criminal negligence in respect to an automobile fatality, appeared under escort at the sittings of the Supreme Court here to-day to testify in a civil action in which his wife, Edna Bigelow, is defendant.

George A. Bigelow, a brother of Herbert Bigelow, is the plaintiff to the action and is seeking to have set aside an agreement and also the cancellation of three promissory notes for $2,000 each. The allegations of plaintiff are that the agreement and notes were obtained by a wrongful act.

The case which opened just previous to the luncheon adjournment before Mr. Justice Sedgewick, is being handled on behalf of plaintiff by R. R. Hall, K.C. Defendant is represented by G. N. Gordon, K.C.

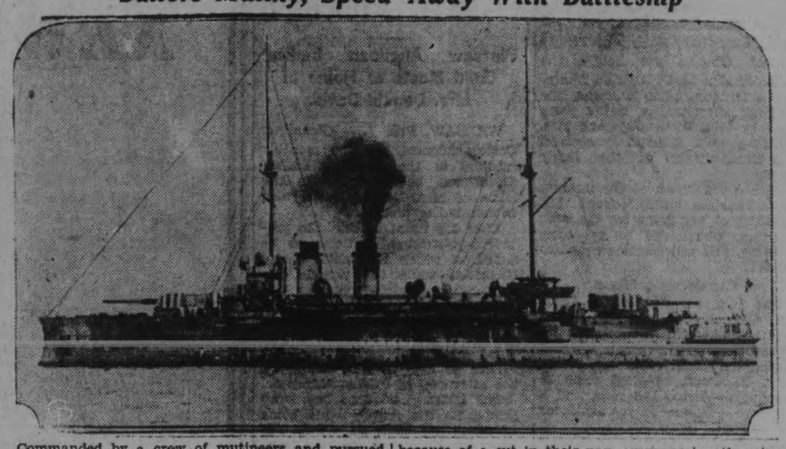
The Utilities Commission has given every assistance in removing interference that might be created by their motors, Mr. Powley said.

Sailors Mutiny, Speed Away With Battleship



Commanded by a crew of mutineers and pursued by battleships, cruisers and a squadron of seaplanes, the Dutch man-o'-war De Zeven Provincien above, raced through the Java sea and Indian ocean in the wildest chase in peace-time naval annals. The battleship was seized in Olehle harbor, Sumatra, by her crew of 400 Sumatran natives, who mutinied because of a cut in their pay, overpowering the nine officers who had remained on board and placing them in irons. While the mutineers wired that they would give up the ship intact and without violence, the wire is discounted by the authorities who are planing to send out an armed force of ships and aeroplanes in an effort to effect the recapture of the boat. The mutineers hold 50 prisoners.

shop, 150 feet from the shop dome. I had been told there would be trouble at three o'clock. Convicts started to rush to the shop dome, and then I saw some convicts come down a water pipe from the mailbag department. The tailor gang went into the shop dome.

"I went there with Inspector Smith and found over 300 convicts yelling. Smith told the men their demands were out of his hands and would be handled from Ottawa. But this wouldn't satisfy them. I went up to the change room and then heard Convict Tim Buck (former leader of the Canadian Communist Party) ask the men if they would give in and they shouted 'No.' Buck further asked if they were ready to stand a siege of two days and two nights and they said they were."

Jolliffee's Part.

According to Guard W. W. Boucher, Jolliffee was working in the printing office in the shop block on Oct. 17.

"Shortly after three o'clock," said Boucher, "Jolliffee gave a hard yell and grabbed a heavy club or bat and started to use it on the door. He then ran into the paint shop yelling, 'Come on you—what the—— is the matter with you?'

"I reached for the bat, and another convict, Nansen, with a third convict, menaced me and I had to step out of the road when I couldn't stop them. All three pounded on the door and Jolliffee smashed the door knob on the door leading to the shop dome. The other two convicts went to the back of the shop. Jolliffee yelled, 'Bring me an iron or crowbar.' By that time they were yelling, cursing, swearing, pounding on doors. The door of the paint shop was broken from the outside, and a number of convicts rushed in while the convicts already in rushed out. I followed and saw about 300 in the shop dome, and they were in control.

"Shortly after that Inspector Smith (since relieved) came.

"Speeches were made by Sam Behan, Garceau and Tim Buck. Inspector Smith tried to leave and Convict Evans held the door. I heard some convict yell, 'Come on, boys,' and so 50 rushed out towards the prison of isolation and I heard a shot fired, but the convicts did not stop. I heard many more shots fired and the convicts came back into the shop dome."

Unwanted

DENVER, Feb. 9. (AP)—Hyman Streit's conscience was all right—it was just the 17 below temperature that urged him into a police station.

"Send me back to Miami Beach, Fla., and I'll do that stretch for stealing a car," he told the officers.

But the Florida police replied thus to a telegram informing them of Hyman's arrest:

"Let him freeze. We don't want him and we haven't got anybody who'd come up there after him."

Hyman was one of the very few persons on Denver streets last night.

MERCURY DROPS ALONG SEABOARD

20 LIVES LOST.

NEW YORK, February 9 (C.P.).—Winter's icy front advanced to the United States Atlantic seaboard to-day, transforming spring-like weather into a frigid blast that brought chills to the territory east of the Appalachians.

Storm warnings were displayed along the Atlantic coast line all the way from Jacksonville, Fla., on the south to Eastport, Me., on the north, as the east prepared to resist the effects of advancing storms which brought intense suffering in the west, mid-west, and south-western sections, and cost 20 lives.

A blizzard was raging in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. The barometer dropped under the lowest pressure ever recorded in the history of the Mount Washington Observatory.

Intense suffering among the destitute gave relief agencies new problems in Eastern Pennsylvania, where temperatures dropped 40 degrees in 24 hours. Snow choked many highways and air traffic was paralyzed.

Meanwhile there was no let-up, and none in sight for the mid-west and west.

League Will Ignore New State Machukuo

GENEVA, Feb. 9. (AP) — The committee of nineteen of the League, considering the latest proposal of Yosuke Matsudka, Japanese spokesman, concerning the Sino-Japanese situation, to-day decided to maintain its support of non-recognition of the new Japanese-sponsored state of Machukuo.

It also was decided to ask the Japanese to make clear whether they were willing to agree that continuation of Mancukuo does not constitute a solution of the problem.

The committee took the view that any settlement on a conciliatory basis would be unacceptable unless Japan were willing to acknowledge Chinese sovereignty in Manchuria and admit that maintenance of the present regime was unsatisfactory for a settlement.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 9. (AP)— Much enlarged general buying lifted wheat prices early to-day. Severe cold added to trade apprehension of damage to domestic winter wheat over unprotected wide areas. Cables reported better demand at Liverpool, opening ½-⅝ up, wheat afterward rose further, corn started at ¼-⅜ advance, and continued to gain.

VERIGIN TRIAL AGAIN DELAYED

BACK IN DETENTION.

HALIFAX, Feb. 9.—(C.P.)—The question of whether or no Peter Verigin had finished his term for perjury in Prince Albert prison halted a Supreme Court hearing to-day when Dominion immigration authorities were required to show cause why the Doukhobor spiritual leader was held for deportation to Russia.

C. B. Smith, K.C., representing the immigration department, had stated that Verigin's sentence had been commuted and J. J. Powers, K.C., acting for the Doukhobors, had demanded records to support the statement.

In Mr. Power's opinion the leader could not be deported before his sentence was terminated and he declared his client served only nine months of an 18-months' term.

Mr. Justice Humphrey Mellish adjourned hearing in order to give Mr. Smith an opportunity to procure a certified copy of the Governor-General's order.

Mr. Smith said the document must remain in the custody of the Department of Justice except in the event of a court order calling for its production.

His Lordship directed that it be produced in court, and Verigin was returned to the immigration detention quarters to await further argument on Friday, Feb. 17.

King Pulls Surprise By Ability To Skate

SANDRINGHAM, England, Feb. 9.—(A.P.)—His Majesty declines to surrender to age and has thrown down the gauntlet to years by skating on several occasions on a lake on the grounds of Sandringham House, where he is remaining because of the prevalence of influenza in London.

His subjects are amazed for the double reason that most of them did not know he could skate and they never thought he would undertake such a sport at the age of nearly 68, especially in view of the fact that he has guarded his health since his desperate illness several years ago.

The King always has been an outstanding sportsman and, besides being an expert yachtsman, has been credited by many with being the best shot with a sports gun in England.

The King's health, according to those close to him, is better now than for years.

Drifts Near Regina Halt Passenger Train

REGINA, Feb. 9.— (C.P.) — A quarter-mile-long snow drift today held a passenger train and four auxiliary engines, sent to pull loose the train, in a tight grip midway between Yorkton and Regina. Railway employees worked in 25-below zero weather to clear the tracks.

Aboard the train when it ran into the drift l... night were three persons being rushed to hospital. Railway officials managed to get a doctor and nurse to the train within a few hours and they remained with the sick.

PEEPING FAN LEAVES BICYCLE.

WINDSOR, Ont.—If the window-peeper who was disturbed in his observations wants his bicycle back, he can get it at the police station, and the police would welcome him with open arms. The "peeper" was seen by occupants of a Giles Boulevard home. They rushed out and frightened the peeper away. But he didn't have time to get on his bicycle.

Driven From Home In Night Attire

TORONTO, Feb. 9 (C.P.)—Awakened by smoke in their bedroom, three young school teachers early to-day were driven into the streets in night attire. One of them, Miss Thelma Bateman, was seriously frost-bitten. Miss Irene Pugh and Miss E. Trewartha were living in an upstairs apartment with Miss Bateman. The fire was believed caused by a faulty hot water heater.

CAREW COMPANY GETS JUDGMENT

DEAL MADE IN 1930.

Judgment was entered this morning by Mr. Justice Sedgewick at the Supreme Court Sessions here, in favour of The Dick and Carew Lumber Company Limited who claimed specific performance of a contract entered into by Harry L. Jopling, and the defendant's counter claim asking a declaration that he had not entered into an agreement as alleged by the plaintiffs, and also $1500 and costs failed.

Plaintiff Company was represented by J. F. Strickland, K.C., while G. N. Gordon, K.C., was counsel for the defendant Jopling.

It appeared from the evidence that on August 1, 1930 defendant who had been a tenant on the company's property was given the option of purchasing lot 9 north of Murray street and west of George street running parallel to Bethune street, together with the use of a railway siding connecting with the Canadian National Railway line.

In evidence Mr. Jopling said that some time ago he rented under a lease part of lot 9 north of Murray street. The lease provided him with the right to use the railway siding and switch, although he did not himself have much use for the siding.

Railway cars were "spotted" on the siding, and witness said he had been told by George A. MacDonald a director of the Dick and Carew Company that he could charge rental for the railway cars that used the siding. As a result witness billed several people for use of the siding, but they all came back with the story that witness could not collect.

"I had a conversation with Alpine Macnab, station agent, defendant testified, "and he told me I could not collect rentals for cars using the siding as it was an open siding".

Relating the circumstances under which Mr. Lawrie gave him the option of purchasing the land and property, defendant stated, "I told him I could not pay cash and he said he could arrange matters so that he would accept $1500 cash and the balance on terms".

"I told him right then and there", Jopling testified, "that as there was a dispute as to who owned the siding I wanted definite assurance as to who owned it before I would agree to buy the property. Lawrie said the siding belongs to The Dick and Carew Lumber Company, and if you own the property you can collect revenue from it".

"Did he state that", His Lordship asked.

"Yes. Most decidely he did", defendant claimed stoutly.

Defendant continued to relate that the mortgage was arranged and the first payment of $1500 was paid by him. He did not get the deed to the property until some time later.

After looking over the deeds in his own office, defendant stated, he failed to find anything in the document that gave him the switching privileges and the right of rental revenues and possession of the rails and ties with the privilege of moving them if he so desired.

His Lordship—You are overstepping the mark.

Defendant—Probably I am My Lord.

Recalled to the witness box D. J. Lawrie was addressed by His Lordship. "You heard the defendant give evidence in which he stated that you had said he would have possession of the siding, ties, rails and everything else. What do you say about that. Did that happen?"

"No, My Lord", witness replied.

"The whole contract you are suing on was made that day", His Lordship reminded witness.

"The ties and rails were not mentioned My Lord", Mr. Lawrie reiterated.

Mr. Gordon—When you gave instructions for the deed to be signed you were still under the impression that this siding and switch was on your property and you thought you were selling to Harry Jopling the switch and the siding.

"No," said Mr. Lawrie, "We had word from the railway company that we had no control over the siding.

He added that the Dick and Carew Lumber Company had never collected any siding rents from firms who used the siding and had never paid any rents.

George A. MacDonald also recalled with reference to the conversation defendant claimed to have had with him relative to the charging of siding rentals, said "I have no recollection at all of having discussed "spotting" of cars or rental charges with Harry Jopling.

The C.N.R. owned the siding Mr. MacDonald said and in December 1929 he had been definitely informed by the company that they controlled the siding.

MOUNTAIN CLAN FACING MURDER

Eight Arrested Following Cult "Sacrifice" of Aged Women.

CHANT IN JAIL.

INEZ, Ky., Feb. 9 (C.P.).—Praying for deliverance, in a gutteral, unearthly chant, eight members of a mountain family are in jail today, seven of them charged with murder, following the cult "sacrifice" of an aged woman.

Police said they crashed their way through barred doors into the desolate Mills homestead as plans were made to place the body of Mrs. Lucinda Mills, 72, on an altar.

Interrupting the haunting ritual of fasting and mystic rites, which police say started last Friday, culminating in a mad frenzy of ardor, the officers arrested two daughters, two sons, a grandson, and two sons-in-law and a daughter-in-law of the slain woman.

The prisoners, held in the Martin County Jail here, are John Mills, 36, and Fred, 34, sons of the woman; Ballard, a 25-year-old grandson; Blaine McGinnis and Tom Boyd, sons-in-law; Mrs. Mollie McGinnis and Ora Mills, daughters, and Mrs. John H. Mills, the daughter-in-law.

Tom Boyd is held as a material witness, the officers said, adding that the remaining seven are charged with murder.

Relief Fund Total Passes $10,000 Mark

With the addition of two further subscriptions to the Peterborough Relief Fund yesterday afternoon, the total of contributions recorded in the books of City Treasurer Adams reached the figure $8,257.35. In addition to this cash total, pledges sufficient to bring the total to more than $10 000 have been received.

The subscriptions received yesterday by Mr. Adams were $25 from the King's Daughters, and $10 from John C. Rutherford of 585 Rubidge street. Unmentioned before is a subscription of $62.76 from the staff of the Prudential Insurance Company which has been made directly to the Central Relief Board in regular weekly contributions for some months past. The authors of this subscription have offered to continue the weekly donations as long as the present exigent situation continues.

Mr. Adams, as custodian of the Relief Fund, turned over a cheque for $8,000 in cash to the Central Relief Board yesterday.

Montgomery Wilson Is Confident Of Win

And the grace in the figures he cut, then retraced on the rink as he schooled himself for the championships, set for Friday and Saturday of this week, made onlookers feel his confidence was not misplaced.

As the slim young Canadian left the ice of the fashionable rink atop Madison Square Garden Wednesday after his daily prep he stopped to discuss modestly his past and his future. He is looking for work at present, but does not consider turning professional.

BONARLAW BIBLE CLASS HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Feb. 9.—On Friday evening of last week, the Adult Bible Class of St. Mark's Sunday School held their annual banquet in the club rooms of the Bellview Hotel, about 50 persons being present. The supper was announced as a "Pork and Beans Supper," but the tables were literally groaning under an abundant supply of various good things in addition to the delicious pork and beans.

Owing to lack of space it was necessary to limit the invitations to actual attending members of the class, the teachers and officers of the Sunday school, and the Rector, together with their families.

After supper a real social time was enjoyed by all. This gave the new Rector, Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne, Mrs. Swayne and Robert, who were present, an opportunity to get acquainted with a large number of the Sunday school.

DRAMATIC SCENE AS YOUNG MAN IS ARRESTED BY CITY POLICE

few minutes in the court's procedure, and as might have been expected by those who have come to know Mr. Justice Sedgewick by the revelations of his personality on the bench, especially his sympathy and gentleness, His Lordship was the first to interrupt this sequent action and tell him Mrs. Henrichon apparently wanted to speak to him.

Mr. Gordon went over to the railing, and then asked the court's permission to go down to see the young man, as the mother probably requested.

Could Not Intervene

Downstairs at the corridor leading to the jail Mr. Gordon and the mother met Chief Newhall and the substance of their brief conversation can only be surmised, but perhaps correctly. With a gesture of helplessness, raising his hands apart, Mr. Gordon evidently told Mrs. Henrichon that nothing could be done at that stage. Her son was wanted by the Montreal police department, either on suspicion or otherwise, in connection with some holdup, and the local police would have to detain him. Pleading was of no use.

Presently the two officers came out from the jail with young Henrichon, passed out through the crowded main corridor to the police car and were gone.

Mr. Gordon returned to the court room. "Exeunt omnes" as the greatest of dramatists wrote in the finality of some of his fifth acts. The jurors who had found young Henrichon not guilty of causing the death of Frederick Fletcher in an Aylmer street rooming house at a New Year's eve liquor party had got their pay, the quiet dignity of the court presided in its wonted way, particularly with Mr. Justice Sedgewick on the bench he is about to vacate for the chairmanship of the Dominion Tariff Board, and a mother's woe that had quickly routed her joy seemed to be forgotten.

Such an incident, the only high light to the Henrichon trial, must have recalled to spectators, who watched the sudden and unexpected denouement, one application or meaning of an old apothegm, and a truth, that has come down from human experience—"Mothers must weep."

Jury Out Twenty Minutes

The jury was out only a scant twenty minutes, from about 4.40 o'clock until 5, and their verdict was announced by the veteran foreman, Herb R. Martin, "not guilty on both counts." One was manslaughter and the other "causing grievous bodily harm."

Mr. Gordon immediately asked for the discharge of the prisoner, Harold Henrichon.

Mr. Justice Sedgewick thanked the jurors for the attention they had given the case.

"I think you have done right," His Lordship remarked. "I feel that if I were given the same task I should have returned the same verdict."

Turning to eHnrichon, who stood up in the box, His Lordship said. "You are discharged and free to go. I hope you will remember that that was not the sort of evening for a young lad of twenty. A boy of your age has no business getting drunk in any circumstances whatever. I hope you will try to get something out of this that will be of help to you. You can't blame people for bringing you here and putting you through the form of trial. It was the proper thing to do. Matters such as the death of that man ought to be cleared in court, but I hope you will make it something that may be helpful to you in your life."

"Yes, sir", Henrichon replied.

His mother had sighed with relief when she heard the jury's decision, and when Mr. Justice Sedgewick had ended his advice she went to the prisoner's box and kissed her son several times. The police were then standing close by with their missive from Montreal.

Afternoon's Evidence

At the opening of the afternoon session, Mr. Battle, Crown Prosecutor, resumed the examination of Constable Piercey.

"Henrichon showed me a suit of underwear he had on while the scrap was going on. There was a smear of blood on it."

"Henrichon told me Fletcher was wrestling around with him on the bed," witness told Mr. Gordon. "They both got up and started to fight. Henrichon told Fletcher to get out of the room. When he got to the top of the stairs he passed Condie. He got to the third or fourth stair and fell down the rest of the way."

Police Constable Naples said Condie had told him there had been a drunken fight about 1.30. When Condie got up in the morning to fix the furnace, he thought he heard Fletcher snoring on the couch in the kitchen where he had been placed after the fight. Condie didn't turn on the light. He did not return to the kitchen until 9 a.m. Fletcher was then dead.

Chief Constable Newhall testified that Henrichon had informed him that he went by a double name on the road as a transient because of a previous conviction. The name he had given Detective Meagher was Harold Kenyon.

To Mr. Gordon witness said the prisoner was convicted of stealing a motor meter and also of being in a fight in a Hull bar room.

Condie's Testimony

Robert Condie, proprietor of the Aylmer street rooming house, said his bedroom was on the ground floor.

"Fletcher came along about 9 o'clock in the evening. He had half a bottle of brandy. We drank that in the kitchen. About 11.30 Tessier brought down a bottle of Scotch. Henrichon also came down. There were four or five bottles. After a while Fletcher and Henrichon got into an argument and talking fight. I told them I didn't want anything like that, and they'd better go out side."

Nothing further happened at that stage of the party. After Henrichon and Fletcher went upstairs, Condie took up to them a pitcher of beer to get rid of it. Fletcher asked if he could stay all night.

"I said he could, and he said he'd sleep with Fletcher.

Fletcher had a glass of the beer but Henrichon didn't drink his. My room was at the front on the ground floor and Henrichon's was at the rear on the second.

Heard Thump On Floor

I went to bed. About three-quarters of an hour later I heard a thumping noise as if some one had fallen. I goes upstairs and when I got to the top step and I meets Fletcher. When I was on the top step he was on the first going down. He had just his shirt on. I says, "What's going on." Henrichon says "I gave him two or three punches. The ——— is no good." Henrichon was coming out the door of his room.

When Fletcher got down two or three steps he fell. I turns around and he's lying on the floor at the bottom on his back."

Condie and Henrichon carried him to a couch in the kitchen and covered him with two quilts and an overcoat.

"So you didn't see him sliding down the stairs", Mr. Battle asked.

"No," Condie answered.

He said Henrichon was two or three steps behind Fletcher who was walking rather fast toward the stairs.

Condie said he, himself, "got pretty full." The New Year's eve party consumed half bottle of brandy, bottle of Scotch produced by Tessier and Henrichon's bottle of wheat whiskey.

Argument Over Nationality

In the first argument downstairs, Fletcher said he was an Englishman and wouldn't be a Canadian.

Mr. Gordon — When Henrichon came out of his room did he look to be chasing Fletcher?

Condie—He didn't seem to be in a hurry.

Mr. Gordon—He was approaching you.

Condie—Yes.

Mr. Gordon—What would you say about Fletcher's ability to navigate the stairs in his condition?

Condie—He was walking fast and you wouldn't think he could make it.

This concluded the Crown's case.

Dr. T. W. H. Young was the first witness called by Mr. Gordon. His evidence was to the effect that the fracture of the skull might have been caused by Fletcher's head striking against the edge of a stair in his fall.

Mr. Battle said there was a large box in the hall upstairs. It was used for stowing bed clothes and stood against a wall.

"If a man were thrown violently against that box his head striking an edge of it might that have caused such an injury as in this case?" Mr. Battle asked.

Dr. Young agreed that it might, depending on the circumstances.

Mr. Gordon said that the box was ten feet from the head of the stairs, and asked whether Fletcher could have walked that far if his injury had been caused by the box.

Dr. Young—He'd have to get up first, but he wouldn't be able to with an injury like that.

Mother's Evidence

Mrs. Constance Henrichon, Western avenue, Montreal, still young and personable, mother of the prisoner, was the only defense witness. She said her parents were born in London, Eng. and her birthplace was Montreal.

Explaining her son's use of the Kenyon alias, she said that when he was a child she had to go out to work. While away from home she left her son with a family named Kenyon, and by that association he used that name because he liked it better than Henrichon. For some years he had worked at odd jobs but latterly was unable to get work.

Mrs. Henrichon said her son was 21 years old last Sunday.

Addresses By Counsel

Mr. Gordon in addressing the jury said the the Crown was required to prove that Henrichon had assaulted Fletcher in a way to cause his death. He was charged on two counts, one of manslaughter, and the other of causing grievous bodily harm. Manslaughter means the killing of a man, such as throwing a man down stairs or against a box, imploying such violence as to bring about death. On the second count the same degree of violence was not implied, and might result in a serious illness or injury, not fatal. Mr. Gordon reviewed the evidence that Fletcher had never stayed over night before at Condie's house. When he was given permission to stay he chose to sleep in Henrichon's bed, although he had not known him before. Then a wrestling began in the bed, and the prisoner "gave Fletcher a few punches."

"It cannot be suggested that Henrichon knew Fletcher was suffering injuries that might be fatal and should receive attention. The evidence was that Condie and the prisoner simply thought that Fletcher was drunk. Then in the morning when it was found that Fletcher was dead, Henrichon suggested that the police be notified."

Mr. Gordon said the jury should decide that the injury was caused by Fletcher's fall down stairs.

Mr. Battle argued that Fletcher's black eye and facial bruises were caused by the prisoners and such injuries were embraced by the qualification "causing grievous bodily harm." The fall on the floor that brought Condie upstairs was another evidence of a quarrel in anger which was in itself an unlawful act.

"On the count of manslaughter, a big sounding word, meaning an unlawful act causing the death of a person, it was shown that Fletcher left the room in his shirt without taking time to put on his trousers", Mr. Battle said in his review of the case.

"Was it altogether an accident that Fletcher, pounded on the face, partly intoxicated, and fearing his attacker, who was only a few feet behind him, suppose he fell, was that just accidental? If Fletcher was not fleeing, but was just going down stairs for some other reason that is not mentioned in the evidence, does not that give point to what I suggest. The evidence proves he got downstairs in one of two ways. One was that in fleeing past Condie he fell all the way to the bottom. The Crown doesn't seek to strive for conviction. We are doing our best to administer justice in a decent, fair way, to the accused, to the deceased man and to the rest of the community, to keep an influence in the community that will persuade people to say that they must obey and respect the law."

$2,255 SURPLUS IN CITY IN 1932

Very Favorable Showing is Made by City in Financial Statement.

RELIEF BIG ITEM

Peterborough financial statement of assets and liabilities for 1932, as prepared by Frank Adams, city treasurer, shows a surplus of $2,255.53.

Members of the City Council expressed marked satisfaction with the city's financial position as reflected in these figures when the statement was read Monday night at the Council meeting.

The surplus of $2,255.53 is left after paying "$21,000 to the Central Charity Board, over the appropriation provided in the 1932 estimates," the statement explains.

"There wil lbe an item to be provided for in 1933 of $6,773.69 for unemployment relief, either by the issue of debentures or include it in the estimates for 1933," the statement points out.

Overdraft in Bank.

"The Bank of Montreal overdraft on December 31, 1932 was $176,859.22 as compared with the December 31, 1931, overdraft of $322,259.33, a reduction of $145,400.11," it continues.

"Under the difficult conditions of unemployment during 1932, this is a very favorable showing, and the Council is to be congratulated on this very satisfactory result of the year's operation," the statement concludes.

It is noticed in the statement that included in the assets are: Old arrears, $17,638.28, arrears for 1932, $110,332.06; and for 1931 $33,247.88.

The percentage of taxes paid for 1931 is 90.59 per cent. and for 1932 87.98 per cent., the difference being 2.61 per cent.

RACKING COUGH RELIEVED IN A NIGHT

How Mother Conquered Child's Chronic Chest Cold.

Do you know what it is to lie in bed at night, listening to a racking cough tearing at your child's lungs? Then read how another mother fought the constant chest colds to which her son was subject. You may bless the knowledge before the winter's over. "My boy has suffered from persistent colds on the chest, and seems to be continually suffering from a persistent cough," writes this mother, "He could not get any sleep, and I was on the point of seeking medical advice. However, I sent for 'Thermogene' and made a jacket to cover the throat and chest. And the remarkable part is as follows: He slept without coughing until morning — the persistent, racking cough had gone completely. He has now no sign of chest trouble whatever." Isn't that marvellous news? For what "Thermogene" Medicated Wadding did for that child—it will do for you and yours. The pain-relieving essences with which "Thermogene" is impregnated never fail. Unlike drugs, which give only temporary relief—they attack the trouble at its source. "Thermogene" is a clean, soft, fleecy cotton wool. It can be applied without any of the mess and fuss of poultices, and can easily be worn beneath your clothes without the slightest inconvenience. Neither does it stain. It keeps on working until you're better. Get a box today from your nearest druggist, and use it for all the ailments mentioned on the container.

COULD NOT TURN HER HEAD

Her Body Had to Turn With it

TORTURED BY MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM

An ounce of help is worth a ton of pity. It was to this woman. Many friends pitied her. But one gave her a word of advice. After that word of advice she was no longer an object of pity.

She writes:—" I suffered with muscular rheumatism in the neck—it was torture. I spent quite a large sum of money in trying certain treatments and medicines, but could get no relief. I could not turn my head round when I wanted to—I had to turn my body as well. My friends all pitied me. Then one advised me to try Kruschen Salts, which I did. And in six months I was a different woman. Now if I feel the least twinge of rheumatism, I take a dose of wonderful Kruschen Salts, and it vanishes. I shall never fail to recommend Kruschen after what I have suffered."—Mrs. S.

Kruschen is a powerful solvent of the torturing crystals of uric acid. It swiftly dulls their sharp edges, then flushes them out of the system. Your pains ease; swellings subside, knotted joints become loose. Afterwards, the "little daily dose" of Kruschen so stimulates the liver and kidneys that regular and complete elimination is ensured. Your inside is kept clean. Mischievous uric acid never gets the chance to accumulate again.

FREE TRIAL OFFER OF KRUSCHEN

Try Kruschen now at our expense. We have distributed a great many special "GIANT" packages which make it easy for you to prove our claims for yourself. Open the trial bottle first, put it to the test, and then, if not entirely convinced that Kruschen does everything we claim it to do, the regular bottle is still as good as new Take it back. Your druggist is authorized to return your 75c. immediately and without question. You have tried Kruschen free at our expense. What could be fairer? Manufactured by E. (Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Feb. 9. — On Monday. Shortly after one o'clock. the fire alarm called out the volunteer firemen, who responded for a blaze at the home of Mrs. A. Kincaid. The cause of the fire was a chimney, which had apparently burned out about 8 in the morning, but about noon was discovered to have been smouldering in the attic. It was burned through the roof and requir-ed efforts to keep from spreading through the roof.

Furniture and fixtures were hurriedly removed to the basement of Trinity United Church, almost opposite. Considerable damage was done to the ceilings and walls by water. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Tuesday evening a fire call was answered for a chimney fire at Mr. Salisbury's home, South Durham street, but the fire was quickly under control, and little damage was done.

You'll do it better on DATED coffee

Science says coffee is a wonderful stimulant. Drink it to sharpen your wits as well as to pep up your muscles. But never drink stale coffee.

IT'S the fast-moving, mentally quick, peppy people who drink most coffee. They frankly use coffee as a stimulant . . . cup after cup.

Yet some of us actually don't dare to take more than one cup! Must we deprive ourselves?

No, says science . . . not if the coffee is fresh. If you are a normal, healthy grown-up, you can drink as many as 5 cups a day of fresh coffee, without bad effects.

But stale coffee contains nearly half a cup of rancid oil to every pound. You can easily get indigestion or "nerves" or sleeplessness from stale coffee. No wonder Chase & Sanborn instituted Dated Coffee.

In half-pound and one-pound tins. With the date of delivery to your grocer printed on every tin. And none allowed to stay on your grocer's shelf longer than 10 days. Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee is always sure to be fresh—and rich in flavor.

Order Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee tomorrow. You'll be faster at sports, play a keener game of bridge—on Dated Coffee.

DON'T DESTROY the ELASTICITY *that makes stockings wear

DO YOU KNOW what causes those ruinous stocking runs?

New stockings are elastic. They give under strain, stretch and then spring back again. When this precious elasticity is destroyed, the silk threads, instead of giving, break under strain. It is then that runs start!

That is why Lux is especially made to preserve the elasticity that makes even sheer stockings WEAR.

Wash this 2-minute way:

1. One teaspoon of Lux diamonds per pair. 2. Squeeze gentle Lux suds through stockings, rinse well.

Don't use too-warm water—it fades colour. Dissolve Lux in hot water and cool to lukewarm for use.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades colour. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Law Has Hunt

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 9. (AP)—Fox hunting was indulged in by Deputy Sheriffs here, but there were no hounds, no blare of horns, not even a horse.

But L. Sandman complained two foxes had stolen 56 chickens and two ducks. Two deputies set out in hot pursuit, which at last report was not so hot.

The foxes still had the situation well in hand.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT BIBLE COURSES

Ministers of City Conducting Training Classes in Y.W. C.A. This Week.

The Bible Study and Teachers' Training courses being held in the Y.W.C.A. this week under the sponsorship of the Christian Education Council of Peterborough are bringing out a record attendance.

The brief worship services preceding the lectures' have been worthwhile and thanks is due to Dr. A. J. Madill, Rev. C. R. Jones and Rev. William McDonald who have already taken their periods and to Rev. G. K. Tyler and Mrs. J. A. McKone who will have charge Thursday and Friday evenings.

This source of training and study has proven itself to be very helpful and instructive. From the comments overhead as the members leave the rooms each night and the increasing of the attendance for each lecture one can readily realize the keen interest being displayed by the teachers of Sunday School classes in the city.

The courses take into consideration all angles of the project under discussion. For those interested in the child, a very constructive course has been provided by Mrs. L. J. Pettit, which deals with the various ways and means of using material at hand and the methods of handling the children's work.

The course on the psychology of adolescence is also treated in like manner by Rev. C. D. Daniel. The relating of the characteristics of the boy and girl and balancing them with those of Jesus and how we are going to show and teach the youth the way to live up to those characteristics, has proven most beneficial to the men and women taking the course are all greatly enthused about the lectures.

This is also true of the Young Peoples' course on Material and Methods for use in a Young People's Society. These members are so enthused over their course that they worked overtime during the recreational period last evening, which is a real tribute to their instructor, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

Dr. McLean's course on the Teaching Value of the Old Testament is also very interesting and each evening a few more are out to hear about the greatest of all books. Dr. McLean, has personally been over the ground covered in this course and so is one fully equipped to carry on these very beneficial lectures.

More chairs had to be provided for Rev. H. J. Sutcliffe's class room after the course on the Life of Jesus, was under way. This too, shows with what enthusiasm the young people are following the worship of Christ and endeavouring to learn more about His life.

There are only two evenings left and any who have not attended at least one lecture are urged to join the classes for to-night and to-morrow.

It is planned to hold only one lecture period to-morrow evening and then hold a social hour when the interim certificates will be presented.

FRANK CRAIG IS FINED $200

Convicted in Lindsay Court for Illegal Possession of Alcohol Mash.

TWO CAR ACCIDENTS.

LINDSAY, February 9 (Special to The Examiner). — Frank Craig, of Victoria Road, was fined $200, and costs, and one month in jail, by Police Magistrate Jordan for illegal possession of mash suitable for the manufacture of spirits. An additional six months was imposed in default of payment of the fine. Craig was arrested by Constable Woods of the R.C.M.P.

Gordon Stuart, of Uxbridge, had a narrow escape from death on No. 7 Highway, near Blackwater. He was returning from Beaverton where he figured in a hockey match, and when rounding a corner at the C. N. R. crossing in a swirling snowstorm he collided with the Highway Department snow plough, which had been stopped on its route north in order that the side curtains could be adjusted. The two side fenders of his car were clipped off, and Stuart escaped with only a shaking up.

Ollie Kellett, of Oshawa, and formerly of Lindsay, figured in a bad auto accident near Oakwood last night. His car collided with a team of horses driven by Wesley James of Mariposa. James had a lighted lantern on his sleigh at the time of the crash. A passenger in Kellett's car sustained facial injuries when being thrown through the windshield and one of the horses was injured. Damage to the car amounted to about $150. The police are investigating.

Victoria County Loyal Orange Lodge has elected the following officers for the year: C. Master, P. Chase, Lindsay; D. C. Master, R. E. Spence, Hartley; Chaplain, Rev. Mr. Dyer, Bobcaygeon; Secretary, Harry Brown, Lindsay; Financial Secretary, E. Smith, Reaboro; Treasurer, E. W. Moore, Lindsay; Marshal, J. Alton, Jr., Hartley; Lecturers, R. Smith, W. Reeds, Reaboro; J. Gorrill, Oakwood. A strong resolution opposing further concessions to the Separate Schools was passed.

MAY SUBSTITUTE RAILWAY BOARD

Murdock Suggests It Take the Place of Arbitral Board Suggested by Duff.

MEIGHEN OPPOSES IDEA.

OTTAWA, February 9 (C.P.). — A move was made before the Senate Railway Committee to-day to substitute the Board of Railway Commissioners for the Arbitral Board suggested by the Duff Royal Commission to settle disputes between the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

Senator James Murdock moved a motion to substitute the Railway Board in the Government legislation under review by the committee but it was opposed by Senator Arthur Meighen, Government Leader in the Upper House.

Senator George Gordon expressed the opinion that no tribunal would be necessary. He thought the heads of both companies had "learned their lesson," and that co-operative measures leading to mutual economies would come as a natural result.

Supporting Senator Meighen in his stand against the Murdock resolution were Senators Beique and Lynch Staunton. Senator Calder was against compulsory arbitration, but would support the proposal to set up an arbitral tribunal, if provided that no cases would be deferred to it unless both companies agreed to arbitrate.

Seven Chimney Fires During Cold Wave

The cold snap in the weather brought lots of work for the Fire Department yesterday. A total of seven chimney fires required the attention of the fire-fighters during the day.

At 10.13 a.m. an alarm came from 478 Rubidge street, and at 1.20 p.m. one from 125 Lock street. A second run was made to Lock street at 2.07 p.m., to No. 182. At 3.13 p.m. a call came from 273½ McDonnel street, and at 6.08 p.m. another from 155 Dublin street. Two additional alarms to chimney fires received early yesterday were reported in yesterday's Examiner.

None of the outbreaks was serious and in each case the fire was put out before much damage had been done. Fire Chief Gimblett warns that extra precaution should be taken against dirty and overheated chimneys during the cold spell.

ELECT HOLDEN COUNTY MASTER

Annual Meeting of County L. O. L. is Largely Attended.

RESOLUTION PASSED.

A. Holden was elected County Master of the Loyal Orange Lodge in the County of West Peterborough with the holding of the annual county meeting in the city this week. The meeting, one of the largest annual gatherings ever held in the Peterborough Orange Hall, was attended by a number of visiting delegates from other counties, as well as the representatives from each lodge in West Peterborough.

The other posts on the executive for the coming year were filled as follows: H. Welch, deputy county master; Rev. C. D. Daniel, chaplain; Frank Millard, recording secretary; W. Chambers, financial secretary; F. Kitney, treasurer; W. Millen, marshal; W. Holden, 1st lecturer; M. Holden, second lecturer.

Reports from the various lodges of the county heard at the meeting indicated that, despite the difficult times, the financial position of the County lodge is highly satisfactory. Inspiring addresses were delivered to the meeting by members of the lodge, and plans for the great celebration in Peterborough this year were discussed. E. F. Reid conducted the impressive ceremony involved in the installation of the officers for the new year.

Featuring the business of the meeting was the passage of the following resolution:

"Whereas the supporters of Separate Schools, are agitating for a series of amendments to the Assessment Act of the Province, so as to provide for a division of the taxes, received by the municipalities, from incorporated companies and privately owned utilities, on the basis of the Roman Catholic population of the Province.

"And whereas the Separate School Act of 1863, later incorporated into the B.N.A. Act of 1867, specifically provides that only the taxes from the realty of Separate School supporters, when so directed, was to be allocated for the support of Separate Schools.

"And whereas the Act of 1863 was understood by all the consenting parties thereto, to be a final settlement of the question.

"And whereas further amendments in 1886, provided for the division of taxes, on shares of incorporated companies, whereby the directors of such companies, on the request of Separate School supporters holding shares therein, are permitted to divert the taxes, accruing on such shares, to the support of Separate Schools.

"Be it therefore resolved:

"That this Loyal Orange Lodge, County of West Peterborough, goes on record as strongly opposing the present demands of the Separate School authorities, for such a division of the taxes, properly pertaining to the support of the Public Schools.

"We are aroused at this continual demand of the Separate Schools for public money, to conduct their own religious system.

"We not only oppose these demands of the Roman Catholics, but we deem it our duty to advise the Government that the Public School supporters will not condone further extension of the privilege of sectarian schools at the expense of the Public School system of the Province.

"We would also call upon our representative in the Legislature to vigorously oppose this renewed agitation, and to do all in his power to maintain, safeguard and strengthen the public non-sectarian school system.

"That this resolution be sent to the Premier, the Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Education, our local member of the Legislature, and the Press."

FRIGID SPELL GRIPS DOMINION

Temperature Tumbles Far Below Zero From Kamloops to Qubec.

STORMS RAGING.

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada's weather map to-day was freely sprinkled with sub-zero temperatures as the Winter's severest cold spell spread into the Maritimes and threatened to put minus signs before temperature readings along the Atlantic coast.

From Kamloops to Quebec the mercury tumbled to depths far below the zero mark. No reports had come in from the "leaders" in Northern Ontario, where yesterday Armstrong recorded 52 below.

Southern Ontario gasped in the Arctic onslaught. Toronto's official record was one below during the night and 2 above at 8 a.m. London's low was 8 below, Kingston 10 below, and other towns in the Lake sections reported similar readings. Sault Ste. Marie shivered at 14 below.

Snow fell in many sections of the country. In Western Canada and parts of Ontario snow plows were sent out to open blocked highways. Trains were delayed in the West, while at Sault Ste. Marie and Sarnia ferry services were hampered. Railwaymen worked to free a stalled train near Regina.

The Maritimes prepared for the onslaught with the official forecast of westerly gales and much colder weather. Storm warnings along the coast were displayed.

RAILWAY BILL IS PROGRESSING

Senate Group Expects to Complete Its Work and Report To-day.

LONG FIGHT AHEAD.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9. (CP).—After weeks devoted to study of the railway legislation the Senate railway committee is to-day within sight of the end of its work. The bill may be reported from the committee to-day with many amendments attached to it but none of a drastic character.

Designed to carry out the recommendations of the Royal Commission which studied the transportation problem the railway bill is one of the chief measures before parliament this session. Its passage through the Senate committee, however, may be one the beginning of a long parliamentary battle. After it receives the blessing of the Senate it will have to go through the House of Commons and pass under the critical eyes of many members whose constituencies will be affected by it.

A brief session of the Senate itself yesterday the Upper House rejected Senator Pascal Poirier's resolution calling for establishment of the six-hour day. Most speakers were sympathetic to the idea but regarded it as impossible of achievement at this time. Senator Gideon Robertson, former Minister of Labor, said the six-hour day could not be obtained until the long-sought eight-hour day had been established.

BILL IS GAZETTED.
Notification is contained in the current issue of The Ontario Gazette, that the Corporation of the City of Peterborough will apply at the next Legislative Assembly sessions for an Act to amend the statutes, for the purpose of providing that an alderman who has served one year in the Council and has another year to serve shall file his resignation, before he accepts nomination for the office of Mayor. Under the proposed changes an alderman wishing to be a candidate for the Mayoralty would be required to resign his seat on the Council five days before accepting nomination as Mayor.

BUSY NIGHT FOR TAXI MEN
The extreme drop in temperature from late yesterday afternoon to this morning kept some of the taxi men busy all through the night. So many private automobiles were left in their garages last night the taxi men had a frigid harvest.

RAINBOW 'ROUND THE MOON
Last night's luminous ring around the moon had no weather significance, according to Dr. C. A. Chant, Professor of Astrophysics, Toronto University. "It simply showed that there is plenty of moisture in the air, either as droplets of fog or tiny particles of ice," he said. "This was the best one I ever saw." Last night's halo was a rainbow, a phenomenon of the sky that is rarely seen. By 2 a.m. it had vanished.

BUTTERFLY IS CAUGHT.
When a dog bites a man, it is not news, nor is it news when a man catches a butterfly in June or July. But when a man catches a butterfly on a February day like to-day, the coldest day of the winter, it is news. Herb. Mason, of the Mason Groceteria, was the man, and the butterfly was a small, yellow-winged creature of a common variety. He found the insect fluttering about, delighting in the tropical warmth within the store.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION NEWS

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held their regular meeting on Monday night in the kindergarten with a splendid attendance, Mrs. Graham in the chair.

The musical part of the program was supplied entirely by the pupils of Mr. Munro's class, presenting seven well sung two-part songs, all enjoyably received.

Mr. Dearborn gave a most interesting talk on "The Founding of Home and School Work," in commemoration of the founder, Mrs. Courtice, giving a review of the history of the home and school movement. He also gave many hints where we as parents might help the teacher and the school.

Accounts were passed, communications read and reports received from the various convenors.

A representative from the Ontario School for the Blind will give an address here this month, likely in the Prince of Wales' school, the date to be announced later.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which refreshments were served.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition With Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious disease.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

The menace of technocracy which has been discussed so frequently of late, is well illustrated by a remark a young lady of my acquaintance, who knows a great deal about such things, made to me the other day concerning the discovery of a method to determine whether the unborn baby will be a boy or a girl. She said she thought it was a bad thing to have it come into general use, for if people could find out they would destroy all the girl babies before they were born.

This fear may or may not be groundless, just like all the other fears that are expressed concerning the menace of technocracy. The medical profession has become accustomed to such expressions.

Many of the most important new discoveries in medicine, have been greeted by fears that they will disrupt civilization. When vaccination against smallpox was discovered, most of the clergy were opposed to it because they believed it was interfering with the ways of God. Their idea of the way of God was that He had put the smallpox in the world and it should be allowed to continue.

When Dr. James Y. Simpson introduced chloroform for use of women in childbirth, there were plenty of people to protest against its use on the ground that women were intended to bring forth children in pain, and that it was wicked to interfere with this plan.

When the X-ray was discovered an English magazine suggested that all the apparatus should be thrown into the ocean and the discoverers should be executed because they consideerd it indelicate to look through the body at people's bones.

And so it has gone down through the ages. In spite of all the fears expressed, these discoveries have been adjusted to the needs and life of men and undoubtedly have done an enormous amount of good. I imagine that that is true about the possibility of determining the sex of the unborn baby. There must be just as many people who want girl babies as there are people who want boy babies. Well, maybe not quite so many, but enough so that the suggested danger will not be a very real one.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

Some Egyptologists believe that the golden masks found in ancient tombs were used by Egyptian maidens as over night masks for the preservation of their loveliness. Those masks of gold, they think, were coated inside with pastes and ointments, placed over the face and permitted to remain on all night. And apparently were effective. And they apparently were effective, judging from the reputation for loveliness that the women of Egypt acquired.

Perhaps we women today do not have masks of gold to don at bedtime. But we do have over night masks that are excellent beautifiers. And they are particularly appropriate for busy women. For some women really do not have the time to give themselves mask treatments during the daytime or evening. And it is because the skin derives great benefit from face masks that I would suggest for such women a weekly over night mask treatment.

An especially excellent over night face mask can be made of oatmeal, egg white and honey. Mix an ounce of honey with three ounces of fine oatmeal and fold in the beaten white of one egg. This will form a smooth, thick paste. Before applying the mask, cleanse your skin thoroughly, employing your usual cleansing method, and smooth a bit of nutrient of cold cream around your eyes and mouth. Then spread the paste over your entire face, with the exception of your eyelids.

You will, of course, need something to hold the paste properly on your face during the course of the night. A square of soft linen or thin muslin will serve this purpose admirably, however. Cut holes in a large square of either material for your eyes, mouth and nostrils, and fasten it over your face after the paste has been applied.

This mask should be permitted to remain on the face over night. The following morning, the mask should be removed, and a bit of nutrient or cold cream applied to the face, in order to keep the skin soft and smooth. Of course, I don't think it wise to coat the skin with heavy pastes or mixtures every night, for the skin must be given an opportunity to breathe. But a weekly over night face mask of this type will prove in no way harmful, and will greatly improve the smoothness, clarity and fine texture of the skin.

Superfluous Hair

Gertie: An effective bleach for superfluous hair can be made of half a teaspoon of ordinary household ammonia, and two teaspoons of peroxide.

Brown Spots

Jane: To eradicate brown spots, so-called "liver spots," apply a solution of hyposulphite of soda and water, using one part of the chemical to eight parts of water.

Nail Biting

Ellen: Nail biting is a habit that you will have to overcome through your own perseverance. A bit of tincture of aloes applied to the finger tips will help you in overcoming this habit.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc. are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder form — never liquid or milk) is harmless, inexpensive, and is a fine remedy for acid stomach. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no fear of indigestion.

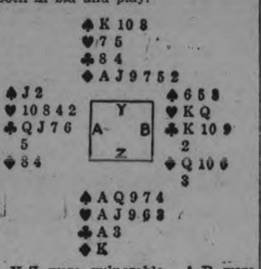
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

FEW PLAYERS THINK CLEARLY

Even players who believe they are pretty good seldom think clearly, either in bidding or play. The hand below illustrates cloudy thoughts, both in bid and play.



Y-Z were vulnerable. A-B were not vulnerable. Worse yet, Y-Z had 60 points on the score. A-B had no score. It was the worst possible time for Y-Z to attempt overbidding. Z made an opening bid of 1-Spade. Contracting went as follows: Y, 2-Diamonds; Z, 2-Hearts; Y, 2-Spades; B, "I double 2-Spades,' 'as call for partner to bid. Z, Pass; A, 3-Clubs; Y, 3-Diamonds; B, Pass; Z, 3-Spades; Y, 4-Spades, ignoring the score; Z, 6-Spades, although his major suits were both spotty; B, double; Z, redouble, ending the auction.

The opening lead was the 6 of clubs. B played his K and Z's ace won the trick. The next four tricks Z played perfectly. He led his K of diamonds. A low trump lead was won with dummy's K. Upon the Ace of diamonds the declarer discarded his last club, and at the fifth trick a heart was led from dummy. Bs Q covered, and Z's Ace won the trick.

Z had not thought to good purpose when he bid a small slam or when he redoubled the contract. At the sixth trick Z made a fatal slip through not thinking clearly. The six hearts against him stood only 35 in 100 chances of being held 3-3 by the defenders. Even had they been held in that manner, Z's next lead could have served no useful purpose. There were held against the declarer the K-10-8-4, after the first lead of that suit. Instead of leading his lowest heart, Z led the J from A's hand, and leaving only the 10 in dummy. Z led his 9 of hearts, A played the 10. Dummy trumped. The declarer regained his own hand by leading a club and trumping it. Unfortunately, after Z pulled the last opposing trump, A's 8 of hearts had to win a trick, putting the redoubled contract down one trick.

At the sixth trick Z should have led his lowest heart, letting B's K win the trick. B would lead back a trump, and the declarer's Q would hold the trick. Dummy would trump a low heart. The declarer would trump a club, and pull the last opposing trump. His hand would consist of two good hearts and the only trump left, with which to win the last three tricks, and fulfill his contract.

Shoes for spring are built higher on the foot in sympathy with the higher necklines. Velvet shoes are being shown for spring wear.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

HAS IT EVER occurred to you that there seems to be a natural law that unused articles shall become useless?

• • • • • • •

As soon as one stops utilizing whatever the thing happens to be, from that time it commences to deteriorate. It is as if the article said:

• • • • • • •

If you are done with me, so am I done with you. I will not be neglected and continue to keep in good condition. I will serve you to the best of my ability so long as I endure, provided you want me. If I am no longer desirable, I cannot help deteriorating."

• • • • • • •

How many of us homemakers have found that such a state of affairs is truth. We let garments reman hanging in a closet. They may get weak and tear or cut along seams and in folds when we again want to use them.

• • • • • • •

Silk is particularly liable to be so affected. If the closet is warm, the heat is ruinous to silk in which there is any filling.

• • • • • • •

Or it may be that the moths are helping to ruin the garment. They accept the invitation of long-standing, unused material, and worm their way into the textiles, always just where they will show most.

• • • • • • •

It is odd that the articles which are most easily breakable when used are those which when not used, show ill-effects least. Glass and china, when carefully packed away, can be taken out and be found in perfect condition in later years.

• • • • • • •

If not so taken care of, however, they get encrusted with dust, which gets a greasy quality, and it is something of a job to wash and clean the pieces.

• • • • • • •

Then, too, unused articles have a strange way of losing themselves. How the articles go, or where, remains a mystery. Like shoe buttons which a certain young boy declared, "died off," so do these unused articles seem to die away.

• • • • • • •

Certanly they vanish without anyone in the household being aware, how or when. So it pays either to use things constantly, or else pack them away in some manner which will preserve them against the time of the returned desire to have them utilized.

Rev. Sutcliffe Is Meeting Speaker

The regular February meeting of the Woman's Association of George Street United Church was held in the Board Room of the Sunday School Hall on Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. W. P. Hetherington in the chair. This was the Rally meeting for the year and nearly one hundred members were present.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe was the speaker of the afternoon and gave a very impressive address on "The Eleventh Commandment: 'Love one another'," taking his text from the Gospel according to St. John, 13th chapter and 34th verse.

A hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was voiced by Miss Mary Elliott.

The annual reports of the secretary, Mrs. G. C. Staples and Mrs. S. Oke were submitted and adopted.

Mrs. P. Hagerman convenor of the Sick and Visiting committee reported 113 calls made and Mrs. Latimer for the Look-out committee reported 28 calls made, Mrs. J. M. Fanning reported for the social committee and Mrs. Tinney for the Cupboard committee.

Miss M. Elliott, coresponding secretary reported a number of letters written and read several expressing thanks for flowers and expressions of sympathy. Miss Lillian Morrow gave the report of the Flower committee.

A couple of delightful vocal solos were rendered by Gerald Perks, accompanied by Mrs. Perks.

The president announced that the member of the association had been divided into groups according to the months of their birthdays with the following leaders: Miss L. Richardson and Miss M. Elliott, January and July; Mrs. Weldon and Mrs. Yelland, February and May; Mrs. Girven and Miss E. Higgins, March and November; Mrs. H. Foote and Mrs. C. E. Smith, April and December; Mrs. Hagerman and Mrs. Mark, June and October; Mrs. G. Robertson, August and September.

The meeting closed with prayer.

Eat Spinach Mylady If You Seek Beauty

PHILADELPHIA, February 9 (C. P.). — Any woman can be beautiful according to Dr. J. Howard Crum, plastic surgeon of New York —but she must be willing to eat spinach.

"What you eat is the answer to how fast you age,' Dr. Crum told delegates to the Trade Display and Fashion Show which continued here to-day. He then promised a beautiful complexion to any woman who would each day eat a generous portion of a thin-leafed vegetable, follow it with a goodly dose of spinach or carrots, and top them off with a quart of milk.

"Worry and fear are to be avoided at all times," the surgeon advised. "Nothing detracts so much from your looks."

Most stage and screen beauties, he said, have "acquired their attractiveness."

WATERCRAFT MINSTRELS PUT ON SHOW IN COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Whole Show Was Presented for Relief Purposes in Peterborough.

NUMEROUS HIGHLIGHTS.

A very successful presentation by the Canadian Watercraft Minstrels of "A Night in a Broadcasting station" was greeted by an audience of several hundred people last evening, in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute.

The boys gave a splendid account of themselves and they received plenty of enthusiastic applause from a very appreciative assemblage. The whole show was presented for relief purposes, the proceeds to be donated to the civic campaign now under way, and it was under the joint direction of Delbert Lucas and Homer Lundy.

The performance was supposed to be broadcasted from Station JOY, and opened with the minstrel portion of the entertainment combining the usual round of funny gags and stories and peppy songs, with Delbert Lucas as interlocutor and four end men in blackface and patriotic outfits of red, white and blue: Homer Lundy, Ray Leonard, Eyers Smith and Jack Smith.

Songs by Miss Beatrice Gash, "Dawn of Tomorrow" and "When the Organ Plays at Twilight," were also warmly applauded, as was Byers Smith's sermon on "Miracles."

In an intermission, Ray Leonard and Homer Lundy did some marvellous feats of magic and the oleo had several musical surprises, chief among them being the extraordinarily fine playing of Mel Leal and his Liftlock Mountaineers' orchestra.

Just why this superb little orchestra is not heard of more often seems surprising, in view of the fact that they play with an ease and finish, in a smooth, bright, tuneful swing that makes their oldtime and modern numbers extremely pleasing. They played many numbers, and got a big hand. They were one of the highlights of the evening.

Then there was the Hawaiian guitar duo, Kane and Grisdale, who got another large round of applause and came back for two encores, as did 'Signor" Nicolo DiMaio with his splendidly-played silver piano accordeon. Little Dorothy Cunningham, playing her small violin with expert ease, earned well-merited appreciation. She was accompanied by Miss Marguerite Rome.

A repetition of the humorous skit, "A Coon Rehearsal," formed the concluding episode of a bright and very entertaining evening.

Ushers were Les Rogers, Jack Adams and Austin Doran.

THEATRES

"THE MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS."

"At seventeen, he falls in love quite madly with eyes of tender blue—At twenty-four, he gets it rather badly with eyes of a different hue."—From Baldassere's song, "A Bachelor Gay Am I."

And; "Whate'er befall, I still recall—that sunlit mountain side," as Teresa sings it in "Love Will Find a Way."

Glorious music (you don't get enough of it), side-tickling foolery of the Gilbert and Sullivan type, and pageantry of splendid scenery, castled splendor and hard riding-banditry; they are all in "The Maid of the Mountains," one of the gayest and most attractive pictures seen here in a long time.

At the Regent Theatre for three days of this week, it should get plenty of patronage. Nancy Brown, as Teresa, the "Maid," has a beautiful voice, and so has Harry Welchman, as the Baldassare, the bandit chieftain of the tale.

Then there is the mirth?provoking "Dirty Work" trio, in which the three comedians of the piece chase each other through an entire castle, finally falling into the moat as the period to a blithe and care-free ditty. This trio is the entertaining group of the production, which has a distinctly opera bouffe flavor and portrays the adventures of a gay and courageous band of robbers of the Robin Hood type. They live in the mountains and descend to pause for awhile in the castle, masquerading in a richer guise.

Malona, the giddy Governor, with Crumpet, his echo, and Tonio, provide the comedy element which is of the giggly type and gets plenty of response from a pleased audience. "Be mine," implores the elderly governor, "Tweedles," proposing to the pretty widow. "Well then, if you won't be mine, let me be yours," he concedes. And Tonio, aghast at discovering his forsaken wife, informs his chief, "I am her dead husband."

Then there is the blonde and stately Angela, who nearly succeeds in capturing the permanent attentions of the philandering hero. She is the popular English actress, Betty Stockfeld.

There is only one note of tragedy in the whole portrayal. The rest is adventure and romance and beautiful music and foolery of a deliciously funny sort.

"The Maid of the Mountains" makes splendid entertainment for a period of depression. It could easily guarantee a couple of hours' forgetfulness of any trouble.

—Jeanette.

SPYING ON SPORTS

International Canadian

"Gossip ana Such"

ONCE MORE THE ANNUAL February barrage of letters from hot stove league regulars requesting the usual answer are coming in to the various sports editors throughout the country. The boys are once more arguing: Who was the greatest player—Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner or Babe Ruth?

THERE WILL BE NO ANSWER in this column because there is no one answer. Comparing the records of the three it is easy to discover these answers: Cob, because he was the fastest of all; Wagner, because he was the fastest fielder; Ruth, because he hit more home runs.

* * *

HOWEVER, SINCE THE OLD argument is again in full swing, we present a few comparisons of the three men. But don't take them too seriously, for, you'll note, Cobb in running up huge totals, had the advantage of five seasons more than Wagner and seven more than Ruth.

Anyway, here they are:

Number of seasons in majors—Cobb, 26; Wagner, 21; Ruth, 19.

Number of games played—Cobb, 3,033; Wagner, 2,785; Ruth, 2,212.

Number years led league in batting—Cobb, 13; Wagner, 8; Ruth, 1.

Number years batted .400 or better—Cobb, 3; Wagner and Ruth, none.

Number of years batted .300 or better—Cobb, 25; Wagner, 17; Ruth, 16.

Total hits—Cobb, 4,221; Wagner, 3,430; Ruth, 2,617.

Stolen bases (season)—Cobb, 96 (1915); Wagner, 61 (1907); Ruth, 17 (twice, 1921-1923).

There you are — now argue it out. It looks all Cobb and where Cobb did not lead, the palm goes to Ruth. However, Wagner was head and shoulders above both when it came to fielding. Fielding averages were not compared because Ruth and Cobb played in outfield, whereas the Flying Dutchman not only played the outfield as well as shortstop but served several seasons at first base and third.

THOUGH RUTH WAS A great pitcher before he became an outfielder, Wagner was the most versatile of the trio. Home run records are not compared for two reasons: 1, Ruth is so far ahead of Wagner and Cobb in circuit clouts there can be no comparison; 2, Wagner and Cobb were washed up as regulars when the "lively ball" era began, Ruth, alone getting full benefit of the fast sphere.

MADOC PROVES NO OPPOSITION FOR HOMESTERS

Local Marksmen Score Almost at Will in Listless O.H.A. Encounter.

THREE PENALTIES.

Ellis, Creighton, Dundas, Jarvis and LeBarr Do Scoring for Locals.

Playing before a small crowd at the Brock last night, the Petes' Intermediates swamped Madoc, 11 to 2, in the first game of their O.H.A. playdown round. The locals found the Smelters easy and will carry a nine-goal lead into the return affair in Madoc Friday. The ice was fast, the snappy temperature conductive to hard hockey, but the game itself was rather listless—lack of real opposition being the reason.

The Blue and Whites started in less than a minute, and ran in five goals in the first period. They added three more in the second, and repeated that dose in the last frame. Madoc countered once each in the last two sessions. Faster skating, smarter combination and shooting, and better defensive hockey gave the locals a soft victory. Only three penalties were drawn throughout the game, which was kept clean, the visitors being guilty twice.

Star Offensively

Ellis and Dundas starred offensively for the winners, both working together fine and figuring in seven of the goals while getting four together. Creighton went great both at shooting and checking. Jarvis scored twice and continued to check well at centre. LeBarr turned in several smart rushes while he, Howe and Weir held the others out most of the way. Hatton and Dallin also worked hard. Miller had it fairly easy in goal, but had a few real hot ones which he cleared in fine style. The whole team worked smoothly.

Nickle in goal stopped some tough ones for the visitors, practically all those which beat him being right in close. The defence was weak, and the forwards failed to backcheck effectively. Blue, Henderson and Meraw were probably the hardest working and all did some fair rushing, with Watson, Armstrong and Meraw figuring in the two goals scored.

Scores First Goal

Almost from the face-off, Ellis went up and shot hard to the boards, tearing in to snap his rebound in for the first goal. The Petes showed a decided edge from the start. Rupert went off for tripping, and then Creighton's wicked shot from away out got through Nickle for the second one. Dundas came in fast a few minutes later to snare Ellis' rebound and rap it in. Miller came out fast to save, and the players were taking it easy for a while. Jarvis checked and recovered the puck to go in alone and pick a corner, and Dundas took a neat pass from Ellis right afterward to make it five. Weir pulled a smart rush, and Nickle was being kept busy at the bell.

Second Period Opens Fast

The second was faster, the Petes again having most of the play. Jarvis took a nice return pass from Creighton in the goal-mouth to open the tallying once more. Then LeBarr split the defence on a beautiful bit of stickhandling to chalk up another. Jarvis got the air for tripping, and Dundas and Ellis teamed up again in fine fashion, Ira netting the rubber. Two minutes before the end, Armstrong took Meraw's pass at defence and whistled it by Miller for the first Madoc counter. Ellis and Dallin both missed close in at the windup.

Madoc Scores Again

Miller stopped a hot one to start the third. Ellis took a return pass from Dundas in a few minutes and rattled the boot-heel against the ropes for the ninth one. Geraldi was chased for boarding, and play was fast but not too exciting as the Petes were checking them up in good manner. Dundas fooled the defence with a fake shot and drifted in close to tap in another classy counter. Four of the Smelters came in close to tap in another classy counter. Four of the Smelters came up but broke on the Howe-LeBarr line. Miller just got his heel in front of a torrid drive for a real save, and Nickle also had to pull a few circus ones. Then Watson snapped an angle shot into a corner past Tommy for the other Madoc market, getting a hand from the crowd. With two minutes remaining, the hard-working Dallin finally got on the score-sheet, passing to Ellis who flashed some brilliant stick-work to catch the defence and goalie flat-footed and slide in the eleventh and last goal of the game. The teams:

Madoc.—Goal, Nickle; defence, Blue and Rupert; centre, Henderson; wings, Ware and Watson; alternates, Armstrong, Meraw, Akey and Geraldi.

Petes.—Goal, Miller; defence, Howe and LeBarr; centre, Ellis; wings, Dallin and Dundas; alternates, Weir, Jarvis, Hatton and Creighton.

Campbellford Maroons Blank Belleville 3-0

Will 1933 Prove Jinx Year Of Sir Malcolm And His Bluebird

When Sir Malcolm Campbell, British speed king, steps on the gas in his new Bluebird, and races across the sands of Daytona Beach at a speed between 250 and 300 miles per hour, he will have spent $100,000 out of his own pocket to risk his own uninsured life. Contrary to popular belief, Campbell finances these annual attacks on speed himself. If he fails, he probably loses out. If he wins, he may get it all back. Sir Malcolm's attempt this month will be his third in as many years. On February 3, 1931, he travelled at a speed of 245 miles per hour and won a knighthood by his feat. The next record was last year on February 24, when he "hit 'er up" to a speed of 253 miles per hour — incidentally breaking about half a dozen other records in so doing. This year he comes back with a car twice as powerful, with improved lines and other changes in the hope of travelling 300 miles. In breaking the land speed record, Sir Malcolm broke the record of a fellow-countryman, Sir Henry Segrave, who had travelled at a speed of 231 miles per hour. Since then Sir Henry was killed in a tragic accident while piloting his enw speedboat to a new water record. Sir Henry's racer is seen above, as are Sir Malcolm himself, Lady Campbell, who is not overly worried about her husband's dangerous feats, the new Bluebird, the offset tail fin of the great machine, and a close-up of one of the most important parts of the car, the tire. Picture what will happen if one should blow out while moving at a speed quicker than a man can think! It is expected Campbell will race sometime between 12th and 20th of this month. This must be arranged in accordance with the moon and tides in smoothing out the dipples in the long beach. Campbell does not confine himself to big car racing, but has also established records with the midget car. He is shown at left in one of the little cars. He will not attempt any other record this year, however, than the straight mile.

CURLING

HASTINGS, Dec. 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — A local rink skipped by L. E. Kelly, went as far as the finals in the bonspiel at Norwood on Monday. The ice was in perfect condition and one of the best day's sport of the Scottish game was enjoyed. Lindsay sent on rink; Campbellford two, and Hastings two. In the first round Kelly won from Wellman of Norwood; Denike from Campbellford in the second and drew a bye in the third, only to lose out to the Wiggings' rink of Campbellford by four shots. Reeve G. B. Stevenson skipped the other local rink, and lost both games to S. Wildman and "Foxy" Wellman, both of Norwood.

The showing of the Hastings curlers was remarkable as they have had no ice here the last few years.

The following composed the rinks:

C. Hoard, lead; R. W. Montgomery, second; M. J. Baker, vice; L. E. Kelley, skip.

F. Kennedy, lead; G. Kerr, second; W. Wellman, vice; G. B. Stevenson, skip.

VICTORY PLACES REDSHIRTS WITHIN A POINT OF LEADERS

Hulin Plays Brilliant Game in Nets While Teammates Show Superiority in Combination and Defensive Plays —Twenty-seven Penalties in Game.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 9.—Belleville D.A.C. suffered a blanking last evening in the Campbellford Arena when the Maroons drew blood to the tune of a 3-0 count in a scheduled O.H.A. fixture and drew near to the group lead by two points. Belleville are still one point ahead of the Red Shirts but if the game scheduled on Friday at Campbellford with Trenton goes in the entertainers' favor they will hold top place in the O.H.A. grouping with a one point lead.

The game last evening was more than fast, the visitors taking the offensive from the face off of the puck and starting very fast play in the first period that opened the game up to feature a record for penalties, twenty-seven in all being handed out by Max Board, who refereed the game and showed his determination not to let the play get away from him. Of these fifteen were registered against the Doherty's and twelve against the Maroons.

One disturbance in the last period took place when McKay and MacDonald got into a tangle in front of the Maroons' net. McKay leaving the ice for the balance of the period. The Maroons also suffered another loss in the second frame when 'Buster" Whitton used his shoulder too freely and dislocated it. This is a handicap for the hometowners as Whitton is one of their star players, doing pivot position on the sub line, and his aggressive and determined play will be missed in the group play-offs.

Brilliant Work In Nets

The game started and finished fast. Ice was in excellent condition and the attendance large. Checking was more than heavy, fast rushes and fierce aggressiveness was featured by the Belleville outfit who were out for a win but failed even to tally. The Maroons showed up to better advantage in this game, combination being above the ordinary and the defense work splendid. In the net Hulin played a brilliant game, on one occasion facing three of the Belleville forward line alone and stopping six close range shots.

Whitton, Hendy and Copperthwaite assisted by Harry Ingram on defence staged four minutes of play in the Belleville area which gave Tice plenty to think about and caused the visitors many apprehensive moments. MacDonald broke this attack but was fenced in the play for body-checking, P. Morgan following him for tripping H. Ingram. Play then was staged by the Maroons in the Belleville house again and fifteen minutes after the start Whitton drew the first counter netting the puck in a lone play, driving through the D. A. C. defence singlehanded.

Play Becomes Faster

In the second frame of the game, play increased in speed and checking became extra heavy. The balance of play however was with the entertainers who worked hard for counts but were unable to pass Tice until Fred Ingram staged one of his famous forward rushes and eft the field behind, dribbling the rubber into the Belleville net.

H. Morgan, McMeekin and P. Morgan gained the Campbellford area and banged six terrific shots at Hulin in quick succession. But even this failed to count for Hulin took the ice in front of them and held the fort, displaying some brilliant hand and stock work.

There was only one way for the third stanza to open and that was with a Belleville attack, which it did and those boys showed some speed and brilliant team-work in an endeavour to save their faces and at least save a blanking. But it was no good, even with Whitton off the sub forward line. The Maroons outskated the visitors and held the play where they wanted it. The Maroons outskated the visitors and held the play where they wanted it. Penalties were handed out freely as speed increased and tempers waxed hot, charging being the feature offense in this frame of the game.

Fifteen minutes after play MacDonald dropped his stick and jumped McKay in front of the Belleville net, and no one seems to know what it was all about. However, McKay left the ice for the rest of the game, but this did not affect the scoring of the Maroons, not even when Hendy was fenced following the face-off with two men off the ice Davis did a splendid lone rush and netted the puck for the third counter with three minutes to go. This was too much for the visitors who got reckless, the gong sounding with MacDonald cooling in the box.

The group play-offs are set for Monday and Tuesday of next week, February 13 and 15, but arrangements have not yet been made as to where the first game will be played, although it is thought that should the Maroons win top place they will play the Monday game in Belleville and finish the play-offs on home ice.

FOURTH MATCH OPENS FRIDAY

Victory For M.C.C. Will Return Mythical Cricket "Ashes" to England.

AUSSIES CONFIDENT.

BRISBANE, Australia, Feb. 9 (C.P. Cable).—Australia and England resume their cricket test series here to-morrow when play will commence in the fourth test match.

England has won two matches and Australia one. Should the M.C.C. capture this match they will win the series, but the Aussie players have different ideas on that point and are all set to repeat their win of the second game, and thus remain in the running for the cricket laurels of the world, which they won in England in 1931.

The dispute between the Australian Cricket Board of Control and the M.C.C. which arose out of the "leg theory" bowling of Harold Larwood in the last game has been pretty well cleared away. The Australian officials have declared there was no question of the English players being "unsportsmanlike," but stand by their belief the "body-line bowling" practice is not in the best interests of the game. They are considering a regulation which will make the practice illegal in all Australian cricket.

MAROONS AFTER SEVENTH VICTORY

Win Over Boston To-night Will Place Them Four Points Behind Toronto Leafs.

TORONTO, Feb. 9 (C.P.)—On a victory run that has carried them into second place in the Canadian division of the National Hockey League and threatens Detroit's 13-game point-making streak, Montreal Maroons bump into a serious obstacle to-night at Boston.

The league's heaviest scoring team, unbeaten since Dave Kerr replaced Flat Walsh in goal, and Reg. Noble teamed up on defence with Lionel Conacher, plans to mark up its seventh win in eight starts at the expense of the Bruins. Maroons were held to one tie during their run. A win to-night would place them just four points behind the group-leading Toronto Leafs.

Chicago Black Hawks, home again after a long road trip, hope to do something about the pesky Detroit Red Wings. In four games this season with the Wings, Chicago has failed to get a point and been shut out twice by John Ross Roach.

At New York, the Rangers face Ottawa Senators.

Curling Notes

Last night's scheduled matches at the Peterborough Curling Club resulted as follows: Davidson 11 vs. Moore 9; Richmond 12 vs. Sedgewick 9; Sutton 12 vs. Bissell 8; Turner 13 vs. N. Hamley 8; Dobbin 16 vs. Shirley 5.

The schedule for to-night calls for the following games: Metcalfe vs. Richmond, Seymour vs. Sutton, Oak vs. Moore, Downey vs. Foote, Clegg vs. Dobbin, Morrow vs. Shirley, Marshall vs. Cairns.

To-morrow morning the lady curlers will start their Vice-skips Bonspiel. It is a local competition.

McLachlan Quartet To Represent Regina

REGINA, Feb. 9. (CP)—A better bunch of curlers than they were cracked up to be Cliff McLachlan and his henchmen from Rosthern are to-day awaiting the 'all aboard" call for Toronto and the Dominion Macdonald Brier playdown.

Victim of a traditional comeback on the part of the northerners, Dr. H. E. McKellar of Carlyele, southern champion, passed out of the picture for Saskatchewan honors at the Regina club when he dropped the third and deciding game of the series by 9-6.

Just like the runners-up for the past two years, McKellar won the first game 10-7, was trimmed by a decisive 13-3 margin in 10 ends in the second and then went on to drop the third.

King Edward Takes 7-1 Hockey Decision

The King Edward school hockey team took a 7-1 decision from the Lakefield P.S. in an exhibition game at All Saints' rink yesterday evening. The Peterborough team proved too fast and clever at teamplay, with a big second period to run up the count. It was 2-0 in the first, 6-0 in the second, and the visitors finished strong to get a 1-1 break on the scoring in the third.

Conners got the first two for the local outfit. In the second, it was Conners, Patterson and two for Jobe. The third period saw Morin notch the visitors only tally with Patterson sinking one for the K.E. boys. Some smart hockey was shown by both sides, and the game was clean throughout. The teams:

Lakefield P.S.: Goal, Yale; defence, Charlton and Morin; centre, Jenkinson; wings, Jewell and McFadden; alternates, Junkin, Jewell, Paterson, Riel and Pearson.

King Edward—Goal, Piercy; defence, Grose and Patterson; centre, Conners; wings, Post and Jobe; alternates, Hall, Wainman and Leggit.

Referee—H. McFadden.

Local Juniors At Falls This Evening

The Peterborough Juniors tackle their stiffest opposition of the year when they go to Fenelon Falls to-night. It is the first game of the O.H.A. group series between these teams and will most likely be a hard-fought one. The return contest will be staged here at the Brock Street rink to-morrow (Friday) night at 8.30, with total goals counting in this home and home series. The winner will play either Port Hope or Bowmanville to wind up this junior section of the province and advance in the O.H.A. playdowns.

Fenelon Falls gave the Petes their hardest competition last year, the locals barely beating them by one goal in a hectic play-off series. the Cataracts are supposed to be stronger this season, but the Petes are at least as strong, and well coached. They will be at full strength for both games and have an even chance of winning. A record crowd for local junior games is expected to jam the Brock in the second play-off game Friday.

Hockey Standing

WEST END LEAGUE

One more game winds up the West End Intermediate Hockey League, George Street playing All Saints next Monday from ten till eleven at All Saints' rink. Last night's game went to Maroons, 2-1, over George Street. The race throughout has been very close and three teams are still in fine position to win out. The play-offs, home and home games between first and second teams, with goals counting, for the Grafton Trophy, will commence within a few days after the final game. Following is the standing to date:

Teams:	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Maroons	3	2	1	7
All Saints	2	1	2	6
Keene	2	3	1	5
George Street	1	2	2	4

CITY LEAGUE

Following is the City Hockey League standing to date:

Teams:	P.	W.	L.	Pts.
P. C. I.	4	4	0	8
Rotary	4	3	1	6
Norwood	5	3	2	6
St. Peter's	4	1	3	2
Rangers	4	1	3	2
Normal	3	0	3	0

There will be a double-header to-night at the Brock, Rotary meeting Normal at eight, and Rangers playing St. Peter's at nine o'clock. The ice will be extra fast and both games should be speedy and exciting. These City League teams turn in some smart hockey, and the second game to-night should be especially hard-fought, with not much difference shown between the outfits. With a second-half schedule likely to be drawn for this loop, all teams still have a good chance of getting a berth in the playoffs.

SPORTS

HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING

Day by Day

BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

Real snappy February weather combined with the fact that it was Madoc that was playing here last night, made for a small crowd at the Brock—four hundred at the most. Quite a few of the fans doubtless figured that the Smelters wouldn't be much opposition to the Petes, and for once they were right. Not that those who attended were gypped, because they easily got their money's worth just seeing a smart exhibition of hockey on fast ice by the locals. But there certainly wasn't much competition. The 11-2 score shows that.

* * * * * * *

Evidently the brand of hockey dished up in the Central League isn't so hot nowadays, about on a par with the E.P.L. In fact, we think either the Carters of Norwood of the E.P.L. could beat the Madoc crew. And they were a very tame bunch of pucksters last night, not showing any fight at all. With a nine-goal lead, the Petes can just about count on this first round of the O.H.A. playdowns. If they ever lost now, the boys had better try and get work down in Madoc and not come back to Peterborough before July.

* * * * * * *

While they didn't have much of a job licking the visitors, still the Petes got a good workout and made the most of it. They tried a lot of fancy combination, and rebounds off the end boards. The local defence didn't need to do much bodying but worked their poke-checks and got in a lot of good rushing, and even Miller in goal was tested hard on several occasions. Ellis and Dundas had a large evening and clicked in fine style. The others went well also.

* * * * * * *

As for Madoc, they kept trying, though as we said without displaying a great deal of fight. They knew they were outclassed early and just tried to keep the score down and run in a few themselves. The big defenceman who seemed to be skating on stilts proved popular and at that, he sort of walked through several times on nice tries. Two or three of the forwards also showed fair checking and clever stickhandling, while Nickle wasn't too bad at all in goal despite that rainstorm of rubber that beat upon him throughout. A good team, but hardly in the Petes' class.

* * * * * * *

The intermediates journey to Madoc tomorrow night, while the juniors go to Fenelon Falls this evening, playing the return game here Friday. The Falls' management wanted more notice to advertise that game which should have been played last night, so the O.H.A. put it back till this evening. It means that the two junior teams must play two tough games on successive nights, but it's just as hard for one as the other. Regardless of how the game in the Cataract town goes tonight, it's bound to be close, the local kids should draw a full house here tomorrow. This series wont be a cinch.

* * * * * * *

A City Hockey League double-header is billed for the Brock to-night from eight bells till ten. Rotary tangles with Normal School at eight, followed at nine by Rangers and St. Peter's. This second game ought to be particularly close and classy, and there can't be any doubt but that the ice will be the fastest it has been all winter. True, it's a pretty cold evening to go loitering up and down the main drag, but a brisk walk to the rink and home, it's not so cold indoors, is nothing to the average hockey fan.

* * * * * * *

Regarding the City League schedule, it looks as if the majority will win. P.C.I. and Rotary are against a double schedule, claiming the weather is not likely to remain satisfactory long and the play-offs should be cleared up shortly. But Rangers, Norwood, St. Peter's and Normal School all favor a longer season of play. And we understand, it will be either a longer schedule, or a play-off series, embracing more teams. The matter will be ironed out one of these days, likely, to everyone's satisfaction.

* * * * * * *

The boys who make up King Edward school hockey team won an exhibition game from Lakefield Prep School yesterday here. Not stop-press news or anything to throw into headlines, but just a reminder that these school teams keep playing away throughout the winter, without being heard of as a rule outside of the campus. Teachers who promote these sports deserve a lot of credit, and just how many athletes in any line around town did not get their start playing for a school at one time or another? We wonder. And, by the way, the School Hockey League schedule finishes Saturday at All Saints, these games being played: Central and King George at nine, King Edward vs. Queen Alex at ten, and Queen Mary against Prince of Wales at eleven bells.

Murray Street and Knox Juniors playoff the 11th, also, the winner to meet Mark Street the 18th for the second half leadership. Murray Street won the first half and may jog through to cop ends yet before signing off for the year.

Sportswriters, believe it or not, are the guardian angels of sports—they keep 'em fairly clean. Take a slant at this piece by Bill Corum, N. Y. writer the other day: "There is a rumor abroad in this city and Boston that the Primo Carnera-Ernie Schaaf fight, Friday night at Madison Sq. Garden, is going to be a fake. The writer received one letter to that effect and has heard the story verbally from at least three different sources. All agree that Carnera has been elected the winner on the grounds that Schaaf cannot fight his own manager, Jack Sharkey, for the heavyweight title next Spring, anyhow. I am not inclined to put much credence in this. But if it chances to be based on fact, it is better to know it now before the fight than next Saturday after the fight. In fact right now—today—would be a first-rate time for the boxing commission and officials to start finding out what there is to be found out about it!" Yeah, sportswriters don't believe in the hush-hush baloney ,and that's why sports are comparatively clean.

Venice Gondolier To Meet Schaaf Friday

NEW YORK, February 9 (C P.).—A heavyweight fight that has more angles than a modernistic bookcase is on the cards for Madison Square Garden to-morrow. The principals are Primo Carnera, the giant Gondolier of Venice, who is right down in fighting trim and weighing 259 pounds, and Ernie Schaaf, the big blonde puncher from Boston.

In the first place the bout, scheduled for 15 rounds, is aimed at finding a challenger for Jack Sharkey's heavyweight championship for a big outdoor bout next summer. If Schaaf wins and the plan is carried out, the fans may be treated to the interesting spectacle of seeing a boxer fight his own manager. Sharkey owns half of Schaaf's contract, and occasionally acts as his advisor during bouts.

To complicate this prospect, Sharkey has said at least once that he never will fight Schaaf under any conditions.

ORILLIA GAINS WIN MAJORITY OF 17 SHOTS

Second Time in 59 Years of Competition, Northerners Have Won Honors.

AN EASY TRIUMPH.

Peterborough Curlers Lose to Kingston in Burden Trophy Competition.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—President D. A. McNab of the Ontario Curling Association, had a happy duty to perform yesterday afternoon. It was his task to present the Ontario Silver Tankard to the Orillia curlers following their notable victory over Toronto Granites in the final game and, being from Orillia himself, it is easy to imagine that it was a doubly pleasant occasion for the O.C.A. head.

It was only the third time in the 59 years of tankard competition that the event was won by a club who had a member in the O.C.A. Presidential chair. It was also only the second time the Tankard had been captured by Orillia, the previous time being in 1885. None of the members of the winning rink yesterday would admit to being members of the previous winning combination from Orillia.

An Easy Victory

It was a comparatively easy triumph the Orillians scored over their Toronto opponents. Getting off to an early lead, they were never headed. Long before the game was over they were conceded the victory. They outcurled the Granites all the way. Dr. Harvie's Orillia four had a close game with J. W. Brandon's Granites until slightly past the half-way mark, but Dr. McLean's Orillia quartet overwhelmed the Granite four skipped by Charles Bulley. The Harvey-Brandon game was concluded after 14 ends were played. There was no hope for the Toronto players at that time, for Bulley was down 12 shots, and Harvey was leading Brandon by 5 shots, giving Orillia a winning margin of 17 shots.

Dr. Harvie accepted the tankard from President McNab on behalf of the winning rinks, and expressed how pleased and proud they were to win it. Charles Bulley, on behalf of the losers, congratulated the winners, and declared it was a good thing for curling that an out-of-town rink had triumphed. Three cheers were given for the winners and losers when the presentation ceremonies had been completed.

The Burden Trophy event narrowed down to three rinks last night. Unionville defeated Thornhill in the semi-final, and will meet the winner of the Kingston-Barrie semi-final, which will be played at the Granite club this morning. During the day's play Kingston defeated Glanford and Peterborough. Peterborough having eliminated Shelburne in the morning round. Barrie reached the semi-finals by defeating Kitchener.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

There was an old man
Who often said:
If you walk on your feet
You can stand on your head.
—Shadow Song.

"Is it true?" Knarf asked the Chinaman, "that in China the people walk on their heads?" Knarf—and the other four shadow children, Mij, Flor, Hanid and Yam—were inside the Chinese plate. The shadows could get inside of anything. Indeed, they would have got inside of nothing if you had asked them.

Well, the shadows looked at the Chinaman, and the Chinaman looked back at the shadows. By and by the Chinaman answered: "In China the people don't walk on their heads, but they can stand on their heads."

"Why do they stand on their heads?" Yam wanted to know. "Why don't they stand on their feet?"

"They do stand on their feet."

"You just said that they stand on their heads," Flor pointed out.

"Only sometimes," the Chinaman replied. "Most of the time they stand on their feet."

"Can you stand on your head?" Knarf asked the Chinaman. The Chinaman answered that he hadn't stood on his head since he was five years old ("and that is a long time ago!"), but if the shadows really wanted to see him stand on his head why he'd try it, just to please them.

An Up-Side-Down Chinaman

So the Chinaman picked out a nice soft piece of ground, and after a little trouble he managed to stand

"Can you walk on your head?" asked Knarf on his head.

"How does it feel?" Mij asked the Chinaman. The Chinaman tried his best to answer but he couldn't open his mouth.

"How long can you stand like that?" Flor put in.

Still the Chinaman didn't answer.

"Can you walk on your head?" Knarf questioned. "Try to walk on your head, just once. It won't hurt you. Walk around the garden. It's very easy. Move your ears and wiggle your nose. Just try it."

Did the Chinaman try it? He did. And what happened? Dear me, he moved his ears and wiggled his nose for all he was worth, but he simply couldn't walk on his head—no sir, not one inch. Instead of that, he fell flat on his face, very flat indeed. The shadows were sure that he would be angry. So they took to their legs and ran as fast as they could. But the Chinaman wasn't angry at all. "Come back tomorrow," he called after them. "I'll practice some more tonight, in my bed. Tomorrow I'll be able to walk upside down. Come back and you'll see."

BENSFORT Y.P. ENTERTAINED

Society Visits Bailieboro Group and Puts on Temperance Program.

SOCIAL HOUR FOLLOWS

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The young people of Bensfort United Church were guests of the local Young People's Society recently and put on a most impressive and instructive temperance program.

Stanley Johnston, president of the Bailieboro society, opened the meeting, conducting a brief devotional service, assisted by Rev. E. M. Cook. At the conclusion of the devotional period, the president welcomed the visiting young people and gave the meeting over to the visiting chairman, William Wood.

Jack Moncrief gave a brief address on the care of the body, and Miss Helen Howson gave a reading which went to show how alcohol could undermine all other sterling qualities and how difficult it was to return to a normal moral person after having been an addict. Harold Paton gave a reading, entitled "Warning Labels" and Albert Barker followed with an illustration of a sketch which brought out the folly of using alcohol. A quartet, "I am a Stranger Here," was beautifully rendered by W. C. Wood, J. Wood, C. Emberson and William Wood, with Mrs. C. Emberson presiding at the piano. "The Tale of a Pretty Maid" was given by Miss B. Perrin; Robert Dawson explained the effects of alcohol upon the digestive organs; Miss J. Thompson told how alcohol effects the blood; William Howson told of the effects of alcohol upon the character. The quartet again sang, "Let the Morning Light Be Gleaming." W. C. Wood, teacher of the Bensfort young men's class, addressed the meeting, and in concluding his remarks he challenged the young people to build their bodies and lives in their youth in order that they could look back and honor the days of their youth in the years to come.

At the conclusion of the program the young people enjoyed an hour's recreation, led by Mrs. C. Barnard, S. Johnston and F. Barnard. Miss F. Watt presided at the piano. Later refreshments were served by the ladies, and the meeting concluded with all joining hands and singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

TEACHERS INVITED RALLY IN NORWOOD

Fine Report Received From Public School Inspector.

NORWOOD, Feb. 8.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held recently when the chairman's report that Mrs. McMillan and Miss McConnell had been secured as substitutes for Miss Borland and Miss Engisch, who are ill, was confirmed.

The tenders for the wood supply was left in the hands of the supply committee. The board extended an invitation, through Principal Nelson; to the Teachers' Association to hold their annual convention in Norwood. A very satisfactory report was read and filed from the public school inspector.

The following accounts were referred to the various committees and, if correct, ordered paid: T. M. Lumsden, repairing and painting blinds, $6; M. Elliott, rent for school garden plot, $9; E. P. Cuffe, supplies, household science, $6.37; R. H. Gardner, supplies, high school, $3.70; Norwood Register, half cost financial statement, H.S., $6.10; Norwood Register, half cost financial statement, P.S., $6.10.

W.M.S. Meets.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church was held in the Sunday school room recently with a good attendance, when Mrs. Keefer's group was in charge and the scriptural lesson was read by Mrs. Ed. Scott.

Mrs. G. A. Brethen and Mrs. W. B. Tucker, delegates to the recent Presbyterial in Peterborough, gave reports of the meeting. Mrs. Renaud favored with an instrumental selection and Mrs. Frank Webster read an interesting letter from her sister, Miss Greta Clarke, of the Chinese Inland Mission. Special mention was made of Miss Brooks, missionary in China, who has recently been in great danger.

Lunch and a social hour concluded the meeting.

Miss Can

What a time that pretty Miss Can does have of it! First she wins the tennis tournament. Then she gets the chief part in the amateur dramatics. And now she's engaged—and to a man with a Rolls Royce. Really, it's a wonder it doesn't turn her head! But Miss Can is too sensible. She takes Eno every morning, does our Miss Can. That's why she is so bright-eyed and vivacious and popular. She knows how much it's worth to her to keep herself clean inside.

Miss Can't

And there—if that isn't poor Miss Can't sitting out alone again. It does seem hard! Of course, it's true Miss Can't plays a wonderful game of golf, and she's got the sweetest nature. But—well, Miss Can't is only human, and she does sigh a little sometimes, and wonder. And yet, she'd be so bright and pretty if she'd only realise this: congested foodways poison the blood, bring muddy skin, lifeless hair, and low vitality. Won't someone tell Miss Can't about Eno?

A clean inside is the only foundation of outward sparkle and beauty. To ensure that inner cleanliness is Eno's one purpose. And from the very moment you drink it, you know that Eno will succeed. Will do for your inner self what pure soap and fresh water do for your outward self. Will cleanse and sweeten and refresh your whole system—safely, surely, positively. Need you be like Miss Can't? Of course not! Take Eno first thing each morning and before retiring at night.

Tune in to any station on the Blue net work of the National Broadcasting system and enjoy the Eno Crime Club programme, Tuesdays and Wednesdays 8 to 8.30 p.m., E.S.T.

CARDINALS GET "DAZZY" VANCE FROM DODGERS

Brooklyn Trades Noted Pitcher for Owen Carroll and Jake Flowers.

SLADE FOR ST. LOUIS.

Popular Infielder Will Fill Shoes of Charlie Gelbert on Cardinal Roster.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.— (A.P.) — While most of the major league baseball clubs were apparently content to concentrate on the contract situation, the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals have broken loose with one of the season's most startling player trades.

The deal, announced somewhat unexpectedly last night, sent Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn's veteran fireball pitcher, and Gordon Slade, infielder, to St. Louis Cardinals for Owen Carroll, former Toronto International League pitcher who came to the Cards in the deal for Jim Bottomley and Jake Flowers, utility infielder whom the Dodgers sold to St. Louis in 1931.

It was known that Brooklyn was willing to listen to offers for Vance, who has been slipping from his once great form in the past couple of seasons. But only a short time ago the Cards refused a trade for Tex Carlton or Paul Derringer and then Max Carey, Brooklyn manager, said he would be satisfied if the Dazzler turned in one good game a week.

Not Signed Hold-out.

Vance was not listed as a holdout, but he had not signed the contract Brooklyn offered, which was understood to be considerably below last year's $15,000 figure.

Carroll, a former Holy Cross star who had played with the Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees besides Toronto, won 10 games and lost 19 with the last place Cincinnati club last season. In Flowers the Dodgers get a veteran but useful infielder who can fill in at any position. The Cards, it is understood, sought Slade to fill in for Charley Gelbert, as the St. Louis management is not yet convinced that Gelbert will recover from his hunting accident in time to do much playing.

ED. HEATHFIELD IS LONE WINNER

Montreal Boxers are Game Losers in New York Amateur Bouts.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (C.P.)—Only one of four Montreal boxers who came here to joust with some of the leading amateurs of the United States had a victory to show to-day for his efforts, but the others had let their opponents know they had been in a fight, two of the losers dropped close decisions; the other was fighting on even terms when a wild punch suddenly smashed him into an unexpected knockout.

Ed Heathfield, thrice Canadian champion of the 118 pounders, was the lone winner of the Montreal entrants in an inter-city tourney that brought boxers from Detroit, Washington, New York and Newark into the Madison Square Garden ring last night. Eddie showed an abundance of class to hammer out a decisive ,three-round decision over Ray Carmello of New York.

Rosario Baillergeon, who works at boiler-making in Montreal when he isn't fighting as a middleweight, was the knockout victim. An always onward fighter, the Frenchman piled up points by sheer aggressiveness in his clash with Howard Rogers of Jersey City. The setto was even until Rogers let fly the wild one that cracked on Baillargeon's chin and sent him out in 2.26 of the second round.

Mysterious Finn Is Still At Large

Still no word of success was received to-day to cheer Provincial police officers in their ever-widening search for "Jake," the mysterious Finn, alleged slayer of Fred McLaren, who was beaten to death in a farm house in Cavan township last week-end. Police admitted that they had obtained no definite clue to lead them in their hunt for the stocky transient, who has likely joined the horde of homeless men who are wending their way over bleak roads from town to town for food and shelter.

All organizations over a wide area caring for transients have been furnisthed with a description of "Jake" and have been requested to co-operate in securing his arrest.

Inspector Charles Gurnett, of the C. I. D., Provincial Police, who is in charge of the investigation, was in the city yesterday afternoon ,and requested the co-operation of local police in the hunt.

MIXED RECEPTION GREETS PLAN TO TAX INCOMES OVER $10,000

List Under That Category All Shot at Present Says Mayor Denne.

SCHEME NOT CONSIDERED.

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's application for a legislative amendment to levy a municipal surtax on incomes of more than $10,000 met with a mixed reception in other Ontario cities. Some reported no consideration of the proposal, while others believed the surtax should be general throughout the province or the Dominion.

In London, the assessment commissioner and the finance commissioner said their recommendations and advice had been for a similar scheme. Opinion appeared divided in Hamilton, where it was said Labor members of the council supported the plan, while others claimed it would bring no aid under present economic conditions.

Mayor Denne of Peterborough came out with his belief that $10,000 incomes are "all shot at present." The council there has given no consideration to the scheme.

Windsor reported no official statements forthcoming, but indications the plan might receive support from the council.

Mayor G. I. Graff of Stratford said: "It appears to be more equitable that those best able to pay should carry the heavier burden and that the surtax "would not be too great a contribution under present conditions." He believed it should be uniform over the Dominion and not confined to certain municipalities, and that the municipalities should, if it were so adopted, derive part of the benefit.

Galt council members expressed interest but declined to offer definite comment on the proposal, saying they were not officialy informed.

Mayor R. B. Robson of Guelph, believed that municipalities outside of Toronto would oppose the plan if it were made obligatory on all corporations.

No Comment

Niagara Falls and St. Catharines reported no consideration and no comment on the proposal.

Sarnia councillors doubted the value of the surtax, saying there are few, if any, with such incomes there now. Mayor Lockhart said unless the tax were imposed by all municipalities, persons taxed in urban centres would probably move out.

Mayor H. W. Sturm of Kitchener said the surtax plan "is new to me and new to the members of the council." He added, however, it is "worth taking up and may be considered by the aldermen."

Sault Ste. Marie reported the council may consider the move as a result of a recommendation by assessment commissioner H. J. Bennett, who believes municipalities should adopt a sliding scale in line with the system on income taxes levied by the Dominion government.

Hamilton's Labor Members of the council were inclined to support the plan, while Alderman R. R. Evans saw no value in it in the present economic situation. It was pointed out the income tax for 1933 was collected on the income of 1931, and the 1933 income would not be taxed until 1935; thus the surtax, if imposed, this year, would not be collectable for two years.

CONVEYANCE IS SET ASIDE

LILLICO GIVEN COSTS.

In the Assizes before the Hon. Mr. Justice Sedgewick on Wednesday afternoon, the case of Ivan T. Lillico against F. Bruce Hutchinson and Mrs. Eva M. Hutchinson was tried. This was an action brought by Mr. Lillico as a judgment creditor against F. Bruce Hutchinson to set aside a conveyance of a one-half interest of the equity in his house at 546 Water street, that he had given to his wife after Mr. Lillico had become a judgment creditor of Mr. Hutchison. Captain Pearson was called to prove attempted seizure and the claim of Mrs. Hutchinson that she owned all the household effects, and C. J. Seymour was called to prove that the judgment was unpaid, and W. F. Morrow was called to show the deed had been registered of a one-half interest of Mr. Hutchinson in the house. Both defendants were called and Mrs. Hutchinson claimed she had loaned considerable sums of money to her husband and felt entitled to receive a deed of the property. However, judgment was given by Mr Justice Sedgewick setting aside the conveyance and giving Mr. Lillico his costs. The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for Mr. Lillico and Mr. J. A. O'Brien appeared for Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson.

RADIO NOTES

By R. H. CHILDERHOSE of City Radio Service.

If you are using a two-volt battery radio using an "air cell" battery, do not use a dial light in the set, as this little light uses as much curernt from the battery as all the other tubes combined.

If you use a storage battery, one cell at a time ,ask your battery man to connect the three cells in parallel. This will elliminate the bother of changing from cell to cell, and will lengthen the life of the battery, as all cells are being dischalged equally.

Fan, Lake St.—The ground you are using is not nearly as satisfactory as a ground rod or water pipe. It will cut down the efficiency of the set, but will not affect the tone.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Feb. 9.—A firm tone prevailed on the egg section of the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

The cold weather in various sections of Canada resulted in the firm tone on the market, but prices were unchanged. Carlots or less of fresh graded extras were quoted at 21 cents, firsts at 19 cents, pullets at 18 cents and seconds at 17 cents a dozen. Asking prices were 22 cents for extras and 20 cents for firsts, but no sales were confirmed. Receipts were 816 cases.

Butter held steady at 20½ cents a pound for carlots or less of No. 1 grass make. Receipts were 70 boxes.

Current receipts of Ontario cheese were quoted at 9 cents for white, 10 cents for curernt colored, and 10½ to 11¼ cents a pound for early make. Receipts were 18 boxes.

Potatoes remained unchanged, new unsorted Green Mountains selling at 75 cents per 80-pound bag, Prince Edward Green Mountains at 80 to 85 cents per 80 pound bag and 90 to 95 cents per 90-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 9. — Broadened suggestions of crop damage to United States winter wheat, together with word that China was purchasing wheat from Argentina helped grain values upward yesterday.

Severe cold throughout the domestic wheat belt emphasized reports of big areas lacking a snow blanket especially in the Southwest and West and the Ohio Valley. Oriental buying of South American wheat was regarded as showing an unprecedented situation likely to relieve Argentine pressure upon European markets, especially as advices at hand suggested India would later give evidence of wheat shortage.

Wheat closed firm at but little below the day's top, ½c to ¾c above Tuesday's finish; corn, ⅛c to ⅜c up; oats, ⅛c to ¼c advanced, and provisions varying from 2c off to 5c gain.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 9.— Taking heed of bullish crop reports from the United States, wheat prices ignored the lack of export demand and surged upward on the Winnipeg grain market yesterday. Easing only fractionally from the day's high points, values closed ¾c to 1c higher. Trading was fairly active throughout.

July delivery received the bulk of attention, rising 1c under concentrated buying at one period. Profit-taking selling near the close however, chipped fractions off the advance, and the future closed the session at 49c. May delivery finished at 48c, and October at 50c.

Two cargoes of Argentine wheat were reported sold to China. Foreign demand for Canadian wheat, however, continued dormant.

Cash and coarse grains continued quiet.

NEWFOUNDLAND VILLAGE IS MAROONED

Fred McLaren's Skull Fractured In Eight Places

Inquest Is Held By Coroner Dr. H. A. Turner Into The Death Of Fred McLaren, Cavan Township Farmer, Who Was Found Dead Sunday.

ANY ONE OF FRACTURES IN MAN'S SKULL SUFFICIENT TO CAUSE DEATH, DOCTOR SAYS

MILLBROOK, Feb. 9.—(By a Staff Reporter).—"That Frederick McLaren came to his death some time between 3 p.m. Friday, February 3rd and 4 p.m. Sunday, February 5th on lot 11 concession 8 of Cavan township by blows on the head fracturing the skull, delivered by some person or persons unknown," was the verdict yesterday afternoon of the coroner's jury that investigated the murder of the elderly farmer whose body was found frozen to the floor in its blood last Sunday by Raymond Syer, his employer.

The finding of the jury officially confirmed The Examiner's detailed story last Tuesday of most of the known circumstances surrounding the slaying of McLaren and also corroborated the published implication that a stranger with a foreign accent who had been living with McLaren about a week, was probably the last to have seen him alive.

Transient Guest Missing

"Jake," the jobless transient who by some sinister misdirection of fate strayed to the house on one of the Syers farms which McLaren was occupying, has not been seen in the Cavan countryside since the murder, and extensive casting of the police dragnet has failed to pick up his broken trail.

Dr. C. W. Nash of town, who performed the postmortem examination, testified that McLaren's skull was fractured in eight places, and probably any one of these injuries might have been fatal. Other wounds on the head and face were mentioned in Dr. Nash's report and his statement to the jury was that death was caused by multiple fractures of the skull, hemorrhage of the brain and shock.

Provincial Constable W. J. Carey of Cobourg produced a blood stained block of stove wood and a stone, similarly smeared, about the size of a man's fist, which he had found in the kitchen where McLaren lived and slept. Other evidence was

WOMAN IS FOUND HANGING IN CELL

Was Awaiting Deportation to Canada From Richmond, Indiana.

HUSBAND IN PRISON.

"Mrs. Donald Corder, alias Clarke, to-day hanged herself in a gaol cell, where she was awaiting deportation to Canada as an undesirable citizen."

Behind that terse announcement contained in a press despatch from Richmond, Indiana, to-day, is concealed a story, with Walter Cowling of this city taking second place to the major character in the person of Donald Corder, a man of many aliases and a citizen of the United States.

The dead woman, formerly Cora Margaret Jean McLean of Toronto was charged with her husband and also Walter Cowling of robbery at Richmond. Her husband exonerated her in connection with the robberies there, and in several other cities in the United States, and she was being held for the Justice Department.

Cowling, for whom the city police here hold a warrant for arrest on a charge of robbery, was recently arrested in Indiana on robbery counts, and upon a plea of guilty was sen-

NO PREFERENCE ON GRAIN CARGO

Shipment From Canada Sent Through New York as Second Trial.

REFUSAL UNEXPLAINED.

LONDON, Feb. 10 (C.P. Cable).—A trial shipment of wheat from Canada aboard the steamer Britannic from New York had been refused the British preference of six cents a bushel. Official confirmation was given to-day of the withholding of the preference.

The test shipment arrived at Liverpool a couple of weeks ago.

The decision was made by Customs officials in London, minor officers at Liverpool not desiring to be connected with the important decision which wheat importers throughout this country and exporters in America were anxiously awaiting.

It had been anticipated the shipment would gain the preference because details supposed to have been overlooked in the shipping of the test load from Canada on the Laconia some weeks ago were included in the Britannic's order.

The main requirement, of course, is that the wheat shall be definitely consigned through to the United Kingdom at the time it leaves Canadian territory, bearing concrete proof of its Canadian origin.

The preference was not granted the Laconia shipment because it did not adequately prove to have been on through consignment from Canada and to have originated in the Dominion. No announcement was made to-day by the Customs Commissioners as to why the preference was refused the Britannic's shipment.

MAIL ROBBERY NETS $325,000

Three Masked Men Seize Two Registered Sacks and Flee.

$125,000 IS CASH.

SACRAMENTO, Cal. Feb. 10. — Bandits held up the central post office here last night and fled with more than 325 000 contained in a sack of registered mail.

The loot included $200,000 of bonds owned by the Bank of America and $125 000 in currency, postal authorities said. Value of other mail in the sack was unknown.

Three men in a new sedan parked in a one-way street back of the post office, stepped out, put white masks over their faces and seized and disarmed C. Swanson, truck driver. Then they jumped upon a loading platform at the instant C. E. Wallin, registered clerk, appeared with the mail sack. Threatening him with revolvers, they took the valuable bag.

Two bandits ran to their automobile with the sack. The third covered their flight Then, as he turned, he accidentally discharged his gun.

"What in hell are you trying to do?" Wallin and Swanson heard his companions shout.

BREAK COMING IN COLD SPELL; ONLY BE BRIEF

Weatherman Sees Fresh "Decidedly Cold Wave" Coming From West

MANY SCHOOLS CLOSE.

Several Homes Set Fire as Furnaces Are Overstocked—Roads Blocked.

(By The Canadian Press)

Westerly winds which swept the coldest spell of Winter across Canada bore milder weather eastward to-day as they blew more gently from the Rocky Mountains foothills. But forecasts indicated the relaxation of intense cold would be brief. A whistling gale swept the Maritime Provinces on its way to the Atlantic and temperatures dropped in its wake. The tail end of the storm still whipped Ontario and Quebec, where thermometers stood firm at low figures or sagged lower.

Currents of ice air crawled down the Pacific slope to the sea. It was 30 below at Prince George in the interior and as little as 10 above, a Winter's low, at Vancouver.

Southern Ontario, unaccustomed to such bitter onslaught, appeared to be suffering most discomfort from the encroachment of the subarctic. Hundreds of persons frose ears and noses, school children stayed indoors in several towns, many householders set fire to their homes over-stoking their furnaces and some public services were disrupted.

Hard on Coal Bins

With the Province blanketted by the most intense cold wave experienced for several years, Ontario householders made fresh onslaught on their coal-bins to-day.

From all parts of the Province came reports of sub-zero temperatures ranging from 50 below in the Northwest to eight below on the northern shores of Lake Ontario, while meteorological forecasts indicated continuation of the low temperatures.

Fire-fighters were called upon to subdue severe fires in London and Sault. Ste. Marie last night, while numerous minor blazes originating in overheated stove and furnace pipes were reported.

Snow fell for the most part in the Western part of the Province. At North Bay a three-hour blizzard raged in brilliant sunshine, whipped off the ground by a 35-mile-an-hour wind. Street traffic was halted and highways which had been clear became blocked again.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., school children were given a holiday as the temperature struck 16 below; power services were disrupted and sewers frozen. In Windsor more than 300 pupils were treated for frost bites.

Ferry service to Saulte Ste. Marie had to be abandoned as ice barred passage of boats. Niagara Falls citizens saw the ice bridge for the first time this season.

Bedding Is Wanted Badly At Bureau

The extreme cold weather of the past few days has caused great hardship in numbers of homes on relief in the city. In all these homes the fuel is wood and not an awful lot of it either, and it is difficult to keep the fires going all night, and unless there is plenty of bedding (which is not the case) children and parents are in a bad way.

Just now every blanket and quilt in the Community Clothing Bureau has been given out, and anyone who can supply any such article of bedding will be helping out some father and mother and their kiddies in a very practical manner. Please telephone 3315 and your parcels will be called for.

Blast Kills 100 In Steel Works

STRASBOURG, France, February 10 (C.P.). — More than a hundred persons were reported to have been killed to-day in the explosion of a huge gas storage tank at the Neunkirchen Steel Works in the Saar Valley.

It was just 6.10 p.m. when the tank exploded, shooting up flames which were seen over a wide area.

Within less than an hour four truckloads of the injured had been taken to hospitals.

The police cordon was extended to include nearby tanks for fear of another explosion, and the authorities contemplated evacuating the lower part of the town because of the danger of gas poisoning.

ELEVEN MISSING UPON SCHOONER

Party Set Out Wednesday Seeking Youth Who Has Since Been Found.

GUARDS, PLANES OUT.

WESTPORT, Conn., Feb. 10. — (AP)—Although a 19-year-old boy for whom the party sought was safe fears rose for the safety of eleven persons who set out Wednesday aboard a 30-foot schooner and have not been reported since.

Edward Connolly, who disappeared last night on Long Island Sound in a row boat, spent the night in a lighthouse, out of touch with land, and returned to shore safely. The schooner Saugatuck, with Captain John Mulhaley, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hauser, the boy's mother and step-father, three police officers, two newspaper men, and three others, had not been located in spite of a thorough search.

The searching party grew bigger as the day advanced and covered a wide area. It included seven coast guard cutters, three aeroplanes and a score of private craft.

Willow Is In Bloom Coldest Day Of Year

Brought in from Lily Lake by John James of 168 Adeline Street, The Examiner to-day received a large twig taken from a pussy willow tree on the coldest day of the present winter.

Cut yesterday in below zero weather, the twig is in full bloom and contains over ninety silky buds that seem to have been untouched by the severe frost.

During the night before last the thermometer sank to the lowest level in some years at 24 below. Last night the coldest temperature recorded was 10 below zero.

$1,000,000 FIRE FOUGHT BY 80 FIRE COMPANIES

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—(AP)—Fantastic ice covered ruins from which clouds of smoke and steam still drifted skyward today marked the spot where firemen fought a $1,000,000 grain fire throughout the night.

An explosion followed by a burst of flames late yesterday set off the conflagration in an elevator owned by the Rosenbaum grain corporation on historic Goose Island, northwest of the loop.

The fact that it occurred on the coldest day in 34 years of weather history in Chicago—when the thermometer sank to 10.19 degrees below zero—didn't maze the task of the 80 fire fighting companies any easier, as water from their hose fell in sheets of ice and coated the seven-story structure.

An aeroplane can cover the distance it requires a dog team 35 days to cover in six hours.

Youth Bests Women Bargain Hunters; Freezes to Door, But Makes 50 Cents

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 10.—(CP)—An endurance contest with women, time and cold, which saw the winner finally emerge with a profit of 50 cents, took place here with the victor frozen to the door-handle of a store.

A telegraph messenger read a jewelry store advertisement in which the merchant declared he would sell a $7 silver plate for $1 to the first person entering the store.

Shortly after dawn, the boy arrived and grabbed the door handle. The inevitable bargain-hunting women followed him. The lad stayed right there despite their efforts to dislodge him. When the merchant arrived, he had to pour hot water on the door-handle before the canny messenger could let go. The boy sold his silver plate for $1.50.

DUTCH CRUISER'S REBELS BOMBED 18 ARE KILLED

Twenty-five Others Injured Before Mutineers Surrender Ship.

DRAMATIC END TO CHASE.

Native Crew Remain in Defiance to Last—Surrounded by Planes.

BATAVIA, Java, February 10 (C.P.) — Eighteen men were killed and 25 injured aboard the rebellious Dutch cruiser De Zeven Provincien when a naval fighting plane dropped a bomb on the ship's deck today, forcing the mutinous native crew to surrender.

The dead comprise three Europeans and 15 Japanese natives. One Dutch officer and one young Dutchman were slightly wounded.

The dramatic end to the mutineers' career came at dawn off the south-west Sumatra coast when a concentration of Dutch naval and air forces bore down on the fleeing quarry and ordered her to surrender within ten minutes.

Defiant to Last.

The rebels, defiant to the last, flashed a reply: "Don't hinder us." They failed to show a white cloth on the deck awning, as directed, in token of unconditional capitulation.

The attackers' reaction was decisive. As soon as the brief period of grace expired, a warning bomb was dropped alongside the De Zeven.

As there was no further sign from the mutineers, down went a 100-pound bomb from one of a half-dozen planes in an attacking air fleet.

It exploded with a roar on the deck of the rebel craft, bringing death to 18 members of the crew and wounding 25 others.

Give Up and Take to Boats.

That was enough for the mutineers, who had been running wild for five days on the Indian Ocean with eight of their Dutch officers held prisoners. The natives signalled their surrender and then took to boats as a fire broke out aboard the cruiser from the effects of the explosion.

The fire aboard the De Zeven seemed to have done little damage as her wireless continued to work and her rightful captain, Commander Eekenboom, went aboard.

SCRIBE IS ON WAY TO PERSIA TO INVESTIGATE THE OIL BAN

FEAR HOOSEGOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

With the following article, Mr. Van Paassen begins a new series on his adventures in Persia, where he is travelling in order, if possible to interview the shah on his attitude toward British oil interests. Charter of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company was recently revoked, causing international complications. Controlled by British interests, Anglo-Persian Company has invested millions of pounds in well equipement and pipe lines.

ASSYRIAN DESERT, Jan. 15 — We are one our way to Persia. Up till this morning we were buoyed by hope that the Shah, "may his shadow never grow less," would grant us an audience and personally explain to us why he has seen fit to abrogate the concession of Anglo-Persian Oil Co. However the venerable Sayed Kubesh, a Mesopotamian sheik, with a beard like Micah or Ezechiel, who has become our fellow-traveller by simply attaching himself to us, and who sits in the back of the car talking interminably to show off his his knowledge of French informs us that the Shah is furious with all foreigners and that there isn't the remotest chance for two unbelievers to see the face of him who is "the shadow of God on earth." The sheik figures that, under the circumstances, a mere look might be the end of us.

Wild Atlantic Gale Rapidly Threatens To Cut All Escape

Fisherfolk, Numbering 450, Forced To Take Refuge In Attic, Unable To Attempt Flight While Gale Continues—Communications Break Down.

WRECKAGE DOZEN HAMLETS SWEPT TO SEA EXTREME COLD ADDS TO GENERAL SUFFERING

ST. GEORGE'S, Nfld., February 10 (C.P.). — Swirling waters of Bay St. George backed up to-day under the force of a gale out of the north-west, carrying wreckage of a dozen coastal villages out to sea.

The bay swelled yesterday before a gale from the south and later from the south-west, flooded the village of Sandy Point, and forced its 450 fisherfolk to seek refuge in their attics. Other coastal villages reported losses of fishing stores, boats, and gear, and the total damage will run into thousands of dollars.

No human lives have been lost, so far, although some Sandy Point cattle were drowned in their stalls. Fear seized a dozen villages to-day, however, as the full moon threatened to bring the highest tide into the bay to-night.

All communication with Sandy Point has been cut off since yesterday afternoon, when a telegraph operator told St. John's of the flood. The water then was at his door three feet above the ground, and a short time later the wires were dead.

Village Cut Off.

To-day Sandy Point is an island. After crashing through the breakwater yesterday and flooding part of the village, the furious sea today broke through the narrow strip of land that had connected the point with the mainland.

Thus if another high tide threatens the lives of the people on Sandy Point their escape by land will be cut off by the water, which now is flowing quite freely across the sand into the inner harbor.

They have boats, but it is doubtful if they would attempt to use them while the gale continues.

Rumor Hertzog Ready To Discuss Coalition

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Feb. 10 (C.P Cable). — Usually reliable sources reported to-day the National party, headed by Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog, would hold a caucus to-morrow and decide whether or not to invite the Opposition to join in formation of a Coalition Government.

It was learned the Prime Minister summoned his House of Assembly supporters several days ago and asked whether they thought it advisable to open negotiations with General Jan Christian Smuts' South African party for a National Government like that of the United Kingdom. The decision of this conference was not made public.

DEMANDED RENT PAID UP IN FULL

M.L.A. Admits Tenants Held Responsible for Difference Town Didn't Pay.

FLAUNTED AGREEMENT.

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Feb. 10.—(C.P.) — Despite agreement with the town that rental paid by the town on behalf of destitute tenants would be accepted in full payment, A. Z. Aubin, M.L.A., today told the Royal Commission investigating relief disbursements that in cases where the rent paid by the town is not equal to rent formerly paid by the tenant, he was holding the tenant responsible for the difference.

The agreement signed by every landlord reads:

"I hereby agree to rent the said dwelling to the above-mentioned tenant at the mentioned monthly rental on condition the said tenant pay me the said rental or else produce to me at my usual place of business or abode or by mail a proper order drawn on the Department of direct relief of the town of Sturgeon Falls and issued by the relief officer, covering such rental."

"It is further agreed I will accept in full payment of the above-mentioned shelter or rent orders 85 per cent. of their face values and I will not attempt to collect the remaining 15 per cent. from the tenant. It is finally agreed the proceeds of rents may be applied for the purpose of liquidating any liabilities which I might have towards the town of Sturgeon Falls."

The question came up when it was discovered in examining the records of a house owned by Asa Gordon, administered by Mr. Aubin, the tenant had been paying arrears in rent in cash while his current rent was paid by the town.

REDISTRIBUTION TO SEE 22 SEATS OR MORE, FEWER

Population Basis in Cities to be 50,000 or Over—Country 25,000.

GAS TAX UNCHANGED.

Ontario Ridings Not to be Coterminous With Federal —More Relief Probes.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Turning official light, for the first time, on the redistribution bill which is scheduled for the approaching session of the Ontario Legislature, Premier Henry last night admitted that the Government would press for a cut of at least 22 seats —"and possibly more"—in the present House membership of 112; definitely announced that Toronto would lose three ridings, and Hamilton and Ottawa one each; and intimated that all sections of the province, the north included, would feel the effect of the redistribution axe.

Raise Population Basis

Terms of the bill to be introduced to the House would provide, he said, for a larger basis of population for riding representation. The minimum for an electoral district would be set at 25,000. In the cities the basis would be 50,000 or over.

Careful study had been given to the redistribution question, Premier Henry added, and the Government had been unable to see its way clear to make its ridings coterminous with the Ontario ridings in Federal House, due chiefly to the fact that provincial problems were somewhat afield from Federal matters, and naturally demanded more intimate attention from the elected representatives.

The Prime Minister's statements in this particular respect were given to a rally of Ward Nine Liberal-Conservative Association, in Masonic Temple on Eglington Avenue east, and were coupled with the loudly applauded intimation that no new taxation would be brought into operation this year unless absolutely vital to the maintenance of the province's credit.

The gasoline tax would, he definitely assured his audience remain at its present rate of six cents per gallon.

Taxes Heavy Enough.

No one appreciated more than he, said Premier Henry, that the people were "sufficiently burdened" at the present time with taxation, and he believed that "a moderate deficit" would be more justified under existing circumstances than any increase in taxes. Deficits, however, demanded consideration, because of the fact that deficits injured credit, and Ontario's credit had, he contended, to remain unimpaired, not only throughout Canada but "across the line, where we unfortunately have to go for money sometimes."

A 20 per cent. cut in all departmental expenditures, Premier Henry further announced, was the aim for this year of the Provincial budgeting committee at Queen's Park. To attain that object, he said, would mean a greater than 20 per cent. slash in some times. Last year, the ordinary expenditure of the province had been some $55,000,000, inclusive of indirect relief charges and approximately $16,000,000 in Provincial debt interest. That $16,000,000, he said, was a fixed charge, and could not be reduced. In all other items —"all along the line," as he put it—the budgeting committee was cutting to the bone, taking care wherever they recommended their reductions that the long-prided efficiency of various services to the people would be affected as little as possible.

As one illustration of departmental retrenchment, Premier Henry cited that the 20 per cent. reduction that has been applied to all school grants with the exception of the academic high schools which are to be cut ten per cent. With co-operation in this connection from the various school boards concerned, there need be no depreciation in the standards of education, he felt.

"And I earnestly ask for that co-operation," he said. "I invite it, so that this necessary retrenchment can be made."

Dealing with the program work of the approaching session, the Prime Minister confined most of his attention to the proposed amendment to the Moratorium Act of last session, whereby a mortgagor who finds himself in difficulty will, in future, be able to apply to the county judge or other designated officials to bring about some agreement or understanding between him and the mortgagee so that he can get an extension of time or other relief on his payments.

Working out the legislation, admitted Premier Henry, was a considerable problem, inasmuch as both parties—the mortgager and the mortgagee—had to be protected. It would not do merely to protect the mortgagor against his obligations and place the onus on the mortgagee.

TRANSIENT IS BADLY BEATEN AT MILLBROOK

Transients Stage Battle After Drinking Rubbing Alcohol.

FLY IN MORNING

MILLBROOK, Feb. 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — A miniature "Donnybrook Fair" developed on Wednesday night in the quarters of the Town Hall basement given over for the accommodation of transients. Three "old timers" who had been permitted to stay over from the night before because of inclement weather conditions, and who had been out during the day selling shoe laces about the town, apparently investing the proceeds in rubbing alcohol, using same as a beverage, and becoming quite quarrelsome.

The presence of four young fellows who joined the company for the night evidently was unwelcome to the three already in possession, and one of the latter was rather badly beaten up in the melee when words were followed by blows.

The belligerents were separated, and the four younger men taken upstairs where the municipal council was holding its regular session, remaining there as onlookers while the village fathers, who were wielding the "economy axe" on civic estimates and salaries, were not able to reach an adjournment until 1 a.m. The four occupied the council chamber for the night, while downstairs the three quarrelsome ones were placed under lock and key, with Constable John Deyell remaining on guard.

Apparently fearful that Provincial Constable Carey would be summoned from Cobourg with the coming of daylight, the ring leader of the party which had been dissipating with the rubbing alcohol set out voluntarily at 6 a.m.; the other two being started off an hour later. It is likely a temperature of ten below zero, with an icy wind blowing, would do more to cool hot heads and help in obeying the injunction "let not your angry passions rise," than even a period as "guests of the government" in the county gaol.

Although there are transients, in varying numbers, practically every night in the Town Hall basement, where meals are provided and comfortable quarters arranged for their accommodation, Wednesday's disturbance was the first time any trouble has arisen since the wanderers started coming in early last fall.

CAR SALESROOM SWEPT BY FIRE $50,000 DAMAGE

Trapped in Elevator London Brigade Chief Almost Suffocates.

SAVES OWN LIFE.

New Cars Are Burned—Child's Wear Shop Suffers $8,000 Loss.

LONDON, Ont., February 10 — Leading his men in a three-hour battle with a stubborn $50,000 fire at the showrooms of the Hudson-Essex Motor Sales, at 374 Dundas Street last night, Fire Chief Charles Scott missed an appalling death by a margin more narrow than any in his long career as smoke-eater.

The Chief had directed the laying of eight lines, principally at the rear of the building, half an hour after the flames were discovered. The place filled with palls of impenetrable smoke, and there were roaring furnaces of flame in both basement and the second storey.

Walks on to Lift.

At the rear is an automobile door inside which is a huge elevator, the passage leading either across the platform to the showroom or up the lift to a shop.

The Chief, alone, groped his way into teh building, unaware that he was on an elevator platform. As he felt his way forward, trying to discover the seat of the blaze, the fire below short-circuited some of the wiring, and started theelevator on a slow upward ascent.

He was scarcely aware that the carriage was carrying him upward until escape was cut off.

His shouts attracted Fire Captain Edyvane, who rallied a rescue force preparing to chop through the side of the building into the stalled cage.

Almost unconscious from smoke, the Chief reached ropes in a corner of the cage, and, tugging at them, felt the elevator move downward.

As the car halted again at the ground level he was assisted off and was rushed to the open air, where he soon revived. He was seriously affected, however, and was compelled to leave soon after for his home.

Cars Burned.

The fire caused heavy loss in the auto showrooms recently opened by J. J. Gilmore, whose loss included three new cars and half a dozen used cars stored on the second floor. The building, owned by the Slater Estate, was partly unroofed toward the rear.

The Children's quality Shop at 372 Dundas Street, suffered estimated loss of $8 000, while heavy damage was done also in an apartment on the upper floor, occupied by Frank Jolliffe and his wife.

It was Jolliffe who discovered the fire under unusual circumstances. During the evening he went to the kitchen for a drink of water, and to his surprise found hot water in the cold water pipes. He investigated, and found the basement of the building a seething furnace.

Flaming Truck Is Hauled From Garage

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10. — Dragging a flaming truck out of the Cassan Garage, Campbellford, in the nick of time yesterday saved the whole building with an adjacent gas station from going up in flames. The truck which was run in the back work shop with a stiff engine suddenly burst into flames, and only the quick action of the mechanicts who drew it backward into the road with the aid of a car saved the building. The local fire department quickly answered the call and extinguished the flames but not until the engine was completely destroyed and the cab burned.

LEGION GIVEN ANNUAL GRANT

Seymour Council Defers Action on Trent River Sanitation Question.

TAX REFUND.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The Seymour Township Council sitting in regular session yesterday under the chairmanship of Reeve William J. Duncan decided to take no action with the request of the Board of Health regarding the conditions of sanitation at Trent River. This matter however is not yet settled, this suspension of action being only for the present, Dr. H. B. Longmore, M.O.H. for the township and N. Alex MacColl addressed the council regarding the matter. This is the outcome of a meeting held at Trent River last summer when Dr. Sutton of Peterborough addressed a meeting of the cottagers there following the finding of impure drinking water.

B. Boys addressed the council regarding taxes paid by him on township property, the north half of Lot 3, Con. 4, and the north half of the south half of the same lot to be assessed separately.

Mr. Bayes will be refunded the excess taxes paid on the north half of the south half of the said lot and concession.

No action was taken with the request of J. J. Lewis Hay of Campbellford regarding fences and trees on the seventh concession road.

The Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion were given a $50 grant to assist them with their relief work. The request for this was made by E. H. Lewis and J. D. McEachern who explained the work being carried on in the district by the Legion along this line.

Clerk Wesley Stephens was requested to write the County Registrar for a list of deeds of transfer of property which took place in the township in 1932. He was also requested to obtain maps of the township and outline the boundaries of all school sections and supply one of these to the county clerk.

Dan Petherick, road superintendent, was appointed official delegate of the council to the annual convention of the Good Roads Association to be held in Toronto on February 20 and 21.

The auditor's report was presented by T. H. Rowe and received as also was the school attendance report presented by that officer, G. W. Anderson.

The accounts amounting to $990.68 were presented and passed.

ICE HARVESTER GETS DIPPING

Henry Lord Falls Into Water While Cutting Ice at Millbrook.

HELPERS NEARBY

MILLBROOK, Feb. 10.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The annual ice harvest began this week on Attwooll and Sheppard's pond, and on Wednesday afternoon Henry Lord, a veteran of the ice-cutting game, had a narrow escape from drowning when the snow on which he had stepped gave way and he was plunged into the icy water to its full depth.

A block of ice had been cut from this space just a short time before, and Mr. Lord was unaware of the fact that the high wind blowing had covered the open space with snow, with the consequent treacherous footing. Fortunately Benjamin Raper and Sam Donnelly were at hand and helped in rescuing the submerged man from his perilous position; also D. Donnelly's dog which had likewise gone under when the snow gave way. Bill Byam rushed Mr. Lord home in his car, and by the next afternoon the ill effects of the accident had apparently disappeared.

The ice is not of particularly good quality this season, being only from eight to ten inches in depth. Last year there was no ice harvest locally on the Attwool and Sheppard pond at all.

MEMBERS OF LOCAL BAR WISH JUSTICE SEDGEWICK SUCCESS AS HEAD OF NEW TARIFF BOARD

Career as Jurist Closed Yesterday After Hearing Last Case.

GOING TO OTTAWA.

Several Members of Local Bar Address Court at Concluding Session.

Mr. Justice Sedgewick stepped from the bench as the Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario concluded here late last night, and as he doffed his judicial robes, he virtually bid good-bye, not without some regret, as he admitted, to his career as a jurist.

Almost immediately he expects to assume his new appointment as chairman of the recently formed Canadian Tariff Board.

After concluding the final case on the civil list and bringing to a close a heavy session, which opened on Monday noon, His Lordship was extended the warmest felicitations by members of the bar on behalf of Peterborough Bar Association, and also on behalf of the legal profession of the province.

"As this is the ringing down of the curtain on Your Lordship being a member of the Supreme Court of Ontario and your giving up of the responsibility of a judgeship," stated the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C., "I feel I might speak on behalf of Peterborough Bar Association and express the hope that in the larger field to which you are going as chairman of the Canadian Tariff Board your influence might be extended to be felt throughout the whole Dominion of Canada."

Mr. Gordon added that he hoped His Lordship's career would be a happy one, and that in his new position he would not be subjected to an undue share of the criticism that appeared to be the unenviable lot of every man in public office.

R. R. Hall, K.C., ably re-echoed the sentiments expressed by Mr. Gordon, "I would also state," he remarked, "that this is a red letter day not only for Your Lordship in your new appointment, but also for myself and other members of the bar who have been privileged and honored to practice before you. In the position you have accepted as chairman of the Canadian Tariff Board, it is at the present time one of great responsibility as it affects so many vital interests," Mr. Hall suggested.

In view of that fact, it was somewhat surprising, Mr. Hall said, that His Lordship, with that thought on his mind, had been able to accept so great a responsibility and at the same time sit on the bench and administer law and justice with such cool, clear impartiality as he had done.

"I know that my associates and myself and every other member of the legal profession throughout the entire province wish you every possible success in the arduous duties that you are about to undertake," Mr. Hall concluded.

Speaking more particularly for the junior members of the bar, W. F. Huycke stated that it was a matter of regret to himself and his associates that His Lordship was resigning from the bench. That regret, however, was leavened with the hope that His Lordship would have every success in his new appointment, he said.

"That is very nice of each one of you," Mr. Justice Sedgewick remarked in reply. "I am very sorry to be going off the bench. I have been on the bench for two years and have enjoyed it immensely. It is a good work, and if one has any success at all, it is a work that brings with it great satisfaction. At the Assize courts particularly," he said, "one sees such a lot of humanity.

"I am like Abraham so far as my appointment to the Tariff Board is concerned," His Lordship remarked in his wistfully humorous manner, "in so far as he went out not knowing whither he went.

"Your good wishes will result in some actually useful work on my part," His Lordship promised in conclusion.

A younger brother of John H. Sedgewick, of this city, Mr. Justice Sedgewick was appointed judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario in December, 1930, to fill a vacancy caused by the promotion of Mr. Justice Rose as chief justice. He was born and raised on a farm at Musquodaboit, Nova Scotia. His grandfather was the first pioneer Presbyterian minister in Nova Scotia, having come to this country from Paisley, Scotland.

Of his two brothers who have enjoyed no less distinguished careers than his own, there is the Rev. Dr. W. H. Sedgewick, pastor of Metropolitan United Church, Toronto, and R. M. Sedgewick, secretary-treasurer of the Standard Chemical Company, Toronto.

Large Attendance Appreciates Splendid Program at Annual Commencement.

L. S. SCHOLARSHIPS.

George A. Kingston Presents Field Day Cups—Splendid Training in Drills.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 10.—The annual commencement exercises of the Campbellford High School retained its name as one of the premier events in the district when the first night of this two day function was held last evening in the assembly hall of the school with all the expected success. Arranged under the direction of Principal E. H. Greig, B.A. and his competant staff of teachers a splendid program was given and heartily appreciated by a well filled hall. The program was divided as usual into two sections, a two-act comedy "Miss Molly", and a series of short numbers interspersed with presentations. A ten-piece orchestra under the direction of Albert Hazell provided music for the evening.

Davidson Cup

The Warden C. H. Davidson Cup was won by Merwin Malcolm and presented by Mr. Davidson in person. This award is the senior field day event and is in its fifth year of competition. In making the presentation the donor stated that the Campbellford High School and its teaching staff were a credit to the town and district and deserved the whole-hearted support of the citizens.

The presentation of Field Day Cups was made by George A. Kingston B.A. in the doing of which he drew attention to the fact that a liberal education was the training of every part of the being, physical, mental and social, and this was what the Campbellford institution was doing, as was seen by the awards of cups for field day events, scholarships and the splendid social spirit that was prevalent in the school. The cups were awarded as follows: Intermediate Boys, Angus Robertson; Junior Boys, Donald Barnum; Senior Girls, Evelyn Stotts; Junior Girls, Helen Montgomery.

The Literary Society Scholarships were presented by George O'Sullivan who congratulated the winning pupils on their success. These were awarded as follows: Highest standing in middle school: English, Ruth Palliser; Highest standing in mathematics, Norah Cowell; Ancient history and chemistry, Jessie Hay; Canadian history, Angus Robertson.

The Strathcona Medal given by the Strathcona Trust for the best shot in the school was won by Frank O'Sullivan and was presented by Mr. O'Sullivan to his son.

The first half of the program was a series of choruses and drills, all of which showed the splendid training that had been given the pupils. Opening with a chorus "Drinkwater, Drinkwater, Ho" by the senior students of the school, this number proved to be a part choral, doctors and nurses harmonizing in a musical advise to drink the beverage that mother nature provides. It was a racy chorus and went with a swing. Albert Hazell accompanying at the piano.

The chorus was comprised of Helen Coxwell, Elva Mowat, Clara Richards, Jackuilyn McEachern, Edith Wallace, Ella Cock, Jessie Hay, Helen Clysdale, Edna Stillman, Eleanor Dawson, Gladys Stephen, Dorma Nelson, Frank O'Sullivan, Vern Abernethy, Russell Rowe, Irwin Russell, Angus Robertson, Don Rutherford, Bob McGregor, Ted Cryderman, Arnold Bates, Bernard Crossen, Aubrey Shapter, Merwin Malcolm.

"Swanee River" was a dance by the girls of the second form and costumed in the appropriate overalls of the south. A well trained dancing group which did some excellent toe work and had a uniformity of movement that was very entertaining and pleasing to watch.

The personnel of this group was Georgia Nesbitt, Jean Morrison, Aileen Buchanan, Dorothy Callaghan, Gladys Poulton, Marie Hollings, with Thelma Hollings at the piano.

"Come, Boys, Let's Be Happy," a number by the senior boys of the school, was an action chorus that went over with a snap. It could have been called the song of the optimist, for it had a happy refrain that was not only pleasing, but appropriate.

Girls' Club Drill.

A club drill by the girls of the Third Form was a splendid exhibition of child training and showed the worth-whileness of this sort of training in the schools. With perfect co-ordination of movement and pleasing grace of manner, these pupils received a splendid ovation from the audience. The pupils were: Eileen Hall, Grace Cairns, Nellie Cryderman, Muriel Miller, Leafa Linn, with Alice Tripp at the piano.

And a very happy number was staged by the senior girls, entitled "Laughing in the Rain." A chorus in collegiate style, this singing aggregation again presented a very pleasing number, containing as it did a laugh as well as a song.

Another example of the result of physical culture was the presentation of a drill by the First Form boys. This was exceedingly well done and showed uniformity of movement and relay of motion that created a splendid effect and showed not only fine training but keenness on the part of the boys in this sphere of school work. The boys in this number were: Robert Morrison, Raymond Wragg, Clarence Young, Jay Anderson, Ray Pollock, Robert Linton, Jack Carr, Edward Rutherford, Mac Atkinson, George Smith, Bernard Kelleher, Lorne Watson, with Arnold Bates acting as accompanist.

A chorus by the senior boys, "As we Ride as we Ride," was very well presented, and had a lilt that was pleasing and entertaining. Mrs. Hazell accompanied for this number.

A pretty and graceful exhibition of dancing was staged by First Form girls in an Irish jig. Costumed for their turn, these artists presented a pretty picture. Light of foot and easy of manner they tripped the light fantastic in good style and to the great enjoyment of the audience. The girls in this number were: Charlotte Poulton, Patricia Cryderman, Helen Thompson, Loraine Dunk, Irene Curle, Helen Montgomery, Muriel Peake, Thelma Wallace, Thelma Hollings being the accompanist.

The last item on this part of the program was a chorus by the senior pupils, "Angelus." This was in pastoral style and in fine harmony, making a splendid climax to the musical portion of the evening.

"MISS MOLLY"

The play "Miss Molly" was exceptionally well presented, the cast not only being well chosen, but playing up to their part in true artistic fashion. A domestic comedy, it was one big laugh from beginning to end and was funny without containing any of the old gags. The humor of the production was in the acting, the players making their parts live and stand out in true form. Centering round an old and crabbed misogynist, Reginald Peters (Malcolm McKenzie), this character was the ideal grouch and trouble-maker to perfection. Hating women, he told the world about it, and like many males, blamed all the bad things of life onto the weaker sex. The laughter makers of the play of course were black to the core; Pearl White, a colored girl (Ruth Palliser), and Joe Johnston, the colored servant (Frank Roe), acting opposite each other with fine success and cramming the performance with laughs.

The ideal lover was Julian Hewitt, the artist (Bill Richardson) and there was no lack of acting and realism in this character. Playing opposite Molly Peters, the niece (Bernadette Jones), the two made a real match of it and added that touch of romance to the story that makes for human interest.

Cissie Saunders, the girl from "Noo York" (Margaret McGregor) was exceptionally fine, carrying her part with an ease and charm that was pleasing to watch. She got things terribly mixed in the Peters' house, however, although she did make several efforts to give Annie Peters, the twin sister (Wilhelmene Rusaw), a lesson in deportment, in preparation for the visit of Lady Elusia Miston (Helen McCredie). And all this happened in twelve hours and on the fiftieth birthday of Annie Peters.

The personnel of the orchestra under Albert Hazell was J. O. Benor, Wm. Nelson, Preston Hall, Raymond Murphy, Paul O'Sullivan, Angus Robertson, Ronald Richardson, D. Mitchell, Bill Richardson, and G. Frederick.

To-night (Friday), the program will be presented again. The presentation of graduation diplomas will also be made as well as the awarding of the Board of Education Scholarships, the J. A. Loucks Memorial Medal, the A. L. Riendeau Memorial Cup, and the presentation of the W. A. Fraser, M.P., Scholarship.

REPORTS TO BE PUBLIC.

One feature in connection with the newly appointed Tariff Board that will be generally acclaimed is that its findings in regard to different matters that may come before it are to be published.

The board, it should be understood, will not make tariffs, nor will it recommend to the Government what tariff changes should be made; it will, however, enquire into the facts of each application and make a full report—and these reports will be public property.

That was one of the weaknesses in regard to the former Tariff Advisory Board, that while the evidence offered before the board was published, the public was never given an inkling of what reports the board made to the Government, which, as the Ottawa Journal points out, was a good thing politically for the Government, but not so good for the public.

The new plan will be an obvious improvement in this respect, as it will give the people generally an insight into the circumstances upon which the Government bases its tariff decisions—something they know nothing about at present and about which there is a good deal of speculation.

If all reports of the Tariff Board are to be made available, it will be possible to judge the Government's tariff policy much more accurately.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

British airmen are making glorious contributions to the pages of flying history these days.

No sooner had two British Air Force pilots accomplished the longest non-stop flight on record, adding the long distance mark to the British triumphs in altitude and speed records, than the announcement was made that Captain James Mollison, undoubtedly one of the greatest flyers the world has yet known, had successfully negotiated a 2,000-mile hop across the South Atlantic from Senegal on the west coast of Africa to Natal, Brazil, in approximately 18 hours, thus completing the long air journey from England to Brazil in three days and ten hours, just two hours less than the schedule he had mapped out for himself showed.

Mollison's epic dash adds one more daring flight to a spectacular list of achievements, any one of which would be sufficient to win a lasting place in the hall of fame.

This great British air ace had already to his credit flights from England to Australia, from India to England, from London to Cape Town and from Ireland to New Brunswick, the latter being the first solo flight westward over the North Atlantic, and his latest triumph puts him in the forefront of the world's most skilful, most brilliant and most courageous aviators.

British supremacy in this newest form of transportation would seem to be assured.

THE NEXT ELECTION.

Although no official announcement has been made, the fact that T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P. for Peterborough County, has intimated that June of next year has been selected as a suitable time for a provincial general election, and that a similar statement has been made by a group of Eastern Ontario members, would indicate that the Government has made up its mind.

It is not surprising to find that there will be no election this year; the criticism uttered by M. F. Hepburn, the Ontario provincial leader, to the effect that another session of the Legislature would be nothing more than a "lame duck" session has not had any influence on Premier Henry and his followers, who are willing to endure such complaints rather than to put their fortune to the touch by appealing to the country this year.

Economic conditions are such that to call an election in 1933 would come close to being political suicide, and the Government has decided to hang on in the hope that more prosperous times will have returned before it is necessary to put its fate into the hands of the electors.

Another year, according to Government strategists, may see better days for the people of the province, and therefore a subsidence of the political unrest that is evident on all sides at the present time.

With Government supporters in different parts of the country naming June, 1934, as the time selected for the next election, it would seem that the matter has been definitely settled.

MORE FUNDS NEEDED.

While the relief fund has passed the half-way mark, it is not an encouraging sign to find that the number of contributions reaching the city treasurer's office is falling off.

It cannot be too strongly emphasized that every dollar of the objective aimed at is needed to meet the situation. The amount spent on relief in January of this year ran over $14,000, and when it is realized that since the first of this current month new families who have never before had to depend on relief have been added to the list, the seriousness of the outlook can be appreciated.

It is inevitable that as the savings of those who were thrifty enough to lay something aside for an emergency become exhausted that the number of families to be assisted will become larger—a condition that should emphasize the urgency of the present appeal.

As has more than once been pointed out, citizens who are in distress must be cared for, and if the necessary funds are not made available by voluntary donations from those able to subscribe they will have to be secured by taxation, and that in the long run will mean more families on relief.

For those who have escaped lightly the cruel effects of the depression, the Relief Fund campaign is a challenge that they must meet; this drive will have to be pushed over the top.

CANADA'S TRADE WITH IRELAND.

"Trade statistics for 1932 made public by the Government of the Irish Free State this week showed a marked drop in imports and exports and a shift of commerce away from the United Kingdom toward three other countries of the British Commonwealth," says a Canadian Press cable.

The figures prove in rather convincing fashion that whatever the sentimental value of the preachings of De Valera, they are "not so hot" when put to the acid test. The test of gaining markets for Irish produce and carrying on the commerce and trade of which the country is capable.

But while this cable points out apparent flaws in the Fianna Fail's policy, it seems to indicate a weakness in Canada somewhere. The weakness probably lies more with our merchants and exporters in this case than with our Government. Let us see.

The economic warfare between the United Kingdom and the Free State which saw tariffs on either side climb up the ladder like alternative moves in a checker game, has put an almost prohibitive premium on trade between the two countries. Consequently the Free State has had to turn elsewhere.

In this connection the cable says: "On the other hand, imports from Canada increased in value by £80,000, while those from Australia went up £600,000, and those from India £85,000."

The question presents itself: "Is Canada taking full advantage of the opportunity to increase her trade with the Irish Free State?" Australia being just about the most distant point on the hemisphere from Erin, and Canada claiming a more active commercial life than India, one wonders whether we are not "missing the boat."—Ottawa Journal.

HENRY FORD'S FEW WORDS.

"The times," said Mr. Henry Ford, the other day, "are a lot more wholesome than when the only news was the stock market." Mr. Ford, who packs a good deal of homely philosophy into his utterances on industry and economics, never said anything more true. The evidences are all around us that this is so.

To a surprising degree we have returned to the simple pleasures of the simple life. Families are getting acquainted with one another. They have discovered that a quiet evening at home with some music and a card table is not to be despised as a recreational outlet. There is conversation which is not concerned with money or the things to be done with it. There is more time for the leisurely pursuits of the domestic fireside: for reading, study, hobbies. A man can build a ship-model or collect stamps, a woman can go in for china-painting or embroidery, without feeling that time is being spent which ought to go for money-making or the arduous pleasures of the late twenties.

In those hectic days most of us were interested primarily in the making of money and the sort of pleasures which depended upon the spending of money. Solid citizens spent hours and hours watching the "boards" in the brokers' offices, buying and selling stocks of which they knew nothing but name and price, reckoning up paper profits, calling themselves millionaires, imagining they were "captains" of industry, living dangerously. We valued things according to their cost, and nothing was worth bothering about unless it was expensive.

This spirit prevailed all along the line. The youngsters for a season swarmed over "midget" golf courses, spent their quarters late into the night for a few minutes' play. Parents who had found "easy money" gave it lavishly to their children, were desirous that their youngsters should have a "better time" than they had when they were kids. Boys and girls tore across the country in big automobiles, exemplifying the current determination to be doing something costly and spectacular. We were all and always going places and doing things, and the home became a place to go back to when everything else failed. There was only one good point about that kind of life. It separated the newly rich from their gains and distributed their wealth among others more worthy.

To-day circumstances have forced us to acceptance of a new set of values, or, more correctly, to accept restcration of the old values. Many things we considered necessities turn out to be luxuries, have gone into the discard. Families find it quite possible to stagger along with one car, or even with no car at all. The essentials of life—food, clothing, warmth—suddenly have become an end in themselves. We are less selfish, more concerned with our neighbors, more interested in our duties as citizens. We find a new and unexpected pleasure in work, in accomplishments which can be measured by visible results rather than by the yardstick of a brokerage account. The man with a job feels he is among the privileged and the man without one thinks of a chance to earn a living for his family, the greatest blessing he could ask.

We are a long way from the roaring days of big money, hectic amusements, and Mr. Ford seems to think the world has reformed, that we shall not revert to type. "The prosperity that comes again," he says, "when it comes will be quite different. It will not be a money prosperity. That's where we failed the last time—we stopped at the money gain." Perhaps he is right, but we should not be too sure of it. Modern civilization is a story of alternate booms and depressions—we are up on the wave or down in the trough. And money is, always has been, the popular standard of achievement. When it is possible to make money in large sums once more we should not like to be too sure that lessons we have learned so painfully in the past three years will not be forgotten over night. But time will tell.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The man who thought our old-fashioned winter had gone forever doubtless changed his mind yesterday.

The need of the Relief Fund is becoming greater. Citizens who have not yet subscribed should come to the rescue and help to attain the objective quickly.

Anyway the urban dairy companies cannot complain that they are not receiving a certain amount of advertising through the debate in the House.

Former prison officials do not like the Ormond report. That, of course, is to be expected in view of the nature of the findings.

According to T. P. Lancaster's paper, one of the Peterborough ridings is doomed to disappear in the redistribution shuffle—in other words, the county will be represented by one member, instead of one from the urban portion and one from the rest of the county as at present.

Another far-west couple have been married on horseback. It's a brand new way of leading him to the halter.—Border Cities Star.

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 39

Lucy glared at him.

"You've killed her," she said in a rasping voice, "just as sure——"

"Wait a minute, lady," Sergeant James put in. "I wouldn't go making charges if I were you."

Kane turned on him. His face was livid with rage. "You told me that you have been keeping a close watch, as you were instructed," harshly. "Who came into this apartment?"

"I didn't see anybody come in," the detective answered. "The only person I saw was this here lady, and I didn't say nothing to her when I saw she didn't get in."

"Tell me just what you did from the time you brought Miss Hull home," Kane demanded.

"Well, we got out of the car," anxiously, "and we came up here. She opened her apartment. The shades were drawn. She said she thought that was funny, because when she left the other night they were up.

"She asked me to leave her alone and I went back downstairs——"

"You went downstairs!" Kane crackled.

"Yes, I went down to the lobby to tell the operator that if there was any calls for Miss Hull she wasn't to be disturbed, unless she got hold of me first. And then I came back up here to this floor and tayed down at the other end of the hall until I saw you come up."

Kane looked down at the prostrate form of the actress. He ripped away the upper part of her dress and looked at the wound. It was a deep gash which looked as though it had been inflicted by a knife or some similar sharp instrument.

He arose and faced Lucy Wilbur. "I want you to go with me," he said.

She blanched. "What—what are you going to do with me?" she demanded in a throaty voice.

"I want to talk to you," briskly. "You know more about this girl than anyone else——"

"Yes," she whispered.

Kane said to the detective, "Call the coroner and advise your chief of what has happened. Tell John Lee that I will see him this afternoon."

"Yes, sir."

Kane led the woman to the police car which was awaiting him. He directed the driver to take them to the home of Nanette LeRoi.

Lucy Wilbur looked at him in alarm. "Please," she begged, "not there."

But Kane said nothing. The car sped away and turned onto Hollywood boulevard toward Beverly Hills. Lucy sat slumped down in one corner of the machine, sullenly silent. Kane covertly watched her. Thus they rode until the motor drew up in front of the little bungalow.

Without a word he stepped from the machine and she followed. A moment later Nanette herself admitted them. She cast a quick glance of concern at the woman but said nothing, other than to ask them to sit down and make themselves comfortable.

Kane wasted no formality in getting down to business. "Lillian Hull has been murdered," he said.

A shadow crossed Nanette's face. The color drained slowly from her countenance. Her eyelids drooped and her lips became nothing more than thin white lines.

But if Jere Kane expected her to voice some outburst of hatred he was disappointed. Instead:

"Do you think she knew who killed Richard Bailey?" she asked quietly.

"No, I don't," he replied shortly. "I think she was put out of the way because she was interfering with somebody's affairs."

"I—I don't understand," Lucy Wilbur said.

"You will, in time," he snapped. "The plot isn't complete yet. There are others marked for death——"

"Who?" Nanette asked huskily.

"Never mind about that," cruelly. "Just now, I want to ask some questions and I want both of you to answer them to the best of your knowledge."

For the next hour he plied them with questions concerning their relations with the murdered director. Nanette protested that hers were strictly business relations, that she had no personal interest in him, that she was seeking a goal and that she had found him the best ladder to use to reach that goal.

Hers was a cold, unimpassioned recital of an almost fantastical plot to perpetuate a fraud on the public and the motion picture producers. She told of Lillian's sneering recognition at the party and the birth of her hatred for the girl, now dead.

"I tried to beat it back," she related, "but every time when I thought I had it whipped she did something else to antagonize me. She seemed to take great delight in ruffing me, in arousing my temper, in making me recall the past I was trying so hard to forget.

"Then I learned of her relations with Richard Bailey. She had been his paramour until he thought that he might win me for himself. When he began taking such interest in me he threw her over——"

"He seemed to have a habit of passing lightly from one woman to another," Kane remarked dryly.

"—but she took it like a soldier," Nanette went on, ignoring his interruption. "I admired her for that, but I couldn't kill the hatred I had for her. After Bailey turned from her to me she kept up her raillery against me.

"But," bitterly, "even after Richard Bailey thought that he had me caught in his mesh he continued an affair with some other woman. I don't know who she was——"

Lucy Wilbur flushed and let her gaze fall to the floor.

"—but I knew that it was true, even though he denied it. When I would visit his home I would find handkerchiefs, gloves and even other—articles there. He would not explain them. I grew to hate him. I even tried to break off with him—that was after Rodolf offered to help me—but he would not let me. He kept me in mortal fear with his threats of exposing me."

"And," Kane supplemented, "he demanded money for his silence."

"Yes," she confirmed. "He did."

Lucy's story was much similar to that of Nanette. She and her husband had come to Hollywood after gaining considerable success on the stage. They had not been able to attract much attention until she met Bailey. He became interested in her and in return for her company assisted Larry Weldon and herself to get a foothold in the studios.

Larry had found out about her affair with Bailey and had divorced her.

"But I was honest about it!" she cried. "I didn't do anything that I was ashamed of. There was nothing wrong—Larry thought there was but there wasn't, so help me God."

She said that she had met Lillian in the studio; the girl had been in Hollywood for years—had started in the old silent days as a child star—and had managed to draw some fairly good parts. She had introduced her to Bailey and he had become interested in her.

"It's the same sordid story," Kane cut in. "Bailey was like a bird of passage. He could not settle himself on any one woman."

Neither woman said anything.

"There was one woman," Kane said, "who aroused the best in Bailey. He adored her but that time it was she who had feet of clay——"

"And she robbed him of everything he had," Nanette exclaimed in anguish.

"How do you know that?" he snapped.

"He told me. He told me about her——"

"Who was it?"

Lucy's eyes were distended with fear. She fixed her gaze on the other woman and held her breath until Nanette spoke again.

"I—he wouldn't tell me," Nanette whispered.

BRAND

Do you know about Brand?

That's the title of a long poem that Ibsen wrote.

That's the name of the man in the poem.

He was a fine man, Brand.

He was strong, he was good, he sought perfection.

That's all right, to seek perfection. That, in our various ways, is what everybody does. Perhaps we don't say so. We don't speak our search aloud. Don't tell people. Don't even whisper it....Sometimes we're half-ashamed of that ideal. But just the same we want perfection. And Brand did.

But Brand had a great weakness. He could not endure other weakness anywhere. Neither in himself nor in anybody else. He was always "blowing up"....He'd go so far and then he'd hit an obstacle. It might be something big, it might be so insignificant that another man would not pay any attention to it. But it was always big enoufih to wreck this fellow, Brand. He'd tear his hair and wring his hand (as I remember) and throw all his gains away and start all over again.

That's how he went through life, this strong, fierce Brand. Building up and tearing down. Patiently working, then dynamiting his own creation..Throwing himself against the bars, smashing himself again and again. Wrecking his life, torturing himself, hurting other people....He wasn't at home here. He didn't belong. He was born with that passionate dissatisfaction that tormented him so terribly. He couldn't get rid of it, he didn't want to be free of it. He wanted to remake the world in accordance with his own private plans, and if it would not be remade as he desired, then to the devil with it and he'd go his own grieving, angry, broken way.

So he ruined his life, this Brand. He stripped himself and suffered and got but little out of himself. Scarred and hungry and embittered, he did go his own way and there was hardly a one of all who knew him that understood the proud, unhappy fellow.

Perhaps you never knew a Brand, but probably you have. Perhaps there isn't any of the Brand in you, but it's quite possible that there is. ....We, so human, criticize the human weakness of others....That's true. You know it is.

Who's Who in Ottawa

By CHARLES ROSS, Jr.

E. J. GARLAND, M.P.

From the home of "lost causes," Dublin, Ireland, comes Canada's champion of such. And yet what cause can be called "lost" when Edward Joseph Garland has a hand in it. It may be obscured temporarily, and promptly forgotten by those who live their lives in less exalted spheres, but it is bound to bob up again, gentlemen, bound to bob up! Mr. Garland has the longest face and one of the loudest voices on Parliament Hill. "For God's sake have a heart," said one exasperated member of the House which had been subsisting on sandwiches for a sultry eighteen hours waiting for party whips to crack the word that the vote would be taken on the budget. Technically an independent, from Bow River, Mr. Garland has always been active in the "Ginger Group" of the United Farmers. He has the mien of an ascetic and might have made a good priest had he not turned to homesteading near Rowley, Alberta, and to the upbringing of four sons and one daughter — Ruth, John, Edward, David, Patrick. Belvidere College gave him a solid foundation of learning, and he had already been an executive of a half-dozen farmers' co-operative groups before the agrarian typhoon swept 65 Progressives into the House in 1921. Though he came in with the flood, the ebb tide of later years found him still in his seat, working more doggedly than ever in an endeavor to make up with his own efforts the numerical deficiency of his party. With a Conservative government in front of him Mr. Garland has been stimulated to full power in his crusade for farmers' wants. Although he has changed his nominal allegiance many times, he has never changed his purpose—the amelioration of the farmers' lot.

Senior Member, F. H. Deacon and Co., Toronto, Ont., Financier, Stock Breeder and Agriculturist.

This is the signature of a man who is fond of comfort and who appreciates good living. On first acquaintance he would impress one as being easy going. But under a surface of charm and good fellowship there is a vein of ambition, power and perseverance, desire to dominate and ability to command. In the conduct of practical affairs he is able and astute; in business matters intensely practical. His chiefest assets are likeableness and a certain quality of personality that fascinates and charms. He has an unusual capacity for making people like him and is himself interested in making and keeping friends.

A HOBBY WORTH WHILE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—With reference to Mr. Marshall's remarks to eliminate dressmaking, etc., in evening classes, he surely does not realize how much this hobby, so called, means to many single and married women of Peterborough. I for one have benefitted greatly by the dressmaking class. I have four girls whom I sew for, and I find it is a great help these days.

There are other mothers and young women of this city whom I know personally that have been glad of such a place as an evening class by which to better themselves.

I consider the evening dressmaking classes an asset to the city. What would some families do today if it were not for the help derived from the classes in dressmaking?

The teachers deserve much credit for the help given and patience exercised. The teachers of the other departments are to be praised as well. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,

Yours truly,
MRS. A. McLEOD.

EVIL OF WAGE-CUTTING.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Kindly give space to the following remarks: One of the evils of wage-cutting is in that children are not in a position to support their parents or to contribute anything towards them as before such unreasonable cutting took place.

Unfortunately, I followed the humble occupation of house decorator which gives one but a poor chance to provide for a rainy day, together with raising up a family of six; hence our present difficulties—men between sixty and seventy unable to get any relief. If cutting down of wages is to continue we wonder where it will end. It is easy to see that buying power will be less. It is bad enough for men to be laid off through machines, which is another cause for less buying and relieving overstocks. A certain class knows very little about depression after discharging so many workers, thereby saving money through machine work. However, we are glad to find they have the grace to give some of it back for the present. If this country would like to do more business, let the workers have more to spend so they can help the home, also saving on old age pensions.

Yours truly,
DEPRESSED.

WHY IS FEE RETURNED?

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Noting with interest the letters and statements that appear at intervals from William Tinker, regarding "economy in education," a subject of vital importance to taxpayers at all times, I would like a question answered through the medium of your paper that is on the minds of many people and to which I have never heard a satisfactory answer. It is, "Why is the so-called 'fee' for night school students always returned at the end of the term?"

Surely in these days with drastic cuts in grants and salaries of teachers to reduce the overhead costs that small sum deposited by each student would assist, if only in purchasing materials. I am, of course, going back a few years when I refer to the time when I attended night school, but in those days I, with other ambitious students, gladly paid the fee required, which meant that the classes were attended by young working people for whom the classes were intended, anxious to improve their positions—not filled by all and sundry who want to get a few more fancy recipes for their bridge guests and some new and cute ideas in dressmaking, regardless of whether they can afford to pay experienced dressmakers for this work and likewise those who think it a fine opportunity to get to know how to fix their cars at home, while experienced garage mechanics who have learned their trade are losing their jobs through lack of trade at the local garages.

I have no quarrel with the students attending night classes for the improvement of their education, but I would like the question of the returned $2 fee answered.

Yours truly,
J. H. CRIDLAND.

NEW AUTO MARKERS.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I see an editorial of the 3rd where you seem to be greatly disturbed because the Government extended the time for auto markers to the 15th of February.

You think we should all rush the first of the year to get our markers? Well, all I can say is, we are not all millionaires, and sometimes don't have much money around New Year's, even if we do happen to own a car But I surely am surprised to see you so worked up over the matter. I am sure none of us will be able to escape because the police and the Government will keep an eye on us. But why all this?

I think most of us only use our cars six months in the year, but have to pay for 12 months, so don't worry.

Now, just a word about radio set-owners. Don't forget to remind them that their license fees are due in a few weeks, to go and get them early and avoid the rush. I know some of you set-owners haven't had a chance to earn $2 last year, but pay just the same to give some big fellow a $10,000 a year job.

So, Mr. Editor, try and not be too hard on us, even if we do happen to own a car or a radio set.

Thanking you.

Final Tribute Paid To John Galsworthy

LONDON, Feb. 9 (A.P.)—Statesmen, peers, diplomats, novelists, poets and hundreds of the late John Galsworthy's readers paid homage to the memory of the great novelist in a brief and simple memorial service in Westminster Abbey today. The service was conducted by Dean Foxley Norris.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald arrived with Sir Jame Barrie to find the Abbey so filled with the novelist's admirers that many were forced to stand throughout the service.

The white-haired widow of the writer, with members of the family, sat near her husband's famous intimate friends.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A CHEEKY REQUEST REFUSED

On this date, in 1886, a curious request was made to the Government of Canada, Erastus Wiman, a former Canadian living in New York (president of the Great North Western Telegraph Company) who later came into public notoriety by launching a scheme of commercial union between Canada and the United States, which was taken up by the Liberal party with disastrous results in the elections of 1887 and 1891, wrote to Sir John Macdonald as strange a request as ever was made to a Canadian Premier. Poundmaker, the chief of the Cree Indians, who had participated in the North West rebellion of 1885, was then a prisoner in Stony Mountain penitentiary, serving a term of several years. Here is Wiman's letter:

"Would you like to get rid of Poundmaker, the Indian, who, I understand, is a prisoner? It is rather a strange idea, but Sitting Bull, when he was a prisoner of the United States government, was rendered innoxious by being taken out by Buffalo Bill as a curiosity and exhibited through the country in his show 'The Wild West.' This show intends to exhibit on Staten Island during the summer months. I have a very large interest in the traffic between Staten Island and New York, and this is one of the attractions we are going to use.... Buffalo Bill (who is a member of the Nebraska Legislature) and Mr. Saulsbury are the towners of the Show and are anxious to get hold of Poundmaker. They have asked me if I would not intercede with you for the loan of him on condition that he was treated well and returned in good order. All expenses would be paid of course and an arrangement made with him that would be advantageous to the government."

Needless to say the proposition was turned down flat. Canada was not putting its political prisoners on show in the United States. There is no record that Sir John even acknowledged the letter. Poundmaker was kept in the "pen" for two years and then sent back to his reserve where he became a "good Indian" convinced that it did not pay to take up arms against the Great White Mother.

through 40 feet of railway embankment. Wreckage from the sea was piled high on the road-bed, and a wrecking train was dispatched from St. John's.

The tide was receding, but extreme frosts following high water made many homes unhabitable; frozen brine caked the floors and lower walls of the fishermen's dwellings. Busied last night in attempting to make fast their fishing gear on the beach, they were forced to take to their boats in order to reach their nomes.

Havoc wrought on the southern side of Bay St. George extends from Shallop Cove all the way east to Stephenville. A distance of about eight miles.

DESCRIBES USES OF ALUMINUM

VERY WIDE FIELD.

Centering a talk on the uses to which aluminum is being put in present-day civilization, Paul S. White, B.A., B.Sc., of Toronto, identified with Aluminium VI, Limited addressed the Kiwanis Club at luncheon to-day. Mr. White was introduced by A. B. Gates of the Canadian General Electric Company who called attention to the extensive use of aluminum in the factories of Peterborough.

With the discoveries of aluminum alloys which in some cases offer the tensil strength of mild steel, the use of aluminum has spread with amazing rapidity to a great many different fields, Mr. White said. Aluminum offers strength combined with lightness and has a high resistance to corrosion. Aluminum is roughtly speaking, one-third the weight of most other common metals.

Typical of the recent adaptions of aluminum is the use of forged aluminum driving rods on railway locomotives, Mr. White stated. In this case the object is to cut down reciprocal weights without the loss of strength. For some years aluminum has been used with a similar object in the construction of pistons for automobiles, marine and airplane engines. Railways and automobile manufacturers are rapidly turning toward aluminum construction in cutting down the weights of railway coaches and automobile busses, he said.

During the luncheon, the Kiwanis Club was addressed by Roy McCabe on behalf of the share-selling drive of the Boys' Work Board in this city. He asked the co-operation of the Kiwanis in the Provincial campaign for the raising of $11,000 in aid of the Boys' Parliament work.

TWO OLD PARTIES JOIN IN SCORING C.C.F. RESOLUTION IN THE HOUSE

Nothing Practical Offered By C. C. F. Speakers. Declare.

MOVEMENT DEFENDED.

OTTAWA, February 10 (C.P.).—Parliamentarians will take a night off to-night to attend a State social function, the Governor-General's drawng-room. After devoting the afternoon to grappling with Government business including estimates and the Bill to continue the ten per cent. salary cut which nits themselves as well as the civil servant, members of Parliament will dispense with their night session and go to the Senate Chamber to make their bows before the Earl and Countess of Bessborough.

Continued discussion of J. S. Woodsworth's Co-operative Commonwealth resolution occupied the time of the House of Commons yesterday. Liberals and Conservatives united in denouncing the proposal to institute a socialistir order of society in Canada in "which all natural resources and the socially necessary machinery of production would be used in the interests of the people and not for the benefit of the few."

Only one defender of the Co-operative Commonwealth spoke, Humphrey Mitchell of Hamilton, and he stressed his conviction that the desired changes should be brought about gradually by constitutional means.

Nothing Practica'.

The chief argument of the older parties was that the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation offered nothing practical. If you are to have a managed currency, asked G. B. Nicholson (Cons., Algoma East), who is going to manage it and how will he do it?

When Mr. Woodsworth speaks again he will have 55 questions from Jean-Francois Pouliot (Lib., Temiscouata) to answer. Among other things, the Quebec member wants to know whether the Co-operative Commonwealth would take over personal as well as real property, what property it was intended to destroy, and whether all mortgages would be taken over.

"The dogs of war have been let loose. How can we stand back any longer?" demanded Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former member of a Liberal government. The reply came from Conservatives as well as Liberals a general denunciation of Federation policies.

The only defence of the Federation was presented by Humphrey Mitchell, Labor member for Hamilton East. "There is as much difference between the Labor movement and the tactics of the Third International (Communism) as between Capitalism and Communism," he said.

No Connection.

There was no more connection between the Labor movement in Canada and the Third Internationale than there was between Capitalism and Communism, he declared. Criticism of Russia got this country nowhere. A revolution had taken place there due to conditions which were the business of the Russian people and of no one else, and the country would work out its own destiny in its own way. It was true, however, that Russia had poverty in the midst of scarcity and Canada had poverty in the midst of plenty.

If there was a challenge to democracy to-day, Mr. Mitchell said, it came not from the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation but from the Conservative party. He referred to th recent speech of Earl Lawson (Cons., West York) and declared the attitude of the Conservatives in York county constituted a challenge to democracy. Members of the House of Commons had been forbidden to speak in the city of Toronto.

"Talk about confiscation," exclaimed Mr. Mitchell. "Why talk of confiscation when it is going on all around us." He was personally opposed to confiscation by the State; anyone who would suggest it was not in his right mind, he commented.

At this point some interruptions were made by O. B. Price (Cons., Westmoreland) and evoked from Mr. Mitcell the comment:

"You are certainly well representing the miners in the country where you come from."

"You're a disgrace to East Hamilton," said Dr. Price. "You're a joke."

George B. Nicholson (Cons., Algoma East) launched into an attack on the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. The leader of the movement, J. S. Woodsworth, (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre), had delivered speeches in Northern Ontario last summer; and was "deluding" the people of this country in regard to his proposals.

Capitalism, Mr. Nicholson insisted, was a system which gave freedom of expression to the individual and an opportunity to make of his life what he wished. He ridiculed attacks on the banks and the currency theories of the inflationists.

Debate was not concluded and it is expected both Premier Bennett and Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Conservative and Liberal parties, will speak before the division.

Reports of a $4,000,000 exchange of Canadian steel rails for Russian oil reached the House yesterday.

Samuel Factor, Lib., (Toronto, West-Centre) asked if the Government had been asked to sanction the barter. Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Government leader in the absence of Premier R. B. Bennett said he had not heard of it but would make inquiries.

The House will set aside a day, possibly next Tuesday, to discuss the proposed $8,000,000 barter of Canadian cattle and hides for Russian oil and coal, it was intimated in the House.

WOMAN IS FOUND HANGING IN CELL

tenced to a term of 15 years' imprisonment.

Plea Amended.

On the plea that he was tried and convicted without counsel, the accused Cowling, it is learned, was given the opportunity to amend his plea to one of not guilty, and counsel was secured for him by the State authorities. As a consequence the sentence was reduced to the minimum of ten years' imprisonment.

Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Corder were arrested in connection with the same series of robberies by the Richmond police. Corder, whom Cowling first became acquainted with while both men were under sentence at the Peterborough County Gaol in June, 1931, was found guilty and was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment.

Both the convicted men are now lodged in the Indiana Reformatory at Pendleton, undergoing their sentences, according to city police here. Mrs. Corder, who was exonerated, having been held in custody pending completion of arrangements for her deportation back to Canada.

It was not definitely known by Chief of Police S. Newhall for how many years back Corder's life of crime had extended, but he was in possession of information which showed that in October 1930, under the name of Donald E. Clarke that Corder was convicted of various offences of theft for which he received goal terms and was ordered deported.

While in the hands of the Toronto City Police force at that time Corder was also wanted for offences committed at Peterborough in the name of Julius Clarke. He had come to this city early in the summer of that year, it was stated, and had "skipped" out of a local hotel without paying his bill. He had also practiced a fraud on a Stewart Street boarding-house keeper, having undertaken to get some valuable china out of bond on her behalf, and after being entrusted with the undertaking he left the city in possession of the money which should have been paid as customs duty on the china.

In June 1931 after completing the sentences for which he was convicted at Toronto, Corder was arrested by the Toronto police for Peterborough City police and was subsequently convicted on the charge of obtaining money by false pretences, and was lodged in the County Goal here.

It was while serving that sentence that he became acquainted with Cowling who was sentenced on a vagrancy charge. The association between the two men was apparently renewed some time later in the United States to where Corder had been deported at the expiry of his sentence here, and to where Cowling had fled when a warrant was issued by City police here on a charge of breaking and entering.

When Corder first came to Peterborough, it was stated by the Police Chief, he was going under the name of Julius Clarke and was accompanied by Cora Margaret Jean McLean the dead Toronto girl, whom he represented to be his lawful wife.

In reality it was shown that the couple had gone through a bigamous form of marriage at Toronto on October 11, 1930 under the name of Harold Day. Corder's lawful wife was at that time residing at Amsterdam, New York, where he was married in 1921 to Anna Mary Altenburg under the name of Donald E. Clarke.

At the time of his arrest here, Corder according to Chief Newhall had provided an explanation of his bigamous marriage to the dead Toronto girl.

He was serving a sentence at Kingston Penitentiary he said, when he received a letter from a lawyer named Snooks of Amsterdam in which he had stated that his wife's father was applying for annulment of the marriage, and asking Corder then serving a sentence under the name of Harold Day, if he was going to contest the application.

Corder, according to the Police Chief, had also stated, that while at Kingston Penitentiary he heard that his first wife had married again and was then the wife of an Amsterdam farmer.

In order to check up on Corder's statements at that time, the police communicated with an address at 682 Queen street east, Toronto, where Corder's second wife was stated to be living. She had left that address a few days previously and was traced to Buffalo, N. Y. She wrote several letter to Chief Newhall under the name of Mrs. Day and Mrs. Clarke and also visited Peterborough once or twice while Corder was in goal. Upon Corder's subsequent deportation to the United States, the woman disappeared so far as the police were concerned, until word of her tragic death came through from Indiana today.

Taking the Chase Out of Purchase

ADVERTISING benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that: Advertisements take the chase out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

DIVORCE CASE COMES TO TRIAL DECREE GRANTED

Divorce Granted Mrs. T. E. Dark By Mr. Justice Sedgewick.

ABSOLUTE IN 6 MONTHS.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Terence Sewell Dark, which was solemnized at Kingston on May 23, 1919, was dissolved last night by Mr. Justice Sedgewick, who granted a decree nisi, which becomes absolute divorce at the end of six months.

Records of the court were endorsed as follows: "Judgment nisi for divorce by reason of adultery of Terence Sewell Dark with a woman unknown. Leave to amend statement of claim to allow allegation of adultery of Terence Sewell Dark with a woman unknown before April 26, 1921."

Application for divorce had originally been entered in the Supreme Court at Kingston, but was transferred from that court to Peterborough. Plaintiff, Mrs. Reta McColl Dark, was represented by C. M. Smith, of Kingston.

Defendants to the action were Terence Sewell Dark, who appeared on subpoena, and Mary Ida Russell. Neither of the defendants filed defence.

Edgar Fenton, Division Court bailiff, gave evidence that he had served a writ of summons upon the defendant, Mary Ida Russell, of Haliburton Village, on December 23, 1932. Subsequently, he stated, he served upon the same defendant a statement of claim and more recently, on January 9 last, a notice of trial.

Witness said he knew the defendant, Mary Ida Russell, personally. She told him that she was married to Terence Sewell Dark.

His Lordship: "She went through a form of marriage with this man?"

"Yes, my Lord," replied witness.

"She is now married to one Davies," added Mr. Smith.

Testifying under subpoena, Terence Sewell Dark said that after his marriage at Kingston in 1919 he had lived with his wife for about nine months. Since leaving his wife at Peterborough, he said, he had not supported her nor had he lived with her.

"Are you the person who was convicted of bigamy at Bracebridge in 1925?" asked counsel.

"Yes, sir."

"How can you prove adultery?" asked His Lordship. "Are you trying to get an admission out of the man's own mouth? That he was convicted of bigamy is not evidence of adultery," he ruled.

"When did you live at Bracebridge?" asked counsel.

"In 1925, as far as I recollect, for about three weeks." Prior to that defendant said he had worked on the highway at Dorset.

His Lordship ruled that a husband or wife should not be asked questions tending to show that he or she had committed adultery. "I am not going to give a divorce by you merely showing that this man was convicted of bigamy," he told Mr. Smith.

"May I ask him, my Lord, if he wrote a certain letter?"

"No. I do not see how you can ask him a single question that will further your case under that ruling," His Lordship stated definitely.

Mrs. Reta McCall Dark testified that she had lived at Kingston and Peterborough. There was one child of the marriage, born at Kingston and who would be thirteen years of age on March 29, this year. She and her husband, witness stated, had only lived together for nine or ten months. While in Peterborough her husband got out of work and she had to return to her own home at Kingston. She had seen her husband once since that time. He had come to Kingston when the baby was just walking. Since they had separated at Peterbogough in 1920, Mrs. Dark said, her husband had contributed nothing to her support.

She had received a crazy letter from her husband, she stated, which was dated April 26, 1921.

His Lordship: "You did not make arrangements with your husband before you started this action?"

"No."

"You were married in 1919. You were very young," the judge observed.

"Yes. I don't think I was quite eighteen years of age."

"And you have supported yourself since?"

"Yes."

The letter referred to by Mrs. Dark was put into court as an exhibit, and after the judge had perused its contents, he exclaimed, "I think I can give you a divorce on that letter."

His Lordship afterwards showed some hesitation about granting the application for divorce, but finally recorded his decision as already stated.

The letter referred to read as follows: "Well, Reta, this letter will explain things to you and will also write finis to our little romance. I am not fit to be any woman's husband, having been with other women since marrying you.

"I know that you have given me two chances to redeem myself, but each time I have failed, and failed miserably; also I have not supported you or Courteney since last September 1.

"We were never meant for each other, and the year or eleven months we have been married is the worst and most miserable time I have ever spent. Would rather be in France again any day. So again I write finis. Your no-account husband, Terence Dark. P.S. —Have sold the furniture."

Of youthful appearance, it is learned by The Examiner that at the time of his marriage Dark was a soldier at Tete Du Pont Barracks at Kingston. At present it is understood he is a porter and is residing at Lindsay.

LAKEFIELD CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING

Baptist Congregation Had Most Successful Year at Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 10 (Examiner Correspondence).—At the recently held annual meeting of the Lakefield Baptist Church, the financial reports showed a balance on hand after all obligations had been met. Rev. W. B. Walker was in the chair and in his opening address which sounded the optimistic note, he referred to the year just passed, hard in many ways, but pleasing in the harmonious relations of pastor and people, who together have faced the hardships and have emerged with God's help to begin another year's work together.

D. A. McDonald is the clerk of the church. The financial secretary, Mrs. Charles Waldon, gave the report of receipts during the year, and the treasurer, Ben Nicholls, told of the expenditure.

Mrs. Mary Trennum gave the report of the Mission Circle, which was encouraging.

Mrs. Walter Northey, in the absence of Mrs. Harvey, reported for the Sunday School, which showed a good year in spite of the existing conditions. The report of the T.O.G. Club was given by Miss Ruby Nicholls, showing the good work of former years going on.

Mr. B. Nicholls made a motion of appreciation of the kindness and service of Rev. and Mrs. Walker; they had proved friends of value to each and every member of the congregation and had proved themselves over and over in these times where co-operation is the only meansof getting out of the difficulties of the age. This resolution was heartily endorsed by all.

Miss Helen Stewart is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. A. Millage of Roseneath was a week-end visitor at his home in the village.

FRED McLAREN'S SKULL FRACTURED

to the effect that McLaren had drawn $50 from the Bank of Toronto at Millbrook last week, and had spent about ten dollars. The remaining $40 was gone, and his bulky silver watch was also missing.

Dr. H. A. Turner of Millbrook was the presiding coroner at Wednesday's inquest, and Crown Attorney Fred D. Boggs of Cobourg examined the witnesse. The jurors were: Harry Elson, foreman, Ira Natress, George Harrington, Arthur Jeffrey, David Fowler Thomas Harkness and Jess Byam.

The village council chamber was almost crowded with farmers and townsmen who had known Fred McLaren fifty-two years old, as long as they could remember, for he had been brought up and lived in Cavan, and was generally known throughout the township. Rheumatism had left him crippled, but he had worked for farmers until last fall when he was engaged by Raymond Syer to take care of cattle wintering in a barn on the farm which included the house where McLaren was living alone.

Police Constable B. Raper of Millbrook, the first witness, merely gave evidence of having identified the body.

Raymond Syer

Raymond Syer, owner of the farm, lot 11, concession B, Cavan, said he had last seen McLaren alive on Sunday, January 29, when he had gone over to the farm to look at the cattle and generally to make sure everything was all right.

"McLaren was living alone, but there was another man with him that Sunday," Mr. Syer said. "McLaren called him "Jake," and told me he came from Tweed. The stranger was a stout, chunky man, about 25 or 30 years old. I don't know how long he had been there, and I haven't heard of him since then. McLaren had been on the place since last fall doing chores for me. I don't know what money he had, but I always thought he had some.

I saw McLaren's body last Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock. It was lying on the floor of the kitchen. I just opened the back kitchen door. I could see quite a bit of blood, so I backed out and went and telephoned Dr. Turner. All I could see was the back of McLaren's head and the blood on the floor. I don't know whether he was lying face down or not."

To George Harrington witness said he had never heard McLaren speak of having any enemies.

Constable Raper, recalled, said he saw a wound over one eye and a cut on the chin. A stone was found in the house with blood on it. The wound over the eye looked as if it might have been made with the stone. The wound on the chin might have been made with the toe of a boot as if by a kick.

Foreigner at Cavan Station.

Russell Card, Cavan station, said he saw the deceased at Tinney's garage about the middle of January.

"On the night of January 28 I saw a foreigner at the station. He was of reddish complexion, weighed about 190 pounds, and wore rubber boots. I took him for a Swede, but I wasn't sure. My father said he went west in the morning. Mr. McLaren lived west of Cavan. This man just said one word "hungry" when I asked him if he wanted anything to eat. Afterwards he said three words that sounded like "walked from Tweed." He asked if he could stay for the night in the station. He slept on a bench I think. We took him out a meal. He asked how far it was to Toronto, and I told him 60 or 70 miles."

Mr. Syer, recalled, said he talked with the stranger. "I could hardly understand him. I thought he was a Swede. He said he came from Finland two or three years ago, that he came from Tweed, and had worked in the mines at Sudbury, but they had shut down."

Edward Pappineau saw McLaren Friday afternoon, February 3. "I sold him some goods and he went away about 3 o'clock. He paid for the goods. He handed me a two-dollar bill. A few days before he handed me a five. He was around 50 years old. He always had money and was a sober man.

Had "Hobo" Guest.

George Cobley, blacksmith at Cavan said he saw McLaren Friday, Feb. 3. "I said to him in my shop 'how's the wife and family.' He said 'the wife's all right, but there's a hobo up there and I wish I could get rid of him.' I spoke just jokingly to him. He went out a few minutes later and that was the last I saw of him."

Harry Freemantle, Cavan garage man, saw McLaren last Friday. "I sold him a plug of tobacco. I asked him how he was geting along. He said 'all right,' but there's a hobo there and he didn't know how long he was going to stay. He gave me a five-dollar bill to change. He had a roll of bills in a wallet.

Undertaker's Testimony.

Frederick Scott, undertaker, Millbrook, testified that he brought the body from the house he had been living in on Syer's farm to Millbrook.

"The body was frozen stiff. We started a fire next morning and thawed it out. His face and head were all blood. Sunday evening the only wound we saw was on his face as if he had fallen. Next day we saw the heavy scalp wounds. At the house I saw quite a bit of blood on the floor, a pool of it in one place. I burned the clothing. I came to the conclusion they were of no value. I had no instructions from the coroner to burn them. After the post mortem the doctor asked me to dispose of McLaren's brain. It was burned with the clothing."

Visited Physician.

Dr. C. W. Nash, Millbrook, said that on January 25 McLaren called at his office and complained of stomach trouble. "I diagnosed it as ulcers. I saw the body at the house. It was frozen to the floor in blood. His head was facing the door we came in. We thought there was nothing suspicious at the time. It was dark and we had a flashlight. Knowing that he had ulceration of the stomach there was nothing that looked suspicious."

Dr. Nash said there was some blood on the bed and more on the wall as if splattered.

"I formed no idea when he had died. It might have been Friday or Saturday. McLaren could have lived only a short time after he was struck. There were no signs of a struggle. The instrument used had a fairly sharp edge so many of the cuts were through the scalp."

Provincial Constable Carey testified that he was informed of McLaren's death at noon Monday. He told the jury of the investigations he had made at the farm house, and of finding the blood stained stone and stick of stove wood in the kitchen. There were hairs on them that were apparently from McLaren's head.

"I learned from enquiries that McLaren had drawn $50 from the Bank of Toronto at Millbrook on Wednesday, January 25, three tens, two fives, two twos and a one. I found that he had bought a few things that would amount to around ten dollars. I got a description of the man "Jake" and also the foreigner who was seen by Russell Cobley at Cavan station the night of January 28.

"The two descriptions partly correspond," Constable Carey said, "but I wouldn't like to say they were of the same man."

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, February 10. — Setbacks of grain values late yesterday followed an early brisk rise to the highest point reached by wheat in almost a month.

Profit-taking on the part of new speculative buyers of wheat, together with persistent sales attributed to Government-sponsored sources, did much to offset the market influence of crop damage advices, and of reports that two additional cold waves were threatened, one working downward from Alaska and one working eastward from the Pacific North-west. Late estimates of fresh export business at Winnipeg were disappointing, and Argentine shipments this week were large, about 1,000,000 bushels more than last week.

Wheat closed easier, unchanged to ¾c down, compared with Wednesday's finish; corn ¼c to ⅝c off; oats, unchanged to ⅜c decline; and provisions unchanged to 15c lower.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 10. — Early session strength which gave fractional advances to a weary wheat market was wiped out by eagerness of traders to take profits and values turned downward to close with recessions of ½ to ⅝ cents.

May closed at 47½c, July at 48½c, and October at 49½c.

Early buying, traced to Eastern and Southern interests, placed the market in a fair position for a later wave of selling engineered from Chicago. Early gains were soon wiped out and losses of ½c were chalked up.

Weather Continues Cold.

Continued cold weather in the South-west gave support to early strength in the Southern market. No export trade was worked overnight, although a smattering of trade was believed worked out of Vancouver.

Liverpool advanced in sympathy with strength in North American markets on Wednesday, and quotations at the close were ½d to ⅝d higher.

There was no improvement in the demand for cash wheat and coarse grains. Sales were confined to a few odd lots with prices generally unchanged from the previous day's close.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Feb. 10.—The cold weather sent egg prices higher on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday.

Graded fresh eggs, in cartons or less, advanced 1c to 2c a dozen. Extras were quoted at 22c to 23c, firsts at 20c to 21c, pullets at 19c to 20c, and seconds at 17c to 18c a dozen. To retailers, eggs in cartons gained a cent a dozen. Receipts were 824 cases.

Cartons or less of No. 1 grass butter remained firm at 20½c a pound. Receipts were only five boxes.

Ontario cheese held unchanged at 9c for current white, 10c for current colored and 10½c to 11¼c a pound for early make. Receipts were 22 boxes.

Potatoes were steady. New Brunswick Green Mountains selling at 75c per 80-pound bag. Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at 80c to 85c per 80-pound bag, and at 90c to 95c for 90-pound bag.

Obituary

ROBERT BANNON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Feb. 10. — During the past week death removed from this community one of its most highly esteemed citizens in the person of Mr. Robert Bannon. He was seventy-five years of age, and has been in failing health for some time.

The deceased was the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Bannon, and was born near Pontypool. When a small boy he moved with his parents to a farm south of Omemee, where he lived until fifteen months ago, when he moved into Omemee.

The late Mr. Bannon was a lifelong member of the Anglican church and his influence for good in any forward movement. He was trustworthy, well known, and highly has always been a marked feature respected by a large circle of relatives and friends.

He is survived by his wife, two sisters, Mrs. C. Bent, and Mrs. G. Fee, and four brothers, John, Jas., Edward and William, all residing in or near Omemee.

The funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon, and was conducted by Rev. A. T. Weir Rector of Christ church, assisted by Dr. Reddick, pastor of Trinity United Church.

No More Piles

How to End Terrible Agony Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause — and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this — an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of success in even the most stubborn cases that McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and all good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets today. They must end your Pile agony or money back.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

SCRIBE IS ON WAY TO PERSIA TO INVESTIGATE THE OIL BAN

Well, we will see when we get there. For the moment, we are on a road over which marched all the big parades of history. Darius, Xerxes, Sanherib, Alexander, Croesus, all the picturesque old banditsin-arms swaggered through these parts with their jingling hosts. That show had started, by the way, when the Mediteranean was still dry land and when a giant glacier covered the site where Hollywood htands. hat show isn't over yet, either. The echo of thundering Cossack patrols has scarcely died away. To-day British aeroplanes hovered overhead, tiny specks in the azure blue. Their pilots swoop down occasionally to see who we are. I hope they are satisfied and don't treat us to one of those cylindrical torpedoes which they carry for the "pacification" of desert tribes. By way of protection, we have flying the Union Jack, the banner of Irak, the green emblem of the Prophet, with a text of the Koran embroidered upon it; and the colors of Persia. In a pinch we could use the sheik's garment for a white flag. As far as banners are concerned, we beat the League of Nations' building in Geneva on assembly day. On the armament side we are not so well equipped. Of the three of us, only Sayed Kubeah carries a crooked sword. At that, he doesn't worry: "Allah is merciful," he says. "We look harmless!"

Locked in Hoosegow

My companion, the representative of a great European newspaper, does not share the sheik's feelings of security. It is hardly a year ago that he was mistaken in these regions for the mysterious Col. T. E. Lawrence and was locked up in a Persian hoosegow, whence he was released after five weeks, that is, just before he was ready to surrender to the mastodontic breed of bed-bugs which swarm in every house here, from Bagdad to Kabul. Allah is merciful. Compassionate!

The driving is slow. There is a glacial wind blowing from the Caucasian mountains and ours is an open car, of German manufacture. Our own breath blurs the landscape. We are running into pilgrims every hour. Long caravans of them, the women sitting on top of the camels, sheltered with their broods of children and their pots and kettles, in little curtained pagodas. You can hear the kids squeal, but you never catch sight of a female face. The camel-drivers stamp their feet as they trudge along. Their faces are blanched with the cold.

Brisk Trade in Coffins

I have, so far, counted about 500 camels loaded with coffins. Twice too, I have seen a corpse, all tied up and bundled like a mummy, strapped to the back of a camel, swaying along impotently to the rhythm of the camel's stride. The sheik in the back of our car, who has all the robes, deigns to explain in return for this kindness that the coffin caravans are on their way to the holy cities of Mesopotamia. This is winter time, he says; that is to say, time to bury the dead. The uncoffined corpses are those of mullahs, famous and righteous men "whose souls are God's body." Some of them are going to sway in that manner all the way down to Mecca. They have come from as far distant as Afghanistan.

Tomb of Adam

This afternoon we ran into a collection of mud-hovels, another holy city, where they showed us the tomb of our father, Adam. The city's name is Karned. It is the fifth place on earth, if my memory serves me right, where I have been shown Adam's tomb. If we have faith we will probably see another one in Persia. This reminds me that the valley of the Tigris and Euphrates, now, fortunately, lying behind us, is commonly accepted—by whom?—as the site of the original garden of Eden, the terrestrial paradise. Everything is possible in this land of miracles. At this moment I do not doubt the famous snake episode even. The desert makes you a fundamentalist to the bone.

At Karned we were informed that the tomb of a certain mullah, deceased the year before, was constantly expanding. They had put up a wall around it, but that hadn't stopped the expansion. People were flocking from hundreds of miles around to see the miracle. The sons of the mullah, a couple of grinning rascals, were sitting by the side of the grave—collecting penies from pilgrims. The wall had just moved a couple of inches again the night before, they explained to us.

"But how does it move? Did you see it move?" we inquired.

"It's not good policy here to ask such questions" the sheik, our friend, cautioned. "You might anger the dead man—or his sons!" Just a case of belief on trust. I suppose, for no other reason than that it is absurd.

Remnants of Sect

More interesting was the community on the outskirts of Karned. Here lived about 1,000 people, the last remnants of a once powerful sect, who declare themselves followers of John the Baptist. For about an hour we sat disputing the law and the Prophets with the head of this community, a fine and venerable old Semite, while the sheik, our pick-up friend, acted as interpreter. I heard it proclaimed, for the first time in my life, I must admit, as gospel truth that the Baptist was greater than Jesus. Our Christian faith, I learned, too, was all a mistake. It rested on an error. John the Baptist had, indeed, once expected that Jesus was the Messiah. But he had been deceived. He had doubted the Nazarene's authenticity from the moment that he sent out his disciples to ask Christ: "Who art Thou?"

"That's in the New Testament, isn't it?" asked the head of the community. "Yes," I said.

"Well, if John had to ask who Jesus was, it stands to reason that he didn't know, that he doubted," came back the elder.

"But the baptism on Jordan, then, and the voice from heaven: 'This is My beloved Son! . . .' I argued, feeling my professional mood come over me.

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed the elder, as he slapped his thighs under his mantel of camel-hair. "Ha, ha, another one (meaning me) who has been taken in by the fraduient interpolations in the New Testament!"

"Well, really, that was too much. I never expected to meet a higher critic in the Assyrian desert. Moreover, the cold was so intense that I had to keep moving. I promised to come back and continue the debate some other time.

The BEST way to stop CONSTIPATION

Nothing like Fruit-a-tives

"I was in a very bad way with constipation. My stomach was off-colour and I kept having headacheafter headache. Quite frequently I had severe pains in my joints and muscles. The general effect was very depressing. Indeed, I felt so wretched that I was about to give up work. Today my health is excellent and I certainly feel that 'Fruit-a-tives' played a large part in bringing this about. They toned up my entire system."

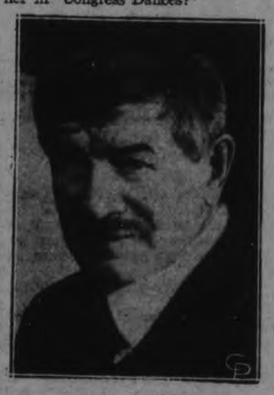
STEPHEN LEACOCK



By shifting the gold standard and pegging the dollar down a little, Canada could temporarily halt the depression, is the opinion of Professor Stephen Leacock, economist of McGill University. His method, he declares, would produce 240 millions of currency. He suggested that the present 23-gold grain standard of each Canadian dollar be replaced by a 17-grain standard. Perhaps some of Professor Leacock's incomparable humor would also be of great assistance.

SIX-POINT PLAN BEING LINED UP FOR NEW ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

Leaders of World Nations Expected to Rally in London in July.

COMMITTEE BUSY NOW.

(By Frank H. King, A.P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 10 (A.P.)—Roused to new hope for the return of prosperity, the nations of the world have been assured by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald the World Economic Conference will be held at the earliest possible moment.

A survey by Associated Press correspondents stationed in the various European capitals shows the Conference Preparatory Commission, with its work just completed, has focussed attention on a six-point program for recovery.

League of Nations officials already had arrived in London to discuss conference arrangements with the British Government. That Mr. MacDonald will preside over the first assembly of its kind in history, with the sessions starting in July in old St. James' Palace, is likely, unless a new and unexpected move is made to shift the conference to Washington.

Adolf Hitler, who sits in the chair of Bismarch, will come for the ceremonial opening, according to word from Berlin, but there is not much prospect of general mustering of dictators. Joseph V. Stalin and Benito Mussolini will assign the Russian and Italian interests to special envoys.

Six Headings

It will be Mr. MacDnoald's task to put the delegates face to face with the troubles of the world as catalogued by the preparatory experts under six formidable headings as follows:

1.—Monetary and credit policy.
2.—Prices.
3.—Resumption of the movement of capital.
4.—Restrictions on international trade.
5.—Tariff and treaty policy.
6.—Organization of production and trade.

These cover the whole range of complex problems from the gold standard, silver questions and trade barriers to river and land transport and what is to be done for farmers the world over.

As yet, individual countries have made only preliminary plans, but they reflect the trend of national hopes.

To Britain as the host, the World Economic Conference means an opportunity for building a new world economic structure on the cornerstone of the Anglo-American Debts Conference in Washington next month. War debt are not the cause of all the world's ills, but they are the key to recovery, according to the British view.

Britain considers that she is taking the world view in the present crisis and accepts the opinion of experts the gold standard provides the only practicable international monetary system. But she insists that definite conditions of world recovery must be fulfilled before Britain returns to gold.

Urge Return to Gold

France and United States will urge that Great Britain return to the gold standard, and will espouse a currency stabilization fund to enable the recovery of Central European countries as outlined in the recent conference at Stresa, Italy.

The Hitler upheaval in Germany upset all previous plans for the conference there and the new government has not outlined its policy. Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, the new Minister of Economics and Agriculture, is likely to be the principal figure in the delegation.

Although absent in person, Premier Mussolini will be in the conference news by advocating through th. Italian delegation a new "Economic League of Nations" as means of overcoming the present crisis and of preventing another one like it.

Soviet Russia was somewhat piqued because she was not invited to join in the preparatory conference work at Geneva. But she is not likely to refuse to attend, particularly because the feeling here is that such a gathering demands the presence of Russia. It is considered not unlikely that Russia will offer the original or a modification of Foreign Commisear Maxim Litvinoff's pact of economic non-aggression, proposed two years ago at Geneva, as its idea of the only solution for the world's present economic plight.

Millbrook

The names of May and Walter Challice, Bill Byam and Ernie Powell, who assisted with the music for the dancing at the recent community relief concert and social evening were inadvertently omitted from the account already published, this orchestra alternating with the Todd family orchestra during the hours the dance was in progress.

Ernest Powell was among the local entrants at the Old Time Fiddlers' Concert recently held at Bingo Hall, north of Mount Pleasant, winning second place, one of the three Hughey Brothers of Omemee, who were also contestants, coming first. There was such a small margin between the playing of Messrs. Hughey and Powell, that the judges, after having them play their selections a second time, finally left the matter to the audience to decide, the one apparently accorded the loudest applause being placed first and the other second.

In the competition which followed during the dancing, the couple awarded the first prize in the old time waltz, were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown of Millbrook.

The dramatic club of Grace Presbyterian Church, repeated its play, "George in a Jam," in Port Hope on Friday evening, under the auspices of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Many local residents not having had the pleasure of seeing this play when it was presented here in December, the young people have decided, in response to several requests, to repeat the performance in the town hall, on Friday, Feb. 24. The Port Hope audience was highly pleased with the play and the marked talent displayed by the characters of the cast.

The Friday afternoon free skating for children ten and under, at the Cosmos rink provided through the courtesy of the Women's Institute, under proper supervision, has been a popular feature, when the weather has been favorable for good ice. This is but one of the community activities which the local branch of the W.I. is sponsoring this season.

The regular meeting of the Women's Institute will be at the home of Mrs. Russell Smith, Tupper St., on Saturday, at 2.30 p.m. (February 11), the response to the roll-call, "Hints on Home-Making." Community Activities will be the theme studied.

POOR SALE OF TAX PROPERTY.

TORONTO.—Only 10 pieces of property of the 163 offered at the city's auction for taxes to-day were sold, bringing a total of $1,884, or $231 in excess of them. No bids were made on "Casa Loma," listed as owned by Sir Henry Pellatt, on which taxes of $27,306 have accumulated.

A number of private golf clubs have inaugurated the sport of archery golf, the Professional Golfers' Association reports.

With the addition of seven subscriptions, totalling $275, yesterday afternoon and this morning, the cash total of the Peterborough Relief Fund, as shown in the records of City Treasurer Frank Adams, rose to $8,632.35. Although the half-way mark on the way to the objective of $20,000 has not been passed in cash receipts, signs of a slowing up in subscriptions are evident, and a concerted effort from the entire city will be necessary in the next couple of weeks.

ALUMINUM IS MOST ABUNDANT METAL PRODUCT

Paul S. White Addresses Members of Local Engineering Institute.

PRODUCT OF PRESENT AGE

Production and Utilization of Aluminum Are Described.

Presenting in a graphic manner the story of aluminum—its production and utilization—Paul S. White, B.A., B.Sc., of Toronto, addressed the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada in this city last night. Mr. White has been for some years identified with Aluminum VI., Limited, one of the Canadian branches of a world-wide industry.

"Aluminum is really a product of the present age," Mr. White pointed out in the course of a brief outline of the history of the metal which, in a few years, has come to be regarded as a necessity to modern civilization. "Physicists started working on it about 1807, but very little progress was made until about 1845 when Wohler made enough aluminum to determine its density and other important properties. Progress was made in its reduction up till about 1860, and then a lapse of twenty-five years occurred, until Hall, an American, and Hercult, a Frenchman, almost simultaneously invented the first successful commercial electrolytic reduction of aluminum. This marked the foundation of the present aluminum industry, which has grown from a production of Hall's original plant of fifty pounds per day to a world production at the present time of 300,000 tons per year. The price of this metal came from $27 per pound in 1857 to $1 per pound in 1888 and to the neighborhood of 20 cents per pound at the present time."

Mr. White explained that aluminum is the most abundant metallic element, constituting about eight per cent. of the solid portion of the earth's crust to a depth of ten miles. Aluminum is secured commercially from aluminum ores, known under the general term "bauxite," in which the aluminum is largely present as hydrated oxides. The richest bauxite deposits are located in Southern France, Arkansas, Dutch Guiana, Western Hungary and British Guiana, he said.

Production.

Turning to the subject of production, Mr. White described the operations of crushing and drying the bauxite, then the processes of extraction of the aluminum. "While chemical methods used in some parts of the world extract the alumina in aqueous solution and might be said to aim primarily at the production of a pure aluminum salt solution by extracting the alumina from the ore and leaving most or all of the impurities insoluble, the "dry process" proceeds in the opposite direction by reducing the impurities to the metallic state and separating them from the molten, pure alumina.

"When five to ten tons of molten, purified alumina have been formed in the furnace overlying a layer of the molten alloy containing the impurities in the "dry process," the furnace is tilted and the superheated, molten alumina poured off at a temperature of approximately 2500 degrees centigrade. The molten alumina may be cast into large blocks and, subsequently crushed and ground to pass an 80-mesh screen, but a preferable procedure is to blow it into hollow globules by the impact of a jet of high pressure air or steam. This process is preferably completed by an operation in which the globular or pulverized alumina is treated with dilute acid and washed to remove the lime and about half of the remaining oxides of iron, silicon and titanium. The resultant alumina has a purity of 99.75 per cent."

Mr. White described the electrolytic production of aluminum through which the great aluminum plant "Arvida" is utilizing the hydro power of the Saguenay River in Quebec. "Broadly speaking, a cell for the electrolyte production of aluminum comprises a strong steel box provided with a carbon lining which acts as a cathode. The anodes are also made of a mixture of carbon, pitch and tar. The anodes hang from busbars over the cavity of the cells, dipping into the electrolyte.

Cryolite Discovered.

"In order to electrolyze aluminum compounds, it is necessary to employ a solvent which does not react with aluminum and is more difficult to decompose electrolytically than the aluminum compound being used. Such a solvent was discovered by Hall in the natural mineral cryolite. This substance melts at about 1000 degrees centigrade and at temperatures slightly above its melting point is capable of dissolving as much as 10 to 20 per cent. of its weight in aluminum oxide.

"In operation, the cell contains a layer of molten aluminum at the bottom of the cell, varying in thickness from a fraction of an inch up to four or five inches. Since the density of molten aluminum is greater than that of molten cryolite, the latter will remain on top unless the contents of the cell are violently agitated. During operation, the electrolyte is kept in continuous agitation by the bubbles of gas given off at each anode and by the effect of the magnetic field produced.

Agitation.

"The importance of this agitation is seen when the aluminum oxide is added to the cell from time to time. If no agitation were present, it would at once sink to the bottom of the cell and accumulate under the metal layer. It has been found that it takes from one and one-half to nine minutes to completely dissolve alumina in fused cryolite. During the operation of the cell, the alumina is used up in direct proportion to the production of the metal and is added from time to time in top of the crust, then broken into fused cryolite. The power required per pound of aluminum produced may vary from ten to twelve kilowatt hours.

"When a sufficient amount of metal has accumulated at the bottom of the cell, it is removed by tapping and allowed to flow into a large ladle when it is skimmed and then repoured into ingot moulds. The aluminum as poured into these ingot moulds is thus in its final state for practically all commercial uses."

Jumps Bail

Chief defendant in a $3,500,000 mail fraud case in Oklahoma City, Okla., C. C. "Ponzi" Julian, according to report, has decided to jump his $25,000 bail and remain in Canada where it is stated he has been for some time. Julian, born in Morris, Manitoba, and a former Winnipeg newsboy, is believed to have written letters to an Oklahoma publisher bitterly attacking the methods used by the government in investigating the mail fraud case.

In an interview Joan said:

"I have to get away from here to realize how unimportant all this petty gossip really is."

"We finish the picture day after tomorrow" she said. "Then a preview and possibly added scenes. But I'm already packing my things. I want to catch the first train to New York. I want to see Doug and spend days there with him. I want to get away from the tongues of Hollywood.

"Don't mistake me," she added quickly. "I owe a lot to Hollywood, and I shouldn't let the talk bother me. I didn't, at first. I laughed at it. Then it made me mad. The only thing for me, I think, is to go away for a while."

Going away, Joan will step out of the feminine lead in "Soviet," the Rusian picture Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer wanted her to make with Clark Gable and Wallace Beery. Yesterday's rumor named Jean Harlow as her successor.

FILM JOKES TRAVEL FAST.

IT TAKES ONLY THREE days for a popular joke to cover the nation, providing it comes from the screen.

This is the estimate of Mae West, now starring in Paramount's "She Done Him Wrong."

"A stage player can originate a joke and it will beat the show across the country by weeks. On the other hand, picture audiences are seeing and hearing their comedians all over the country at the same time, and within a week, 25 million have heard the gag."

HOKUM IN PICTURES.

WITH THE OPENING of "Cavalcade," Hollywood is once more in the throes of the argument about the necessity for hokum in pictures A leading defender of "Cavalcade" and pictures of the sort is Leslie Howard.

Leslie Howard

"The trouble is," Howard tells me, "they have not aimed high enough for the public. Any picture with an outstanding spiritual quality will be a success and will appeal to the whole world. 'Cavalcade' had patriotism. I think 'Berkeley Square' should find a wide public because the whole world likes to believe that love is undying, persists after death. The producers haven't asked my advice, but I think 'The Passing of the Third Floor Back' also would qualify for spiritual appeal.

"And let us, first of all, get away from realism. Romance is the province of the theatre."

Any arguments?

SPECTACULAR ROMANCE OF GREAT OUTDOORS

THE ADVENT of Zane Grey's "The Golden West," the new Fox picture opening an engagement at the Regent theatre next week marks the renaissance of Indian drama, the return to popular favor on a new and larger scale of the story of the struggles between the whites and the redmen. George O'Brien and Janet Chandler both play dual parts in the leading roles.

The latest of the Delmar stories to reach the screen is "Uptown New York," based on story titled "Angle-Uptown Woman," which is being shown at the Regent theatre next Wednesday. Mrs. Delmar chooses plain middle-class men and women as her characters, places them in a seting of the turbulent section of New York and weaves about them a story steeped in human interest and understanding. Principals in the cast are Jack Oakie and Shirley Grey.

Burns on the Capitol screen the end of next week shows men driven to desperation by the tortures of the whipping post, poor food, excessive labors in broilinig heat and other tortures. CONNIE TO HAVE PART IN FILM ON JEAN EAGELS' LIFE

COUNT AMONG the exciting films of the next few months the appearance of Constance Bennett in a story based on the life of the glamorous and tragic Jeanne Eagels.

R-K-O- has been in a high pitch of excitement about this idea for the last week and yesterday it finally was laid in the lap of Dick Bennett's proud daughter.

Having come to a decision the studio temporarily can relax, for Connie first takes a trip to Europe and then does "A Bed of Roses."

The star accompanied by the Marquis De La Falaise and her secretary sail from here Saturday on the S.S. Delft Dyke. They'll be on the ocean 24 days, will make a brief trek to Paris and then will start the homeward journey, arriving here in about 7 weeks. Connie's adopted son, Peter, will remain at home in the care of trusted nurses.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

SINCE WARNERS produced "I Am a Fugutive from a Chain Gang," all other film companies have been flooded with leters from fugitives from justice. Fox alone has received more than 200?....Maurice Chevalier gave the first jazz concert Paris ever had?....Paul Lukas was an aviator in the Hungarian Air Corps during the war?

Bronchial Trouble

Guelph, Ont.—"My second oldest boy, Kitchener, has been a chronic sufferer from bronchitis. He seemed to choke up so and coughed very frequently. He did not rest well at night and was so rundown," said Mrs. H. Carter of 94 Alice St. "We gave him two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it gave him excellent relief from the bronchial trouble—helped to relieve the cough, increased his appetite and built him up and he rested better at night."

If you want free medical advice write to Dr. Pierce's Clinic in Buffalo, N. Y.

RADIO NOTES

By R. H. CHILDERHOSE of City Radio Service.

A great deal of the interference noise heard on the radio is caused by electrical appliances and equipment used in the home. If you have equipment that causes noise in your own radio, you may be sure it is also being heard by some of your neighbors, perhaps over quite a distance around you.

Radio reception would be appreciably improved if owners of such equipment would have it repaired, or at least refrain from using it at night and on Sunday.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Several corespondents have asked me to express an opinion on the report of the Committee on the Costs of Medical Care.

The committee which had been working five years, recommended that two plans be put into operation to change the methods of medical practice. One is to establish small groups of doctors centered about a hospital and clinic. These clinics would be located so as to supply the needs of a given neighborhood.

The second idea is that people should subscribe to sick benefit insurance and this would entitle them to treatment, without further pay, at their neghborhood clinic.

The American Medical association probably will not favor this scheme, Some editorial opinion which I have seen, notably that of "The Nation," feels that doctors make a mistake in taking this attitude, and warns them they should favor some scheme which will bring better medical care to the public in general.

The trouble is that this is exactly what the scheme advocated will not do. The reason the medical profession is opposed to it is that it will bring worse medical care to the public than it now receives.

We will say that you have a pain in your stomach and you go to your neighborhood clinic. You are met at the door by a young lady, and you say, "I have a pain in my stomach."

The young lady says, "Please fill out this card, giving your name and address."

You say, "But I have a pain in my stomach."

The young lady says "That's what they all say. You will have to fill out this card. Then you will see our busines manager and then you will go over your insurance receipts with the insurance manager, and perhaps by tomorrow or the next day you may be able to see a doctor, if everything is in order."

What will happen to the fellow who has lost his insurance receipts, I don't know.

Perhaps a man from Roxbury, Mass., who has just had an annual physical examination at the clinic and has been told he is all right, is on his way to California and gets sick on the train. He is removed from the train to the local hospital, which is in the same chain as his own. The surgeon says, "Well, you have appendicitis and you ought to have an operation. Let me see your insurance receipts."

The man says, "They are in Roxbury, Mass."

The surgeon says, "Well I can't open you up until I see your insurance receipts."

Now what is the man to do? Suppose the receipts are in his safety deposit box and the key to the box is in his own pocket. Will he have to go back to Roxbury, Mass., and then return to Albuquerque in order to get his appendix out, or what?

Then suppose somebody is mentally diseased, which comes under Care," and eats his insurance certificates. There is no way to prove the heading of "Need for Medical that he is entitled to medical care. What happens then?

Only 10 Gallons Gas Left As Fliers Land

WALFISH BAY, South Africa, Feb. 9.—(C. P. Cable)—The log of the R.A.F. plane flown by Squadron-leader O. R. Gayford and Lieut. G. E. Nicholetts to a new long-distance non-stop record revealed today only 10 gallons of gasoline were left in the big machine's tanks when they brought it down here yesterday after their 5,340 miles flight from England.

The log also indicates the value of automatic controls installed in the plane. From the time the airmen passed Peterborough, England, Monday morning until they struck the Mediterranean, some miles west of Marseilles they were flying almost blind. Not until they were over the Sahara desert were they able to confirm their course by star sights.

THERE NEVER WAS a time when the importance of proper food for the body was more stressed.

* * * * * * *

For years there has been scientific research into what foods composed of in respect to the nutritive elements they supply. These elements are divided into differing classifications from time to time, but always the nourishing values are given significance.

* * * * * * *

Since the mind is a vital element of the substantive existence, it, too, requires proper nourishment. It can fall into a decline which is no less regrettable than when the physique weakens.

* * * * * * *

Providing proper food for the mind is no less important than providing proper edibles for the physical body.

* * * * * * *

In speaking of the mind, the word is used in its broad sense, and includes the spirit, since it is the combination which forms the immaterial elements, which, though not tangible, are no less potent.

* * * * * * *

Electricty is not tangible, yet no one denies its wondrous power—of such magnitude, it is awe-inspiring. Nether does any deny the existence of the mind nor its influence for good.

* * * * * * *

In order to preserve well rounded good health, both physical food and mental are essential. The latter cannot be neglected. The mind must feed on wholesome food, and digest it well so that its vigorous vitality can exercise its potent influence for good on the material body.

* * * * * * *

Proper mental nourishment should be partaken of so that courage, good cheer, happiness, and all the best spiritual qualities can strengthen nerves and sinews in pleasant ways.

* * * * * * *

Does the question arise as to how you can supply the mind with good food? If so, here are some good diets. Fortunately, they are pleasant to digest. The first is, "Think good thoughts, for 'as a man thinketh, so is he.'"

* * * * * * *

Put the best construction on actions of others. It tends toward personal peace, without which mind and body are disturbed. Read fine books, fine in the sense of excellence of ideas, those which stimulate the thoughts and nourish the better side of your nature, or which create a hunger and thirst for more knowledge of history, travel, biographies of noble men and women, the wonders of nature, or whatever appeals most to your own individuality.

* * * * * * *

Above all, seek the food that feeds spiritual growth. It may be through companionship with persons of high character through books, contemplation, or thinking and believing the best.

CLASS PLAY IS WELL RECEIVED

"And Mary Did" Presented By "Ever Awakes" of St. James' Sunday School.

Comedy ran high in the three-act play "And Mary Did," presented last night by the Ever Awake Class of St. James' Sunday School. Holding the interest and curiosity of the audience from the opening of the first act to the final curtain, the plot abounds in both funny and exciting situations. For "And Mary Did" is one of those rare and really funny plays which acts itself, and proved such a success last night that it will have to be repeated. Modern to the last word, with love and politics as the two active forces, the splendid cast of characters led their audience through the maze of the political arena which was to decide the love affair of Mary Sterling. Each part is a star part, and the scene was laid in a New England town, where young Lawrence Grey has political ambitions for the mayorship. He is in love with Mary Sterling, but his father has other plans for his future, in which the wealthy Dressa Rand figures largely In a wordy combat with the father, Mary openly declares her love for his son, ending with: "I want to marry him myself, but not against your wishes. Here's my proposition. Send Lawrence away for a holiday and let me handle his campaign for mayor — make his speeches, his apologies, and so forth. If I lose the election for him then I'll give up—but if I win, and he still wants me, all I ask is your blessing." It is up to Mary to win the election for a husband—"And Mary Did."

Enact Paris Well.

The entire cast was practically a new one for a St. James' play, but each player fitted perfectly into his or her role. Mary, a modern Joan of Arc, and the heroine of the story, was admirably taken by Miss Irene Parsons, who portrayed well the dual personality of a winning yet determined character. Playing opposite to her is the modern Lancelot, otherwise Lawrence Grey, the aspiring candidate for mayor and sweetheart. In a very realistic manVertie Reynolds depicted both phases of the hero's character. Mr. Reynolds also did a clever bit of acting by doubling in the role, "The Gentleman from Georgia," and becomes a true Southerner. Mrs. Sterling, Mary's mother, who keeps a watchful eye over her lively family, is taken with excellent effect by Mrs. Norman Dunbar. Mary's young brother and sister, Willie and Betty, the dear little angels, live up to the present-day idea of youth with much appeal, as played by Kenneth Meredith and Miss Lillian Baldry. Mrs. Alvin Davis, in her usual clever delineation, takes the difficult role of the dashing Dressa Rand, Mary's rich rival, while Jack Huggins, in a masterly style, pictured Daniel Grey, the father of Lawrence, who is so ambitious as to his son's financial and matrimonial career, that he causes a regular upheaval in affairs. The role of Edith Smith, Mary's chum, whose chief aim in life is to "laff off" the other fifty pounds—was charmingly and naturally done by Mrs. Vertie Reynolds. Miss O. G. Whittaker, a masculine monument to feminine freedom, who takes an active hand in the town politics, was shown to perfection by Miss Marion Wood.

The comedy characters who elicited much hilarious applause and laughter, were taken by Miss Alberta Frost, as the maid Matilda, who helped Mrs. Sterling "keep the little angels' wings clean" and also the house—once in a while, and Stanley Leggett, as Henry Grey's gardener, but spent most of his time in Matilda's kitchen. The splendid work of these amateur players bespeak for them a full house to-night in St. James' Sunday School Hall for their repeat performance. The Ever Awake Class presented their play under the able direction of Mrs. W. R. Sloane. Cecil Church had charge of the lighting and Alvin Davis and Gerald Gross managed the curtain.

With Mr. McLaren as chairman, the following entertaining program was given between acts: Vocal solos with guitar accompaniment, "The Trail Back Home" and "You and My Old Guitar," by R. Theobald; vocal solo, "Cowboy Jack," by Master Arthur Winslow; instrumental selection by the Misses Laing; vocal solo, "Sunshine and Roses" Miss Edith Smith. Miss Olive Press, A.T.C.M., acted as accompanist for the program.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

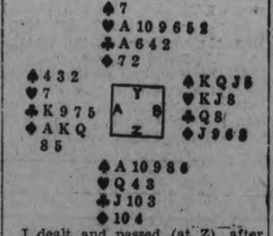
By E. V. SHEPARD

LEADING PARTNER'S SUIT

Both against trump and no trump makes ordinaryily it is wise to assume that a suit worth bidding by partner must be better than your own suit that was not worth bidding. I continually see games lost needlessly at no trumps because senior is short of his partner's suit and will not make an opening lead of it, although his own suit is markedly inferior.

Against trump declarations you may first lay down a winning card, as the K from A-K-J or A-K-10 thus showing how you can help defeat the contract, before you lead partner's suit. Against a no trump make ordinarily you at once lead partner's suit that he has bid.

Against a trump declaration you lead the fourth-best card of partner's suit, so that he may be enabled to count the number of that suit held by declarer. Lead the top of partner's suit only when you hold fewer than four. At no trumps you lead fourth-best from four or more of partner's suit. Also you lead low from three headed by an honor as good as a J, so part of the honor strength will be held at declarer's left. The following hand shows how such a lead may prove the only means of defeating the contract.



I dealt and passed (at Z), after which contracting went as follows: A, 1-Diamond; Y, 1-Heart; B, 1-Spade; Z, Pass; A, 2-Diamonds; Y, 2-Hearts; B, 3-No Trumps, which was passed all around.

Had I led my top heart, nothing could have prevented the declarer from twice stopping hearts. When the declarer led a spade I would have won with my Ace, giving my partner his second lead of hearts, but two spade tricks, two heart tricks and five diamond tricks would have enabled the declarer to run off game at no trumps, before my partner could have gained entry with his Ace of clubs to run off his established hearts.

As play went, my 3 of hearts was led. My partner's Ace won the trick. He led back his 10 of hearts through the declarer's K-J. The J was played. My Q won the trick, and the declarer's K won the only heart trick for his side. He led his K of spades. My Ace won the trick, and I led my J of clubs through the dummy's K. My partner's Ace won. Five heart tricks, one spade and one club trick defeated the contract of three tricks, instead of giving B a game.

Once more the black Chantilly lace gown reappears in Paris. Very long, even with a train, and with long sleeves, it is worn as a dinner and theater dress. Teh only ornament is likely to be a cluster of white flowers at the front of the neckline.

FRENCH FLIERS AFTER RECORD

Pair Aim For Buenos Aires, Hoping to Better 5,340 Mile Non-stop Mark.

USE 10 TON PLANE.

ISTRES, France, Feb. 10.—(A.P.)—Lucien Boussoutrot and Maurice Rossi, French fliers, hopped off at 7.48 a.m. (2.48 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) to-day for Buenos Aires. They hope to break the world's long distance flying record of 5,340 miles set Wednesday by the British officers, O. R. Gayford and G. E. Nicholetts, on a flight from England to South Africa.

The Frenchmen took advantage of favorable weather for an attempt which they have been trying to make every full moon since last September.

The plane named "Joseph Lebrix," in tribute to one of France's greatest fliers, and weighing nearly 10 tons, rolled down an 825-metre runway and took the air in 46 seconds.

It will speed toward the ocean in a route following eastern and southern Spanish coast.

The French Aero Postal Company reported the plane passed between Valencia and Terrason, Spain, at 12.10 p.m. (7.10 p.m. E.S.T.) flying low. It was sighted by a seaplane of the Balearic Islands at 11.05 a.m.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

When the lovely Claudette Colbert enacted the role of Poppaea in one of her recent pictures, she was required, in a certain scene, to bathe in a black marble pool, filled to the brim with real, honest-to-goodness milk. And Claudette was so pleased with the softening effects that the milk had on her skin, that she determined to use this fluid on her face every day.

Personally, I do noth ave a very high regard for the beautifuying properties of externally administered milk. Real milk is astringent and contains a good deal of butter fat. And because of this it tends to leave the skin feeling sticky and drawn. But an excellent face mask can be made of powdered milk. This mask bleaches and softens the skin. And it is gratifyingly easy to prepare and administer to the skin.

Before administering a milk pack, cleanse your skin thoroughly with a pure bland soap and tepid water, and then with liquifying cleansing cream. Remove the cleansing cream, and apply a rich nourishing cream to your skin. Allow this cream to remain on the skin for a few minutes, and then remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. If your skin is extremely dry, you may allow a thin film of the nutrient cream to remain on the skin around your eyes and mouth underneath the pack.

The powdered milk that is utilized in preparing this face pack may be procured cheaply in practically any well-stocked drug store. Mix a heaping tablespoonful of the powdered milk with enough cold water to form a smooth, creamy paste. If your skin is very oily, you may substitute a good skin tonic for the water. Apply the paste generously over your face and neck, and permit it to dry. Lie down and relax during this period of time, if you possibly can. For there is less danger of your cracking the mask if you do not move about. And the rest and relaxation will have a most refreshing effect on your entire body.

When the milk pack is thoroughly dry you may remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. Do not remove it before it is thoroughly dry, however, else you will limit its beneficial effects. This mask will help to bleach your skin, and will leave it soft, smooth and velvety.

The HAMMOND ELECTRIC BRIDGE TABLE

It Shuffles and Deals Automatically!

See it Demonstrated Saturday in the Furniture Dept., Second Floor

Can you imagine the thrill of playing Bridge on a table that electrically shuffles and deals for you? And it is all so simple—merely place the unshuffled deck in a sliding drawer, close it and presto! the machine starts. When it delivers the 13 cards to each player, it stops and the drawer unlocks, ready to receive the next unshuffled deck.

Since two decks are used, there is always a new hand waiting for the players. The game moves faster, smoother.

Of course, the shuffle is a good one—just like a professional would do it by hand—and the machine is entirely impartial—luck alone determines whether or not your hand is worth a slam bid. Any kind of a hand is possible.

No machinery or gadgets mar the appearance of this automatic Bridge Table. All the mechanism is concealed in the table. However, if you want to show your friends how it works, the top comes off. They will be thrilled and amazed at the almost human motions of the electric shuffle dealer. The legs fold, but won't wobble. The top is washable.

This precision electrical device is made and guaranteed by the world's largest manufacturers of quality electric clocks. That is your assurane of a lifetime of satisfactory service.

Petes Juniors and Falls Battle to 4-All Draw

CALLADINE AND CADD COMBINE TO TALLY THE TIEING COUNTER IN 3RD FRAME OF TIGHT BATTLE

First String of Calladine, Mc Gregor and Jay Plays Brilliant Hockey for Locals—Sanderson Called Upon to Make Many Spectacular Saves.

SMITH IN FALLS' GOAL IS HARD TO BEAT; TEAMS PLAY RETURN HERE THIS EVENING

The junior Petes journeyed north in the sub-zero weather last night and battled the husky Fenelon Falls team to a bitter 4-4 hockey decision. The frigid temperature kept down the crowd and the rink was not packed, but Falls' fans, Lindsay rooters and a few from Peterborough, were treated to a sizzling fast and hard-fought contest. It was about as even a match as the tie score indicates. The return game of this intersectional series will be played here this evening.

The ice was hard as a rock and play was fast all through. The count was 1-0 for the Petes in the first, and tied at 2-all going into the third frame. The score zigzaged back and forth in the third, the visiting boys shoving in the tying marker a few minutes before the end. While the hockey dished up was not perfect, excitement was high from begining to end, and a fist-fight between Jay and Littleton late in the game nearly started a riot.

The homesters were bigger and heavier than the Blue and Whites, and showed great speed and some smart hockey. Smith in goal was a cool, experienced net-guardian and mighty hard to beat. In Littleton, Robertson and Jewell, he had a fine husky defence in front of him. Pentland, Henderson and Deyman, the main front wall, starred all the way, being always dangerous and tricky. The alternates were nearly as good.

Sanderson had a good night between the Peterborough posts, saving spectacularly a dozen times. Those that beat him were earned. It would be unfair to single out any of the Petes all the boys working their heads off. Cadd and Weir, along with Fenton, did some neat rushing. The first string of Calladine, McGregor and Jay went extra well, both Mac and Jay having improved a great deal in the past month and teaming up fine with the tricky Bill at centre. McGregor and Bill figured in three of the locals' four markers. Burley flashed fine speed and stickhandling and scored once for the Petes, and Hill and Williamson worked equally hard. The Petes were a bit weak at passing and at covering up, but all tried hard.

Goalies Kept Busy

Calladine tested Smith right from the start, and play tore up and down hard and evenly, both goalies being kept busy. The Falls' players were rushing four up at a time and keeping the place in an uproar though having no advantage on play. Warren got the hook for boarding, and the Petes' second line threatened hard, with Cadd later almost tallying. Then Burley scored in close, getting the puck off an oponent's skate. McGregor was benched for tripping, saving a practically sure goal when Deyman was through alone. The Cataracts were swarming in and hoisting the bootheel at Sandy from all angles at the bell.

An Even Canto

The midle go was hot and even from the start to finish, marked with stiff checking. The squad with the fancy gold, red and black sweaters fairly blazed the rubber at Sanderson on hard two and three-man rushes, but Sandy was kicking them aside. Burley pulled off a fast rush to the goal, and then Robertson was jerked for tripping. The Petes peppered Smith for a space and the place was a bedlam as play whirled from end to end. The local first line was holding an edge, but the Fenelon lads tied the count when Pentland rapped in Henderson's rebound at close range. Williamson took a trip off for tripping.

Weir Has Ankle Hurt

Weir had his ankle hurt a few minutes later and had to leave the game for the rest of the stanza. The home-towners were doing a lot of dangerous rushing and belting the rubber from a piece out, and the Buckland boys had to check their heads off to hold them out. Then Graham whistled in an angle shot that fooled Sanderson, but a minute before the chapter ended, McGregor passed one to Calladine at defence and Bill did some fine stickhandling in around the goal to again balance the count.

The third was a replica of the middle hectic canto, both sides in turn threatening and the pace being redhot all the way. They were checking hard and play roughened up somewhat. Jay almost got one but his shot was blocked. Henderson came back fast to rifle a hot one from defence and pick a corner. The Falls' players were having an edge through fine combination and speed until Littleton was rubbed out for tripping. The Petes then buzzed around the home citadel and singed the disc at Smith who calmly turned them all aside. Littleton had just been sprung when Deyman got the rap for charging Calladine as the latter waltzed in dangerously. Jay's bullet drive almost got away from the goalie, and then McGregor burned one from a little way out and it slithered through to sew up the score once more.

Near Riot Threatens

In a mixup in the corner, Jay and Littleton tangled, swinging fists. Other players rushed in and a couple of dozen hot-headed fans piled out on the ice. Order was finally restored with the two scrappers getting major penalties. With four minutes to go, Townley breezed around defence to bore in on Sanderson and hammer it by him. The crowd nearly lifted the tin roof, but the roars fell flat when Calladine and Cadd sifted up the ice on the very next rush, showing fine team-work to tie the score at 4-all. Calladine getting the goal. Fenelon nearly got one right after and action was fast and furious till the end. Just before the final gong sounded, Deyman was jugged for holding the puck in his hand.

The teams:

Petes: Goal, Sanderson; defence, Fenton and Cadd; centre, Calladine; wings, Jay and McGregor; alternates, Weir, Hill, Williamson and Burley.

Fenelon Falls: Goal, Smith; defence, Littleton and Robertson; centre, Pentland; wings, Henderson and Deyman; alternates, Jewell, Graham, Townley and Warren.

SULPHIDE BEATS COLUMBIANS 2-1

Black Hawks Trounce Trail Rangers 6-2 in Second Game of Tweed Double.

TWEED, Feb. 10 (Examiner Correspondence).—In the first game of the Juvenile double-header, Sulphide defeated the Columbias 2-1. The Sulphide boys started out from the first ring of the bells, to trounce their opponents. There was a good display of speed and combination on the part of both teams. With a sudden burst of speed the Sulphide boys rushed up the ice and placed the puck behind the net. They carried out the same trick a few seconds later on a pass out of the corner. With two counters against them the Columbias attempted to place the puck behind their opponents' goal, but were unsuccessful until near the end of the third period, when they played four players up and broke through the defence to place their lone counter of the games. Penalties were meted out to both teams, and as a result they played more carefully. Referees Gerald Quinn and Reg. Leworthy warned the players, with the effect that fast, clean hockey was displayed.

BLACK HAWKS TROUNCE TRAIL RANGERS, 6-2

At the beginning of the second game the crowd commenced to gather at the rink to witness the best game of the bill.

The Black Hawks came out to revenge the previous defeat they suffered at the expense of the Trail Rangers. They had little difficulty in doing this. The Trail Rangers' goalie would not play and a substitute was found.

The first period resulted in the Black Hawks securing five goals to the Rangers' one. Herbert Leal, Stanley Luffman, Walter Leal, Gerald Simmons and William Graham scored for the Hawks, while Harold Provost scored the lone counter for the Rangers.

The Rangers received two penalties and a same number were meted out to the Black Hawks in the first period.

Having sealed up the game, the Hawks played defensive work in the second period and prevented the Trail Rangers from gaining any points. Near the last of the second period Walter Leal place the sixth pointer for the Hawks. The Black Hawks received three penalties to the Rangers' two in the second canto.

During the third period, the Rangers rushed one attack after another and finally Harold Provost placed the second counter for the Rangers. The Rangers received two more penalties while the Hawks remained intact for the last period. Ronald Sayers played goalie for the Rangers in the first period, and Marvin Vance for the second, and third periods. These goalies played a good game for their first appearance in that position. Graham Mouck played an exceptional game for the Hawks.

Detroit Notches Three Goals to Win 4-1 Decision From Chihawks.

TORONTO, Feb. 20 (C.P.)—Montreal Maroons might have been causing a degree or two of worry in Toronto's title camp to-day but for a sudden wild streak on the part of Eddie Gerard's firing squad. Unable to settle their sights, Maroons dropped a 1-0 decision last night to Boston Bruins, and remained three games behind the Leafs in the National Hockey League's Canadian division.

It was the first defeat in eight games for the rugged Redmen, who mauled the Bruins about as thoroughly as any team can do this in Boston. They plastered most of their close-in shots, however, against the rink backboards, allowing Tiny Thompson to reserve his energy for the mere 22 drives that were dead-on.

After Nels Stewart, a Maroon scoring ace until this season, had hoisted a high shot into the Montreal net early in the first period, the Gerard group waged an endless battle for goals and threw away all the chances they earned. Baldy Northcott, the League's leading sniper, posted more shooting errors than the rest—perhaps because he was the most effective puck-carrier in the game.

Just when they least expected trouble, New York Rangers found it and dropped back to second place in the United States section.

While Detroit Red Wings were posting a 4-1 victory at Chicago over the Black Hawks, a scattering of 5,000 fans saw Ottawa Senators hold Rangers to a 3-3 deadlock that allowed the Wings to move a point in front in the standing. Billy Beveridge was responsible for the Blueshirt failure.

With Frank Boucher and the flanking Cooks booming shots as usual, Beveridge stood off the New Yorkers while his mates found sufficient openings in the Ranger defence to build the tilt into an overtime battle. Beveridge stopped 60 shots compared with 21 Andy Aitkenhead turned aside.

Bill Cook scored early in the first period and Senators matched that one less than a minute later, Bill Touhey breaking away for a solo tally. Butch Keeling rapped in another for Rangers in the second session and the Capitals came back with two, Cooney Weiland getting the first and Desse Roche the second.

Luck aided Rangers to finally knot the count in the third. Attempting to pass out from behind the Ottawa cage, Murray Murdoch struck Beveridge's skate with the puck and it bounced into the net.

Hawk Defence Fails.

At Chicago Charlie Gardiner's defence failed him the third period to allow Detroit forwards to swarm all over him and score three times. Herbie Lewis, Johnny Gallagher and Parry Aurie punched the puck past Gardiner to provide the winning margin after each team had scored in the second period. Lewis got the first Detroit goal, Doc Romnes rattling in the lone Hawk tally.

NORMIE HIMES BORN IN GALT

Hailed as Western City's Most Successful Contribution to Major Sport.

PLAYS WITH AMERICANS.

GALT, Ont., Feb. 9.—(CP)—With scarcely an argument Galt calls Normie Himes—a native born—her most successful contribution to major sport.

Normie Himes

"Steady Normie," they used to say back in the days when the slender Himes boy was a baseball power along the Waterloo-Wellington county front, one of the best amateur shortstops in Ontario.

And they still call him "steady Normie" down in New York where for seven years he has been an idol of Gotham's hockey thousands, one of the half-dozen best centre players in the National League.

Galt remembers Himes as a Terrier. He was a star on the Terrier Senior ball team that won the Ontario championship in 1923, a Terrier on the intermediate hockey team that captured the O.H.A. title in 1921. He started his ice career with the Terrier juniors.

Deadly Poke-Checker

Born in Galt, Himes also played lacrosse and basketball—even soccer—before he turned professional as a hockey player in the fall of 1926 with New York Americans. A smooth skater and deadly poke-checker, He made good at once under the big tent. With the exception of one season he has led American scorers each year since.

Himes best season was 1929-30 when he rolled up a point-total of 50-28 goals and 22 assists. He was seventh from the top of the N. H. L. scoring list that spring, tied with Howie Morenz. Last season he played in every scheduled Amerk game and spent but nine minutes in the penalty box.

Since they don't allow pro hockeyists to mingle with the amateur ball players in Canada, Normie has taken up golf to keep him busy in the off-season. He was pro last summer at the Saugeen Golf club, Port Elgin.

Such other athletes of international fame as Cliff Bricker, Canadian Olympic marathoner and Billy Reynolds and Fred Sergeant, also noted long-distance runners, hold high places in Galt's sportive esteem—but "Steady Normie" ranks number one.

BUFFALO SHOWS 4-POINT LEAD

Tecs and Stars Idle While Herd Defeats Olympics 4 to 1.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—(C.P.)—Victories over the two cellar-occupants, while their closest rivals, London Tecumsehs and Syracuse Stars were idle, enabled Buffalo Bisons to show a four-point lead in the hectic International Hockey League race today.

Playing in Detroit last night, Buffalo garnered four goals in the middle stanza and downed Olympics 4-1. Tuesday they defeated Cleveland.

The league's leading duo in the sniping line, Lloyd Gross and Roter Roth, accounted for three of the markers, and each picked up a trio of points. Gross scored one on Roth's assist, and the act was reversed in the next two counters. Bud Schultz, on a pass from Leo Godin notched the fourth Bison tally.

Leroy Goldsworthy and Deacon Waite, combined to score Detroit's goal shortly after the final frame started.

Penalties were at a premium, Detroit drawing three of the four, Davis, Olympic defenceman getting two of them. The loss was the homesters' third in a row.

HERD FRONT LINE LEADS KING LIST

Roth, Gross and Carr Monopolize First Three Positions in Struggle for Points.

TORONTO, Feb. 10 (C.P.)—Scoring statistics of the International Hockey League reveal the propelling power behind the prenomenal pace set by Buffalo Bisons during the past month's campaigning. Appropriately named the "Dynamite Trio," Bison's regular front line of Lloyd Gross, Roter Roth and Lorne Carr, monopolize the first three positions in the struggle for points.

Including games plaed last night Gross, who performs on the left rail, has scored 32 goals and assisted in 13 others for a point-total of 35. Roth, the play-maker for the trio, trails Gross by one point, having 14 goals and 20 assists to his credit. Carr holds down third place, with 26 points, composed of 15 goals and 13 assists.

Duplicating this, but on a lower plane, are three Syracuse players. Scotty Martin, of the Maple Leaf farmhands, is in fourth position with 27 points, while his teammates, Davie Downie and Tony Savage are immediately to the rear with 25 and 24 points respectively. Savage's performance is particularly meritorious, for he plays on the defence.

RANGERS WIN FROM SAINTS BY 6-3 SCORE

Stiff Checking Tactics Enables Lowly Normalites to Hold Clubmen.

GIVE TIGHT EXHIBITION.

A handful of die-hard fans braved the elements last night to see four City League hockey teams tangle in a two-game program that bristled with clever playing and plenty of stiff body-checking at the Brock Street Arena. In the first tussle the Normal Students dished up their best hockey of the season to hold the fast-stepping Rotary team to a 2-all tie, while in the second game the Rangers, staging a last period scoring splurge, handed the garnet-sweatered boys from St. Peter's School the small end of a 6-3 verdict.

Rotary, playing without the services of their regular backstop, Ivan Pearson who is ill, ran into plenty of opposition when they took on the Normalites, who practically checked the former players off their feet with a style of play that made good combination almost impossible. The first period was scoreless, and play was about even, but the Rotary forwards strove mightily in an attempt to make their combination plays click, without much success.

Starts Scoring

Smith, playing on left wing for the Students, started the scoring in the second frame when he worked his way along the boards and lifted a long shot from the blue line that beat Driscoll between the gaspipes for the Rotary. This counter was quickly followed by another when the same player combined with Jobe to beat the opposing defence and bulge the hemp with a low shot from close-in that gave Driscoll little chance of saving. This finished the tallying in the second period and the gong found the Rotary forwards forcing the play in Normal territory.

Brilliant attacking was a feature of the third frame when the Rotary sextet, facing a two-to-nothing count, launched a series of three-man attacks on the Normal citadel that forced Widdess to save repeatedly. After weathering several mix-ups in front of their own net, the Normalites attempt to ease the pressure by shooting the puck down the ice, but Pagget, Emslie, and Tranter on the Rotary forward line, managed to keep the play inside the Normalites' blue line. Their persistence was finally rewarded when Pagget snared a pass out from behind the net, to make the score 2-1. A few minutes after, he repeated the performance, and the game ended a tie.

Stars for Students

Jobe, playing at centre for the Students, was the pick of the team, with Smith and Definney the next in order of merit. For the Rotary, Hunter and Maudsley and Pagget were the best.

The teams:—

Rotary.—Goal, Driscoll; defence, Mowry and Hickey; centre, Tranter; wings, Pagget and Emslie; alternates, LeBarr, Maudsley, Hunter and Post.

Normal School.—Goal, Widdess; defence, Definney and Reid; centre, Jobe; wings, Smith and Nind; alternates, Ewing, Doble and Kinlin.

Penalties — LeBarr, Definnie, Mowry, Smith.

Close-checking Spree

The first period of the Ranger-St. Pete's battle was a close-checking spree that made the shots on both goals few and far between, but as the game wore on the Rangers became better organized and worked in close on numerous attacks.

Ossie Wells, on left wing for the saints, chalked up the first tally of the struggle when he lifted a long shot from the blue line that sifted into the Rangers' net, past McCarroll, who went to his knees but failed to block the slow shot. This upset spurred the South-Enders into a series of sizzling thrusts that kept Fleming in the Saints' net on the jump, and just before the frame ended, Gibson, lanky defence-man and Robinson barged through the Students' defence and scored the tying goal, Robinson making the shot. Hallahan and Gainey as rearguard for St. Peter's turned in a splendid performance in disorganizing the thrusts of the Rangers.

Rampage in Third

At the start of the third period, the Rangers went on a scoring rampage, which was started by Watson, who tallied from a scramble. Courneya put the same team two up in less than two minutes after with a back-hand shot from outside the defence, while his teammate Gibson made it three in a row on a lone sally that carried him to the goal mouth. The St. Peter's forwards, Kennedy, Wells and Murdock, got two of these back in short order, after engineering well-timed attacks that carried them close-in. Murdock sunk the first one, and Wells came back strong on the next play to work in close and lift a high one into the corner of the Rangers' goal.

Hallahan's defensive work was a feature of the play at this stage of the game, but despite his efforts, it remained for the opposing side to score the next goals. Watson lifted a slow back-hand shot that beat Fleming, and this was followed up by a bullet-like drive from the stick of Bruce Payne that made the puck almost whistle in its trip into the Saints' net. Courneya at centre, Watson and Payne with Joe Bailey on defence were the outstanding players for the winners.

Ossie Wells and Murray Hallahan excelled for the Saints, the former securing two out of the three goals unassisted, while Hallahan, in breaking up many of the Rangers' attacks proved a boon to the team.

The line-ups:—

Rangers.—Goal, McCarroll; defence, Gibson and Bailey; centre, Courneya; wings, Watson and Payne; alternates, Robinson, Boyler and Hatton.

St. Peter's.—Goal, Fleming; defence, Gainey and Hallahan; centre, Kennedy; wings, Wells and Murdock; alternates, Peels, McCarthy, Devlin and Archambault.

Penalties.—Payne.

(By C. J. P.)

Was it cold! This isn't a question, it's an exclamation and refers to that little jaunt back to Fenelon Falls with the juniors last night. The Little Roar village can't be so awfully far north but it seemed just this side of Hudson Bay last night, and the temperature seemed to hover between thirty-five and forty degrees below zero. At any rate, we know that most of the mercury was in the little round ball at the bottom of the board. And the road from Lindsay north was drifted in spots and several times the players going up had to pile out and shove the cars several yards. Cold feet and tired bodies don't make for the best of hockey.

* * * * * * *

This was probably why the Petes failed to click as they have done in the past. They played a bangup game but their passing was a little off, and they were also somewhat rusty at covering up in their own area. But, then, we were informed that the Falls' team wasn't at its best either, so that makes them about even. What a game that should be at the Brock tonight! Two bitter rivals (from last year's playoffs) starting the final game from scratch, it being 4-all last night. They'll fight it out to the last ditch. The visitors at the Brock tonight will be a surprise to the home folks. They're big, husky, fast and tricky—and they still honestly believe we fluked that win over them last year!

* * * * * * *

Watch the first forward line of Pentland, Henderson and Deyman, numbered 4, 5 and 6 in that order. They're stars with Pentland at centre being a dandy. And watch those huge defence boys, not to mention the goalie. It'll be a real scrap and we sure hope the Petes come through. With fast ice, snappy hockey weather and a game like this here tonight, the old Brock should be packed.

* * * * * * *

The Petes certainly made it a fight last evening. From the goalie out, they sweated plenty and kicked in with hard hockey. Sandy was oke in the nets, the defence never eased up, and both forward lines worked themselves into exhaustion when they were on. We liked the work of Jay, McGregor, Calladine, Cadd and Burley in particular. Weir turned in his best effort to date defensively, and the others played just about as well as usual.

* * * * * * *

The followers of the flashy, rainbow-hued Cataracts are sure rabid, and we tought it would be a free-for-all at one time. Sanderson was out with his big goal-stick keeping a bunch of dumb clucks from stepping into a private quarrel and this undoubtedly helped to clear the tangle up. The game was well-handled all right, even the crowd being satisfied. They had quite a gang of Fenelon folk there and a big bus load from Lindsay, as well as a dozen or so loyal Peterborough fans. Quite a bunch are coming down for tonight's tussle but they wont pull any of that "northern village" stuff here.

* * * * * * *

We may be prejudiced, but we don't want to visit the town where the water falls suddenly over a cliff until we can kick up a cloud of fine dust on the road. This bucking young snowbanks and drowning out the car's motor with the knocking of knees isn't our idea of a pleasure ride. And then the score had to wind up with four markers to a side. Might just as well have let that game slide and play one here as it will have to be played tonight anyway. Still, the local boys learned a lot about the Falls, and it was vice-versa. Folks up there all remembered Calladine last night as he had a lot to do with licking them last year. Well, it wasn't a bad evening, taken all around, but was it cold!

* * * * * * *

It's down to Madoc this e'en for the local intermediates, to wind up the old first round series. Nursing a nine-goal lead, it should be just a matter of going through the motions and getting in a good workout. Herb Payne of the Carters, and probably Alex Kempt of Norwood too, will seek a game or series with Madoc after the E.P.L. title is settled. Campbellford and Belleville will play a two-game series to settle their intermediate O.H.A. group, first game being at Belleville Monday, the return one being Wednesday. More than likely, we'll tangle with the winner in the next round.

* * * * * * *

Too soft weather, or slushy ice has been the squawk here most of the winter so far, and hockey teams have been praying for a break. They've got it now, and some of the boys are coyly parked these nights alongside a fire instead of getting in their hockey. That seems to have been the trouble last night in the Southend League, only one game being run off. It was a 4-0 win for Park Hill over Pirates. Mark Street defaulted to Knox Juniors in a Church League fixture, while St. James' juveniles took a 6-2 decision over St. Paul's, All Saints' juniors won from St. Paul's, 2-1, and George Street probably won again from the luckless Murray Street juniors—though we didn't hear the final score of that setto.

* * * * * * *

Normal School of the City League deserves to crash the headlines with a startling upset last night at the Brock. They held the powerful Rotary team to a 2-2 draw and nearly licked 'em at that. Normal hasn't been doing much all season but they sure clicked last night. The absence of Pearson in the Clubmen's nets probably contributed, though we didn't see the contest. Rangers' Meat Market crew finished strong to win, 6-3, from St. Peter's. Both good games but not well-attended.

"Big Shot" Rinks Lose Eliminations

WINNIPEG, Feb. 10.—(C.P.)—It won't be one of the big-shot rinks that sets out from Manitoba this winter to defend the MacDonald Brier Trophy at Toronto—not a Howard Wood or a Gordon Hudson rink.

Wood and Hudson fell by the wayside last night in the Provincial elimination series and along with Wood, ace of Granite Club skippers, went long Jimmy Congalton who won Manitoba its fifth straight Canadian championship in 1932. Jimmy was Wood's vice-skip this year.

Dr. Roy Martin of Neepawa ousted Wood's all-stars 10-7, while Hudson, twice Canadian champion, dropped a 10-8 decision to an unheralded four skipped by Ned Pilgrim of the Fort Rouge club. Fifty rnks started in the MacDonald Brier elimination.

DON BRADMAN AUSSIE STAR IN 4TH MATCH

Ace of Antipodean Batsmen Not Out for 71 When Play Called for Day.

251 FOR THREE WICKETS.

BRISBANE, Australia, Feb. 10 (C.P. Cable).—Australia had scored 251 runs for the loss of three wickets at the close of play to-day in the fourth cricket test match against England. Don Bradman, ace of Antipodean batsmen, was not out for 71.

England won two out of the first three games to make this the crucial encounter for the Aussies.

Play in Intense Heat

The game was played in intense heat, despite which the fielding was brilliant. More than 20,000 persons applauded vigorously the splendid stand of the Aussie Batsmen, but at the same time showed high contempt for Harold Larwood when he resumed his famous "bodyline" bowling tactics.

Led by the superb stroking of the youthful Bradman, the Australian team appeared in good position to knock up a formidable first innings score.

W. M. Woodfull, the Aussie captain, and V. Y. Richardson were the opening pair and were met by the bowling of G. O. Allen and Harold Larwood. Richardson appeared nervous, facing the "bodyline" tactics of the latter and took no chances. At lunch the score stood at 56.

Century Reached

Hedley Verity joined the English attack, but the runs piled up until the century was reached. The "leg theory" appeared mastered. Richardson fell by the wayside with the score at 133, when hetried to chop a well-deceived break sent by Wally Hammond which he missed. L. E. G. Ames stumped him.

Richardson had knocked up 83 in a sparkling innings. He batted for two hours and 19 minutes.

Don Bradman strode out on the field to the din of 25,000 cheering voices, who looked for him to repeat his sensational play of 1931 in England, when he won the ashes almost single handed.

By way of a greeting the M.C.C. replaced Harold Larwood on the bowling. He began immediately with his leg theory but the latter survived with careful blocking of the good ones and clever stroking of the occasional ones that were off the wicket.

Hedley Verity joined Larwood and shortly afterwards Bradman drove a hard one to give Hammond a chance for a left-handed catch, but it was missed. The partnership of Woodfull and Bradman reached 50 in 76 minutes.

Bradman by now had shaken off the early awkwardness which featured his initial strokes and he was playing with characteristic ease. He knocked Hammond for fours twice in succession to send the toal to 200 after four hours' play.

Attempting to force a full toss to leg Woodfull lost his middle stump to T. B. Mitchell and the second Aussie wicket fell for 200 runs. Woodful scored 67 in a stolid inning which did much to wear down the fielding. He knocked seven fours.

Stanley McCabe joined Bradman and the two withstood the bowling of Allen and Larwood until McCabe cut a hard one from Allen into the alips, where D. R. Jardine, the English captain, made a miraculous catch with his left hand. McCabe scored 20 in 28 minutes. His wicket was the third to fall with the score standing at 233.

W. H. Ponsford and Bradman added 18 before play was closed for the day, Ponsford having scored eight runs and Bradman 71. The total score was 251 for three wickets.

William Voce Dropped

England was playing the same team which won the third test with the exception of William Voce, who was dropped. T. B. Mitchell, the Derbyshire professional, replaced him.

The Aussie team included three new hard-hitting younger players, L. S. Darling, Bromley and Love. W. A. Oldfield, veteran Aussie wicket-keeper, who was hit on the head by one of Harold Larwood's bodyline deliveries and suffered a slight fracture of the skull. J. Fingleton and C. V. Grimmett were the trio dropped.

The score card:—

VICTORY OVER SCHAAF TO RATE TITLE CHANCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (A.P.) — Primo Carnera will be summoned before a court of fistic justice tonight to show cause why he should be given a chance at Jack Sharkey's heavyweight championship in June.

The ponderous Italian has been promised a "shot" at the title if he can overcome Ernie Schaaf, Sharkey's personal "trial horse," in their 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden to-night.

JUNIOR TEAMS ON EVEN TERMS

Return Game of Peterborough-Fenelon Falls Series Played Here To-night.

GAME OF SEASON.

The high spot in Junior O.H.A. hockey in this part of the Province will be the return play-off game at the Brock to-night between Fenelon Falls and Peterborough. They fought to a 4-4 tie in the Falls last night, and will settle it here this evening. The winner on the round then meets the Port Hope-Bowmanville winner for group honors. Fast ice and ideal hockey weather, along with the outstanding game of the year, will probably fill the arena with local and district fans.

This bunch from the Cataract town is very much the same as last year's squad which beat the Petes right here and were then defeated by one goal in the return play-off fracas at the Falls. They have a star goalie in Smith, two huge classy defencemen in Littleton and Robertson, and an all-star first forward line in Pentland, Deyman, and Henderson. Jewell, Graham, Townley and Warren provide fast, tricky alternates. This team is unusually heavy for juniors and very fast, besides being adept at the forward passing game. A colorful bunch of pucksters.

Sanderson will again be in form to-night between the posts, with Cadd, Fenton, and Weir on defence. Weir turned in a great game in the Little Roar Village last night, dumpthe huskies right and left. Calladine Jay and McGregor seem to be clicking properly now, and are dangerous every minute they are on. Jay went fine last night, while Mac was a real offensive threat throughout. Calladine lived up to his rep in the Falls and proved bad news all evening. Burley showed his sudden bursts of speed on the lightning fast ice and should go just as well this evening, with Hul and Williamson again putting the old pep into the contest. Manager Buckland believes his team can win out this evening, but expects a close, fast battle.

The local Juniors have been drawing good crowds here all season, and their flashy, hard-working style of hockey has pleased the fans. Doubtless, they will draw a huge bunch of admirers again to-night, while a number of the Falls' and Lindsay rooters will be down. It promises to be the hockey tit-bit of the season locally.

Peden And La Page Lead Point Total

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 10.—(C.P.) —Sprints, jams and spills had failed to jolt the German and Bohemian teams from their positions as trail blazers in the six-day International bike race when the 30-hour mark was reached this morning.

The leaders had covered 54 miles and nine laps. Right at their heels, a bare lap behind, followed the Canadian team of Torchy Peden, Victoria, B.C., and Henri Lenpave, of Montreal; Lou Elder, Toronto and Hary Horan of Newark, N.J., and the Swiss combination. Peden and Le Page, however, were far in the lead in the point total with 136 compared to 98 for the Germans and 62 for the Bohemians.

Poll Parrott, Victoria and Lou Rush, Toronto, the other Canadian duet were in eighth place, three laps behind the front runners.

BURDEN TROPHY WON BY BARRIE

Easily Defeat Kingston and Unionville in Thursday's Games.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Outplaying Unionville in the Burden Trophy final by 23 shots, Barrie rinks yesterday completed the triumph for northern curlers by capturing the consolation event of the Ontario Tankard competition. Orillia won the Tankard the previous day. Barrie's only defeat in the competition was registered by Orillia rinks.

In yesterday's play Barrie eliminated Kingston in the morning semi-final round by 27 shots. Neither Kingston nor Unionville could hold the men from the Lake Simcoe town, and the decisive victory in the semi-final was reflected in the final as Barrie quickly piled up a lead and it was early apparent that it was just a question of how large the score would be.

The games were played at the Granite Curling Club. Rinks and scores follow:

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 10 (C.P. Cable).—Victoria scored 299 in the first innings of a Sheffield Shield series match to-day against South Australia. Oakley knocked up 103, Thomas 53, while Grimmett took six wickets for 109 and Lee four for 80.

The coveted Sheffield Shield was won on Monday by New South Wales.

"Fiery George" Will Remain On A.L. Staff

(By Paul Mickelsonn, A.P. Sports Writer.)

CHICAGO, Feb. 10 (A.P.)— George Moriarty, the original "man who wouldn't die on third base," has fooled the baseball world again.

Ever since Big George forgot his poetry and official dignity long enough to fight it out with Manager Lew Fonseca and three White Sox players at Cleveland last Memorial Day, the tip has been out that he would be among the missing from the American League umpire's staff. Instead, Richard Nallin and William Guthrie were released. Georges sticks on the job.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

If I were a leaf
I'd stay on my tree
Until a breeze came along
And blew me free.
-Shadow Sayings.

It was just like Knarf to start a race between an oak leaf and a maple leaf. It was just like the other shadows—Mij, Flor, Hanid and Yam—to watch the race. Shadows are funny things, aren't they?

Well, Knarf came upon the oak leaf lying upon the ground right under the oak tree. "Where did you come from?" the shadow boy asked it.

"I just left the branch of my tree," it answered.

"Why? Didn't you like it?" Yam wanted to know.

"I got tired of staying in one place so I broke lose," said the leaf. "I've been on that branch for months and months."

"Where are you going now?" inquired Knarf.

Knarf Arranges a Race

"I'm going with the wind. It said it would be right back." Just as it said this, along came the wind and the leaf went right along with it, blowing round and round the trunks of the other trees until it stopped at last right under a maple tree. Next to the leaf was a maple leaf that had just come from a branch of the maple tree and just like the oak leaf, had made up its mind to go along with the wind.

So Knarf, who had followed the oak leaf said: "Why don't you two leaves race with each other?"

"I don't have to race," the oak boasted. "I can go faster than any other leaf, especially a maple leaf."

"Oh, really," the maple leaf broke in. "What makes you so sure?"

"Yes, what makes you so sure?" Knarf aded.

The wind came along at this moment and both the oak leaf and the maple leaf started dashing along First they went right over the stone wall, with the shadows right behind them, cheering them on. The oak leaf got caught in a chink in the wall. This let the maple leaf get ahead of it. "Hooray!" Knarf shouted. Then the maple leaf fluttered into a fence and the oak leaf caught up with it again. Away they both went, across the meadow, over the tree stumps, back around the barn. Then they flew away up into the air, and went sailing over the roof tops, and around the chimneys. Down they came again, whirling round and round. It was hard to tell who was ahead; the oak leaf or the maple leaf. Faster and faster they went for the wind kept blowing harder and harder. "Whoever gets to the other side of the bridge wins!" Knarf cried. There they went, both leaves, right over the bridge. But—dear me—just as they were in the middle the wind got tired and went away, and the two leaves fluttered down into the brook and were carried far, far away. And that was the last that was ever seen of them. Who won the race? Who knows?

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, February 11

A day of rather intriguing and peculiar situations is forecast from the dominant place of the mysterious and baffling planet Neptune in the day's horoscope. It is difficult to presage the nature of the current activities, except that they partake of the subtle, the diplomatic, the secret and mysterious rather than the open and above board.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which the best plans may go through by means of diplomacy. A child born on this day may be disposed to be restless, emotional and aspirational in mystical or occult ways.

Answer to previous puzzle

In The Automotive World WEEK-BY-WEEK

Confidence displayed by the Canadian motor car industry in staging elaborate showings of the 1933 car models has been rewarded by more than ordinary public interest. At the National Motor Show of Canada, held in Toronto, attendance was away up; lists of "prospects" pleasantly longer. Relatively good, too, were actual car sales. First to report definite figures, General Motor Products of Canada, Limited, claimed an increase of 25 per cent in sales as compared with 1932 Show. Montreal Show (National Show of Eastern Canada) provided the same company with more prospects than were lined up at Toronto, and actual sales again were better than sales in 1932. Credit for the improvement is given to the new models, admittedly more attractive than the cars offered last year. Toronto and Montreal Shows are considered to be a foretaste of what the industry may expect during the year, and it is believed the current Shows at Halifax and Ottawa and those to follow in the chief cities in the Dominion, will confirm the view commonly held that the cars of 1933 are good enough and priced low enough to give the sales curve at least a modest upward shove.

EASY MARK TO SHOOT AT.

No heroic effort will be required of the Canadian industry to surpass the production achievement of 1932. First figures on the output for last year show a total of 60,816 cars, of which 13,183 were for export. In the previous twelve-month period, 69,926 cars were made for consumption in Canada alone. By the usual deductions, it might have been expected that about 95,000 cars would have been replaced in Canada during 1932, but the facts proved otherwise. Naturally, still more replacements are now necessary, and with the excellent cars being offered, it might not be too much to expect that the sales total of 1932 will be considerably exceeded in 1933.

THE GOOD OLD CARS.

The technocrats aren't saying anything astounding when they claim cars can be built to run many hundreds of thousands of miles. For proof take a look at some of the mileage meters of cars still on the roads. Good old cars like old soldiers, never die. M. A. Cook, of Cook's Garage, Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, comes to bat with a story and photographic evidence of one of the first Eight-cylinder Cadillacs ever built that shows 230,000 miles to date. It's a service truck now, and to quote Mr. Cook, runs "as quietly as lots of cars only two years old. It can outpull any 1½-ton truck and can't be beaten in snow or mud." And about repairs? The average for the past five years has been $6.80.

POSSIBILITIES OF STREAMLINING.

The public may think the present automobile bodies are highly streamlined, but not the engineer. The latter, to judge from discussions at the recent Society of Automotive Engineers convention in Detroit, believes there is still a long way to go. In fact, designers at this convention spoke of cars of 3500 pounds that would deliver, some time in the future, between 25 and 35 miles to the gallon of gasoline. The cars of 1933 are pointed in that direction, a fact which was emphasized in an address at the Montreal Motor Show by C. E. McTavish, general sales manager of General Motors products of Canada Limited. The graceful windstream styling of the General Motors lines, according to Mr. McTavish, are more of an appearance feature than an efficiency feature, yet they do actually increase top speeds and fuel economy to a certain degree.

CHIEF CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

If Judge Joseph Wearing of Middlesex is right, the motorist has it in his own power to prevent most accidents. The two main causes of accidents, says the Judge, are bad tires and liquor, in that order. His view of tires is that they should be inspected regularly, like brakes.

GRAND OLD BABY GRAND

"I have driven a Baby Grand Chevrolet for 13 years and it has been a good friend," says Fred W. Girven, Warsaw, Ontario, writing the factory at Oshawa for a small replacement part. He adds the crank shaft has never had a wrench on it yet, and he hopes to get another 60,000 miles out of the car.

DEVICE AS PROTECTION AGAINST FAST DRIVERS

A few days ago in the British House of Commons a debate took place on road accidents. Lord Halsbury suggested a remedy. He spoke of an invention by a British mechanic. It is a simple device. It will day or night show whether the speed limit is being exceeded. On the roof of the car, or van, or truck two lamps are securely placed. One lamp holds a green light, and the other a red. The lights are visible to everybody on the street, or road. Beside the driver on the inside are the same signals. The lights are attached to the speedometer in such a manner that while the speed is legal the light shows green, and when the speed is exceeded it shows red. Besides this the driver has a lamp which acts as a warning when the speed limit is being approached. The mechanism is so protected that the driver cannot tamper with the lights. This invention has great merit. Any infraction of the speed laws are instantly evident to everybody. All excuses by dlivers that they did not know they wele driving so fast are worthless. Speed is the cause of a major part of the accidents on our highways. Speed limit breaking in Britain now means the loss of the license to drive. This device is making for the safety of the British roads beyond the service of motor cops.

BOND FOR MAIL CLERK.

WINDSOR, Ont. — Gabriel Desmarais, 21, was to-day given two years' suspended sentence and placed under a $500 good behavior bond when he appeared in court on a charge of endangering the delivery of mail. Desmarais some days ago claimed he had been held up and robbed of a mailbag but later admitted his story was a hoax. His father is postmaster at Stoney Point.

You are "feeling punk" simply because your liver isn't pouring its daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels. Digestion and elimination are both hampered, and your entire system is being poisoned.

JUSTICE SEDGEWICK RESERVES JUDGMENT IN BIGELOW CASE

George A. Bigelow Sought to Have Set Aside Three Promissory Notes.

AGREEMENT MADE.

Judgment was reserved by Mr. Justice Sedgewick in an action in which George A. Bigelow, Cavan Township farmer, sought to have set aside an agreement, and also cancellation of three promissory notes for $2,000 each.

Hearing of the evidence and the arguments of counsel occupied the court until ten-thirty o'clock last night after having commenced before noon of that day.

Defendant to the suit was Mrs. Edna Bigelow, who counter-claimed the sum of $1,014.04, being the balance due on a note made by the plaintiff in favor of the defendant.

The case presented many unusual angles, some of which were not a little complicated, and centred largely around the activities of Frederick W. Adlam, of Sherbrooke street, this city, who as mediator between George and Herbert Bigelow and the latter's wife had effected a "settlement" of a family dispute upon terms which the judge remarked upon as being extraordinary and unusual.

Herbert C. Bigelow, at present under sentence at Ontario Reformatory at Guelph following conviction on a charge of criminal negligence in respect to an automobile fatality, appeared under escort to testify at the hearing.

R. R. Hall, K.C., was counsel for plaintiff, George A. Bigelow, and G. N. Gordon, K.C., acted for the defendant, Mrs. Edna Bigelow.

In evidence it was related that Mrs. Edna Bigelow had issued a writ against George Bigelow in the Supreme Court on behalf of herself and all other creditors of Herbert C. Bigelow, her husband, the plaintiff being the holder of mortgages and securities upon the property of his brother, Herbert C. Bigelow.

Subsequent to the service of the writ, George Bigelow, it appeared, was induced by his brother to enlist the services of Frederick Adlam, who agreed to act on behalf of the plaintiff for the purpose of negotiating with Mrs. Edna Bigelow, who was living apart from her husband.

Upon his instructions from George and Herbert Bigelow, Adlam was to see if he could not enter into negotiations with Mrs. Bigelow in an effort to have her withdraw her action against George Bigelow, and also to see if he could re-unite husband and wife.

Adlam made three trips to Omemee to see Mrs. Bigelow, as a result of which she agreed to accept three notes each for $2,000 without interest in consideration of which she would withdraw her action against George Bigelow. It was also understood that Mrs. Bigelow was to return to her husband, according to the evidence of the plaintiff and his brother, although Adlam in evidence treated the suggestion lightly, and stated that the main concern of George Bigelow was to have Mrs. Bigelow withdraw the writ she had issued.

Subsequently, according to arrangement, Mrs. Bigelow came into Peterborough and met her husband, Herbert C. Bigelow, also George Bigelow and Frederick Adlam at the law office of W. F. Johnston. Here the parties entered into an agreement, which was drawn up by Adlam, in the following manner:

"This is an agreement made between Edna Bigelow of the one part and George Bigelow of the other part, whereby Edna Bigelow agrees for a certain valuable consideration secured to her by three promissory notes of $2,000, each payable without interest one, two and three years after date hereof of the said George Bigelow, in her favor to withdraw a certain writ issued by the firm of Gordon & Elliot, on her behalf against the said George Bigelow, dated 18th November, 1931, and to immediately discontinue her said action against George Bigelow and to take no further or future proceedings legally or otherwise against the said George Bigelow. Witness our hands and seals this twenty-eighth day of November, 1931 — Mrs. Edna Bigelow, George Bigelow; witness, F. W. Adlam."

Serving Sentence

Herbert C. Bigelow testified that he was a farmer in Cavan Township. About a year ago he met with a motor accident on the Provincial Highway and as a result of a verdict given against him was serving a sentence at Guelph.

He was owner of considerable property in Cavan Township, 467 acres in extent. There were mortgages on the property.

Giving evidence regarding the signing of the agreement in Mr. Johnston's office, witness said Adlam had drawn up the agreement in pencil. Subsequently it was typed out and a copy of the agreement was given to each of the parties to the agreement.

Before he signed the agreement Bigelow related his wife, 'turned around and kissed me. She said she was sorry for the trouble, and she was coming back home."

The last time he had seen the promissory notes, he swore, they were in the hands of Adlam.

"Can you say if they were handed over to Mrs. Bigelow," Mr. Hall asked.

"Not in my presence" was the reply.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Gordon as to the date of one of the transactions, witness said he remembered the date well. It was the fourteenth of June the day he was on trial on a charge of criminal negligence.

"Adlam told me I didn't need a lawyer" said Bigelow" so my case was left over to the next day."

"You found you did need a lawyer though" Mr. Gordon queried.

"Yes. But I don't know they did much good."

George A. Bigelow, plaintiff to the action who is now in possession of the farm formerly occupied by his brother Herbert, placed the present value of the property at about $7,000. A few years ago he said it would probably be worth $9,000.

Witness had had a chattel mortgage on the farm in security for money he had advanced to his brother. The chattels were sold by the Sheriff on behalf of the trustees in bankruptcy.

Recounting the visit to Adlam's in company with his brother, Herbert, witness said, that Adlam had promised to go to Omemee and get Mrs. Bigelow. They were to pay Adlam whatever they considered his services worth.

Mrs. Bigelow was to have the three notes in consideration for which she was to return home to Herbert her husband.

Witness corroborated her brother's evidence regarding what had transpired in Mr. Johnstons law office.

George Bigelow said after the signing of the agreement in Johnstons law office, he went to Omemee some days later and went to see Mrs. Bigelow to ask her why she had not come back. She said she would see about it.

After the agreement had been signed in Mr. Johnston's office, George Bigelow stated, all four of the parties to the agreement walked down the street, and he and his brother Herbert went in to see J. A. O'Brien, while Mrs. Bigelow and Adlam had gone into Mr. Gordon's office.

While at Mr. O'Brien's office witness and his brother signed a consent to dismissal of the action, that had been launched against witness by Mrs. Bigelow.

At a later stage in cross-examination Mr. Gordon was asking witness questions relative to his occupancy of Herbert Bigelow's farm.

"I went up there and started to work it when my brother was in hospital. I have lived there since," said witness.

"Have you a place of your own?" His Lordship asked.

"No."

"Are you married?"

"No."

"He is a man to be cultivated and not fought," Mr. Justice Sedgewick observed.

William F. Johnston recalled Adlam having brought three persons to his office. "Adlam had produced an agreement and wished me to put it into legal form. I declined, knowing that Mr. Gordon and Mr. O'Brien were solicitors for the parties," Mr. Johnston testified.

He stated that Adlam then asked him to make typewritten copies of the agreement which he had drawn up. "I did not object to that, although I warned the parties I was not acting for them in the capacity of a solicitor. I copied Adlam's statement verbatim and did not add anything to it," he said.

Witness did not recall any of the conversation between the parties to the agreement.

Mr. Gordon (cross-examining)—Did you see Bigelow kiss his wife?

"No. I did not."

"You would remember such an unusual thing," Mr. Gordon suggested.

"It is not unusual for a husband to kiss his wife," remarked Mr. Justice Sedgwick.

The Defence

Mrs. Edna Bigelow, the defendant to the action, said she was married in 1912 and was forty-five years of age. She left her husband in March, 1931, and shortly afterwards took alimony proceedings. Encumberances were increasing on the farm, she said, due to the manner in which her husband had carried on.

"Tell me about the fire," said Mr. Gordon.

"I don't care what happened there," said Mr. Justice Sedgewick. "That was all gone into at the time of the alimony action before Mr. Justice Wright. If her husband was the biggest son of a sea cook living I do not see what it has to do with this action."

"At the time you left home," said Mr. Gordon, "what was the reason."

He would come home ugly with liquor and stay away for days at a time. He hurt my back and blackened my eyes and abused me," Mrs. Bigelow testified.

"I submit all this is irrelevant," Mr. Hall said.

"I think it is," His Lordship agreed.

The first time Mrs. Bigelow saw Adlam was on the 23rd of November. He asked could she spare a few minutes of her time. She said, Yes. He asked me if I would go back to my husband. I told him if he had come about that he could go back from where he had come. He said George wanted to take the writ out of court that I had issued against them. I told him George Bigelow was a wealthy man, and nothing but cash would suit me.

"He came back next day and said George was willing to give me three notes of $2,000 each. I said I did not want notes, I wanted cash. I later said I would take the notes with interest," said witness.

The next step she said was another visit from Adlam. He said George would not give interest on the notes. Finally I consented I would take the notes without interest. I refused, however, to take the $2,000 judgment. I had obtained against them at Cobourg, except in cash. Adlam wanted $300 as his fees.

"Did he charge $100 a visit?" asked His Lordship.

It was after the agreement was signed at Mr. Johnston's office that Mrs. Bigelow stated she received the money on the Cobourg judgment. She had paid Adlam his fee out of that money.

Speaking of the visit to Mr. Johnston's office, witness said Adlam told her to meet them at the office because neither George nor Herbert would go to their own lawyers. When she reached the office the notes were on the desk and the agreement was already typed. "Mr. Johnston read over the agreement and asked us to sign it," witness testified. She believed she had signed the agreement first, but she was not sure of that.

Questioned regarding the kissing incident, Mrs. Bigelow denied that she and her husband had kissed each other in the office. "When we got to the outside office Herbert got hold of me as though he wanted to kiss me," she said. "I told him, 'Oh, go on,' and he replied 'Get the writ out of court'."

Mrs. Bigelow said she took the notes home with her to Omemee and deposited them in a safety deposit box at the Bank of Toronto.

Frederick Adlam said he first met Herbert Bigelow in the early part of October, 1929. Bigelow had called at his house selling apples and other farm produce.

"How did you become connected with the transactions between George, Edna and Herbert Bigelow," asked Mr. Gordon examining witness

"Well, early in November Herbert told me about a law suit he and his brother were having at Cobourg. On November 29 he first mentioned this transaction which was to seek an injunction to stop the sale of a farm. Herb. said to me that his brother George had got to stop the proceedings and that he was going to bring him in next day to see if I couldn't help him out. On the following day he and George came to my home and George showed me a bill of sale and a writ. George wanted to know if I would go to Omemee to see Mrs. Bigelow and ask her if she wouldn't take some action to stop the writ" he related.

Continuing, he said, "I suggested he go and see his lawyer Mr. O'Brien. He replied he had spent about $11,000 last year with lawyers and he didn't want any more to do with them."

"That seems a lot" the Judge exclaimed.

"Well, they have had a lot of litigation and I suppose that amount includes judgments also" Mr. Gordon commented.

"After we had talked for a while," said Adlam, "I asked what was in it for me. I told him I would take $300 if I settled and nothing if I did not settle. George said he would give me something even if I did not settle."

"He wanted me to go to Omemee that day. I told him it would be better to leave it until the following Monday. On Monday, November 23, 1931 I went to Omemee and saw Mrs. Bigelow."

After having made himself acquainted to Mrs. Bigelow, Adlam told Mrs. Bigelow that George wished to make a cash adjustment with her if she would withdraw the writ she had issued against him.

"She told me to find out what he would be willing to pay. I asked if she would go back home to her husband and she said if you have nothing further than that you'd better get back where you came from."

Subsequently Adlam again saw Mrs. Bigelow after having conferred with George and Herbert Bigelow. He told her George could not pay her cash but would be willing to pay $6,000 in notes, as he already had a $2,000 judgment to pay in cash. Mrs. Bigelow decided she would accept the notes with interest at the rate of 5 per cent.

Witness went to Bethany and saw George again. He said he could not pay 5 per cent interest on the notes.

George's refusal to pay interest resulted in another trip to Omemee for Adlam and on that occasion Mrs. Bigelow decided she would take the notes without interest.

MAY USE POLICE TO ROUND UP WITNESSES

Blast Rocks Town Bodies of 68 Found Toll May Hit 200

Citizens Of Industrial City In Saar Valley Join Police, Doctors, Nurses In Desperate Efforts To Free Victims Trapped As Iron Plant Is Shattered.

BLAST FELT OVER UPPER RHINE VALLEY; MANY FEARED 'QUAKE—FIRE ADDS TERRORS.

NEUNKIRCHEN, Saar, February 11 (C.P.). — Blind to the dangers of tottering walls, rescue workers dug frantically to-day into the debris of a wide area in this industrial city, still finding bodies of persons slain and maimed in yesterday's huge gas tank explosion.

At dawn, authorities computed casualties as follows:
Dead—Known, 68; estimated, 100 to 200.
Seriously injured—Nearly 300.
Slightly injured—About 1,200.

Police, doctors, and nurses, joined by grief-stricken relatives, worked feverishly through the night, and fresh crews of relief workers took the places of those too weary to continue to-day.

The disaster was caused by a terrific explosion of a giant gas tank at the Neunkirchen Iron Works, one of the prides of the rich iron and coal region, now governed under a League of Nations trusteeship, and which will go to either Germany or France after a plebiscite two years hence.

Trapped in Trolley.

Many persons were trapped and killed in a crowded street car which was passing the big iron works at the moment of the blast. Then a fire broke out which spread destruction. This was brought under control early to-day.

The blast was felt throughout the entire upper Rhine Valley from Cologne to the Swiss border. In many Rhineland cities the people believed an earthquake had shaken the district.

JACKSON FAILS TO APPRECIATE HIS POSITION

Death Watch Was Transferred from Henry Walter Reid.

PRISONER INDIFFERENT.

Defence Plans to Appeal Case on Misdirection Plea.

Edward Jackson, now under sentence of death at the County Gaol for the murder of his colored companion, Eugene Lee, in Dummer Township last October, is reported to be facing his pending doom with the same cool indifference that has characterized his attitude ever since his arrest.

Lodged in the condemned cell and closely guarded by the "death watch," who transferred their grim vigil from Henry Walter Reid following official notification of his commutation of sentence to life imprisonment at Kingston Penitentiary, Jackson was seen by his counsel, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., a few hours after he had received the sentence.

"Jackson does not seem to be able to appreciate his position at all. He still wears his smile and exhibits the same coolness and indifference that he has shown all along," Mr. Gordon stated.

The case is to be appealed. Already Mr. Gordon has written to the Attorney-General requesting that he furnish a copy of the evidence taken at the trial, with a view of taking the case into the Appeal Courts, in an effort to have the crime reduced to one of manslaughter.

The appeal would be based, Mr. Gordon said, on the grounds of misdirection to the jury by the trial judge, and on the further ground that the effect of the judge's charge to the jury was to suggest that the prisoner had not testified in his own defence.

It is stated that Jackson has seen service in the United States Navy and that his discharge papers describe his conduct as having been "very good."

The condemned man is being visited by the Rev. G. K. Tyler, pastor of Park Street Baptist Church, and by Adjt. E. M. Falle of the Salvation Army. The latter states that Jackson was in utter ignorance of the Bible.

Rev. G. K. Tyler is visiting the condemned man as a result of a request that Jackson made. It is learned that at Christmastide a Sunday School Class from Park Street Baptist Church sent Jackson a basket of food. Jackson wrote acknowledging the gift and requested that the minister come and visit him.

CLOTHING DEPOT KEPT VERY BUSY

Shortage of Underwear for Children at Relief Bureau.

ARTICLES CALLED FOR.

From an appeal in The Examiner a few days ago a lady on McDonnel street gave to the Community Clothing Bureau five dollars to purchase underwear for children. This was turned over to Mr. Adams and used for the purpose desired. You can't imagine all the good a donation to the Relief Fund will do.

The Clothing Bureau on George street is a busy place; from twenty to thirty families are supplied as far as the stock will go with articles of clothing, bedding, furniture, etc. A busy staff of kindly women is looking after the wants of those who call.

If you have any discarded articles of any kind, telephone 3315 and your parcels will be called for.

Committee Inspects Fire Department

"We were completely satisfied with everything as we found it at the Fire Hall," stated Alderman J. A. McNabb, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, to-day in recounting the results of the committee's annual inspection of the fire department made last night.

"No one expressed any criticism with the department," said Alderman McNabb. "We found everything clean and neat at the hall and the apparatus showing all evidence of great care."

Two alarms were received at the hall during the time the aldermen were making their tour, and the firemen responded with great speed, he said.

ADMIT DECISION TEST SHIPMENT, NOT LAST WORD

British Customs Move Again Opens Whole Preferenc Question.

NO STATEMENTS.

Premier Bennett Taking Active Part—Last Word With Britain.

LONDON, Feb. 11 (C.P. Cable).—The United Kingdom Customs authorities to-day explained their ruling the Britannic test wheat shipment does not get British preference, is "not absolutely final."

The development again throws open the entire question of tremendous importance to Canadian wheat shipping and transportation interests, of whether Canadian wheat can be shipped to the United Kingdom by way of United States ports and still gain the British preference.

The British officials, closely questioned to-day, however, declined absolutely to make any statement. It was understood that while the interpretation of the Customs regulations in determining just what shipments are entitled to the preference is a matter for the British Government, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada has the question in hand at present.

The position is thought to be that the Customs authorities are abiding by their decision not to grant the preference on the Laconia and the Britannic test shipments only so long as special study of the matter can be completed, and also pending advice from the Canadian Government, although no officials here will confirm the belief the matter is up to Ottawa.

10 ON SCHOONER TAKEN TO PORT

Woman, Girl, 8 Men Tell of Harrowing 38-hour Fight in Winter Gale.

STARTED ON RESCUE TRIP.

WESTPORT, Conn., Feb. 11 (A.P.)—The story of how a mother, a young girl and eight men fought a 36-hour battle with hunger, terrific cold and terrifying gales in a crippled schooner on Long Island Sound was told to-day as the ten rested in safety.

Mrs. Alexander Hauser and her nine companions, who braved the sea's wrath in a search for her lost son, were rescued last night after an amphibian plane of a New York newspaper spotted their helpless craft at perilous mooring off Middle Ground lighthouse. Some of them were suffering severely from exposure and lack of food.

Mrs. Hauser, disregarding the suffering through which she had passed, smiled with happiness when she learned that her son, Edward Connolly, 19, had returned safely from the Sound after she set out to find him Wednesday night.

Evidences of the hardships through which the party passed were the frozen hands of Skipper John Mulhaley of the 80-foot fishing schooner Saugatuck. He was taken to a hospital, as was his daughter, Betty, 18, who was in a state of collapse.

BRANTFORD WILL DROP NIGHT SCHOOL CLASSES

BRANTFORD, Feb. 11.—(CP)—The announcement that Premier Henry would cut the grant for educational purposes was dealt with at the meeting of the board of education here. It was decided to suspend the night classes, which have been well attended here. This season's classes will proceed with postponement set for 1933-34.

Less than one per cent of the children in the elementary schools of London are poorly fed.

Husky Chicken

GUELPH, Ont., Feb. 11.—(C.P.)—Disappearance of a pullet seven weeks ago puzzled Robert Cunningham of Clifford, until a few days ago. He noticed the head of the bird sticking out of a hole in a manger-box in one of the stalls of the barn. The bird had crawled into the narrow space and had been unable to extricate itself, and had neither food nor water during the seven weeks. Now the pullet is as lively as ever.

THREE INMATES ARE BEATEN UP FOR TESTIMONY

Burwash Victims Are Removed to Sudbury "to Avoid Trouble."

AFTERMATH OF PROBE.

No General Plot Found—All Quiet Again at Northern Farm.

SUDBURY, Feb. 11.—Scant communication facilities last night veiled attempts to obtain further information from Burwash Industrial Farm, where three prisoners are known to have been "put on the spot" by other convicts as a result of testimony they gave before the inquiry into the death of a former prisoner, Frank Smith.

The three men, beaten by fellow-convicts, were removed to the district jail here following a disturbance at the farm, it was learned yesterday. Superintendent N. C. Oliver declared no general plot against the prisoners had been found, but said, "Under the circumstances, the simplest way to avoid trouble was to transfer the three men."

Communication Difficult

Due to the heavy storms of the past few days, the telephone line leading to the Industrial Farm was partly out of commission yesterday, and communication with the prison, where 531 convicts are quartered, was very difficult.

Following the transference of the three prisoners, all was quiet at the prison, it was reported here.

No Official Word

"No official report of a disturbance has been received from Burwash," Hon. George H. Challies, Provincial Secretary, said last evening.

A former inmate, one of those who gave evidence at the inquiry here, had not heard of the alleged trouble, he stated. "I am not surprised, though, that the 'bunch' who gave evidence in favor of the guards were being laid for," the ex-prisoner declared.

EXPLOSION VICTIM DIES.

SIMCOE, Ont. — Miss Dorothy Sipes, terribly burned when a kerosene stove exploded in her home at Delhi, died to-day in hospital here. Her baby brother was badly burned in the explosion, but is expected to recover.

Accurate "Life Count" Puts High Figure On Work, Sleep

By Central Press Canadian

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—An 80-year-old German who claims to have painstakingly registered during all his life how he spent his days has published his "life account". Instead of hunger and love, his account shows sleep and work rule the life of modern men.

The account shows that the author laughed for but two days of his life, while he spent seven days hunting for lost collar buttons.

"My life lasted for 80 years now," the document says. "These are 29,220 days or 701,280 hours or 42,076,800 minutes or 2,254,608,000 seconds. Of these I have—

POLICE AIDED BY NEWSPAPER IN FINDING MAN

Montreal Police Read About Hendrichon in a Peterborough Newspaper.

HOLD UP IN 1931.

Hendrichon is Taken Back to Montreal to Stand Trial.

MONTREAL, Feb. 11.— (Special to The Examiner.)—Reading the newspapers aided the Verdun police to locate Harry Henrichon, aged 20 years years, who is wanted by them for an attempted hold-up which occurred almost two years ago.

Thursday morning, Lieut. Dupont, of the Verdun police, received a telegram from Peterborough, that the man Harold Kenyon, alias Harry Henrichon, just acquitted on a charge of manslaughter ehen, was being held for Verdun.

Lieut. Dupont had read in the newspapers some time ago that a man whose alias was given as Henrichon was standing trial in Peterborough for manslaughter in connection with the death of Fred Fletcher, a C.P.R. section man in a brawl on New Year's eve. The officer remembered the name in connection with a hold-up in April, 1931 at the corner of Church avenue and LaSalle boulevard where an attempt to hold up the clerk at a U.A.S. station had been made.

Was Man Wanted.

The officer looked up his records and sent a photograph and fingerprints to Peterborough asking for information. The answer came back soon that the prisoner was the man wanted in Verdun. The Verdun police asked that if the prisoner were acquitted on the serious charge in Peterborough, he be detained for them.

The Verdun police were notified that Henrichon was being held for them, and Sergeant Detective L. Lyott was sent to Peterborough to bring the prisoner back.

In connection with the attempted hold-up the Verdun police had discovered that an automobile had been stolen in Notre Dame de Grace and driven to Verdun where the attempt was made. The effort proved fruitless because the clerk of the gasoline station defended himself and his owner's money valiantly and the assailant was forced to flee.

Later the Verdun detectives obtained information which caused them to obtain a warant for the arrest of Henrichon but the wanted man was not located in this district. Henrichon left Peterborough on Friday for Montreal.

GALE SUBSIDES AT SANDY POINT

Fisherfolk Find Lower Stories of House Mass of Ice—No Lives Lost.

HEAVY DAMAGE DONE.

SANDY POINT, Nfld., Feb. 11.—(C.P.)—The little peninsular settlement of Sandy Point was a scene of desolation to-day. Tremendous tides accentuated by a three-day gale had subsided, but they left in their wake damaged boats, melted salt and houses caked with ice inside and out.

No lives were lost in the tidal flood that followed the breaking of a breakwater by the sea on Thursday When the waters of Bay St. George rose to their doorsteps and then poured into the lower storeys of their houses, the 450 residents took to their upper floors.

But much salt, stored for the curing of fish, was destroyed, and boats hauled up for the winter were damaged. All day yesterday, while communication was cut off with the mainland through the washng out of telegraph lines, settlers rowed about in dories. Boats were able to reach the Loyal Orange Hall, situated at the highest elevation on the Point. It was still impossible to make any accurate estimate of the loss.

Storehouses Destroyed

At St. George's, a mile and a quarter across Flat Bay from Sandy Point, the damage was said to reach $20,000. Fishermen's storehouses were destroyed and small boats wrecked all along the Bay St. George Coast. A railway washout at Stephenville was being repaired, but the eastbound express was still held. Other points along the coast reported trying conditions.

A house at Cape Lahune was flooded; the breakwater at Hermitage was carried away; at Harbor Grace the airplane shed, which has housed several trans-Atlantic aircraft, was demolished. In all places hardship was aggravated by intense frost which followed the high tide.

JAPS PREPARE LEAGUE ANSWER

Take Opportunity to Publicize Country's Position in Manchurian Case.

WILL MAINTAIN POSITION.

TOKYO, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Japan is preparing a reply to the League of Nations' inquiry, on discontinuance of the present Manchukuo regime, which will be a proclamation to the world in vigorous, unmistakable terms, of Japan's determination to maintain the independence of Manchukuo regardless of cost.

Government sources also disclosed today that Japan also will proclaim in advance its refusal, under any circumstances, to be restrained of deflected from this policy by the League's recommendations. (When conciliation of disputes fails, the League covenant provides the League make its own report and recommendations for action.)

Although the League committee of 19 requested a simple "yes" or "no" answer to its one question' of whether Japan would agree to discontinuance of the present Japanese-sponsored Manchukuo government in Manchuria, Japan is seizing upon the occasion to publicize her Manchurian position.

A tentative draft of Japan's reply, framed by its representative, Yosuke Matsuoka, who is in Geneva, was received at the Foreign Office today. It covers 17 pages.

Western Cold Wave Moves East Rapidly

TORONTO, Feb. 11.— (C.P.) — Western Canada's latest cold wave shot rapidly eastward to-day, and zero temperatures were again expected to prevail east of the Great Lakes and over Central Ontario during the week-end.

The weatherman could predict only "fair and colder" weather for the section east of the head of the lakes, while he admitted it was "decidedly cold" west of that point.

Edmonton reported 22 below zero to-day, while at Winnipeg the mercury had parked at 28 below this morning. It was 12 below at Calgary and 25 below at Saskatoon.

Practically all Ontario was warmed to-day and no zero temperatures were recorded as yet. It was exactly zero at Fredericton and six above at Halifax.

Although it is a bird, the New Zealand kiwi cannot fly. Its feathers are incomplete and have the appearance of coarse hair.

Commissioner Issues Threat At Relief Probe

Sturgeon Falls Inquiry Is Delayed Hour While Constable Seeks Citizen—Was To Give Details On Properties Occupied By Relief Tenants.

APARTMENT OWNER COMPLAINS TO COURT TOWN REFUSED TO GIVE HIM INFORMATION.

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., February 11 (C.P.). — A threat to send a constable for every witness who has been subpoenaed and who is not in court when called was made by Judge J. M. Hall, Royal Commissioner, when the investigation in relief disbursements opened to-day.

The inquiry was delayed almost an hour when S. P. Connell, who had been ordered last night to appear to-day with all papers and books respecting his properties occupied by relief tenants, failed to appear. A constable was sent for him. Connell refused to attend yesterday until brought by a constable.

"We have wasted a lot of time waiting for witnesses and I don't propose to waste any more," Judge Hall said.

Theodore Fouriezes, owner of an apartment, told the court he was unable to find out from the town how much money had been applied to his taxes for a tenant named Mousseau.

"I asked several times, and they wouldn't tell me," he said.

"They treat us the same way," Judge Hall consoled him.

P. J. MULQUEEN SUGGESTS NEW SPORTS GROUP

Allow for Mixing of Amateurs and Professionals Under Own Rules.

BRING MORE HARMONY.

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (C.P.).—Radical suggestion that the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, which wish to allow mixing of amateurs and professionals to form a body of their own and govern their own sports was made to-day by P. J. Mulqueen, a pillar of Canadian amateurism.

Mulqeen, who has been chairman of the Canadian Olympic Committee for many years, and always identified with the faction in Canadian amateur sport, bitterly opposed to mingling of pros. and amateurs, made the proposal in a communication to the Toronto Star.

"We have certain ideals and ideas of what can be and shall be done in amateur sport—they have others" he writes. "So why not have independent bodies to handle sport as each body desires it shall be handled?"

Desire Mixing.

Mulqueen points out there is a growing desire for regulations permitting professionals in one branch of sport to compete as amateurs in another and for professionals and amateurs to mix in various ways. At the recent A.A.U. of C. meeting in Ottawa, he continues, proponents of the change showed so much strength the association "will have to deal with the situation and settle it before this year is out."

Stressing the idea is a personal one, Mulqueen suggests the Amateur Association meet representatives of sport bodies advocating the change and invite them to take charge of their territories where their ideas are paramount and help form an independent body where pros. and amateurs may mix under their own regulations.

The Olympic chairman urges that the A.A.U. of C. enter the negotiations in a spirit of helpfulness. "If they and their territorial districts want to mix amateurs and pros. under certain regulations which we cannot countenance because of our international and Olympic affiliations, why let them do so and let us help them. It seems to me to be the best idea to produce peace and harmony."

Roth Carrying $800 At Time Of Death

HAMILTON, Feb. 11.—(CP)—Motives for the murder of Harold Roth, Hamilton jewelry salesman whose body was found in Gibson Lake near St. Catharines yesterday were revealed here today when it was learned that Roth had in his possession nearly $800 in jewelry and cash when he disappeared.

Previously it had been understood that Roth's possessions at the time did not amount to more than a few dollars in value, but this was contradicted today.

Definite identification of the body found in Gibson Lake as that of Harold Roth, missing Hamilton jewelry salesman, was made when a sack which had covered the head was removed this afternoon.

A post-mortem, now in progress, has revealed the man was not struck on the head as was first suspected.

Marriage is universal in China; bachelors and old maids are unknown.

Mediocre Blackpool Team Holds Arsenal to 1-1 Tie in First Division Battle.

LITTLE STANDING CHANGE.

Glasgow Rangers Regain First Group Leadership in Scottish Group.

LONDON, Feb. 11. (C.P. Cable) Arsenal, English league first division leaders were held to a 1-1 tie by the mediocre Blackpool team to-day but the point the Gunners picked up still on top with a three-point advantage over Aston Villa and Sheffield Wednesday.

The Villans tied Sheffield for second place by defeating Chelsea 1-0 while West Bromwick Albion were trouncing the Wednesday 2-0.

Playing at Highbury, their home grounds the Gunners met unexpectedly stout opposition by Blackpool. The latter have won only 10 games and draw three this season while arsenal have piled up 19 matches in the win column and drawn five.

Other Leaders Lose

Three other leading teams besides the Wednesday went down to defeat before teams they were expected to beat. Leeds United lost to Birmingham by the odd goal in three, Manchester City took Derby County 2-1 and Huddersfield Town smothered Newcastle United under a 4-0 count.

Apart from Aston Villa's tieing the Wednesday for second place the results made little change in the standing among the leaders. West Bromwich's win gave them 33 points and tied them with Leeds United and Derby County who follow Newcastle United, in fourth place with 35 points. Arsenal have 42 and the Wednesday and Aston Villa 40.

REGAIN GROUP LEAD

GLASGOW, Feb. 11 (C.P. Cable) Glasgow Rangers regained Scottish League first division leadership to-day with a clean-cut 3-1 decision over their arch-rivals Motherwell on the latter's home grounds.

BEST ICE OF SEASON AT BROCK ST. RINK

A Good Crowd Expected To-night of Regular and Old-Time Skaters to be Out.

The ice for indoor skating has been so uncertain this season as to make those who care for skating hesitate on giving up an evening to skate with conditions so unfavorable. It can be said for the ice at Brock Street Rink to-night that it could not be better, and a fine crowd of good skaters is expected. The band will put on a fine program.

FIND SALESMAN SOUGHT MONTHS SLAIN IN LAKE

Harry Roth's Body, Head Trussed in Sack, is Frozen in Ice.

ANKLES, WRISTS BOUND.

Lad Skating Makes Discovery at Isolated Spot in Grantham Township.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 11.—His head completely covered with a canvas sack and stout ropes bound around his ankles and wrists, the body of Harry Roth, missing Hamilton jewelry salesman, was found frozen in the ice of Lake Gibson, Grantham Township, yesterday afternoon.

The head had bee ncrushed as by a severe blow. The body was so caked with ice that it was impossible to remove the bag covering his head in order to complete identification, but there was no doubt in the minds of authorities that it was Roth.

At a late hour last night a virually definite identification was made when Morris Minden of St. Catharines, formerly of Hamilton, where he knew Roth intimately, identified a gold finger-ring on the body as the property of Roth.

With the discovery of the body, the Provincial policy renewed efforts to solve the mystery of Roth's disappearance, and Inspector A. B. Boyd of the Criminal Investigation Department has arrived to take charge of the investigation.

Found By Boy.

The discovery was made by Jack Bohlman, 12, who, with companions, was skating on the lake. He saw a hand and part of Roth's body protruding through the ice and notified the authorities.

Provincial Constables MacKay and Wood dug the body from the ice with axes. The ropes about the ankles had apparently broken loose from a weight.

Dr. D. V. Currey, the coroner, immediately ordered a post-mortem, to be followed by an inquest at a date to be set. A post-mortem will be impossible until the body has been thawed out, which will not be until late to-day at least.

Last night, Mrs. Rose Roth, wife of the missing man, and her brother, Mark Gertler of Hamilton, came to St. Catharines. Gertler saw the body but refused to state definitely that it was his brother-in-law. He admitted, however, that he believed the suit to be one which he himself sold to Roth. The initial "R" on his cufflinks and a pair of jeweler's pliers in a pocket, as well as the height and weight of the body, leave little doubt regarding the identity. Gertler will view the body again today when the sack can be removed. Although the preliminary inspection was limited by the frozen condition of the body, it was apparent that the skull had been crushed by a terrific blow.

Vanished Nov. 8

Roth had been missing since the evening of Nov. 8. He was last seen in Merritton, where he called on several customers on his way to St. Catharines, where he was to pick up his brother-in-law, Gertler, and continue to his home in Hamilton. He was seen sitting in his parked car half an hour after the time set to meet Gertler. The car was found two days later near St. Catharines. Although the car was perfectly clean when it was seen in Merritton, it was splashed with mud when it was discovered, indicating that it had been driven over a deserted road leading from Merritton to the Merrittville highway.

The place where the body was found is a mile off the highway and is a desolate spot.

Isolated on the low island of Sandy Point, Newfoundland, some 700 inhabitants are cut off from the rest of the world by terrific storms which have wiped out the dykes, only connection with the mainland. Heavy seas prevented rescuers from reaching the island. The people are living on the roofs of their houses, so high has the tide risen. Mixed Signals

NEW BALTIMORE, Mich., Feb. 11 (A.P.)—This village's siren alarm code—a staccato toot to summon the night watchman and a long blast to call out the volunteer fire company—worked without a flaw until along came the coldest night in years.

Then an excited citizen, wishing to notify the watchman that someone was taking pot shots at a dog, mixed his signals and gave a prolonged blast. Out into the cold poured the firemen, but there was no fire.

Watchman August Rose didn't hear the siren. It was he who was shooting at the dog.

GIRL TRIES HAND ON WINE FARM

Wife of Canadian in France Shoulders Bucket of Grapes For 12 Days.

WINS WAGER.

ST. TROPEZ, France, Feb. 11.—(A.P.)—How Lenore Frederickson, a native Canadian and a young wife of an American magazine editor, disguised herself as a peasant and worked 12 days on a wine farm at Ranatulle, near here, is being told in seaside cafes.

Mrs. Frederickson wagered that she could shoulder grape buckets throughout the harvest alongside peasant girls trained to work in the fields.

She dressed and went to work. She won, although she was forced to labor in a bathing suit in mud during three days of storms that flooded the lowlands.

Her experience, she told friends, gave her "a great deal of amusement."

Grape vines in this region are clipped with scissors, and the bunches placed in two pails suspended from the picker's shoulders. Harvesters fill these buckets and then carry them to ox carts, in which they are hauled to the presses.

Workers go among the rows of vines at 6 a.m. and leave at 7 p.m. They eat lunch in the fields.

The Canadian woman, after the vineyard had been cleared, assisted on the presses.

Her husband, Lytle Frederickson, is editor of "The Bulletin," a magazine published by the American Women's Club of Paris.

Handicraft Course Plans Are Discussed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Feb. 11.—The monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. P. Sopha, with an attendance of thirty. Discussions regarding the forthcoming Handicraft class and relief work occupied several minutes of the business session. It was decided to have a play in the course of the spring as a means of raising extra funds for the Institute. Current Events were very ably taken by Miss Hilda Thompson. Mrs. Frank Grant gave a paper on Historical Research which dealt with the life of the village of Marmora, 80 years ago.

The program committee, comprising Mesdames F. Sweet, J. Rice, B. C. Hubbell, J. Nobes and P. Sopha arranged an excellent program. Community singing was followed by a pianoforte solo by Miss Nettie Thompson. Mrs. E. C. Prentice gave a humorous reading on Economics. Mrs. H. R. Haarke and Mrs. W. Herr, Jr., gave a vocal duet after which the latter with Miss Florence Sopha played a pianoforte duet. Miss Sopha and Mrs. C. Nichol followed with a vocal duet. The concluding item was a musical contest, which was won by Mrs. F. R. Wells.

Mrs. George Kerr invited the Institute to meet at her home for the March meeting.

STITT CLAIMS VESSEL SUNK DELIBERATELY

Master of Bright Fan Hunted For Iceberg Manitoba M.P. Claims.

CAPTAIN DRUNK.

Defender of Hudson Bay Route Seeks to Wipe Out "Black Eye."

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Characterizing Captain Oliver of the sunken steamer Bright Fan as the worst reprobate who ever came into his constituency, and alleging the master of that vessel to have been "drunk when he came in there, drunk all the time he was there, and drunk when he left," Bernard Monroe Stitt, Conservative member from Nelson, Man., made clear before the Commons yesterday his opinion that the ship was deliberately sunk in Hudson Straits.

"Looking for Iceberg"

According to the recital of this doughty defender of the Hudson Bay ship route, the Bright Fan had "run around two days and half the night looking for an iceberg," and finally, he inferred, the search being successful, she sank under the cold Arctic waters, with only the rescue of the crew and the insurance aftermath to be settled. Mr. Stitt was willing to reiterate his conviction at any given moment of the lengthy discussion, which broke out during consideration of railway estimates, and added that he could bring a pile of affidavits to back up his opinions concerning that famous cruise.

Mr. Stitt's main concern, of course, is impressing upon the House his conviction that the Bright Fan was destroyed through other than Hudson Bay route natural hazard, was to paint out the black eye the Northern wheat route is supposed to have attained through the loss of the vessel. And repeatedly throughout the debate Hon. Robert Manion, Minister of Railways, and Liberal members opposite assured Mr. Stitt that the Commission investigation had removed any stigma which might have attached.

"If members will read the evidence," declared Mr. Stitt, at one juncture in the discussion, "they will find that previous to hitting the iceberg the Bright Fan sailed only sixteen miles in six and one-half hours, although she was a seven-knot boat."

Duff is Defender

In William Duff (Liberal, Antigonish-Guysboro') Captain Oliver and his Bright Fan crew found a strong defender. Speaking from his experience of years of seamanship, Dr. Duff thought neither Mr. Stitt nor any other member should rise in the House and accuse a man of barratry.

Maroons And D.A.C. In Group Play-Offs

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Play-offs in the O.H.A. group finals for this district have been set for Monday and Wednesday, February 13 and 15. Clashing for top position the Belleville D.A.C. and the Campbellford Maroons will meet on the Belleville ice on Monday evening, the return game being played in Campbellford on Wednesday. Already these two intermediate teams have featured fast and hard hockey in their schedule games, and these two play-offs, in which goals will count, will be no exception to the rule. With only one point difference between them, both outfits will battle hard for group honors, and the games should give the fans of both communities a real hockey thrill.

NO COALITION FOR ONTARIO SAYS HEPBURN

Slaght, Nixon and Hepburn Are Heard on Same Platform.

EFFORT TO "HANG ON."

Back Concessions Claim His Support Liberal Leader Says.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 11.—More than 1,000 persons of Elgin County and district gathered here last night to hear their native son, Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal Leader, for the first time in several months. They heard also Harry Nixon, Ontario Progressive Leader, and Arthur G. Slaught, K. C., of Toronto. The three speakers attacked the Ontario Government with vigor.

Introduces Mr. Slaght

It was probably the first time most of those in the audience had heard Mr. Hepburn in the role of an introductory speaker. By his own request he introduced Mr. Slaght, speaking himself for only fifteen minutes, just long enough for him to set at rest rumors he might be considering a move for a coalition Government in Ontario.

"There wil be no coalition so far as I am concerned," he said. "There is a distinct line of demarcation, and I am sticking with the people in the back concessions. They can vilify me all they like they can call me all the evil names extant, so long as they don't call me a reactionary Tory. I draw the line at that."

Mr. Slaght attacked the Conservative Government for what he termed failure to fulfil its election promises. His speech was the first on the program arranged by the Young Liberal Clubs of Yarmouth and Southwold Townships.

Mr. Nixon Speaks

Harry Nixon, Leader of the Provincial Progressives, was introduced to the audience by T. B. McQuesten of Hamilton, President of the Ontario Liberal Association. He launched into a vigorous attack on the Henry Administration.

Efforts of Mr. Hepburn and himself to fight "reactionary Toryism" in the Province had brought real co-operation between their parties, he said. "This good work of co-operation with Mitchell Hepburn against the Tory power" he proceeded, "is not of so recent origin as some would believe. We have been appearing together for some time past and with no little success." He was referring to recent Ontario by-elections.

Slaght's Effort Praised

Their greatest effort of co-operation, he said, was in appointment of Mr. Slaght to appear on behalf of their parties before the Royal Commission inquiring into some phases of administration by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

"Mr. Slaght" he declared, "did most splendid work in his capacity as counsel representing up."

Mr. Nixon criticizedd efforts of the Provincial Government to secure redistribution of Legislature seats. He did not think a public man was carrying out his trust if he lent himself to a redistribution move that would benefit one party and harm other parties, he said.

He assured his audience that, as far as he can control the situation, there will be no three-cornered fights in the next Provincial election. It was quite obvious, he added, that such fights were of greater advantage to the Conservative Party than to either Liberals or Progressives.

Effort to "Hang On"

In the coming session of the Legislature, he continued, he would vogorously oppose any move on the part of the Government to prolong its term of office to five years. Such an extension of the Administration's life, he declared, would be against the desire of the people and contrary to the mandate of the electors.

"I will most certainly offer an amendment to this five-year term" he said. The Government's effort to "hang on" to office, he added, was "almost pitiful."

Mr. Nixon praised Mr. Hepburn, declaring the only criticism against him come from those who feared him. He predicted victory for the Liberal Leader in the next election:

"And when he is Premier, I think I can promise you that he will not be President of any great milk distributing corporation or have a Cabinet of men who are officers in great multi-million corporations. It is hard for a man to serve the public and Mammon at the same time.

"A man usually leans in the direction that is nearest his heart. I think I can assure you that when Mitchel Hepburn becomes Premier of Ontario he will not head a Government legislating for the moneyed classes."

CORBETT'S CONDITION CRITICAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Jim Corbett remained in a critical condition at his home in Bayside last night.

John Kelleher of Boston, a friend of Corbett's for many years, said the former heavyweight boxing champion had passed a comparatively comfortable day, but that his condition showed no appreciable change, either for better or worse.

Corbett is suffering from a heart affliction.

SUDBURY, Ont., Feb. 11 (C.P.) —Emulating the exploits of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Constable James McBain of the Ontario Police with headquarters at Bruce Mines, patrols his beat by dog team.

Buster, Jack, Punch and Bon are ready with the crack of the whip to take the officer on whatever trail he may choose. On some trips they have gone 75 miles. Bon is the leader, and all four were broken in by the constable himself. With a load of 500 pounds, they mush along at seven or eight miles an hour.

This Winter the constable was called to clear up a series of thefts from Summer cottages at St. Joe's Island off the north shore of Georgian Bay, and he made his rounds with the team.

Neither War Debts Nor Reparations The Peril of The Nations

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

Half truths are always packed with dynamite. Half truhts are the explosive peril of this hour in America and in Europe. On November, 25, 1932, Secretary Stimson released notes to several nations making clear the American mind relative to war debts and reparations. He pointed out that war debts owed to the United States are distinct and separate from reparations. The legality of his position is unassailable. The political and psychological mind of the European holds this view untenable.

The Teaty of Versailles was created by dictators. These statesmen thought to put Germany out of business for centuries. They were confirmed in the opinion that Europe could get along without Germany. These statesmen now see plainly as goes Germany so goes all Europe. The conclusion has been reached by Britain and France that Germany must be released from further reparations to save themselves from worse disasters than the present. At Lausanne representatives from France and Britain conditioned the release of Germany from further reparation payments upon reductions by the United States of war debts owed her by these two nations. As these lines are written it is evident that serious explosive results would follow any attempt by France to collect any more reparations. It is as evident that the French people would be infuriated if the United States insisted upon the payment of war debts after the cancellation of reparations. National emotion now stands out as real a factor in international affairs as written agreements. For France to insist upon payments of reparations by Germany would lead to certain civil war in that country. The world situation could not be more serious than it is. Whatever the United States decides will determine the future recovery or the deeper depression of the whole world. Up to the present the policy of Stimson and the American people has been that further reduction in war debts would result in the inevitable transfer of a tax burden from the taxpayers of some other country to the taxpayers of the United States.

Leading economists are of the opinion that the removal of the entire reparation-war debt question from the international arena would produce economic benefits which would more than offset this extra tax load to people of the United States. One economist has said that if by a political miracle the slate could be wiped clean of all war debts, there is abundant reason to believe that the economies, political, and psychological effects therefrom would quickly revive international trade to such a degree that the American people would actually be better off in dollars and cents. Before the American government will consent to further reduction of cancellation of war debts it will be necessary for both Britain and France to drastically cut armament expenditures. Both of these nations are investing increased sums of money on armaments, vastly more than the war debt payments to Uncle Sam. As soon as these nations cut down these war expenditures Uncle Sam will be glad to talk cancellation of war debts. The American people will not permit this matter to be obscured.

The heaviest payments are due from Great Britain. The British people have become the victims of flagrant injustice. Events over which she had no control have brought this to pass. Her problem has been made enormously difficult by the fall in the price level, currency depreciation, and in the volume of world trade. A British economist has called attention to the fact that the change in the price level since the war debts were contracted compels the debtor to send forty per cent more commodities in repayment, while the depreciation of sterling makes it necessary for Great Britain to expend fortyfive per cent more pounds in purchasing the dollars required for debt payments. Morgover, the Unitel States is now borrowing on long-term bonds for three per cent, a lower rate than Great Britain is paying on her war debts. The British argue that if three per cent is a fair rate, Great Britain has received no reduction whatever, but is being overcharged. It is apparent when the price level, the state of sterling, and the rate of interest are considered Great Britain is not receiving justice.

These different viewpoints make imperative a new way for the conduct of domestic, and national, and international business. Business has been too much, just business. The time has come for more of the human element in all business relations. Every nation believes firmly in the validity of its own position. The time has come for every nation to see in a humane manner the best way to help every other nation to become its highest and righteous self. If the American Congress fails to see its opportunity to help the restoration of better times, repudiation or default, may result in calamities of which the world dreams not.

Cathedral Musings

TO go into prayer with the idea or belief that God does not know what we need or even what we want, or what is best for us, and that we must advise Him, argue with Him, stress our viewpoint and convince Him, or at least urge Him, to adopt our ideas and decisions and grant what we plead for, is to make the most serious mistake in the processes of praying.

The process of prayer is a transcendent method of communion with God. It is the most intimate, personal contact that human beings can make with their Father, the Creator of all beings. . . . It is not an occasion for personal petitioning, but for spiritual communion. Ever uppermost should be the thought, "Thy will, not mine, be done."—Introduction to "Mystics at Prayer," H. Spencer Lewis, imperator, Rosicrucian Order.

DIPLOMAS AWAR DED TO PUPILS AT CAMPBELL FORD EXERCISES

A. L. Riendeau Presented to Russell Rowe for Middle School Work.

PROGRAM WELL RECEIVED

William McComb is First Winner of J. A. Loucks Memorial Medal.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11.—The second evening of the Campbellford High School commencement exercises again proved an outstanding success with the school auditorium packed to capacity, extra seating accommodation having to be found. Doing their work with even greater proficiency the program of choruses, drills, dances and the play "Miss Molly" were all received with great enthusiasm and merited the approval of a very appreciative audience.

The feature of the evening was the presentation of diplomas, cups and awards, in which the speakers all stressed the magnificent work being carried on by the High School staff and the high standing of the pupils and graduates.

The presentation of graduation diplomas and the A. L. Riendeau Memorial Cup was made by Dr. O. C. Watson, for many years a member of the Board of Education and a personal friend of the late Mr. Riendeau. In making the presentation Dr. Watson stated that last year featured the largest number of graduates, with 90 per cent from the upper school and 88 per cent from the middle school and all this despite the fact that the staff comprised only seven teachers and registered an increase in attendance. Of the present thirty-two pupils receiving their diplomas twelve were now attending normal school and five university. Diplomas were awarded to:

Isabel Faux, Jessie Graham, Irene Jeffs, Irene McEvoy, Grant Meiklejohn, Dolmas Montgomery, Doris Rannie, Martin Rusaw, Fern Weatherill, Blanche Wright, Georgie Davidson, Stuart Anderson, George Armstrong, Morley Baker, Stewart Blake, Eric Scott, Bernard Collins, Elsie Connor, Ruby Dunham, Robert Poulton, Bessie Inkster, Joy Riendeau, Albert Inkster, Kent Buchanan, Gerald Buchanan, Wesley Clare, Laura Davidson, Harry Ewing, Earl McGregor, Lorne Mitchell, Donald Moran, Harold Partridge.

The A. L. Riendeau Memorial Cup was won by Russell Rowe. This prize is awarded for the pupil standing highest in Latin and French in the Middle School.

William McComb was the first winner of the J. A. Loucks Memorial Medal, given by his son Arthur in memory of his father, the late J. A. Loucks, for thirty years a member of the Board of Education, and a man that played a very important part in the educational work of the town. This is awarded for general proficiency in the third form, the presentaton being made by A. G. Thompson, the 1933 chairman of the Campbellford Board of Education.

In making the presentaton, Mr. Thompson expressed his pleasure at the progress the school was making, even in these depressed times, and urged the pupils to take advantage of all educational facilities offered them, and strive only for the highest. He also spoke of the long service on the School Board of the late Mr. Loucks, and the esteem in which he was held by that body. The medal, he said, was won by a by a boy who was not only very popular in the life of the school but also on the field of sport.

Mr. Thompson also made the awards of the Board of Education Scholarships, the recipents being:

Form I.—Jean Oddie and Mary Forestell. Form II.—Donald Barnum and Pearl McComb.

In the absence of W. A. Fraser, M.P., who could not leave the Capital during the session of the House, Mayor N. H. Carr of Campbellford made the presentation of the Fraser Scholarship, which carried with it a beautiful metal tray. This was won by Kent Buchanan. Mayor Carr expressed his pleasure at having this honor conferred upon him and congratulated Principal E. H. Greig and the teaching staff of the High School for the splendid work that was beng done and the pupils for their diligence and applicaton to study.

Music during the evening was supplied by Albert Hazell and his orchestra. At the conclusion of the affair the pupils of the High School staged an informal dance in the Assembly Hall, which is the customary climax to this annual event.

Artificial music, produced by drawing curves and lines and angles on paper and transferring it to a sound film for recording, is being tried out in Germany.

Fish fry have been placed in many isolated lakes and creeks in the Canadian Rockies, the pack horse and even man-packing being resorted to on occasion.

Seven new comets were sighted during the year 1932.

ORANGE LODGE ANNUAL MEET

East Durham Officers Installed—Fred Lewers, County Master.

WALK IN PETERBORO'

MILLBROOK, Feb. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual meeting of the Orange Lodge for East Durham was held in the L.O.L. Hall, Millbrook, on Tuesday at 2 p.m., the attendance being the largest on record, extra seating having to be provided to accommodate the delegates representing the fifteen primary lodges of the territory covered.

Past County Master James H. Paul installed the new officers for 1933, the slate including:

County Master, Bro. Fred Lewers, Fraserville; Deputy County Master, Bro. Sam. Archer, Port Hope; Chaplain, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D.; Recording Secretary, Nathaniel Belch; Treasurer, Bro. Stewart Fallis; 1st Lecturer, Bro. W. R. Williamson; 2nd Lecturer, Bro. W. K. Gilmour, Garden Hill; County Marshal, Bro. James Paul.

Provided the resolution put through at a special meeting of the County L.O.L. last May, arranging a rotation of places in the district covered by Durham, Northumberland, Victoria, and Peterborough Counties for the annual twelfth of July celebration, is carried in the other counties, the city of Peterborough will be the centre for the Orange walk on July twelfth, 1933.

The unusual amount of time taken up with business at Tuesday's session led to the decision, as the hour grew late, to have the paper prepared by Nathaniel Belch, which is a feature of each year's annual gathering, not read at the meeting but presented through the press of the district. Mr. Belch this year dealt with the agitation regarding separate schools, and the economic depression, the deep and constructive thought manifested in these papers making them eagerly looked forward to by his brother Orangemen, as well as others in the community and a wide area of Durham and the surrounding counties.

The District L.O.L. recently held its annual meeting at Millbrook, the slate of officers elected for 1933 including:

W.M., Bro. Dave Patton; D.M., Bro. William Francey; Chaplain, Bro. W. J. Lynn; R.S., Bro. James Roddy; F.S., Bro. Austin Sutton; Treasurer, Bro. T. H. Aiken; Marshal, Bro. W. R. Williamson; 1st Lecturer, Bro. R J. Scott; 2nd Lecturer, Bro. Robert J. McDonald.

WEEKLY BIBLE LESSON

(By REV. WYLIE CLARK, B.D., D.D.)

Jesus Teaching By Parables—The Growth of the Kingdom.

Mark 4:21-34.

JESUS was to establish the Kingdom of Heaven upon the earth. This Kingdom was to be made up of people who believed in Him and accepted His teachings. He taught His disciples and they were to teach others—thus the Kingdom would grow and finally reach all nations.

The truth which Jesus taught was to be a light to guide the minds of men to an understanding of God's purpose and the part they were to have in it. The disciples were to be lamps to let the light shine.

They must not hide their light by refusing to speak out. The truth is not to be kept secret. It is to be talked about, explained and spread abroad. These days we talk a great deal about our church organizations and very little about Jesus. That is a great mistake. He is the one we should know and tell others about.

Many congregations talk more about their minister or his wife or the president of the ladies' aid than they do about Jesus.

The growth of the Kingdom depends upon the place we give Jesus in our everyday living. If we give full measure to Him, what we have will multiply and we will become more and more useful in pushing the affairs of the Kingdom; but if we do nothing, then we will lose even our chance of being a member.

The Kingdom is a growing Kingdom. It does not happen all at once. It takes time—a long time; but it is still growing and within the growth is God.

It is natural for the earth to cause the seed sown to grow—that is what the good earth is for—to produce harvests. So it is natural for the Kingdom to grow because that is God's purpose.

Men have to sow the seed and then the earth does the growing. In the same way we preach and teach getting the truth to find a place in human hearts and then the Spirit of God makes it grow.

Let us be sure of this—give the earth anything like a fair chance and there will be a harvest. Do the same for God and there shall be a wonderful increase in righteousness, peace and joy.

The tiny mustard seed is very small, yet it has within itself all the possibilities of the grown tree. A little bird could easily pick up and eat the seed; but give the seed its chance and flocks of birds may shelter under the branches of the tree.

The Kingdom began with Jesus, and now it is spread over the earth. It is very much alive and growing and He, who loved the world and the church and gave Himself for them, is its life and power.

A Chat with Young Peterboro

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 19.

DID you ever hear anything grow? Of course, not! you say. And you can't see how real live things grow. It's wonderful what a small beginning some big things have. For instance: you see a tiny acorn drop into the ground and after a time, without any noise, there grows up a mighty oak tree with great waving branches. You drop a handful of tiny seeds into the soil and presently there grows a crop of golden grain. No noise, no fuss, it just grows. But you can see differences from time to time, the shoot, the blade, the ear, and then the grain in the ear.

Just like us. We get an idea, then we follow it up by an action, and if we keep on repeating the action, we soon do it without hardly noticing what we are doing, and then we've got a habit, as we say. If it's a good habit—all right; if not—you've got a mighty hard time breaking it off. You see now what the Saviour meant by the Kingdom being like the grain of mustard seed. He first planted the seed and that same seed must be planted in people's hearts so they will grow, and the Kingdom will become larger and larger.

A good monk in Rome once saw some slave boys from faraway Britain. That was the seed which first brought Christian missionaries to us in the old land. Then when the Christian Church had sorter gone wrong in what we call the dark ages, the Saviour put another seed into the heart of three men. One was called Martin Luther, another Calvin, and another John Knox. The seed was the same Word of God, and out of it came the great clean-up we call the Reformation. Let's keep on planting the Kingdom seed and watch it grow.—Young Canada.

Four Kinds of Hearers — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 4:1-20.

The increasing hostility of Jesus' enemies caused him to adopt a new method of teaching by parables. Using a boat as his pulpit he told the crowd on the seashore the story of a sower whose seed fell upon four types of soil representing four classes of hearers of the Word of God.

He said some seed fell upon the hard beaten paths running through the field where birds quickly ate it and it brought forth no harvest. These are the folk who pay no attention to God's Word. Others are like the seed that fell upon stony ground where it grew up and withered quickly.

Other folk who let the cares of this world and deceitfulness of riches choke the Word are like the seed which fell among thorns. Their spirituality is choked out by their worldliness.

Other hearers of the Word are like good ground where the Word is neither stolen, starved or strangled, but fruitful. These listen attentively, meditate patiently and keep sincerely the Word of God and bear its fruit in the soil of their lives.

UNPAID SCHOOL TAXES.

The point raised in Winnipeg that the City Council cannot be expected to provide the Board of Education with the full amount called for in its budget unless school taxes are fully collected is of considerable importance and should be taken into consideration in every municipality.

Under the existing system school boards make a demand upon the city treasurer for the amount they consider necessary to cover their expenditures for the year, and the collection of the taxes is a responsibility of the city council.

Whether all the school taxes come in or not, school boards expect to be paid the full amount of their levies, a condition that is obviously unfair to municipal councils, which are called upon to provide the difference in spite of the fact that their own levies may not be fully collected.

Winnipeg civic authorities now declare that the School Board in that city must assume its share of responsibility for unpaid taxes, a course that if generally followed would most certainly impress upon all boards of education the necessity of the closest possible scrutiny of every expenditure in this acute financial situation.

THE PREMIER'S SPEECH.

Premier Henry's speech in Toronto the other night gave some indication that the Government has realized the fact that drastic reduction of expenditures is called for, and the hard-pressed taxpayers must be given some measure of relief.

In the first place, the Premier gave official endorsation to the reports that have been in circulation for some time that the Legislature is to be reduced in size—twenty-two seats at least will be cut off, and "possibly more," Mr. Henry declared.

That is a move in the right direction—and if it was seen fit to make the cut forty seats instead of twenty-two, the slash would be even more favorably received.

Departmental expenditures are to be reduced by 20 per cent. all round, no new taxation is likely to be introduced, and the gasoline tax will remain as it is, according to the Premier.

It is disappointing that no promises of tax reduction were made by Mr. Henry, but the province will have to take comfort out of the fact that economies are to be inaugurated and no new taxation will be imposed.

THE CORPORATIONS TAX.

That many taxpayers are convinced that further exploration by taxing authorities should be in the direction of reduced governmental expenditures rather than in seeking out new sources of revenue, is the opinion of the Citizens' Research Institute, and while this statement was used in connection with a study of the taxation of corporations for provincial purposes, it applies to all fields of government.

In connection with corporation taxation, the institute in a recent bulletin points out that the corporations tax when introduced in Canada was at first levied by the provinces only on specially designated corporations, such as banks, insurance companies, trust and loan companies, railways and certain other public utility corporations, the theory being that such corporations enjoyed special privileges and were entitled to pay extra therefore through taxation.

As the years passed, however, rapidly increasing provincial expenditures brought the inevitable need for increased revenue, and as corporations represented a source fairly easily tapped and one only indirectly reaching individuals, and therefore apparently impersonal, the scope of the tax was gradually increased until now in most provinces it generally embraces all types of corporations.

The institute suggests that a uniform basis of taxation in all provinces might reduce the expense now entailed in accounting and preparing returns in the many forms now required by the different taxing authorities.

"As such expense," says the bulletin, "is neither of advantage to the taxpayers or the tax collectors, should inertia or the interests of individual provinces be permitted to continue to place this unnecessary burden upon business?"

DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

The recent speech of Attorney-General Price in which he condemned drunken driving in no uncertain terms and then boasted that drunken drivers had decreased in Ontario from 822 in 1927 to 560 in 1932, has aroused considerable comment.

There is general approval for the first part of the speech, but many people who know something of the conditions do not place much reliance in the figures quoted in the second part, which may be accurate enough as to the number of motorists actually charged with the offence of driving while drunk, but does not give an accurate idea of how much of that kind of thing is going on in the province.

Among the critics is the Toronto Telegram, which says with much truth: "It must be supposed that Mr. Price reads the Toronto newspapers, and that he is familiar with the fact that even when there is evidence that a motorist is under the influence of liquor and has ignored red lights, zig-zagged through the streets or driven through city thoroughfares at from fifty to sixty miles an hour, it is most unusual for a charge of drunkenness to be laid against a motorist in charge of an automobile. Such offences are generally booked as reckless driving."

That is undoubtedly true; the tendency seems to be to wait until a drunken driver gets into a more or less serious accident before charging him with being intoxicated while driving; if he has luck enough to escape a mishap he escapes a charge of drunken driving.

The law says that a man who drives an automobile while he is under the influence of liquor must go to jail; it does not say that before he can be charged he must first get involved in an accident.

If the Attorney-General is really determined to stamp out drunken driving he should first insist that every offence shall be prosecuted, whether an accident is caused or not, and then have the law amended so that every one convicted of the offence shall be deprived for a long period on the first charge and permanently for a second offence of his privilege of driving a car.

THE CRUSHING BURDEN OF INTEREST CHARGES.

Two hopeful things happened in Parliament on Monday. They were:

1. With Government benediction, the House of Commons instructed the Banking and Commerce Committee to study the dual problem of debts and interest charges.

2. Mr. Rhodes, Finance Minister, told the House that discussions have been carried on between the Dominion and the provinces "looking to some arrangement which would give a lead to the people in the reduction of interest charges."

These things concern us all. Or should. Because whatever may be the cause of existing conditions, or their several causes, the fact (as disclosed by Mr. Speakman) that the aggregate of Canada's debts stand at $12,000,000,000, upon which we pay each year $720,000,000 in interest, is in itself a shocking thing. Shocking even when we remember that the figures represent what is owing by corporations and individuals as well as what is owed by Governments.

Most of it, unfortunately, is owed by Governments. It represents the indebtedness of the Dominion, the provinces and the municipalities, and it is the major reason for taxes in Canada to-day being what they are, for the impossibility of putting them much higher at a time when more revenue is vital. Taxes are simply being eaten by the servicing of debts. By interest.

Let us see what it means.

In 1912 Dominion Consolidated Fund expenditures for all purposes, including interest, totalled $112,000,000. In 1931 interest charges alone were $121,000,000. The 1931 interest payments were 9½ times greater than in 1912.

In 1931 interest payments made up 31 per cent. of all Consolidated Fund charges. In 1912 they were only 11½ per cent. of Consolidated Fund charges.

* * * *

As with the Dominion, so with the provinces, so with municipalities. They have piled debt upon debt, interest charge upon interest charge, until, in the case of the provinces, their interest liabilities for 1931 would have met all their ordinary expenditures as recently as 1916. That, incredible as it may seem, is the actual record.

* * * *

The consequence—inevitable—has been taxation. How it has grown, particularly in recent years, may be judged from the following table:

Combined taxes by Dominion, provincial and municipal governments:

1896.....	$ 55,000,000
1905.....	93,000,000
1914.....	238,000,000
1921.....	580,000,000
1930.....	772,000,000

Per capita, these levies were $10.94 in 1896; $15.98 in 1905; $31.20 in 1914; $66.10 in 1921, and $77.08 in 1930.

Most tax bills are paid by heads of families. Taking the census returns of 4.62 persons as the average per family, it will be seen that taxes per family of $144 in 1914 had grown to $356 per family in 1930, or almost $30 per month.

This, stated in the simplest form, is the consequence of Governments spending $124 to $152 for every $100 of their income.

* * * *

Not that our Governments are alone to blame. During the hectic Twenties, before the locusts came, all of us had the borrowing craze. The world thought that it could live on credit alone, on paper, and from the man who paid down one dollar on a radio, to the industry which borrowed to buy new plant only to scrap it to borrow more for newer plant, everybody went into debt. Now we are under a mountain of interest.

Some way must exist to make the burden lighter. It is not a matter of wanting to default, which would be disastrous. But it ought not to be beyond the wit of men to devise means whereby debt charges would be brought within ability to pay. In Britain, through vast conversion loans, they have escaped hundreds of millions of annual interest; and in Australia the Commonwealth Government cut interest charges in two. It was simply a question, there, of a half loaf being better than no bread.

Canada is not in the position that Australia was in. Yet it would mean much to this country if means could be found to lighten interest payments, diverting such great sums to more profitable and productive channels. Certainly, unless a great change comes soon, Canada cannot go on paying $720,000,000 in interest charges every year.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Relief Fund must reach its objective. Every dollar asked for—and more—will be needed.

Liberal speakers in the House of Commons this week have shown no signs of approving the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

June of next year, it is evident, will not only be the month of roses but of ballots as well, and the opposition speakers are not likely to be satisfied to say it with flowers.

The C.C.F. movement has struck its darkest hour now that Mr. Jean Pouliot, M.P., has started to bombard the organization with questions. When Mr. Pouliot goes out after information he is more persistent than a census enumerator.

Life is like that. Along comes a lunar halo just at a time when the weather is too cold to allow the spectacle to be enjoyed in comfort.

THE TUTTS By CRAWFORD YOUNG

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 40

Kane's heart sank. He felt as if someone had dashed stingingcold water in his face. The cards seemed stacked against him. Twice, now, he had been on the verge of finding the solution to this mystery and each time that he had broken through the wall of secrecy he found himself up against an even thicker one. It was as though he was fighting his way through the vast maze of a labyrinth.

He knew that he was opposed by almost insurmountable odds. In the first place, the murder of Richard Bailey—and those which followed it and, he felt, securely bound to it—was one of those rare cases in which the police could not call on their hordes of informers on the fringe of society for aid.

Most murders—in fact, a preponderance of them—have some trail which leads into the netherworld outside the pale of the law. Informers — stool pigeons—are invaluable in picking up clues in these cases. But this one was different; it was confined to the upper stratum. There was no hint of any connection with the underworld.

Kane realized now, more than ever before, that he was faced with a sheer battle of wits, that to make good his promise to John Lee to deliver the murderer in twenty-four hourshewould be forced to extend himself to the very limit. He felt at this moment that he was right back where he started Saturday night, when the chief had first asked him to take a hand in the affair.

At last, he looked at Nanette and asked, "You are quite sure that Richard Bailey never told you the name of that woman?"

"I am quite sure," she replied bitterly. "I asked him—more than once—but he only laughed at me and said it was none of my business."

He turned to the other woman. "Have you ever heard him speak of such a woman?"

Lucy replied, "I have often heard him talk of his buddy. But not lately," she added hastily. "He used to tell us about her but lately——"

"Something happened between them," Kane finished.

"Yes," she spoke in almost a whisper, "something must have happened between them."

At that moment Doratha came upon them. She hesitated and started to withdraw, but Nanette detained her.

"I was just going to ask if Mr. Holmes will be here for lunch," she said.

Kane started. Hastily, he consulted his watch. It was after twelve o'clock. He had not realized the time had passed so swiftly.

Nanette said, "I don't think he will be here."

Dorotha withdrew. Kane sheepishly offered, "I'm sorry, Miss LeRoi, I forgot to offer my congratulations."

She looked startled, but only for a moment. "Thank you. But," anxiously, "I trust you will keep our secret—at least for a while."

"You may trust me," he assured her. "I understand why."

"It would never do to have it become known now," she affirmed, "so soon after Bailey's—death."

"No," he agreed.

Nanette sought to have him and Lucy stay for lunch. There was something wistful in her manner, as if she wanted—needed—company. Was it, he asked himself, because she was afraid to be alone? Did she fear another attempt on her life?

He put the thought from his mind. "I'm sorry," he said, "but there is work for me to do."

"Yes," quietly, "there is much work."

What did she mean by that? Was she intimating that she was holding something back? That she was purposely hiding something from him?

The woman was an enigma. One moment she was talking to him frankly, openly, apparently only too willing to help him. The next moment she spoke in riddles. It wasn't, he admitted, so much what she said. It was the manner in which she said it.

He decided finally that the trouble was with himself, that his nerves were getting jumpy, and he arose to take his leave. Once more he quickly took in his surroundings. His gaze fell on the teakwood table which had so intrigued him on the occasion of his first visit there, that night when Nanette had so narrowly escaped meeting a fate likened unto that of Richard Bailey.

He considered it keenly from a distance and then, slowly, strolled across to it. He said:

"A real antique. I have often wanted one like that but could never find it."

"It was a gift," she explained.

"Do you mind if I look at it?"

"Of course not."

The table was truly an antique. It was badly worm-eaten, even to its spindly legs. He leaned over it and rubbed his fingers, almost covetously, over its rough surface. Lightly, he rapped on it.

"That's queer," he murmured.

"It's hollow," Nanette explained. "One side opens. I suppose it was constructed as a sort of desk."

"Undoubtedly," he agreed.

He studied the table for a moment with critical eyes, then continued:

"That piece must be several hundred years old. It looks to me as though it was modeled by some old Italian craftsman, probably of the period immediately following Marco Polo's first trip to India. The wood undoubtedly is Asian teak."

He fingered around the table until he found the panel which dropped open, revealing the hollow interior. Dropping to his knees, he peered inside. Light trickled through the many large worm holes, some of which were even as large as a dime. The interior seemed to have been recently cleaned.

When he had satisfied himself with his inspection he arose and:

"I don't suppose you would think of selling it."

Nanette laughed, but it was a strained sort of laughter. "I would have Dorotha on my neck if I parted with that. She takes as good care of it as if it were a child."

"You mean to say that Dorotha—"

"Why, she's as particular about that table as she would be of a m llion dollars. You'd think she was an old maid, or something like that, if you ever saw her tenderly dusting it. Why, she won't let anyone else touch it.'

"That's really funny," Kane smiled. "To think that a girl like her—why, she's modern to an extreme degree. I didn't think modern girls went in for things like that. I always thought they were more interested in dancing and parties."

"You don't know Dorotha very well," Nanette said seriously.

"Well," with an air of dismissal, "I suppose we'd better forget about it, then."

He turned to Lucy. The smile faded from his lips and his deep eyes grew thoughtful. "I don't know what to say to you about Lillian Hu§ ——"

"Just catch the one that did it," she said tensely. "That's all I ask."

They didn't see Dorotha standing just outside the door which led into the rear corridor, standing there with the faintest trace of a sneer on her pretty lips.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

The mercury dropped to 24 below zero in this berg Thurs. a.m., kinda discouraging the village golfers which had been sorting out their clubs ready for the spring drive.

School Board met here Tues. nite and Bill Tinker and some more folks dropped in and asked the members to have a heart for Petes' sake, when they come to deciding how much jack they're going to spend this year.

The village Board of Health held a lively session here Tues. a.m. and it looks like the Isolation Hospital will have to get along on less money this year, so watch your germs, folks, say we.

R. Denne, our worthy Mayor, was in Toronto, west of here, a coupla days this week seeing Geo. Henry's Govt. on town business. More anon if anything transpires from the same.

Dan Thompson which used to be chief of the village constabulary in ye old days, was in the berg this week. Dan is in the publishing business and looked to be doing good at, we hasten to report.

Word drifts in from Havelock, east of here, that 1 of the Peterborough ridings is going to be cut out when Geo. Henry starts carving up the constituencies. Bigger and better elections look to be on the way, many think.

A pussy willow reached the office of this great family journal the other day picked near Lily Lake. We now expect the folks from around there to claim they're living in the Garden of Ontario or words to that effect.

A hockey team from Madoc, east of here, met Mr. Wright's lads at the village ice box Wed. nite and the score was: Us, 11; Them, 2. Lucky for our boys the Madoc team didn't insist on them paying a return visit so they aint no frost bites to report.

Frank Adams, our village treasurer, has still got room to store away a few more donations for the Relief Fund, so don't be bashful about sending them in, say we.

JIG-SAW PUZZLE

What's that under your arm?
A box, you say.
What's in it?
A jig-saw puzzle, you answer.
What are you going to do with it?

Put it together, you tell me; and do I want to help. Everybody's doing it. It's the latest craze.

No, I don't want to help. Why should I be fooling around with jig-saw puzzles? Not me. (I mean, not I.) Do I feel superior? Have I such great things to do in this world that I can't spend a few moments or an evening in puting a harmless little puzzle together? What's the big idea?

No, you misunderstand. I don't feel superior. I 'waste" plenty of time, too....Loafing....Looking at the moon....Playing bridge or rummy or reading unimportant books or getting into arguments or dreaming about this and that....No, I DON'T feel superior.

Fact is, I'm afraid of those things. If I tried one I wouldn't stop until I put it together. You say that "par" for that puzzle is three hours. ....If it took me four hours I'd feel quite sad about my stupidity. If I did it in two hours and a half I'd feel fine, and why should anybody feel "fine" about working a jig-saw puzzle? ....Once when I was a kid I sat in a hardware store window for half an hour, right in front of everybody, trying to work a jig-saw puzzle and win a tool chest..But I failed, another boy won it instead and I was sadly humiliated. I remember the boy who did win; his name was Elmer Plaskett; and I remember that I did NOT win.

So you see, at last, why I don't want to get mixed up with jig-saw puzzles. They remind me of that failure, that humiliation.

I'm not good at it and I know I'm not....I've been trying to work out another jig-saw puzzle instead, the puzzle everybody's trying to solve. You know the one I mean—the one we call life. "Par" for that is Eternity and it's an extremely complicated, amazingly difficult, and fascinating jig-saw puzzle. Sometimes I think some of the best pieces have been lost. Sometimes I think I'll give up. But most of the time I feel that if I just keep on working at it, I'll finally get it together.

And what a triumph that will be!

Here is the case in which signature and script differ markedly. The signature gives us the man as he really is, essentially—impetuous, adventure-loving, action-craving. The continuous script is characterized by a holding back, a reining in, of these would-be dominant characteristics—the strong will bent on the achievement and maintenance of control, order, steadiness. Continuous and relentless self-discipline is the cornerstone on which this man has built and is still building the structure of his success. A high degree of ambition is responsible for such bridling and checking of self. So high a degree of ambition coupled with such an unusual amount of energy should take this man in whose handwriting these qualities appear, to the top of whatever ladder he has set himself to climb. He is fortunate, too, in possessing a likable personality, one which inspires and is worthy of trust. He has a fine sense of humor and enjoys life in whatever situation he may be.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

FAMOUS MILITARY MARCHES

On this date, there commenced one of the most remarkable military marches in British history. A call went to Halifax for more troops for service in Upper Canada in the midst of the war with the United States. Although it was mid-winter it was decided to send the 104th Regiment, raised in New Brunswick, to Quebec. Under the command of Major Drummond, it started, 1,000 strong, on its overland journey on February 11, 1913, and arrived at Quebec on the 27th of the month without the loss of a man, the distance covered being 435 miles. While in the settled parts the people gave some assistance with sleighs the greater part of the journey was performed on snowshoes.

In December 1837, the 43rd Light Infantry marched from Fredericton to Quebec in favorable conditions, over better roads, well provided with bridges, a performance much less arduous than that of the 104th; yet of it the Duke of Wellington is reported to have said: "It is the only achievement performed by a British officer that I really envy." He could not have known of the feat of the 104th.

Another remarkable passage of troops from Saint John to Quebec in winter was that of a force of 7,000 men of picked troops of the British army, with transport and artillery, sent from England in anticipation of war with the United States over the Trent affair. They travelled by road and on the frozen river in the winter of 1861-62, using sleighs furnished by the inhabitants. Transportation was effected most expeditiously, without hardships, accidents or delays. It is believed that this experience greatly influenced the authorities both in Canada and Great Britain of the necessity of securing rail connection between New Brunswick and Quebec, from which came the building of the Intercolonial railway.

Grain Review

WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 11.— (C.P.)—Normally the dominating factor in price trends, absence of export demand for Canadian wheat, for the third consecutive week, failed to send prices lower on the Winnipeg grain market this week.

Adverse crop news from winter-wheat territory in the United States more than offset the unfavorable export situation and values closed the six-day period more than half a cent higher.

May option closed the week Friday at 47 3-8, July at 48¾ and October 49 3-8 ,an all-around advance of ⅛-¾ cent

Reported to be uncovered by lack of snow and high winds, roots of the winter wheat corp were feared to be in danger of freezing by sub-zero weather sweeping the wheat belt. Bullish traders seized upon this news as an argument for higher prices, boosting values considerably early in the week.

No change was reported in the cash grain division, spreads again closing a quiet week unchanged. Coarse grains, also, were extremely dull.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET
(By John P. Boughan, A. P. Market Editor)

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Grain trade authorities say accurate knowledge of the condition of United States winter wheat is now looked for in less than the 30 days. It is added that on the result will largely depend whether a crop scare unequalled in recent years may be expected.

Compared with a week ago, wheat this morning was ⅝-1 cent higher, corn ¼-⅝ up, oats ½-¾ advanced, and provisions ranging from two cents decline to 10 cents gain.

Latest European advices indicate overseas importers of wheat are unlikely to abandon a hand-to-mouth buying program until circumstances point to curtailment of liberal supplies. The amount of wheat available for export in the four leading countries is figured as 961,000,000 bushels, world shipments 263,000,000 bushels, and world import requirements for the season 700,000,000, suggesting around 400,000,000 bushels to be obtained by importers before the end of the crop year. Corn and oats take most of their inspiration from the wheat market.

Provisions mainly reflect the action of hog values.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Feb. 11. (CP) — Montreal Stock Exchange listings slipped lower during to-day's short session. With the exception of a few issues price movements were of a fractional nature. Sales volume was fair.

Canadian Pacific Railway lost ¼ at 12¾. International Nickel eased ⅛ at 9½. Montreal Power declined ⅛ at 29¾. Brazilian Traction held unchanged at 8¾.

Montreal Tramways dropped a point at 97 while Bank of Toronto was off the same amount at 169.

Canada Northern Power was off ½ t 13. Cockshutt Plow at 3¼ was down ¼. Gypsum declined ¼ at 1¾. British Columbia Power "B" eased ⅛ at 4. Abitibi was off five cents at 25 cents.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (C.P.)—Firmness in the oil section featured the Toronto Stock Exchange trading for the closing day of the week, but volume was down in the oils as well as the other sections. Nickel dropped back back to an average turnover following its recent price splurge and the price held unchanged at 9⅝.

All the oil leaders showed gains, Imperial to 8⅞, Pete to 12¼ and B.A. to 8, and Canadian Oil also closed higher. Strength ruled also in the food shares, but the turnover continued light. Gains were recorded for Laura Secord, Loblaw "A" and International Milling 1st Preferred, while losses appeared for Muirhead's Preferred and Maple Milling Preferred.

Minor changes appeared in the utilities section, Bell Telephone improving to 91 and Montreal Power holding at 30, while the trend was better for the heavy industries, with Steel of Canada firm at 16 and Page Hersey showing a gain of 1½.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Feb. 11 (C.P.)— The Standard Mining Market idled into the end of the week, with profit-taking apparently exhausted and with no buying movement in sight in anticipation of a new advance. It was the slowest day the market has seen in six weeks. While only a few trades were put through in the high-priced leaders the price structure held firm, scattered price changes on the down side showing only in the medium priced gold shares.

All the base metal stocks except Noranda and Ventures lapsed into a state of inactivity. While Noranda continued in fair demand it made no quotation advance. Nickel held unchanged.

In the high-priced golds Dome gained 10 to 17.40, Hollinger lost 5 to 7.80. Lake Shore was up 20 to 38.70, McIntyre was unchanged, Pioneer down 5 and Teck and Wright Hargreaves practically unchanged.

WALL STREET.

(By Claude A. Jagger, A.P. Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, February 11 (C.P.). —Short covering in the recently depressed tobacco issues gave an upward twist to the stock market in an apathetic week-end session to-day. A number of issues closed fractions to more than a point higher. Transfers approximated 350,000 shares.

Bullish activity cropped out to-day in some of the sugars, notably South Potro Rico, which was b'd up a point to a new high for 1932-33.

Short covering came into the tobaccos, as bears who had sold in anticipation of to-day's announcement that American Tobacco had cut cigarette prices took their profits. Both American Tobacco B and Liggett and Myers B rose well over a point, and Lorillard and Reynolds B advanced fractionally.

Finds 5 Pearls In Oyster Soup

GALT, Ont., Feb. 11.—(CP)—While partaking of some oyster soup, Mrs. A. R. Garlick discovered five pearls, the largest as big as a pea and the smallest a seed pearl. The stopes were not damaged in the cooking and are being sent away for polishing and valuation. Some years ago Mrs. Garlick found five pearls in an oyster, but the stones were ruined since the bivalves had been fried.

Gradual reduction of the automobile tax.

Embarkation upon a vast program of road building.

Encouragement of automobile sports events.

NO!
THIS IS NOT A PIPE DREAM

But a Presentation of Evidence that the Merchant Who Advertises Boosts His Business!

Here's another testimonial to the value of The Peterborough Examiner as a medium for the wise business man reaching some 40,000 readers with his sales talk. This time the merchandise affected is Furniture and House Furnishings, and it is generally conceded by publicity experts that Furniture needs greater advertising skill, and value appeal to draw business than, perhaps, any other commodity. Especially has this been the experience the past three years when Canada has suffered from such adverse trade conditions.

The following free will endorsation of our contention that newspaper advertising pays comes from McBride & Franks, operators of one of Peterborough's leading Home Furnishing stores. This firm has tried many methods of advertising, but has discarded all in favor of The Examiner, which they acclaim as a "business puller" in the truest sense of the term.

TO DIE BUT KEEP ON LIVING WAS PLOT OF TORCH-SLAYER

Sam Furnace All Ready to Become Raymond Rogers, Ship's Steward

POLICE TOO SMART

London.—A new life under another name, completely separated from his old associations—this was the motive which induced Samuel Furnace to commit murd in his little office-shed in Hawley crescent, Camden Town.

That desire, coupled with the knowledge that his victim, Walter Spatchett, would have a considerable amount of money in his rent collector's wallet, led Furnace to carry out the brutal shooting and then to set fire to the shed in the hope of destroying evidence and making the slaying a "perfect" crime which would not only defy solution but would even disarm suspicion by leading to the identification of the body as that of himself, Samuel Furnace.

The law, however, was too smart for Furnace, finally trailing him down to his hiding place at Southend. The slayer did, however, escape the gallows, for in jail he committed suicide by poisoning himself with spirits of s lt.

Had Used Al s Before

Furnace had, in various previous escapades, used the name "Raymond Rogers," and it is possible that he meant to be "Mr. Rogers" in future, and to link his life with the attractive young woman whom he had frequently met under that name.

Among the papers he took with him when he disappeared were his old certificates as a ship's steward, and it may have been in his mind ultimately to get work at sea.

He considered that, with the money he took from Spatchett, he would have enough to live quietly in hiding until the death of "Samuel Furnace" in an accidental fire had been forgotten.

His Plans Went Astray

His idea was upset by the identification of the burned body as that of Walter Spatchett, and the discovery by the police surgeon that Spatchett had been shot.

That disclosure had never entered into the calculations of Furnace.

Life, for Furnace, had become rather complicated. His business was failing; the weekly returns from it, after paying wages, were small. Although he had the reputation of being an admirable husband and father, he was involved with several women.

His relationship with Walter Spatchett, too, was somewhat involved. He owed Spatchett about £60 which had been advanced.

Also, Furnace was engaged in a legal action, which might have cost him considerable expense. He had nearly reached the end of his tether.

London. — When Jack Hulbert, English actor, dissolved partnership with Paul Murray in May, 1931, he undertook voluntarily to pay off debts amounting to £12,000.

Thereupon he made a breezy Hulbertian jump into as near an Approach to a 24-hour working day as was possible.

The first step towards quick riches was the signing of a cinema contract by himself and his wife, Cicely Courtneidge.

Now the debt has been paid, with the help of "Ghost Train," "Sunshine Suzie," "Jack's the Boy" and other films.

PULLING ENGINES TO PIECES KEEPS GIRL FLIER AMUSED

Fiance Says It's No Job for Woman But She Laughs

JOINING AIR CIRCUS

London.—Lieutenant Robert Malcolm Riach is serving in Northern Nigeria. He detests aeroplanes and everything to do with them.

But fate has decreed that he should fall in love with one of the prettiest airwomen in England. He is expecting her to go to him by train and ship, but she has views of her own.

One day ... may hear the roar of an aeroplane over his camp—and how he will hate it! But his bride will have arrived.

"Of course, I simply cannot give up flying, although my future husband has begged me to do so many times," Miss Dorothy Spicer confessed in an interview. "He is always writing about it, but I just laugh.

"Flying is in my blood. I could not live if I gave it up, but I'm sure that one day my love of flying will cause a row."

This capable young woman, who is one of the only three in this country with a ground engineer's license, went on quietly working as she spoke.

She was in her London home, faggoting some dainty lace to the finest blue silk with slender fingers, which it was hard to believe had earned her an engineer's certificate.

"I have never worn gloves," she said, "and sometimes I have been up as early as 4.30 in the morning working on an engine. My finance says pulling engines to pieces is not a woman's job. He has always refused to come up in the air with me, and he never watches me fly.

"When I get married I shall lose my unrestricted "A" license, but I shall never give up my pilot's license. As soon as I get back to England I shall be up in the air again.

"Flying for half an hour is like two bottles of champagne to me. I have even discussed with Pauline Gower the possibility of flying to Nigeria for the wedding, and attempting to make a record for a fast flight.

"In the spring I am going to join an air circus and tour the country. I think it will be the first time that a woman has been a regular pilot in an air circus."

"I CAN'T STOP FLYING" SAYS MRS. MOLLISON

Wants to Inspire Confidence in Air Travel

London.—Mrs. Mollison (Amy Johnson) replied to criticisms of her long-distance flights during her speech at a dinner given in her honor by the Women's Automobile and Sports Association.

Lieut.-Col. F. C. Shelmerdine, director of civil aviation, said the work which Mrs. Mollison had done and was doing was of the greatest value to British prestige. She was a great inspiration to the youth of the country.

Mrs. Mollison first gave a lively account of her adventures on her record-breaking flights to and from the Cape and then dealt with "the many criticisms which are levelled at flights of this kind."

She said she wished to point out that by constant repetition they inspired confidence in air travel.

"If no plane had tried to cross the channel," she said, "machines would not now be crossing with such confidence."

Replying to General Seely's appeal that she should take a year's rest, she said she hoped he would appreciate it when she replied, "I cannot help going on flying."

MANY MONSTROSITIES 'ADORN' WESTMINSTER

So Declares "Vandal" Dean, Confessing to Their Moving

London.—Such phrases as "monstrosities," "memorials to insignificant people," and "vulgar things" were used by the Dean of Westminster, Dr. Foxley Norris, in describing some of the Westminster Abbey monuments.

Addressing the Architectural Association in London, he said: "I ask whether 100 or 50 years' commemoration is not sufficient in many cases.

"I have moved five monuments in the Abbey in the last 12 months. One was a full-size figure of Wordsworth, which was moved to P ts' Corner."

The dean expressed the hope that he would not on the morrow see London placarded with bills which read: "The Vandal Dean," "Are the Monuments to Go?" and "Save the Abbey."

"FOLLIES" GIRL WEDS PEER

Effie Cook Becomes Bride of Lord Selsdon

London.—A former Follies girl became a peeress the other day when Miss Effie Cook married Lord Selsdon, ex-postmaster-general.

FIND BARONET GAVE NURSE ROPE OF NINETY-NINE PEARLS

Gratitude Appraised at £5,000 —But £800 Sable Cuffs Only Discussed

GIRL LOSES GIFTS

London—Presents worth £5,000 which were given by Sir Edward Mackay Edgar to a woman who nursed him through an illness were the subject of a motion heard in the chancery division here.

Sir Edward was adjudicated bankrupt in August, 1931, and Gilbert Beyfus, who appeared on behalf of the trustee in the bankruptcy, said that the motion was to recover certain articles given by him to Miss Jane Burns Inglis.

In 1928 Sir Edward was in a nursing home and Miss Inglis was among those who attended him.

When he left she accompanied him as his nurse to his flat in Mount St. and afterward on a journey he was advised to make to British Columbia.

In February, 1929, he gave her a necklace of 99 pearls with a diamond snap which cost £2,050, and this was followed in May by a diamond brooch costing £155 and a diamond ring costing £1,450. In August he gave her some silver and plate of the value of £178.

On Oct. 21 Miss Inglis had ordered an ermine coat with a sable collar to be made out of skins she owned, for 650 guineas, but before doing so she asked the saleswoman if she could telephone to her friend, who advised her about her financial affairs.

She did telephone before the order was given and it was assumed that the friend was Sir Edward. On Oct. 25 a payment of £200 having meanwhile been made, the saleswoman took the coat to a flat in Grafton St. to show it to Miss Inglis.

Sir Edward was called in and expressed his approval, but suggested that it needed the addition of sable cuffs. However, even the saleswoman was aghast at the price, stating that it would take eight skins costing £100 each. No actual order was given.

Mr. Justice Farwell said he had been urged to accept the submission that these handsome present—of a total value of £5,000—were given as quid pro quo or by way of remuneration for Miss Inglis' services. He could only conclude, however, that the reason for the gifts was gratitude.

The judge added that he did not desire to suggest any reason other than gratitude. The trustee was entitled to recover such of the jewelry as he could. With reference to the articles of silver, Miss Inglis had offered to give up whatever was stored in her name.

PRINCE SEES FIGHTS IN CHURCH'S CRYPT

Helps Boxer to Feet, Just Dodges Whizzing Judo Umbrella

London.—The Prince of Wales, wearing a red muffler and an overcoat spattered with whitewash, was an excited onlooker recently at boxing matches held in the dungeon-like crypt of St. Mark's church, Kensington.

Gathered around him were more than 200 unemployed men who live on his Duchy of Cornwall estate.

The roof of the crypt was not high enough to erect a proper ring, so a thick mattress was placed on the uneven brick floor, and the walls were thickly padded.

The prince sat on a wooden chair which the unemployed had made for him, and his feet were almost in the ring.

Once one of the boxers went tumbling to the feet of the prince, who helped him up, with a few encouraging words. Soon afterwards, when two young men were giving an exhibition of judo, an umbrella which they were using went whizzing by the prince's head. He roared with laughter.

UNLUCKIEST OF RIDERS CLEARS LAST HURDLE

Captain Sassoon Spent £50,000 on Horses in Seven Hectic Years

London.—Captain R. E. Sassoon, the millionaire who was disabled time after time in steeplechase spills —and yet rode again as soon as he was fit—has ridden his last race.

He died the other night in a London nursing home from injuries received dwhen he fell in the Weald Handicap Steeplechase at Lingfield.

The fatal accident ended a long series of spills. Captain Sassoon had fractured a shoulder, cracked his ribs, and broken his collar-bone many times. But he was always keen to be in the saddle again despite his reputation of being the world's unluckiest horseman.

This millionaire ex-Irish Guardsman, with gigantic business interests in India and the Far East, spent £50,000 on racehorses during the past seven years.

He was a keen polo player in his young days, and later took up steeplechasing with an ardor that ultimately cost him his life.

Until about three years ago he always wore eyeglasses in the saddle, being extremely short-sighted.

BRITONS BEAT TEUTONS AT OWN TRADE GAME

Capturing Markets for Binoculars, Optical Goods and Aeroplanes

London.—British brains and new British enterprise are effecting a world trade revolution.

Not so long ago nine out of every ten pairs of binoculars used in this country were German-made.

To-day, for the first time, Germany and all other countries are coming to Britain for best quality optical glass goods—binoculars, spectacles, and cameras.

In aeroplane manufacture the tale is the same.

Yet another large consignment of British-made fighting aeroplanes has been ordered by the Belgian government. The order is worth about £250,000.

Only four months ago the same firm delivered to Belgium £700,000 worth of similar machines.

One British firm is to-day selling for £38 calorimeters (machines for measuring gas heat) which the Germans cannot market below £160.

Before the war Germany had almost a world monopoly. To-day the firm in question, located in Letchworth, is selling in France, Holland, Belgium, Spain, Japan, and in all the dominions and colonies.

DEADLY GREEN MAMBA LISTED AS HARMLESS

Reptile Bit Man But Life Saved by Telegraph, Train, Serum

Glasgow.—Telephone, telegraph and train saved one life, and possibly a second, when a naturalist's assistant here was bitten by what was believed to be a harmless tree snake but which turned out to be a deadly green mamba.

In the case of the first man, John Ryan, only a slight wound had been inflicted, as two men grabbed the snake as it attacked. But when the arm began to swell, an SOS was telephoned to London and the School of Tropical Medicine passed it on to Dr. Barnett at the London zoo.

"From the brief description given, I gathered that the snake was a green mamba," Dr. Barnett said. "The snake was on its way to London by train, but before it arrived I had sent a phial of anti-mamba toxin by the Glasgow express.

"I am glad it arrived in time. The serum should be injected within a few minutes of the bite, but a man of good constitution might withstand fatal effects for some hours.

"When the snake arrived at the zoo I identified it at once as a green mamba—one of the deadliest snakes found in Central and South Africa."

Meanwhile the Glasgow naturalist had checked up on the catalogue of the Rotterdam reptile dealer from whom he had bought the snake and learned that there was a second of the same species erroneously listed.

At once he sent a telegram to the Dutch dealer:

"Green tree snake sent was green mamba. Our assistant bitten and removed to infirmary. Warn purchaser of other snake."

Yammering in Punishment Cells Kept Up for 72 Hours

London.—The twelve ringleaders in the recent disturbances at Chelmsford prison have been deprived of all privileges and remission marks and sentenced to varying degrees of punishment by visiting justices.

The trouble began when a young convict, who was known to have been trying to cause dissatisfaction among other prisoners, was put in the punishment block for refusing to obey orders and threatening to assault an officer. Then two other men also refused to carry out their tasks and were put in adjoining cells. One was birched.

Finally nine men reached the punishment cells. All continued to shout and sing at intervals for three days and nights.

RAILWAY QUEEN ON TOUR WITH HER COURT

Royally Received on Visit to Airdrie, Scotland

Airdrie, Scotland.—The British "Railway Queen," Miss Marjorie Helen Goodall of Scunthorpe, Lincolnshire, who was crowned at Manchester last fall, visits various cities and towns from time to time. She recently paid an official visit to Airdrie, one of the oldest railway centres in the north. With a retinue of attendants she arrived at the South Side station and drove through the streets with pipers leading the procession and Boy Scouts as guard of honor. Passing the cenotaph she laid a wreath on the memorial. She attended a special service in Airdrie West parish church, conducted by the Rev. John A. Calderwood, following which she proceeded to the lesser town hall, where she was given a civic welcome by the provost, magistrates and town council. Later the second annual reunion of past, retired and present members of the Airdrie branch of the N.U.R. was held in the Masonic temple, at which Mr. W. Doble, lord mayor of York and president of the National Union of Railwaymen, was the principal speaker.

PARTED BY POISON PEN MARRY AFTER 60 YEARS

Aged Breton Couple Remained Faithful in Distant Towns

LETTERS UNTRUE

Morbihan.—On the day appointed for their wedding in the little mairie of a Breton village close to Morbihan, 60 years ago exactly, there were united this week two people whose names deserve to live with those of the world's finest examples of fidelity to first love, despite the fact that both allowed their trust in each other to be wounded deeply by the cruellest of all weapons, the poison pen of an unknown writer.

Pierre Kergolay and Marianne Thouars were typical Breton peasants who joined merrily in the rustic revels that marked rural life around Morbihan 60 years ago when the third French republic was just as infant of two.

They had been boy and girl sweethearts from their earliest school years and when both were nearing 20 the publication of their bans aroused great interest and a record crowd assembled at the mairie, where the civil ceremony was to take place.

The crowd, however, waited in vain, for the couple did not put in an appearance and they vanished from the district.

On the wedding morning, it seems, each received a letter signed, "A Friend," containing aspersions on the other in such detailed fashion as to carry conviction and, deeply stung thereby, the two made up their minds that there could be no marriage, each going off quietly, unknown to the other, in quest of some quiet spot where time might show its healing art.

The man went to another part of Brittany and the woman found employment in neighboring Normandy. Even their closest friends did not know their whereabouts, and when a conscience-stricken parishioner, whose jealousy of Kergolay had caused him to forge the poisoned weapon that killed the trust of these two in each other, sought relief by confessing to the parish priest, it was impossible to trace them.

But all the while both were faithful to their first love and both had long since rued the folly of that parting without an attempt at explanation.

On New Year's Day last two old people, both in the neighborhood of 80, returned to the village to end their days. No one connected them with the drama of 60 years ago, an incident that only the very oldest inhabitants recalled.

But one day this couple met under the tree in the shady meadow that was their trysting place all those years ago.

Time had wrought many changes, but had not killed their love, and there, under the same old tree, Pierre and Marianne recognized each other and begged mutual forgiveness. Tearfully the unwed Darby and Joan wended their way back to the village to consult "Monsieur le Maire" and "Monsieur le Cure" about their marriage.

It was a new maire and a new cure, but they soon found the faded notice of the marriage that had not taken place 60 years ago and made the necessary arrangements so that the old couple might be united and spend the last years of their lives together.

In all the district they could only find ten people who had been invited to the original wedding, but the story soon spread and everybody who possibly could crowded to the vicinity of the mairie and the little church for the two long-deferred ceremonies and to wish Darby and Joan happiness.

CHRISTMAS COMES LATE

Cardiff.—Hundreds of people in South Wales towns have but recently received their Christmas presents.

Forty-eight bags of parcel mail were found in a railway truck sidetracked at Milford Haven at the time the holiday rush was at its height.

FRANCE PLANS SWEEP TO BALANCE BUDGET

Would Raise $480,000,000 to Avoid Levying of Extra Taxation

Paris.—The declaration of a financial dictatorship in France similar to that which M. Raymond Poincare instituted in 1926 after the collapse of the franc is considered to be merely a matter of weeks in well-informed circles here.

Some responsible observers believe that the situation calls for even sterner measures and that a committee of public safety may have to be set up.

The national finances are in a desperate state and there is not the faintest possibility of any budget which would meet the enormous deficit being passed by the chamber.

The government may fall or it may itself try to coerce the chamber into according it dictatorial powers.

What is far more likely is that several governments will fall before the chamber is sufficiently unnerved to grant one that absolute authority which enabled M. Poincare to decree $800,000,000 new taxes without debate in August, 1926.

Meanwhile, however, the crisis will not wait, and M. Barthou, former premier and second in command to M. Poincare in 1926, talks significantly of the need of "a few resolute men" in an article just published.

"The crisis (he says) has created neither more nor less than a revolutionary situation, for there are slow and smothered revolutions, the peril of which is greater than that of sudden violence.

"Whatever name it is called—a ministry or a committee—there must be some day a group of a few resolute men with the means of putting republican laws into service for the safety of the public."

GIVING BRISTOL BOYS' HOME

Plymouth. — A. C. Ballard has announced he intends to build a boys' institute at Bristol similar to the one he has provided here at a cost of about £60,000.

INTELLECTUALS AID JOBLESS BRETHREN

Exclusive Restaurant Serves Good Meals for 8 Cents

Paris.—A restaurant just opened here is, in effect, one of the most exclusive clubs in the city. It has about 1,400 customers at present, each of whom has had to prove that he is an intellectual worker out of employment.

It has long been realized that, while craftsmen and manual workers generally could obtain official assistance, members of the liberal professions have been left to look after themselves in a period of crisis which has hit them particularly hard. To aid them the Ronsard Club has been established in Montmartre.

The members of this hard-times club—artists, musicians, poets, and journalists, who have fallen upon evil days—are assured of one substantial meal a day at the price of two francs (8c). Under certain conditions they may take their wives and children to enjoy meals there with them.

GIRLS DON'T BLUSH AREN'T DEMOISELLES

French Academy Expels Word as Obsolete

Paris.—The French Academy, in performance of its duties as guardian of the French tongue, has decided that the word "demoiselle" shall disappear from current speech. The reason is that the word no longer bears its old meaning.

In addition to being a title of honor it was used to describe those young ladies who, in another epoch, were all shyness and decorum. The "Immortals" have concluded that the word hardly fits young people of the present day.

"Demoiselles" possessed to a high degree the fine art of blushing. They drank only lemonade, milk, and, sometimes tea. The mademoiselle of our time drinks cocktails, smokes, and demands all the freedom which is accorded to her brothers.

JAP VISCOUNT FACES TRIAL ADVERTISED TITLE FOR SALE

Once Wealthy Noble Needed Money to Pay Off Debts

Tokio.—Head of one of the most ancient noble houses in Japan, Viscount Sukenobu Honda has been arraigned before the imperial household department for trying to sell his title for $25,000.

Viscount Honda, whose poverty has forced him to sell tea over the counter of a shop kept by one of his once rich father's former servants, wants the money to pay off his debts.

The viscount's offer was made in an advertisement which appeared in several Tokio newspapers, and which read:

Viscount of historic family wishes to adopt son or daughter. Upon settlement of his debts, which total $25,000, the head of the family will retire, and the purchaser can become viscount immediately.

In the event of a daughter being adopted, the title would go to her husband on her marriage, which would be arranged immediately on completion of the transaction.

The viscount's only real offence consists in having advertised his offer, since the sale of titles by marriage is not unknown in Japan, though it is generally discreetly done through a Nakodo, or marriage-broker.

Though 30 replies to the advertisements have been received, the viscount will plead that the whole matter has been arranged by sympathetic friends.

The imperial household, however, regards the advertisements as an insult to the prestige of the Japanese peerage.

NO SIDE JOBS FOR POLICE

Madrid.—About 1,500 policemen—nearly half the city's total force—are threatening to resign because of a decree ordering them to give up remunerative employment in their spare time.

GREEK POLICE FOIL ANTIQUE SMUGGLERS

Statutes Worth $750,000 Were To Be Sent to U.S.

Athens.—A keen-eared police officer who listened to the conversation of two peasants in a cafe here has discovered a plot to smuggle antique in gigantic quantities out of Greece.

One head of Apollo is stated to have been sold to the United States for $300,000, while a statue of the god is stated to have been bought in Germany for $450,000.

The peasants were followed, and it was discovered that they and their relations had been excavating all the ancient cemeteries of the city and selling their discoveries for export.

BURN MONEYLENDER WITH HIS FAMILY

Seven Jews Victims of Savage Murder in Poland

Warsaw.—A Jewish moneylender named Feld, his wife, and five of his children were the victims of a savage murder in the suburbs of Zolkiew, near Lwow. The motive was robbery.

The bodies of the murdered family were thrown in a heap. The house was then set on fire. The remains were found half burned.

HOLD-UP MAN HONEST

Belgrade.—A depositor of a bankrupt local bank at Subotica got his 19,000 dinars by levelling two revolvers at a teller. He came back a minute later to return 1,000, which the trembling bank clerk had overpaid, and was arrested for robbery.

INTERESTING STORY SEEN IN MARK STREET CLUB PLAY

Capacity Crowd Greets Initial Performance of "Happy Valley" in Church Hall.

ENACT PARTS WELL.

Through a story of love and happiness, jealousy and humiliation, danger and freedom, runs the golden thread of hope which leads the characters at last to happy days in "Happy Valley".

It takes a well-trained cast like the Mark Street Dramatic Club to bring this thrilling four-act comedy drama vividly before an appreciative and keenly interested audience

In choosing her cast Miss Annie Crocker the clever directress of plays showed a fine sense of fitness, for each player apparently lost his or her own identity in portraying the character assumed.

George Bernard Shaw says that the manner in which an actor speaks his lines is as important as the lines themselves. In their well-modulated voices, clarity of diction simplicity and grace in speaking, the members of this cast, added much to the text of the play, which ranged from he sublime to the ridiculous.

Seldom is such a realistic and beautiful setting provided for an amateur production as was seen last night, in every act of "Happy Valley".

Especially outstanding was the artistic work of E. G. Wright who was responsible for the fine scenic effect in the garden scenes.

For the first act which took place in a New York apartment, the up-to-date and appropriate furnishings were loaned through the courtesy of Cain Brothers.

Against this effective background the lovely gowns and typical costumes of both men and women showed to splendid advantage.

Called "Happy Valley"

In showing the Happy Valley home to Polly Camp the owner, Harry Steel, explains "I never saw my grand-dad angry. Everyone called him "Happy" so it was quite natural that he called his home "Happy Valley". It was to this peaceful scene in Michigan that Polly Camp had come with little Rose Steel who had been trying her wings in the big city. Here Polly had rescued Rose from a trap set for innocent country boys and girls, by her own crooked husband, Jim Camp. The story hinges upon the breaking away of Polly from this nefarious man and the looked-for solution was found in "Happy Valley".

Sad from years of suffering yet still sweet and womanly, Polly Camp is a most attractive character, especially as depicted by Miss Mabel Reynolds, who has won an enviable reputation in amateur dramatics.

William Smith, in the assured gangster type, played the villain, not only in the character of husband, but to both friend and foe. He was a dual personage, likeable while despicable. His unexpected exit from the family group proved a hapy release to them all.

Coming unfortunately under his influence, Charlie Burt regrets this association, and in reaction falls desperately in love with Rose, whom he follows to Happy Valley. These two present a charming picture of young love, and make a decided hit with their emotional audience. In youthful, unaffected style Miss Mary Terace and Carlyle Ferguson played these respective roles.

Polly Camp at last finds happiness in the upstanding young farmer, Harry Steele, who has welcomed the fugitives to his home. A decided contrast to Jim Camp, the real hero of the story, is this bright and happy young man who was excellently portrayed by Len Agnew, winning the approbation of all his listeners.

Of a somewhat shrewish type was Aunt Malinda, who not only managed the Happy Valley Home, but all the lives of the family as well. This difficult and highly amusing character was cleverly acted by Mrs. L. Agnew.

Good Comedy.

The quick dramatic action throughout was lightened by some mirth-provoking situations which were introduced chiefly by Sara and Pete, who were utterly unlike excepting in their love for one another.

In every word and movement Miss Jean Barringer's acting was a masterpiece of humorous interpretation of this awkward countrified girl, while Pete, typical East Side New York boy, was a riot, keeping the audience in one continuous gale of laughter. In this part Clarence Logan left nothing to be desired.

Altogether this play was an outstanding success adding one more well-deserved laurel to the already fine record of the Mark Street Dramatic Club.

Between acts musical numbers were also well received and included delightful piano numbers by Miss Frieda Klitcher and instrumental selections on guitar and accordion by Messrs. Furfie and Kenn. Too much credit canont be given to Miss Annie Crocker in directing this splendid performance. Mrs. Ed. Wand acted as treasurer for the evening, Mr. Larmer managing the curtain and Mr. Agnew the lighting.

MOLLISON NEARS JANEIRO.

CARAVELLAS, Brazil, February 11 (C.P.). — Captain James A. Mollison, continuing his speedy air journey from Lympne, England, after flying across the South Atlantic, took off at 7.55 a.m. (5.55 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) to-day for Rio de Janeiro.

The British speed pilot made the Atlantic hop from West Africa to Natal, Brazil, on Thursday, and continued here yesterday.

Sparks

OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 11 (A.P.)—Metal cleats on 10-year-old George Deppen's shoes made the sparks fly as he clattered over an iron manhole cover. The sparks ignited accumulated sewer gas. George landed running and didn't stop until he reached home. Then an ambulance took him to a hospital, where he was treated for severe burns and bruises.

VACANCIES SET RUMORS ASTIR

Two Commoners May Be Elevated, Thus Leaving 5 Gaps in Lower House.

JUDGE ON LIST.

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.— (C.P.) — Eight vacancies in the Senate and three in the House of Commons have set political circles buzzing with speculation as to whether early steps are to be taken to fill them. Interest is adde by the suggestion two members of the House of Commons may be elevated to the Senate, thus making five vacancies in the Lower House.

The names of two New Brunswick commoners, Hon. George B. Jones, of Royal, and B. Franklin Smith of Victoria-Carleton are mentioned in connection with the two vacant New Brunswick Senatorships. Should they be appointed it would make five open seats in the House of Commons.

Two names have also been mentioned in connection with Senate vacancies in Ontario. Horatio Hocken who represented Toronto West Centre in the House of Commons for many years and stepped aside at the last election only to have a Liberal capture his seat from T. L. Church is one. The other is Judge A. Constantineau of the County Court of Prescott and Russell.

Apointment of a Judge to the Senate is unusual, but there is a precedent for it back in the days of Sir John A. Macdonald. Judge Constantineau is the founder of the French-Canadian Educational Association and it is reported influential French-Canadians of Ontario favor him as a successor to the late Napoleon Belcourt.

STRIVE FOR ART SEEING BEAUTY IN ALL THINGS

Mrs. Alice Roger Collins Addresses Women's Art Association.

APPEAL FOR BEAUTY.

Address Alternated With Quotations From Verse and Piano Selections.

"You people here in Peterborough probably don't realize how much you owe to this Conservatory of Music and to your Art Association. When people wake up to the fact that art is more than a frill, then we will not lose out in our education, as we are doing now.

"Froebel, the great teacher of childhood believed that every sensation experienced from infancy on, was recorded somewhere in our mind and remained there forever. He said: 'I see in every child the possibility of a perfect man.'

Mrs. Alice Roger Collins of Walkerton, a native of this city, and niece of Miss Katherine Wallis, who has attained fame as a sculptress, spoke to the members of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association at their meeting yesterday afternoon in the Art Rooms of the Conservatory of Music. Mrs. Collins, who is a poetess and musician and member of the Authors' Association, spoke on "A Basis of Beauty," alternated with quotations from her own charming verse and piano selections played by herself.

The poetical interludes were lovely bits of haunting verse that lingered in the memory. They centered about the beauty in simple things like trees and running water and silence and children and their whims and fancies. The sonnets quoted thoughts on Peace and one was based on Holman Hunt's famous picture, "Shadow of the Cross," while another was entitled "I Have a Tryst with Life" and still another, a very beautiful brief thing, was called "Things We Love." The finale was a short poem which has been included in an English selection of the world's greatest poems.

Mrs. Collins played very skilfully several piano numbers, among them two of the Chopin Preludes and an Impromptu, a Mendelssohn Prelude, Liszt's second Love Dream and the Schumann—Liszt Fruhlingsnacht.

Appeal for Beauty

Like a recent speaker to the Art Association, Miss Ambrose, Mrs. Collins made an eloquent appeal to her listeners to strive for the art of seeing beauty in all things.

"The chaotic state in which every country finds itself to-day would never have come to pass if each country had made one of its basic stones this of beauty," she declared. "Art has been neglected and left out of our national life. Our system has been to develop speed in all things: speed in driving, speed in thinking, speed in getting rich and this very speedy living has brought about a subtraction in money affairs and a reduction in high and low places. We have become the slaves of material values.

"The children are the future parents of our country and it must be from us that they get the basis of their life work."

Mrs. Collins quoted Professor Sandwell in a recent address as declaring that the education of to-day dwelt only in facts and not in preparedness for the business of life. "One of the essentials of education should be a love of beauty and a love of color, form and rhythm. Parents and teachers must be great souls and there is nothing that can make the soul expand like the love of a child. 'Youth asks for reasons, not for rules; there's more than Latin to make plain'," quoted the speaker, and "however high our roofs may reach, we need great souls to make great schools."

Those who are in touch with children should not give vent to such expressions as "Oh, what a beastly day," nor "what wretched weather." The child should be taught to see the beauty that is in the rain. It should also be made to see beauty in vegetable and animal life, "the life of a hyacinth bulb or of a tadpole, for it is not only the birds that sing that are really beautiful. The green caterpillar on the cabbage leaf at which most of us shudder may be made just as beautiful to the child, if we train him early enough.

"Then there is the beauty and sacredness of the human body and the interdependence of all things beneath the sun."

Relation of the Arts

Mrs. Collins referred to the relationship that exists between the arts saying that one of the great causes of Browning's strength lay in the fact that he was enthusiastic about all forms of art. He wrote of a fugue, for instance, with knowledge, because he knew what it was and he could play a fugue himself. "If we could realize this inter-relation and kindredship in the arts, the ugly and crude would be taken out of our movies and no paper would be tolerated that dared to print ugly and sensational affairs."

Quoting from the poem, "The Art of Alma Tadema," she said: "There is no song his colors cannot sing, for all his art breathes melody."

"We should look for beauty everywhere, in people as well as in nature, and many a mis-shapen body may cover a flaming soul. A mean spirit is not characteristic of a whole nation. Most people are just about as good as they can be, with the chance they have.

"In time, if we study art, there will be developed that wonderful saviour from war that the late John Galsworthy alluded to as "International Thought." And that is not the kind of patriotism we used to call patriotism, the sort that stood up and said: 'This is the country to which I belong. All the other countries are wrong. We are the people. When we went to battle, we won because we were in the right, and if we lost, then there was something wrong about it.'

"No, we should say: "This is my country. I have been placed here to help make it one of the most beautiful places on earth. May I be true to the truth, pure in heart and loyal to God and my friends and never forget that all true citizens of other countries may be as true to their land as I am to mine."

"So, we could take this life, which is a tangled mess and change it to loveliness. Try to see the beauty in nature and in people, to give every child the opportunity to realize that beauty. And there will follow toleration and those international relationships which in time will bring to this tangled mess the great boon of peace."

Mrs. W. Blackwell, president of the society, introduced the speaker. Afternoon tea was served at the conclusion of the talk.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

Did you ever try to make a specialized collection of one particular kind of stamp? By that, I mean, stamps showing pictures of animals, birds, ships, buildings, flowers, aeroplanes and many other things such as are shown on postage stamps. Such specializing does not necessarily need to be expensive, and it is lots of fun for the collector.

From time to time I'll show a few stamps of each different type, and for today I have chosen a few animal stamps. A collection of these is most interesting; on stamps may be found almost every imaginable kind of animal, and if you have a little time to spare as well as a few extra cents, you will find plenty of fun in making up such a collection.

The pictures taking up a considerable amount of space, I haven't much room left to give details of each stamp, but I'm sure you will enjoy looking up information in your dictionary or encyclopaedia.

At top left is shown Malay tapir, native of North Borneo, and this fellow is one you won't find in any circus and few, if any zoos. The stamp is chocolate brown around the outside, with the centre picture in black.

Next is the elephant and mahout. This stamp gives us an interesting and clear-cut picture of this huge pachyderm with his native trainer and keeper, whose power to control the elephant is almost uncanny. Color is light brown and black.

Then there is the rhinoceros. For such a small picture details are exceptionally clear on this stamp. The color is olive green and black. Although this stamp catalogues at only six cents, it is not so easy to secure as its catalogue value would indicate.

First on the second line is the wild boar. This fellow seems to be in a hurry for some reason or other. The color is bright blue, with black again for the centre part.

These first four stamps all belong to one issue of North Borneo, and are just a very few of many attractive stamps issued by that far away and little known island located in the Pacific ocean, to the south of China. A collection of North Borneo stamps provides one with a great variety of animals, birds, native people and scenes, and most of the stamps are in two colors, greatly added to their attractiveness.

Centre right a ferocious and charging tiger is shown. It is on many of the stamps of the Federated Malay States. Many varieties of these stamps are quite common, and a fine variety may be collected at little cost. The stamps shown has an ultramarine border, with the center and tiger in black.

Tanganyika gives us a close-up of the rather homely giraffe (second from lower left). The giraffe head is printed in black, the rest of the stamp being in dark violet. Different color combinations are used on the various value of this issue, which when properly mounted is very attractive.

And last, but not least, the gnus. Quite a frisky looking pair, brought to use from the Union of South Africa. The outside border of this stamp is deep blue with the centre part in bistre brown. These stamps are neither expensive nor very hard to get, and will certainly look well in any collection.

Having taken up my allotted space already, I will have to leave many things unsaid. Regarding these stamps, I will only add that the stamps themselves have to be seen before they can be appreciated.

Don't miss next week's article, when I hope to have a very important and interesting announcement to make. I'll say just this—that you may be able to very easily win some fine stamps.

The author will be pleased to answer all questions regarding stamps or stamp collecting. If your question is of general interest it will be answered in this column. If a written reply is required please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address your letter in care of this paper.

THE COMMUNITY CAMPAIGN FUND

DESERVES YOUR HEARTIEST CO-OPERATION

This week has been a very trying one on many of our citizens. In these homes everything is limited, must necessarily be so or the cost would be such that the service could not be continued, and it will have to be carried on for some time to come.

Just imagine going through this week with the maximum of fuel on hand, half a cord of wood which has to be carefully used; with limited food supplies, clothing, bedding and everything else that makes comfortable living. More than 3,000 of our citizens have gone through this trying experience, and it should appeal to everyone more fortunately situated to help out in this time of stress for so many.

A subscription, no matter how small, is gratefully received and the amount is augmented two for one by government aid.

Every club, association, factory, individual or organization of any kind will be assured of the maximum of value being obtained if they contribute to the Community Campaign Fund.

These funds are carefully expended by the Central Relief Board, through the City Relief Officer.

Think the matter over and decide over the week-end to make a contribution to this very necessary fund for the relief of many of our distressed citizens. Mail cheques to

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

TORONTO, Feb 11—Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 44c to 46c; oats, 23c to 24c; barley, 32c to 35c; corn, 33c to 35c; rye, 30c to 32c; buckwheat, 28c to 29c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 11. — Lessened confidence of speculators who had bought wheat on reports of crop damage from abnormal weather led to late downturns of grain values yesterday.

Enlarged shipments of wheat from Argentina and Australia had a contributing bearish effect. The two countries have put 11,591,000 bushels afloat this week, compared with 8,631,000 last week, and 9,743,000 a year ago.

Wheat closed easy, ¼c to ½c under Thursday's finish; corn, unchanged to ⅛c down; oats, unchanged to a shade lower, and provisions, unchanged to 5c off.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 11.—Egg prices advanced a cent a dozen on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

The extreme cold weather again provided the reason for the upturn and quotations in the last two days after gaining up to three cents a dozen. Fresh graded extras in carlots or less were quoted at 23 to 24 cents, firsts at 21 to 22 cents, pullets at 20 to 21 cents and seconds at 18 to 19 cents a dozen. Receipts were 1,019 cases.

Butter eased fractionally, No. 1 grass make losing a quarter of a cent at 20¼ to 20½ cents a pound. Receipts were 30 boxes.

Current receipts of Ontario cheese was quoted at 9 cents for white, 10 cents for colored and 10½ to 11¼ cents a pound. Receipts were 106 boxes.

Potatoes held unchanged, New Brunswick Green Mountains being quoted at 75 cents per 80-pound bag, Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at 80 to 85 cents per 80-pound bag, and at 90 to 95 cents per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 11.— Trading practically ceased half-way through yesterday's session of the Winnipeg grain market, and wheat prices, reacting from earlier advances, closed fractionally lower. It was the quietest session of the week, with the pit at times deserted.

Easing from ⅛c gain registered at the opening, May delivery closed at 47⅜c, July at 48¼c, and October at 49⅜c, a net decline of ⅛c to ¼c from Thursday's finish.

Trading Brisk at Opening.

Trading started off briskly under the impetus of reported moderate export sales, with good support given by Vancouver purchases. Taking its cue from Liverpool, however the market turned lower, and trading thereafter dried up to near the vanishing point.

New records for this season's wheat shipments were set by Australia when the week's clearances were announced yesterday. Pressing heavily upon the Liverpool Exchange, more than 7,000,000 bushels of wheat were shipped from "down under," most of which, however, went to the Orient.

As usual, cash and coarse grains continued lifeless. Not a single trade was recorded in rye futures.

Presentation Made To Society Member

WARKWORTH, Feb. 11. — The regular meeting of St. John's Anglican Guild was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Duncan with a large attendance.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon was the reading of an address by Miss Louise Brooks, and the presentation of a beautiful silver rose bowl to one of their valued members, Mrs. Mowat, who has also given her services as organist in St. John's church for a number of years.

Although Mrs. Mowat was completely taken by surprise she responded in a few well chosen words, and stated that it was only a pleasure to give her services.

Rev. Mr. Floyd closed the meeting with prayer after which Mrs. Duncan served a bountiful lunch and a social time spent together.

Of the 2000 known kinds of germs and bacteria, only about 100 are believed to be harmful. The other 1900 varieties are necessary to life in one manner or another.

RHEUMATISM SO EXCRUCIATING WEIGHT OF SHEET HURT TERRIBLY

Fortunately her mother remembered T-R-C's. Relief from Pain immediate. Rheumatism driven right out.

"Two years ago I had a dreadful attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism," writes Miss Ruth Sage, Willowdale, Ontario. "The pain was excruciating. Mother put a cardboard box over me to keep the weight of the bed clothes off, for the weight even of a sheet hurt me terribly. My knees and hands were swelled and out of shape, and all the treatment I was getting did me little good.

"Then mother remembered that seven years before she had used T-R-C's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules). She got me a $1 box right away, and it was wonderful to find I got relief right from the first dose. A box or two got me around again; and after three or four $1 boxes I was satisfied they had driven every trace of the Rheumatism from me." Deep-rooted, stubborn cases of Rheumatism require patient and correct use of T-R-C's for a reasonable length of time; but you are sure of relief if you persist with T-R-C's. Repeatedly they have given safe, speedy relief from Acute Rheumatic suffering; also from Sciatica, (stabbing pain in hip and thigh), Neuritis, Neuralgia and Lumbago (Lame Back). No harmful or habit-forming drugs.

T-R-C's do this—Enter the blood stream and help your body throw off the misery-causing poisons which have accumulated in your blood. When these go, health and happiness return. T-R-C's are 50c and $1 per box at your dealer's. 225

MANVERS PAIR 25 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Strong Observe Silver Wedding Anniversary.

BALLYDUFF AUXILIARY MET

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Feb. 11. — On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Strong, of the 8th line of Manvers, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding.

At about 8 o'clock approximately one hundred guests had gathered at the beautiful spacious farm home, expressing congratulations and warm greetings. The major part of the evening was spent in card playing and dancing, with music furnished by Bert Porter, Jack Galloway and several others.

During the early part of the evening the bride and groom of twenty five years ago were asked to take a prominent place in the room.

Mr. Fred Grey, Reeve of Manvers, read a suitable address, expressive of appreciation of the past association of the Strong family and of best wishes for future days. Messrs Leslie Challice and Otta Spencer then made the presentation of a handsome cabinet of silver. Several miscellaneous gifts of silver were also presented.

Mr. and Mrs. Strong (nee Bersey Challice) settled at Ballyduff following their marriage. Later they moved to Cadmus, and thirteen years ago moved to their present home. They have four sons and four daughters.

At midnight a dainty buffet luncheon was served, a handsome three-tier cake making an attractive centrepiece for the table. Beautiful candles in silver holders added to the decorative scheme.

The younger guests continued to enjoy fun and frolic until an early hour of the morning, the occasion being a most enjoyable one for all present.

Ballyduff Auxiliary Meets

The Women's Auxiliary of the Ballyduff Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. Albert Farrow on Thursday evening for their Feb. meeting. There were about eight ladies present, and the regular officers were in charge.

Plans for sewing of aprons, etc., were made and will be continued at the March meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Gray.

At the close of the meeting the gentlemen who had accompanied the ladies to the meeting, joined them for refreshments, which were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Fred Gray and Mrs. Harry Gray.

Mr. George Argue, who recently sold his farm property on the 8th line, has recently purchased the Lifford blacksmith shop and former home of Mr. Norton Mills.

MAYOR STEWART SAYS RELIEF NOT PERPETUAL

Serves Notice Governments May Not Be Able to Continue Aid.

CITIZENSHIP LEAGUE.

TORONTO — Representatives of practically every organization in the city, social, fraternal and religious, over 150 public-spirited men and women gathered in Eaton's College street store last night to complete further organization details of the Citizen's Friendship League, established to create personal contact between welfare organizations and destitute families receiving relief.

In addition to the already organized committee under the chairmanship of Col. J. A. Cooper, committees representative of each of nine wards were elected to work under the central committee. It is proposed each member of the organization will assume responsibility for care of a destitute family in addition to assistance already given to them by direct relief.

Mayor Stewart, sponsor of the organization, appealed to all who are able to assist in protecting the more unfortunate citizens against those who are intent on "sowing seeds of discontent."

"I am serving notice upon you," warned his worship. "Just how long governments can continue this work is doubtful. I regret to say conditions are not improving. We have about 23,000 families on direct relief and over 46,000 children. In round figures, about 100,000 people or about one-seventh of the population. And we have peace in Toronto."

"There is no field so ripe and ready for crime as the single unemployed men," said Commissioner of Welfare A. W. Laver. "If they had not been taken care of I am sure the city would not have had such a low crime record as it had during the past two years

$2 RECEIVED FOR FUND
The Examiner has received $2.00 from a "Friend at Hall's Bridge," which is greatly appreciated. The Examiner Relief Fund has spent over $4,000 in the past three years in little services to those who needed them, that it was not possible for other Relief Funds to take care of. The biggest percentage of this money has been earned through dances, concerts, etc., but some friends, such as above mentioned, have sent in donations to augment the fund, and these have been very gratefully received.

33 CHIMNEY ALARMS.
Thirty-three fire alarms caused by defective chimneys and overheated stove pipes have been answered by the City Fire Department during the present month, and of that total over fifty per cent. of the alarms have been received within the past few days of sub-zero weather.

Of the five alarms received yesterday, two minor fires were started by the use of blow torches in the thawing out of frozen water pipes.

Chief George Gimblett warns citizens against the dangerous use of blow torches on frozen water pipes, and advises the use of hot water and cloth wrappings.

GOT DATES MIXED
Although it is milder to-day there is still little excuse for the butterfly, which Ray Pacquette found flitting about in the stairway to some downtown offices this morning, to be abroad. The butterfly, a little white fellow that is usually seen circling about the cabbage plants in August, seemed to be enjoying itself in its dizzy flights up and down the stairway. Just another one of Nature's children which got its dates mixed.

EXAMINATIONS ARE LATER THIS YEAR

Period This Summer Extends From June 26 to July 11.

Departmental examinations seem to be a long way ahead; particularly in view of the present spell of cold weather, but already timetables and schedules have been sent out by the Department of Education. Changes are noted that will necessitate Middle and Upper school candidate to write papers during a portion of their annual summer vacation. The examination period extends from June 26 to July 11.

High School Entrance examinations are scheduled to start at 1.30 p.m. on Thursday, June 29. Middle School examinations are slated to open on Monday, June 26, and the Upper School on the same date.

The first examinations for Lower School work are to commence on Thursday, June 29, and continue to Wednesday, July 5.

The Middle and Upper Schools do not complete their quota of work until Tuesday, July 11, thus encroaching upon the holiday period. Wednesday, July 5 sees the final examination so far as the High School Entrance pupils are concerned.

IN MEMORIAM

JONES—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away February 12, 1931.
She used to watch and wait for us,
Anxious if we were late—
In winter by the window,
In summer by the gate.

Her thoughts were always full of us,
She never could forget,
And so we think that where she is
She must be watching for us yet.

Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love and memory outlast all;
Friends are friends if they are true,
Dear mother to-day they are but few.
We lost our best friend, when we lost you.
Farewell and God bless you,
Mother dear, till we meet again.
—Ever remembered by her children, Eric Dick, Hazel, Wilfred and Elsie.

IN MEMORIAM

JONES—In loving memory of our dear sister, Elsie, Mrs. Wilfred Jones, who passed away February 12, 1931.

In the loving arms of Jesus
Rests our sister evermore.

GOD REQUIRES EVERYTHING MAN IS ABLE TO GIVE

Does Not Want Part of Your Heart, He Wants it All.

INDIAN REVIVALS.

Rev. E. L. Quirk Addresses Audience in Murray Street Church.

"You cannot give God a part of your heart. You must give Him all. He must be Master of every section and cross section of our lives. He must be Master of our hearts, our business our homes and our factories. Would God the people of Canada would learn that lesson as we learned it so bitterly on the foreign field.

"I am not telling you to-night the story of the Indian Revival I am telling you what ought to be done in Peterborough. I am telling you what has been done in many other places and I am telling you the story of what God is willing to do in Peterborough, if you are willing to pay the price for victory, if you are willing to dare it!"

The last sentences, impressively uttered, were the conclusion of a very eloquent, brief address given in Murray Street Baptist Church last evening by the Rev. E. L. Quirk, missionary from India, who is speaking here during this week-end and on Monday evening, at services in the two Baptist churches of the city.

Last evening, the gathering was held under the auspices of the Women's Mission Circle of Murray Street Church, and the president of the society, Mrs. Bert Jackson, took the devotional part of the hm took the devotional period, assisted by Mrs. Harvey of Lakefield and Mrs. G. R. Scott, president of the Mission Circle of the Park Street Baptist Church.

The choir was in attendance, with A. Collison at the organ, and the speaker was introduced by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

Indian Revivals

The Rev. Mr. Quirk described for his audience some of the scenes in connection with the recent revivals in Northern India, "in the land of the Telagu", as he phrased it.

"So many Christians read the Scriptures and learned that Jesus lived and died, and for many, that is the end. But, brothers and sisters, think that the Lord Jesus is alive, that He will talk to our souls and that we can hear His voice, if, and when, we dare to pay the price with God."

Utter subjection to the Divine will was the price demanded, asserted the speaker, who described the manner in which he and his brother missionaries had at first selfishly demanded of God that He would raise up other men to be a flame of fire among the unbelievers. Later, they came to realize that they themselves must be the burning brand to do the work and "then, and then only, God answered our prayer."

"The hardest thing was to get up and confess our sins before those people, we, the ruling white race, and they, the subject race. But God spoke to our hearts and we paid the price."

Rev. Mr. Quirk described how the heathen people reacted to the revival meetings and came to the front and confessed their sins in public, "and the blood of Jesus gave them peace and joy and they went out to live for Him. Sometimes they were in torment and sometimes they tried every other way to gain peace, but it was of no avail.—Elijah's God has answered by fire. Elijah's God is living today.

"A revival of Pentecost does not necessarily mean shouting of hallelujahs. It may be the quietest thing there is, but there is one thing that is certain, it will set souls on fire."

Speaking of the splendid work in converting souls to Christ, done by many of the Indian converts, the speaker asked: "Does it not shame us in our churches in a Christian land? How many souls have we won for Christ in our lifetime? If one soul were on fire here tonight, it could set all Peterborough afire with zeal in the work of the Lord."

JONES. — In loving memory of my dear wife, Mrs. Wilfred Jones, who passed away two years ago, February 12, 1931, Peterborough.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind—
A beautiful memory she left behind.

My lips cannot speak how I loved her,
My heart cannot tell what to say:
God alone knows how I miss her
In my heart that is lonesome to-day.

At the conclusion of the meeting, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, and a social half hour enjoyed.

Billy Blue Billed For Winter Gardens

A big time is promised to the patrons at the Winter Gardens tonight where, in addition to the regular dance program with music supplied by Stan Williams and his Montreal melody men, a "bang-up" cabaret feature is to be staged.

Billy Blue, radio broadcast announcer, and graduate of New York Academy of Music, is the top-liner. A wizard with both the uke and guitar and a vocalist of no mean order, he will be supported by Florence Robertson.

Miss Robertson is co-starring with Blue in dancing and singing numbers.

Blue, it is learned, was at one time on Loew's Vaudeville Circuit. He was billed in a feature act as Capozzie and Blue.

Father Of Willis Sues For Damages

Claiming unstated damages, a writ has been issued in Supreme Court of Ontario by Parish & Fitzpatrick of Brockville, on behalf of Henry Willis, adminstrator of the estate of John Clark Willis, deceased, against The Globe Printing Company of Toronto, and Roy F. McLean of Alliston.

The claim is for damages for the death of plaintiff's son, John Clark Willis, from injuries received as a result of a collision between motor vehicles of the defendants on Highway 28 at Centreville on the morning of November 17, 1932.

It is alleged that the fatality, which caused loss of two lives and serious injury to the defendant McLean, was the result of negligence on the part of the defendants. At the time of the accident, Willis was riding in a truck owned and operated by The Globe Printing Company.

HONORABLE DR. ROBB SPEAKS AT CONSERVATIVE BANQUET

Party Works Stage a Successful Gathering of Workers at Hastings on Wednesday.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS.

HASTINGS, Feb. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Liberal-Conservative party workers of Hastings staged a very successful banquet on Wednesday night in the Town Hall. Despite the very inclement weather and the condition of the roads, visitors were present from Cobourg, Colborne, Roseneath, Warkworth and Campbellford.

The dinner was served by the Ladies' Aid of Trinity United Church, and was one of the most bountiful repasts ever served in the local hall. The tables were very prettily decorated. Nearly one hundred guests sat down at the long tables, while at the head table were seated, The Hon. Dr. Robb, Minister of Health in the Henry Government; Rev. P. J. Kelley, Rev. S. H. Hill, B.A., Rev. H. J. Bell, B.A., F. J. McArthur, M.P.P., Major J. F. Belford, W. Pacey, Reeve of the Township of Alnwick; Alex Wilson, vetern clerk of the village; Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hess and Mrs. H. J. Bell.

Dr. J. H. Hess, vice-president of the party in the village acted as chairman and toastmaster.

After taking their seats Jack Storey who was accompanied by Mrs. Storey on the piano was a very capably leader for many of the old time favorites with everyone joining in very lustily.

Chairman Dr. Hess called upon Rev. H. J. Bell, B.A., to say 'grace.'

Between courses more singing was enjoyed after which Mr. Storey rendered a solo "I Never See Maggie Alone."

The toast to King was respondde to by all rising and singing the National Anthem.

The toast to the village was proposed by C. B. Plant, the toast was responded to by Rev. P. J. Kelley, who extended a hearty welcome to the visitors. During his address Rev. Father Kelley told many stories that put the crowd in high spirits.

Rev. H. J. Bell, B.A., in repiying to the toast also stated that being a resident only for the last four years he could say very little of the history of the village, but could not say too much in praise of the dinner served by the ladies.

Rev. S. H. Hill, B.A., was much in the same position being here for the last five weeks, but during that short space had found the best of co-operation among the residents. Hastings was much better the way it is at present than it would be if any city or large town.

Rising to respond to the toast also Hastings grand old citizen Mr. Alex Wilson, village clerk for forty-five years received a big hand from the crowd. The veteran clerk gave a brief outline of Hastings in the early days. The present depression was caused by the way the world has been spending was his opinion, he recalled when farm products were cheaper than they are at present and people had plenty. The doing away of the Rural mail would save the county a considerable sum. He extended a cordial invitation to the visitors to return in the summer and view the beautiful scenery.

Rev. H. Battersby was to respond also but he was unable to attend.

Major Belford

Major Belford the first speaker to be called upon was greeted with hearty applause. In opening his address the speaker took exception to Hastings claiming all the beautiful scenery when it really belongs to Percy Boom.

A great deal could be accomplished if the Liberals and Conservatives would put their heads together and use the brains God gave them to pull the country through.

There was not much more that could be done in the Province Ontario than what the present Government are doing.

In addressing the ladies he was of the opinion that better legislation has been brought out since they obtained their franchise.

He was pleased to see a number of Liberals present. Liberals were alright it was good thing there were some as long as they could be kept in the minority, drew a big applause from the gathering.

It was an empty boast to beat a man at the ballot box, the boast worth while was the accomplishment of some thing worth while for Canada and Canadians.

He was pleased to note that the Government had cut the school grant twenty per cent. This would not appeal to the trustee boards at the present time but in the near future they would reap the benefit.

F. J. McArthur, M.P.P. proposed the toast to Ontario.

Hon. Dr. Robb

Introducing the Hon. Dr. Robb, he spoke of him as the family physician who knew all your aches and troubles who was glad to be able to come and sit around the banquet table for a friendly talk.

The Hon. Dr. Robb arose to the singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." In opening his address he expressed his delight at the banquet put over by the ladies.

It was his first visit to the County of Northumberland, the riding so ably represented by Mr. McArthur, the most persistent member in the House.

In addressing the local clergy, he inquired why it was that the greatest number of patients came to a doctor's office on a Monday morning. It must have been the sermons.

Times might be worse than they are at present. He could remember selling eggs for 9c, butter 12 and potatoes 20c. We have no Joseph who can gather from the seven good years for the seven lean ones. As the hour was getting late he would only touch very briefly on a lot of the subjects in regards to the Government.

Armaments must be reduced, tariff walls brought down and debts lowered and good times would come back.

He was very much inclined to keep away from the so much talked of inflated dollar. The financial condition of the world is like water and must come back to its level.

The barter question was another proposition in which the Minister was not inclined to favor. The people of the Dominion of Canada must look at this question in a serious way.

He thought he was coming to address Conservatives but as there were a number of Liberals present he was pleased as they needed it worse. The Liberals were very fine fellows but why do they fool themselves at election time.

The Ontario Government had been criticized for spending too freely. Now is the time for retrenchment and millions alone have been cut on education. He also gave the figures and departments where the reductions which amounted to $4,623,000 had been made. The Government had the exchange at New York which was considerable and relief which amounted to $13,750,000.

Department Relief

The Department of Health had worked out a schedule for relief purposes which has been carried out very successfully throughout the province. Everyone got what was needed in an effort to promote good health.

The Conservative party were always called and criticized as the wealthy party, whereas everyone was obliged to work his way along in the party. They were not imposing taxes on the poor, but on those who could pay such taxes as succession, gas, markers, corporations, race tracks and liquor did not greatly effect the poor. They were trying to put the tax where it should be paid.

The Minister of Health also had the figures on the provincial debt and what the province had to pay it with.

He wondered if the Liberals who are now going around the country who were in Parliament during the term of Sir Henry Thornton made any attempt to check him up.

The Henry Government had been able to borrow money much cheaper than what the province were paying when they took office.

In speaking of the Department of which he is head of he stated good health was the country's greatest asset. It was very important to guard a healthy community.

The main object of the Department of Health is to prevent disease.

The lives of the expectant mother should be guaranteed. Last year over 440 women lost their lives performing this noble duty. Everything possible is being done by the Department for the mother. Looking after the Canadian born child was another big task with the Department. By the use of radium which will be produced in Canada before very long, most cases of cancer can be cured. The Cabinet Minister dealt with difficult diseases and the cures that they had been able to find, all which would show the Department of Health was not spending too much money.

Solo, Jack Storey.

The chairman in a few remarks thanked those who responded to the invitations and the speakers, Mr. and Mrs. Storey of Campbellford and anyone who in any way helped to make it such a success.

C. R. Fowlds proposed the toast to the ladies and Dr. W. E. Wilson responded.

Richard Honey of Dartford was called upon and in a few remarks stated he had been voting Conservative for sixty years.

S. L. Terrill of Wooler also expressed thanks to the ladies.

The banquet was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save the King."

WIDE AWAKES

Millbrook Girls Plan to Challenge Tuxis Square to Debate.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 11 (Examiner Correspondence) — The weekly meeting of the Wide Awakes group Canadian Girls in Training was featured by a dramatization of the Bible story of Abraham and the Three Guests, the characters being Abraham, Marian O'Brian; Sarah, Helen Mitchell; the Three Guests, Mary Burnham, Bryar Edmunds, and Anna Rowland. Appropriate costumes added to the effectiveness of the story, and soft music was played at points when action and not speech prevailed, the whole closing with the hymn, "Sowing in the Morning, Sowing Seeds of Kindness."

The dramatization will be repeated at the meeting of Golden Links Mission Circle on Tuesday, February 14, when the group meets with the other society, the gathering to be at the home of the newly-elected president, Miss Gertrude Spence.

Business items included the decision to observe the special C.G.I.T. program, open to the public and called for by the National Girls' Work Board, by sending a challenge to the Tuxis Square inviting two of their members to debate against two from the group the subject to be: "Resolved that Paul was a greater man than Moses." The girls will choose the negative side of the argument, and the program will also feature C.G.I.T. songs, a sketch of the work for the Dominion, and the 'Taps' closing.

The weekly remembrance for the shut-in members was arranged for, and the poem, "Being a Girl," was read before the closing prayer in unison.

"Scarves" Her Way

Fay Wray wearing scarf beach dress.

By MME. LISBETH

"Scarving her way to fame. That is what Fay Wray, well known screen player, is doing in this photograph. Her new beach costume is made of square scarves in an intricate Paisley pattern. If you want to make one you can take big handkerchiefs to serve the same purpose. Notice the flare to the skirt, the swathed waist and the scarf effect at the neck. The back is exposed to the sun, of course. The big straw hat may be worn without a crown, or another scarf may be snapped into place, tied jauntily over one ear, to give a slightly practical effect. This long lounging dress for the sand will be one of the popular garments for the beach this coming summer."

Missionary Society Change Presbytery

MILLBROOK, Feb. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—Quiet music, followed by sentence prayers, appropriately opened the February meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Church, held on Wednesday afternoon, the decision to ask for a change from the Cobourg to the Peterborough Presbyterial for purposes of convenience from many standpoints, being one of the features of business period.

Mrs. Stinson read the devotional leaflet, "The Woman of the Home," and the highlight of the program was the comprehensive report of the recent W.M.S. Presbyterial held at Brighton by Miss Estelle Hetherington. The allocation of the Cobourg Presbytery last year was $12,501, and the amount raised $9,470.72, leaving a deficit of over three thousand dollars; only two Auxiliaries, Brighton and Warkworth, reached their allocation, while Fenella and Norham increased their givings from the previous year.

A duet, "Keep Telling it everywhere," by Mrs. G. W. Sayles and Mrs. P. Stinson closed the convention story, and the president announced that the March meeting will be in charge of the executive.

Millbrook Society Enrolls Two New Members—Plan Afternoon Tea.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. J. Albert Brown was hostess for the February meeting of St. Andrew's Ladies' Association, the newly-elected president, Mrs. F. J. Smith, taking the chair for the first time, a gratifying number of members and visitors being in attendance, two new names, Miss M. Mullen and Mrs. G. Freelove, being enrolled.

Letters of thanks from various recipients of the society's remembrance at Christmas time were read by the secretary, Mrs. E. J. Thornton, and the request of the local Tuxis Square, through its president Gerald Todd, for assistance with their share-selling campaign met with a favorable response, a five dollar share to be purchased, the same as last year.

BETWEEN BOOK ENDS

"ANN VICKERS," by Sinclair Lewis. 1933.—The publication of the much anticipated "Ann Vickers" affords an opportunity for a re-estimation of the author and all the criticism, sane and hysterical, which has grown up around him. Up until 1920 Sinclair Lewis was a free-lance journalist, among other free-lance journalists, who had written a few boys' books under the pen-name of "Tom Graham," and a few other mediocre romances. And then he took a year off to write him a serious novel. "Main Street," as you know, was the result. And after its amazing success, other novels along the same vein appeared—"Babbit," "Elmer Gantry," "Arrowsmith," "Dodsworth" and now "Ann Vickers." Mr. Lewis won recognition and fame amid applause and slander, hatred and contempt. In 1930 the Nobel Prize fell to him—the first American to be so honored. There has been much bitter criticism as to whether Mr. Lewis is a realist, dealing as a realist deals with the truth of experience in American life; or whether he is a practising sociologist with a fine talent and a burning rage, caricaturing the America of our time with a moral purpose akin to Swift's. For if Mr. Lewis writes primarily as a satirist, then the brilliancy of his work is not open to much questioning. But if he is for realism, then his instruments are defective and a large part of the work he has done bears the stamp of superficiality and is merely grotesque.

In "Elmer Gantry," "Arrowsmith" and "Ann Vickers" it is apparent that Sinclair Lewis sets out to make a sociological survey. These books set forth his findings. It is also apparent that Mr. Lewis had decided upon that which he was to find before he began his inquiry. And inflamed by a great hatred, he employs his earnestness, strength and talent to write these headlong satires on hypocrisy and commercialism. A realist novel about a priest or a bacteriologist would require more subtlety and intimacy of understanding than ever Elmer or Martin receive. If you care to review all of Mr. Lewis's characters you will be hard put to find a complex, fully-developed person. Mr. Lewis paints before our eyes whole panoramas of social classes, genealogy and history, but it is violently caricatured and the facts are outraged and contorted. And now we have "Ann Vickers," the story of a young American woman, single-minded, dogged, honest with herself and capable of the tumultuous activity that gets things done in this world. She becomes a college woman, a suffragette, a social worker, and finally the supuerintendent of a prison. Stark and rasping is the presentation of prison life with all its futility, squalor, graft and beastliness. Between his flaming indictments, Mr. Lewis has used a "naturalistic" treatment of life; long, drab, uninspired reportings, moving sluggishly in the tempo of every-day life.

Mr. Lewis hasn't practised a very sure choice of omission. The technique of "Ann Vickers" will irritate the critical reader of novels and the story itself will probably bore the none-critical reader. In fact, this book will please very few. But then it wasn't written to please.

As Bernard De Voto has recently said: "Mr. Lewis is too unscrupulous a satirist, too defective a technician, too limited by the intellectual and emotional cliches of his generation, too naive and too earnest. Sinclair Lewis, nevertheless, knows America better than any other of the novelists of his generation, and he has conspicuously what they lack; fecundity and strength." There you have him.

"OF THEE I SING," by George Kaufman, Morris Ryskind, with lyrics and music by Ira and George Gerswhin.—"Of Thee I Sing" has just closed in New York City after a run of 55 weeks. It has been obtainable in book form for some time, and is now headed for the talking picture (we tremble), although Kaufman's "Once in a Lifetime" which ran here recently was a hugh success as a film. As a play, "Of Thee I Sing" won the 1931 Pulitzer Prize, offered to the play "best representing the educational value and power of the American stage." Why it has not enjoyed more popularity as a book is difficult to understand, for it is one of the most uproariously effective satires on American politic and credulity ever written. Its tempo is that of the mordant caricaturing of the "New Yorker," typically American, unsubtle and lethal. This is a book which you much approach with your silk-hat cocked jauntily over your mind and with gay tunes playing in the back of your head. We suggest "Of Thee I Sing" as an antidote for "Ann Vickers."

Tribute Is Paid To Late President

HAVELOCK, Feb. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—Two minutes of remembrance, while the members stood silently in the Council Chamber, at the regular meeting of Havelock Women's Institute, was the tribute paid to the memory of the late Mrs. T. P. Lancaster, former president who at the last meeting one month ago, was so bright and interested in all the plans for the advancement of the branch, and was stricken so suddenly one week later, and passed away after only a few hours illness.

Mrs. Hoffman, first vice-president will occupy the chair for the remainder of the term.

The report of the sewing committee was submitted by Mrs. Easterbrooke. Two layettes have been made, and everything started has been finished. It was decided to hold a meeting of the Library Board at the home of Mrs. L. A. Gould on Monday evening, February 8th, when new books will be chosen and other business discussed.

Reports of the parties held according to the plans made for diminishing bridge were made. Twelve dollars has been added to the treasury as a result of the parties held to date. Mrs. Hoffman had the three table party, Mrs. Armstrong, a two table bridge, Mrs. Chiles, Mrs. Gould and Mrs. Wes. Johnston have held a tea and entertained those who do not play cards. A number of other parties are pending.

There's a wealth of rich flavor in a small quantity of this tea.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind.

WARSAW

(Continuing Dr. Munro's Health Address)

In the case of that terribly dreaded disease diphtheria there is an absolute preventative. Some years ago diphtheria antitoxin was discovered and it did prevent to a great measure, and if the disease were contracted, and antitoxin administered early the attack was light. This was a great advantage. However in recent years, an absolute preventative namely toxoid has been discovered, and if a person has contracted the disease and the toxoid is administered early, no waiting, do it at once, the throat is clear and temperature down inside twenty-four hours. Do not wait a week with a sore throat, the throat may become paralyzed and all the other evils of diphtheria follow, if the toxoid is not administered early.

Then the doctor presented his proposition, he cannot force it. It is for the people to say whether or not their children should be made immune. Three innoculations of about two drops of serum, one week apart, immunizes completely, and a certificate is given. If innoculated one may go where the disease is with absolute safety.

If the parents of any school wish it done, he will send and get a supply of toxoid, and do it. It should be done.

He gave a little advice about taking colds. If chilly stay in the house go to bed with a hot drink, and stay there till over the chilliness. Flu is an inflamatory condition of the lungs, somewhat like pneumonia.

In any case stay in the house, and give nature a chance.

Some insurance societies find it pays them to have their policy-holders medically examined yearly. If it pays them might it not pay the individual?

He also said in answer to a question, new born babies should sleep twenty-two hours out of the 24, and premature babies should sleep all the time, but they do not always do it. On being asked how long old people should sleep reminded his audience that they go out of the world as we came into it, we brought nothing in, and we take nothing out, and an old person should sleep a great deal."

ACID STOMACH EASY NOW TO CORRECT

Just Do One Thing—That's All

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in sour stomach, indigestion, headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

One of the most successful and gayest dances of the season was held last night in the hall of the Canadian Legion, when the first annual dance of the Peterborough County Plowmen's Association was held. Over five hundred people were in attendance, coming, in many cases, from quite a distance over snowy roads. A spirit of good cheer and friendliness animated the entire gathering and every individual appeared to be having an extremely jolly time. There was a splendid representation of young people from the city and county, with many attending from surrounding counties, and a large number of parents were present, lending stability and added dignity to the affair. At midnight, supper was served from tables running the full length of the upper hall. Cream for the supper was given by Silverwood's Peterborough Dairy, Limited, through the kindness of Mr. G. A. Gillespie. During the evening ,two novelty dances were held. The prize for the baloon dance, which was a bridge set donated by Mr. Adams of the British American Oil Company, was won by Miss Kay Jones. This prize was presented by Mr. J. J. Duffus, president of the association, who expressed the appreciation of the members for the wonderful response to the invitations and the unprecedented success of the event, which will be repeated next year. Excellent music for dancing was played by Red Moncrief and his orchestra. Patrons and patronesses of the dance were: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Duffus, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. A. A large cottage cloth of red and white printed cotton damask covered the table, which was centered by a circular mirror reflector holding a green glass bowl filled with red tulips. Four low candlesticks of red pottery, with star-shaped bases, held tall red tapers. The lace paper d'oyles in white, and the service of red enamelled china, added to the interest of a very attractive table. Tea was poured by Mrs. C. S. Thompson and Mrs. C. H. Saunders, assisted by Mrs. T. Cruickshank, Mrs. J. E. R. Manro and Miss Cameron Edwards.

OLD GLASS has a rare charm for many collectors who delight in the delicate shapes and colors and slender beauty of Venetian glass, the wonderful steely blue color of rare Waterford, and the rather sturdy patterns of Early American glass with its quaint names, such as Rose in Snow, which is a favorite design.

* * * * * * *

One who is not initiated into the types and distinguishing features of glassware, can still find pleasure in artistic forms and shapes, and good designs, though they may be far from unusual.

* * * * * * *

Also such a person may be of a practical turn of mind, and like to put pieces to good use. Some utilitarian purposes are suggested to-day which may help lessen expenditures for household accessories without robbing them of ornament.

* * * * * * *

Well chosen bottles can be transformed into candlesticks just as large bottles are often used for electric lamp bases. The bottles put to the lamp base use were once used as regular bottles to contan liquids.

* * * * * * *

The candlesticks may be selected because antique, but commercial bottles are to-day also made in graceful shapes and of clear glass. They do not have to wait for the passage of time to date them as antique before they are considered worthy to be candlesticks or lamp bases.

Here are a few examples:

A pair of charming pitcher-bottles serve as candlesticks on a rare old mahogany dressing table. They suit well this period of furniture, especially when the flickering torch-like flames give illumination each side of the mirror, and reflect in wavering brightness therein.

Four shaped vase-like bottles in which oil came are used as table candlesticks for the summer farm house, with its furniture appropriate to its age.

TENACES AND FOURCHETTES

When whist was the court game in France, among other terms added were "tenace" and "fourchette". The former designated a particular holding of honors. The latter designated a situation arising in play of the cards.

A tenace is a holding of honors with a gap or gaps between them. A fourchette refers to a situation in play when the one led through, holds the next higher card to the one led, and also the card just below the one led, like the tines of a fork. The A-Q-10 forms a double major tenace; the A-Q combination is the major tenace; the K-J is the minor tenace. Less perfect combinations of honors, as A-J, A-10, or K-10, are imperfect tenaces.

Much of the strategy of the game centers in expert play of tenaces. Even proper play of fourchettes is important. If you hold the 9-7, when the 8 is led through you, covering the 8 with your 9 at once raises the 7 to the value of the 9 that you played, and may save your partner from having to play a high honor. Suppose the holdings of a certain suit are as follows:

Dummy
6 2

Senior
A Q 10 9 4

Junior
8 7 5

Declarer
K J 8

Senior has to make the opening lead, he hopes to derive benefit from his powerful double major tenace. Of course the declarer also hopes to derive benefit from his minor tenace. Against a trump make senior cannot afford to lead from his tenace suit. If he leads that suit he will win only one trick in it, as the declarer will win the second trick while dummy will ruff the third trick. Against no trump senior must lead his tenace suit, giving the declarer a trick in that suit, but expecting ultimately to win four tricks therein. As the 9 is never led as a fourth-best card, the opening lead against no trumps must be the 10, the top of the interior sequence of 10-9.

A strong tenace in dummy affords joy to the declarer. Suppose dummy holds the A-Q-J-3 and the declarer has the 10, with certain reentry in dummy. Leading the 10 must produce three tricks in the suit, even if junior holds the missing K. In case senior has the K it is possible that four tricks may be garnered.

A favorite suit through which to lead is a week tenace in dummy, hoping that partner may hold the A-Q over the K-J, or that partner may have the K-J back of dummy's A-Q. A suit headed by a single honor is also a good one through which to lead. If the player sitting back of dummy wins a trick because he has been led to, he leads back to a very weak suit held by dummy, or even to an Ace guarded only by very small cards. Be particularly careful not to lead through a very strong suit in dummy, as A-Q-J-10, or you may establish the balance of that suit against your side, even if your partner holds the missing honor.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

The beautiful Ninon de l'Enclos who, at the age of 60, still looked more like a flapper of 16, concocted for herself a beauty bath in which she indulged every day. In this bath, among other things, Ninon dissolved three pounds of honey. Which certainly goes to prove that she wasn't as dumb as she was beautiful. For honey is really an excellent cosmetic. It is highly nourishing and refining to the skin, and when combined with the proper ingredients, form a particularly effective face mask.

The face mask that I described last was especially designed for women who have not much time at their disposal for giving their faces mask treatments. The honey pack of today's discussion, however, requires a bit more time for its administration. Yet it is time well spent, for this pack is most beneficial in its effects. It had a tendency to draw particles to the skin surface, and bleaches and clears the skin, giving it a soft, satin-like finish.

Before the honey pack is applied, a mask should be made of a square of cheesecloth, holes being cut in the material for the eyes, nose and mouth. And the paste itself should be prepared. To prepare it, mix enough honey with half a cup of almond meal to make a thick, creamy paste. A few drops of witch hazel should then be added, and the entire mixture blended thoroughly.

Prior to the actual application of the mask itself, the skin should be thoroughly cleansed. It is an excellent plan to use a lemon cream for this purpose, for the lemon cream possesses bleaching and refreshing qualities.

The next step is the application of the pack proper. The cheesecloth mask should be placed over the face, and a generous quantity of the honey and almond meal spread over it. In order to give the proper results, this pack should be permitted to remain on the face for from 20 to 30 minutes. At the completion of this period, the mask should be removed, being simply lifted off the face. Then any honey that may have seeped through the gauze should be removed from the skin surface with a soft cloth and tepid water. And as the final step, a good astringent should be applied to close the pores and tone up the skin.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

There is no problem about rearing a child which comes up so frequently as the capricious appetite of youngsters.

'How can I make my child eat?" This question comes to me over and many. One regularly recurrent answer is the bluff, downright stateover again in letters from readers.

The answers to the problem are ment, "Starve him into it." If the child won't eat, take the food away from him. Don't urge him to eat. Until finally he is hungry enough to ask for something. Another answer is to give him such a thing as Vitamin B, in wheat germ, which will increase his appetite. Other answers range between these two views, one of which may be called psychological solution, and the other the chemical solution.

Now, obviously, every case is not the same. Sometimes children don't eat because they actually are sick. Sometimes children's don't eat because they are spoiled. Sometimes children don't eat because the parents try to force a monotonous and faddy diet on them; they will eat if they get something they like to eat, but not otherwise.

Sometimes the whole thing is a misconception in the parents' minds. Most children eat much more slowly than adults, and this makes parents impatient. When such parents say the child does not eat, what they really mean is that it does not eat as fast as they think it ought to.

In other words, sometimes the fault is the child's, and sometimes the fault is nature, and sometimes the fault is the parents'. I am inclined to believe that most cases fall into the last named group.

In attempting to answer this question, we will assume that the child is not the subject of any disease which would interfere with appetite. Taking up the physical aspects first—in an infant it is possible that the milk is made too sweet and the appetite is destroyed in that way. Using a substance like dextrose or maltose instead of sweeter sugars in the formula may help.

Unquestionably, in some cases the food the child eats does not stimulate its appetite, and malnutrition results from this cause. In such cases it is well to try to supply foods which contain the appetite stimulating vitamin, Vitamin B. Such a vitamin is found in wheat and cereal germs and can be obtained in pure form in certain products.

On the physical side, also, it must be remembered that appetites in children tend to go in cycles. There are times when the child is very hungry and other times when, for various reasons, it does not crave food at all. It is not wise to attempt to force the appetite under these latter circumstances. It is more than probable that the child will get enough to eat in the long run, taking one day with another. Actual starvation of children, when the food is plentiful, is unknown.

Tomorrow we will consider the psychological aspects of the question.

Petes Eliminate Fenelon Falls in O. H. A. Race

JUNIORS HUMBLE FALLS 5–2 IN SECOND FIXTURE TO WIN THE SERIES 9–6

Brilliant Offensive Work By Locals' First String Forwards Gives Winners Edge of the Play.

CALLADINE SCORES THREE OF PETES' GOALS; CADD STARS ON DEFENSE— SANDERSON UNBEATABLE

The Peterborough juniors rubbed Fenelon Falls out of the O.H.A. group picture at the Brock last night, riding through with a 5-2 victory that gave them the inter-sectional series by a 9-6 count. The classy local boys clearly earned the decision, playing superior hockey all the way, though the Falls' team put up a hard fight all through the third period.

The game was fast and fairly clean, with the Petes starting strong in the initial stanza to lead 3 to 1, both sides tallied once in the middle go though the Petes had a big edge on play, and the locals ran in one more in the third. Over nine hundred fans attended, many coming from Fenelon Falls and Lindsay. Seven of the nine penalties were drawn by the Petes.

Brilliant offensive work by the Petes' main forward line, led by Bill Calladine, and airtight checking by Cadd, Fenton and Weir, gave the home team a decided advantage all through the game. Calladine played one of his bangup games scoring three of the five goals and assisting in another, besides checking well at centre. Flanked by Jay and McGregor, who both showed up fine, he worried the Cataraots from start to finish. Cadd was the best of the defencemen at rushing, but all stepped into the visitors hard from the start and had them shooting from away out most of the way. Burley was best of the alternates, but Hill and Williamson each got in some great work. The whole team combined well. Sanderson was practically unbeatable in goal, turning aside some great tries, but he had fewer to stop than his opponent.

Earned Goals

Smith in the opposite goal was slow in clearing, but most of those that beat him were earned. He stopped a number of hard ones, too. His defence failed to click properly and the speedy Petes sifted around and through them pretty regularly. The first forward line again went good, but were outchecked. Pentland, Henderson and Warren proved the most dangerous at getting through.

Play had been tearing up and down fast but a few minutes when Calladine opened the scoring, checking and recovering the puck inside the enemy defence and picking a corner of the net. A half-minute later, Jay made it two, going in quick to get the rubber after the goalie had tossed it back of the net, bringing it out and jabbing it by Smith. The boys from the Little Roar village burned some hot ones at Sandy then the action was speedy and exciting from end to end.

Scores Third Counter

The visitors were tearing into the corners after them but being dumped hard by the defencemen and the local snipers were doing better shooting. Later, McGregor made it three for the Petes when the main trio eased in with the disc, Jay passing it out, Calladine slapping one at the goalie and Mac making sure of the rebound. Jay went off for tripping, and Fenelon threatened hard, Henderson finally tallying with a hard angle shot after Deyman's pass. McGregor and Jay almost got another one, and then Weir was chased near the finish for throwing the puck.

The Petes' starting forwards fairly peppered Smith early in the second, and the locals had a big share of the play all through but missed several great scoring chances. Deyman was ruled off for tripping Calladine as he was going in fast. Then, Pentland intercepted a pass and whirled in on Sanderson like a streak and buried the puck in the twine. Williamson's shot was blocked after a perfect pass-out by Burley. Cadd next flashed a fine rush by Smith fluked a save. The homesters' second line was more than holding its own now in the heated going, getting through the defence several times and blazing away at the goalie.

Excitement Runs High

Calladine, Jay and McGregor returned to the wars and each threatened in turn and together but couldn't quite register. Jay's hard shot hit the post and an argument ensued, some of the players thinking it had been in. The goal-umpire was changed, and then Calladine grabbed one of the Falls' passes and wormed through in a dizzying rush to score. Excitement was high and the Petes continued to dominate play at the bell.

Fenelon Falls opened the third by sending four men up in hard rushes, give the local defence and goalie a pile of work to do in a hurry. But Calladine, going up the ice trailing Burley who had the puck, picked it up when Ross was checked and tore in close and again crossed up the goalie to wind up the scoring for the evening. Jay was benched for holding, and Sanderson got a bad jolt in the face when he dived to the ice to make a sensational save on Henderson who was right in. Sandy got a hand as he resumed. The second line was checking nice, and then Burley was thumbed out for throwing the puck. When Cadd was chased for boarding, the Buckland boys were two short and had to check their heads off and bang the rubber up the ice to save as the northerners buzzed in often. Jay was ruled off again for charging followed by Deyman for holding, and the Petes kept playing a defensive game and holding their own with the husky visitors. Sandy pulled off several good saves, and Fenton added to the Petes' penalty-list for boarding just before the last gong.

The teams:

Fenelon Falls: Goal, Smith; defence, Littleton and Robertson; centre, Pentland; wings, Henderson and Deyman; alternates, Graham, Warren, Townley and Jewell.

Use Your Head; And He Did It

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Feb. 11.—"Use your head,' the basketball coach of Karns City instructed his players before they battled Slippery Rock.

"Slim" Harmon carried out structions to the letter.

With one minute to play Karns City trailed 18 to 17. During a scramble under the basket, the ball dropped on Harmon's head. From there it bounced through the hoop.

Karns City won, 19 to 17.

TOUGHEST TILT IN BELLEVILLE

Bill Cook, Ranger Winger, Scored Four Goals in the Quinte Fracas.

N.H.L. SCORE LEADER

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 11 (C.P.)—If you asked Bill Cook what was the toughest game he ever played, the peerless right-winger of New York Rangers would probably mention a hockey game played in Saskatoon in 1925 but the National Hockey League's most consistent goal-getter would be wrong, in the opinion of some 2,500 eye-witnesses to a Belleville-Kingston intermediate game several years before that.

Ranked with his brother Fred "Bun" Cook among Kingston's most notable athletes, Bill was a star in his Ontario Hockey Association days while strangely enough Bun was lightly regarded, so lightly that he could not earn a place on the O.H.A. team. Like the prophet who was without honor in his own country he had to travel before he attained fame.

Perhaps Bill's most memorable feat and his toughest game was when he travelled to Belleville with the Kingston intermediates, to a town tightly closed to prevent a repetition of Kingston supporters' performance in the previous year when they ran wild before and after the game.

Roused by numerous fights amongst rival supporters, the teams broke out in the roughest, toughest hockey game ever witnessed in Belleville. One of Kingston's players went to the penalty box for 15 minutes and another was carried off with concussion while Bill Cook reached the last period with one eye closed and a mass of bruises.

Bill had an idea though. Getting a piece of court-plaster he stuck one end to the lid of the closed eye and the other end to his forehead, which improved his vision to such an extent he ran in four goals that won the game. Kingston fans think that's the toughest game Bill ever played.

Bun had to go to Sault Ste Marie for his great hockey start, improved with experience there and at Saskatoon he finally reached the pinnacle when he became the left-wing partner of Frank Boucher and brother Bill with the Rangers now ranked as the most prolific scoring line in hockey.

MAROONS TAKE EASY VICTORY FROM TRENTON

Homesters Coast Along to 13-5 Win in Listless Campbellford Game.

SMALL CROWD ATTENDS.

CAMPBELLFORD Feb. 11 (Examiner Correspondence). Campbellford Red Shirts landed in the lap of O.H.A. Group No. 1 one point ahead of Belleville D.A.C., as result of a 13 to 5 win over Trenton on Friday at Davidson's Arena before a small crowd. A number of other attractions and the game not having any bearing on the play-off coupled with the easy Red Shirt win on Monday night no doubt were responsible.

Campbellford were without the services of their star centre man in the 'kid line' who was hurt on Wednesday night. This is a hard blow coming just at the start of the play-offs.

Trenton checked close enough but bunched up too much to show any combination and their shooting was mostly off the net or very weak. Campbellford just coasted along, getting a goodout in for the play-offs.

Play opened up with the Red Shirts on the offensive, Davis snared the puck from Powers at centre ice, drew the defense to the side and passed over to F. F. Ingram for the first. Trenton evened it up three minutes later when Miller shot from the blue line. Hulin was unable to see the puck with players bunched in front of him. McKay broke up a Trenton attack at centre, drew the defense to the side and passed to Bush for the second. H. Ingram who was a power on the attack all night went clean through on a solo effort for the third.

With this advantage Trenton put on the pressure, Tuck shot, Hulin sliding out of his net to make the save but missed the rebound, Bohan scoring. Bohan got another a minute later on a shot from the blue line.

Bush put the Red Shirts one up on a smart solo effort, while Davis ended the scoring for the period on a pass from Copperwaithe.

Continue Rampage

Opening the second period, F. Ingram let one of his bullet drives go from the left boards, which Chambers was slow in clearing. Davis almost beating him to it. Powers got on for Trenton on a shot from outside the blue line. Bush got it back when he went right in on top of Chambers to pick the corner. H. Ingram broke up a Trenton threat at his own defence, went down with Hendy, making a perfect pass to the latter who scored. McArthur crashed Utronki and was banished. McKay got the last one of the period from a faceoff at the Trenton blue line he worked his way into the goal mouth.

Hold Comfortable Lead

Going into the third period the homesters were just coasting along, nursing a comfortable lead. Beehan lifted one in from ten feet out; Hendy went to the hoose-gow for hooking, and Powers joined him for slashing. Hendy scored on his own rebound, with Chambers flat on the ice. Copperwaithe drew a penalty. H. Ingram picked the left-hand corner on a solo rush. McKay was chased for tripping. McArthur drew the defense out of play and passed to F. Ingram, who made no mistake. Utronki was waved off for boarding McKay; H. Ingram got the final goal for Campbellford just before the bell went to end the agony.

Campbellford.—Goal, Hulin; defence, H. Ingram, McArthur; centre, Davis; wings, McKay and F. Ingram; subs., Copperwaithe, Bush and Hendy.

STUART GAINS NINTH SHUTOUT

London Goalie Bids Fair to Blank Own Record as Tecs Blank Bulldogs 2-0.

TAUGHER IS SEOND.

TORONTO, Feb. 11. — (CP) — Scoring goals is not the only requisite for winning hockey games, avers Goalie Herbie Stuart, International Hockey League shutout leader. It is just as essential to keep the other team from scoring, he maintains.

Stuart, one-time Boston Bruin netminder, now doing duty between the uprights for London Tecumsehs points to his own team's record to prove his assertion.

London nestled in second place, has a goal-total of 66, only three more than Cleveland Indians, embedded in the cellar. Immediately behind Tecumsehs in the standing, with a total of 92, is Syracuse.

Chalking up his ninth shutout of the season Stuart, last night, blanked Windsor Bulldogs, 2-0, before London fans, to draw three ahead of his rival, Bus Taugher, Buffalo. Travelling at this pace, Stuart bids fair to break his own record of 14 for one season.

Harold Hicks and Tory Gregg provided the goals, Hicks counting on a pass from Groh and Gregg receiving ample assistance from Gene Carrigan and Eric Pettinger.

The boys were on their best behavious, Referee Mickey Ion waving only three of them to the timers.

Golf Talent Runs In Rymill Family

Brother and sister—William S. and Katherine L. Rymill—are South Australian state golf champions this year. He is 23 years old and she is 19. Later they won the mixed foursomes championship of Australia on their home course, Kooyonga Golf Club, of which their father, Henry L. Rymill, is secretary. The winners played a consistent game throughout and did not have a seven on their cards. Their best holes were 3 at the 11th and 2 at the 15th. Mrs. H. L. Rymill, the mother, is a former women's champion.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, them that was lamenting that the old-time winters has went for good had cause to change their minds this week when the bottom threatened to drop outa the old thermometer. The cold snap brought along some good ice for the lads to perform on, and Wed. nite Mister Wright's intermediates had a glassy sheet on which to do their stuff against Madoc, the title-holders of the Central Ontario loop. I was among the few hundred frozen fans what shivered along the sidelines while the Petes turned back the boys from down east 11 to 2 without more than half trying. It wasn't the kind of battle that makes a fan forget the weather—in fact, most of the frost-bitten bugs was wishing before it was half over that they'd stayed home and kept warm. It wasn't the Petes' fault, for they played some smart hockey at times, but the visitors, although they kept plugging along until the final bell, looked to be a bit outa their class. The outstanding feature was the effective work of our Mister Ellis and Mister Dundas, who shot like King's prize men and did some great play-making and passing that made the Madoc defence think they was trying to stop the Morenz-Joliat or the Cook-Boucher combination.

Our juniors tackle Fenelon Falls to-nite and to-morrow nite, and the fans will know all about it before this gets out. The F.F. win the other section of the group, and ordinarily would of hadda wait till the winner in this section was decided. However, the O.H.A. moguls chit up on the bright notion of letting them play off with the Petes 1st, with the winner being tossed in against the Port Hope-Bowm anville winners afterward. Kinda putting the cart before the horse, but it won't make much difference in the long run.

The N.H.L. race ain't producing anything sensational except the slump of the famous Canadiens, and their comeback Tues. nite to shut out the Maple Leaves. Last Sat., Mister L. Dandurand read the riot act to the Flying Frenchmen and wound up by threatening to sell 4 or 5 of them down the river, with the result that the red shirts went out Tues. nite and made the Leaves like it. Meanwhile the Canucks' fellow-townsmen, the Maroons, has been going along like a world's championship outfit, and the word has gone out from the wise guys to watch them in the final serious.

It's been officially announced that all "pro" rassling bouts in Ontario is just exhibitions, and mebbe that'll convince a lotta folks who couldn't see it before that these "contests" is just a entertainment. At that most of the bouts provide a really lively show, and after all that's what the customers lay their jack in at the box office for. The grunt-and-groaners know their stuff and can put on the works, so nobody oughta howl much, even if they ain't no title at steak.

Our curlers win a coupla games in the tankard and consolation serious in Toronto this we ek, but brung home no medals or nothing. Funny thing about it was that they just naturally slaughtered Kingston in the tankard serious, and then curled up when they met the same rinks in the other competition. Well, curling is like that.

No more this week, so take keer of yourself.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

AUSTRALIA ENDS FIRST INNINGS WITH 340 RUNS

While Visitors Amass Total of 99 Runs Without Loss of a Wicket.

LAX AUSSIE BOWLING.

BRISBANE, Australia, Feb. 11 (C.P. Cable).—England turned the tables on Australia as the second day's play in the fourth test cricket match closed to-night; the touring M.C.C. amassing 99 runs without the loss of a wicket in reply to Australia's first innings total of 340.

At the opening of Saturday's play the Australians had 251 and seven wickets in hand; the celebrated Don Bradman was well set at the wickets with 71 runs. Then the Aussies, already on the wrong end of a 2-1 test match count, collapsed. The remaining seven wickets fell for only 89 runs.

The English attack was opened by Captain Douglas Jardine and Herbert Sutcliffe, veteran Yorkshire bat. The Aussie bowling lacked sting, and the English pair, batting confidently, piled up 51 and 41 respectively, extras bringing the English score to 99 when failing light caused stumps to be drawn for the week-end.

Harold Larwood, whose "bodyline" bowling tactics have stirred up one of the greatest controveries of modern cricket, took four of the Australian first inning wickets for 101 runs. He started the collapse of the Aussies shortly after play was resumed this morning.

28,000 See Match

With the crowd mounting to 28,000, Larwood took Bradman's leg stump in his third over, Bradman having added only five runs for a total of 76. W. H. Ponsford, who opened the day with Bradman, was clean bowled by Larwood in the next over when he had totalled 19, and five Aussie wickets were down for 267 runs.

The last half of the Australian wickets went cheaply, L. S. Darling was caught by Ames, wicket-keeper, off G. O. Allen's bowling at 17, and Love was out leg-before-wicket to T. B. Mitchell, Yorkshire leg-break specialist, for only five. Seven were down for 315 runs.

Bromley, a newcomer to the Aussie eleven, started aggressively, but one of Larwood's high bounding balls was knocked into the hands of Hedley Verity at fine leg, when Bromley's score was 26, acquired in little more than an hour. W. J. O'Reilly added only six before Wally Hammond caught him in the slips. The last wicket fell when Ames stumped Ironmonger off one of Hammond's slow balls after he had scored eight. The Aussies were all out for 340.

Jardine and Sutcliffe, opening for England, set out to wear down the Aussie bowling. Taking no risks, they showed some fine wrist work and cutting, but the bowling did not look overly difficult. Sutcliffe survived an l.b.w. appear at 42, with O'Reilly bowling, and in the next over pulled O'Reilly to the boundary. Meanwhile Jardine was stolidly holding up his end with an occasional hard drive. Play was called at 99 for no wickets.

And that's that! No more worries about Fenelon Falls for another year or so. They came, they saw and they were conquered. If that win over the northerners last year was a fluke, they certainly can't crowd any horse-shoes into that 5-2 picture painted for them last night. They were licked properly by a better team, by a squad that would have trounced them right in Fenelon Falls Thursday if they had been clicking right. No question about clicking last night. The young Petes were playing hockey as they should, heads up, fast, and remembering instructions.

* * * * * * *

It was an inter-sectional win, the Falls having won the other section of our group. The Petes can't claim the group title yet, as they must playoff—probably Monday and Wednesday—with the winner of that Bowmanville-Port Hope tangle, both these latter teams trying for second place in our section. The local lads should cop the group now and advance in the O.H.A. playdowns. They haven't suffered a loss all year, and a good crowd of rooters saw the home team to good advantage on fast ice last night.

* * * * * * *

Calladine and Cadd were outstanding. You can't help naming them in any of the Blue and Whites' victories, both these junior veterans always playing fine hockey. Bill not only scored three and aided in another, but he was tough luck to the Cataracts all the time, checking them till they were going around in circles, intercepting passes, and making them look slow with his fine stickwork. Cliff pulled off some dandy rushes, as well as proving a tower of strength on defence. Weir and Fenton also helped him slow the big boys from the Falls down to a walk by stiff, clean checking, having them shooting from outside mostly.

* * * * * * *

Sanderson again looked great in goal, pulling off some saves that were close enough to sensational to pass for a close relative. Jay and McGregor also turned in a useful evening all around, with the speedy Burley when he opened up almost nailing in several counters. Hill and Williamson went best at backchecking in the centre zone. The team as a whole was going right last night, though they looked bad on three or four of their penalties. It's as old as it's true and vice versa: You can't help your team by warming the bench.

* * * * * * *

This is a better junior team wearing Peterborough sweaters this winter than was the case last season. For one thing, they're pulling together and this wasn't so late last winter. And they are showing the effects of more practise and more real coaching. Every boy on the lineup is in there fighting hard and not as an individual but as part of a team, and he is trying to do what he is told. Any time, any of the players pulls a dumb stunt he is told about it and instructed what to do about it the next time, and they are obeying orders. That tough trip to the cold village 'way back of Lindsay Thursday knocked a lot out of 'em and that's the reason they didn't win. But that was all evened up last night.

* * * * * * *

Madoc intermediates defaulted last night's game to the Petes, giving the local outfit the round on that 11-2 win at the Brock a few nights ago. The Madoc bunch figured they hadn't a chance, and with cold weather also against them, they didn't expect to clear expenses on the gate, so fixed the thing up with the O.H.A. and the Petes. The club here will give them a cut for expenses and that'll be that. Campbellford trounced Trenton badly last night, and will now meet Belleville Monday and Wednesday in their group playoffs. We may meet them next.

* * * * * * *

Doxsee had a bad night in goal for Westclox last night and Lakefield had the Alarm outfit on the ropes, 13 to 4, at the last bell. With the goalie as wide-open as night life in Montreal, the rest of the team soon faded and the smart Cement squad did everything but send them home as valentines. Dinesen, Epps, Whatley and Wood were the best of the local E.P.L. losers; while the two Wanamakers, Northey and Wingett were outstanding for Lakefield. Quite a gang attended the tea-party.

* * * * * * *

Hurrah, here's some ski news at last! After putting 'em away back in November, local skiers can bring them out again tomorrow as all members of the Ski Club and anyone else who would like to, are asked to trek to Nassau, bringing a lunch, tomorrow for an afternoon's sport with quite a bit of snow around the clubhouse. The clubhouse has been fixed up and will be open all day Sunday, with skiers expected from ten in the a.m. till evening, and the more the merrier. No charge, so those who like this sport had better hop to it while the opportunity awaits.

* * * * * * *

A Peterborough basketball team has been entered in the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association, and will receive a bye into the playdowns this season. Around the end of this month or early in March, the Petes will meet the winner of the Eastern Groups—composed of Napanee, R.M.C., Kingston "Y" and Queen's. We understand a strong local team is working out now.

Up and down Sports Rialto: Looks like Bill Corum, N.Y. scribe called the turn right last night, Carnera winning an odd one from Schaaf, and 20,000 suckers yelling "Fake!" . . . . Well they were practically told it was in the bag . . . . Some local City Cage League dope should be available by the middle of next week . . . . That boxing show in Lindsay will likely be postponed till Spring . . . . An E.P.L. team may take part soon in a 'Caygeon tournament . . . . Biffer Ranger has practically recovered from three broken ribs which kept him out of the game in Kansas City several weeks . . . . He and McLeod have been going along well again this winter, and their team won the first half . . . . Frankie Collins and Kenny Kane will help the Sea Fleas in the amateur hockey championship of the world tourney at Prague this winter.

GRAHAM PAID HEAVIEST FINE HOCKEY HISTORY

Chicago Hawks' Captain is Owen Sound's Contribution to Major Sport.

Played With Greyhounds.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Feb. 11.—(CP)—Teddy Graham is the mayor of Brooke and the tow-head who is captain of Chicago's Black Hawks wields as much power and carries as much glamor in this north-end section of Owen Sound as Babe Ruth ever did in the Yankee stadium or Jimmy Walker in his east-side.

Teddy Graham

Graham, pink-cheeked blue-eyed and smiling, packs about the same amount of dynamite in his body-check as Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin stores in his fist. And Owen Sound, having turned two Canadian champion junior hockey teams in the last few years, dotes on a hard-hitting defenceman.

It was in the spring of 1924 that Teddy became the mayor of Brooke. There was no election but then the lightweight thumperof the Greys, newly crowned Memorial Cup champs, just fell into the job.

Brooke, the section of town where he was born and raised, gave Graham his high position because young Ted at 19 was the most popular man thereabouts. Butch Keeling, who lived down the street, might be lionized and Cooney Weiland, the little scoring master, was no mean hero—but Graham became mayor.

Played With Stratford

Teddy played with Stratford senior O.H.A. team and worked professionally with two American League teams—Chicago Shamrocks and Tulsa Oilers—before he reached the National League to stay. He spent part of a season with Moose Jaw Maroons in the old Western Canada circuit, too.

Three years ago the Hawks gave him a defence berth and just a few weeks ago they elected the mayor of Brooke captain of Chicago's brigade. At 28 the blonde bumper rates pretty high among major league defensive stars.

So anxious was he to watch Owen Sounds junior team in 1927 that he rushed from Chicago to Toronto for an important series and thus earned himself the heaviest fine in hockey history. Eddie Livingstone, owner of the Shamrocks, slapped down a fine of $1,000 on his ace.

AMBLING ALP SCORES 13-ROUND KNOCKOUT OVER ERNIE SCHAAF

Jeering Crowd of 20,000 See s Sharkey's Protege Drop to Canvas Following a L ight Tap to Face Early in Th irteenth.

(By Alan Gold, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP)—To the strange and baffling career of Primo Carnera, the big heave-and-haul man of the heavyweights, today belonged a 13-round knockout victory over blond Ernie Schaaf of Boston, and as a probable consequence, a return match with Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

If it was a calculated business, as many suggested in advance and felt that a dull, colorless fight confirmed, the jeering capacity crowd of 20,000 suddenly was furnished an astonishing sight by the apparent utter collapse of Schaaf after being tapped lightly in the face by a left jab early in the 13th round.

Slight Concussion

Sluggish from the start and conspicuously unconscious at the finish, Schaaf toppled back from Primo's blow, sat down a bit bewildered and then after a few seconds meditation crumpled in a heap in the resin. After defying frantic efforts to revive him in his corner, Ernie was lugged out of the ring, ironically enough, by Sharkey and two policemen. A half hour later he was taken for examination to the nearby polyclinic hospital, suffering, according to the statement of his own doctor and the boxing commission's doctor, from a "slight concussion."

There, a short time afterwards, he was reported to have regained consciousness, to be resting comfortably and in no danger.

Fine Bit of Drama

If it wasn't, as many critics insisted, one of the best "acts," the prize ring has known in many a day, it was very dramatic and also disconcerting to those at the ringside who were bored by 12 slow, lumbering rounds and in no way impressed by the poke that put Ernie on the floor for the first time and "out," while Referee Billy (Glover) Cavanaugh, boxing coach at West Point, counted ten, 51 seconds after the start of the last round.

A Barney To Experts

Right up to the finish it looked like a "barney" to the experts, many of whom had warned the customers in advance and developed a consequent rush for the turnstiles that packed the arena and forced the mounted police to disperse the overflow crowd. Carnera, from the start, out-speeded, out-boxed and out-punched his smaller rival, using his pull of nearly 60 pound to big advantage and handling Ernie with ease at close quarters. But Primo couldn't punch effectively and Schaaf apparently wouldn't, unless it was a fact that he was weakened and discouraged by the sheer power in Carnera's bulk.

MAY PROHIBIT RELIEF TO ALL LABOR WORKERS

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 12 (C.P.)—Whether membership in a Labor Reserve Association is a legitimate reason for keeping men off the relief list is the question which is causing a great deal of worry in Westminster Township.

E. A. Dutton, member of the township relief board, declare three Manor Park men will not be reinstated to the list until they quite the Labor Reserve and apologize to the board for alleged abuse of the relief officer.

Reeve Joseph Dale agrees with Mr. Dutton the apology should be made, but was not sure the board could compel the three to drop from the organization.

Bush Seeks Hale As Base Bulwark

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 11. — Third base on the Cincinnati Reds has not been adequately protected since the days of Heinie Groh and his funny bottle-bat, and Donie Bush, the new half-pint manager of the Reds, successor to Dan Howley, who is now back with the Toronto Maple Leafs, is determined to correct that weakness promptly.

After conducting an inventory of his team, Bush believes a good, steady third baseman could do more to yank his club out of the depths of the National League than anybody else— always excepting someone with the batting prowess of Babe Ruth or Lou Gehrig. Bush admits having his eye on Odel Hale, a sensation last year with Toledo, in the American association, and now the property of the Cleveland Indians. He is a rookie, aged 24.

JOCKEY B. HANFORD, riding for Everglades stables, is making a strong bid for jockey honors, having won nine races in the current meeting at Hialeah Park, Miami, Fla. He's won more Miami gallops than any other rider.

FALLS BLANKS CATARACTS 3-0

Dukes Eke 1-0 Victory Over Leading Hamilton Tigers at Toronto.

PORT COLBORNE WINS 4-3.

(By the Canadian Press).

Kitchener Empires may be a tough proposition for Toronto Marlboros to handle, but to Niagara aFlls Cataracts, they are just another "two points."

Defeating Empires, 3-0, on Kitchener ice last night, Nipper Wilson's speedy Cataracts made a clean sweep of the four-game schedule between the two teams.

About the same time in Toronto, Marlboros were eking out a 1-0 victory over the leading Hamilton Tigers and advancing to within one point of the yellow and black.

The third game of the night brought Port Colborne Sailors and University of Toronto Blues together for the second time within a week. A 4-3 victory hoisted the Ports over Niagara Falls, and left them perched in third place, one point behind the Dukes.

Deglane's Collar Bone Dislocated In Boston Match With Ed Don George

BOSTON, Feb. 11 (C.P.).—Henri Deglane had been knocked from the ranks of heavyweight wrestling title claimant to-day by Ed Don George's high-grade brand of flying tackles.

But what may prove far more serious for the big Montrealer was a broken collar bone he suffered in his clash with the ex-collegian from Buffalo here last night. The injury halted the bout as the men duelled for the third and deciding fall, and signalized George's return to the role of throne-claimant from which Ed Strangler Lewis blasted him three years ago.

The fracture was set at a hospital soon after the fight, and doctors said Deglane's condition was not serious. There was no telling, however, how long he would be kept out of the mat wars, nor if the injury would leave him with what is known in the game as "glassware."

When a boxer suffers a broken jaw it usually leaves him with a "glass jaw," subject to easy shattering in the future. The same goes for a wrestler, more liable to arm, leg, shoulder and collar bone fractures.

The first deep mining operation for potash in the United States was carried out in Texas, in 1931.

BOWMANVILLE TIES GOODYEARS

BOWMANVILLE, Feb. 11.—An exhibition hockey game played here last night between New Toronto Goodyears and Bowmanville Intermediates ended in a tie, 3-all. The games was fast and clear throughout, and Referee Witheridge was not very busy. Bowmanville were the first to score when Densem put a nice goal past Shipway. In the second period, G. Piper scored a nel soon netted one of the Goodyears. A little later Osborne, on a beautiful solo rush, made the score, 3 to 1. In the third period, Fennel registered twice for Goodyears and tied the score.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

An eye is for winking,
A mouth is for drinking,
But a head is for thinking.
—Shadow Sayings.

Mr. Punch, the puppet (you know Punch and Judy?) was wearing a bandage around his head when the five shadows, Knarf, Mij, Flor, Hanid and Yam (you know them?) came upon him. It was late at night, and all the people of the house were fast asleep. I think the cat was asleep, too.

Well, the shadows asked Mr. Punch why he was wearing a band-

"Did you fall down the stairs?" Mij asked.

"Oh, no," Mr. Punch answered with a groan, holding his head.

"Did you fall up the stairs?" Knarf wanted to know.

"I didn't fall down the stairs, and I didn't fall up the stairs. I didn't have anything to do with stairs."

"Then how did you hurt your head?" Hanid asked.

"I didn't hurt my head, my head hurts me," replied Mr. Punch. "I think it's cracked."

"Cracked!" the shadows exclaimed.

To Get a New Head

"Why yes, cracked, just like an egg. I'm going to get a new head. I can't use this one any more. All my thoughts run out of the cracks." Mr. Punch complained. With that he tried to pull his head off, by yanking at his neck.

"You'd better not do that. You'll break your neck," Flor pointed out.

"What of it?"

"You won't be able to get it fixed."

"Then I'll get a new neck," Mr. Punch said. Just then, with a great yank, Mr. Punch snapped his neck and his head went rolling under the sofa.

"There, now you've gone and done it," Knarf cried. 'Where's your head now?" Mr. Punch didn't answer, so the shadows crawled under the sofa and got Mr. Punch's head and put it back on his shoulders again. Mr. Punch frowned. "You shouldn't have done that," he grumbled.

"My head is cracked," Mr. Punch told the shadows.

"Why not?" the shadows asked.

"Because I was just going to stand on my head, and now that it's on my shoulders again I can't do it." Mr. Punch was very angry indeed. He didn't say another word. He just walked away. A little while later the shadows heard Punch's wife Judy saying in a loud voice to Mr. Punch: "Here, stay still a minute while I get a safety pin. Dear me, if I didn't pin your head to your shoulders you'd be losing it a dozen times a day!"

Poor Mr. Punch. The shadows felt sorry for him. No wonder his head hurt him, losing it a dozen times a day!

For Sunday, February 12

Sunday's horoscope holds promise of the activities being centered in the pursuit of pleasure and social prestige rather than in workaday affairs. These should be very lively and happy despite a minor impediment or delay.

Those whose birthday it is may have a very lively year in activities of chance, sport, speculation, gambling and initiative of almost any sort with the element of uncertainty. It is a good time to speculate over bold projects. A child born on this day may be inclined to go in for big things and renown in a public way, taking long chances or reaching for "far corners" and successfully.

Notable nativity: Wm. Faversham, actor.

For Monday, February 13

Monday's astrological forecast seems to be a continuation of matters instigated or launched upon the previous day. It holds signs of rather singular relations, methods or agreements, with somewhat of the subtle if not sinister figuring in the development of plans and projects. Be careful.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great opportunity through measures of secrecy or subtle, even sinister interests. A child born on this day may be given to introspection or to mysterious or singular research or practices. It may gain through the bequests of the elderly.

Notable nativity: Sydney Smith, artist.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a 16 oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

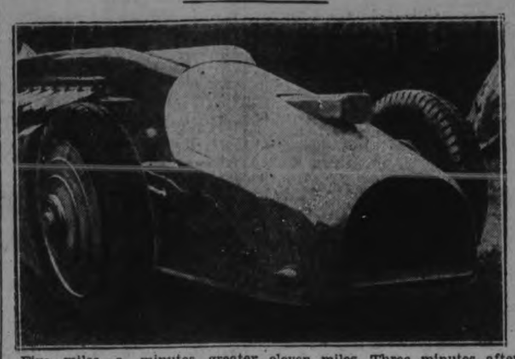
Bringing Bluebird II. To Safe Halt Once Car Attains Maximum Power Is Greatest Problem Facing The Knight



Five miles a minutes—greater speed than man has yet attained on land—will be the goal of Sir Malcolm Campbell when he sends his 2,500 horsepower Bluebird II racing down the wavepacked beach speedway here within the next few days.

Paradoxically, one of the British-er's greatest problems, once his roaring motor attains its maximum power, will be to bring it to a halt before it plunges beyond the limits of the beach speedway.

At 300 miles an hour, should Campbell succeed in averaging this speed, he must stop his juggernaut within one minute. Five miles beyond his measured course on the south run lies Mosquito Inlet and the end of the speedway.

In raising his present world record of 253.9 miles an hour, the Britisher must start his machine, flash over the measured course, and bring it to a dead stop, all in eleven miles. Three minutes after he gets underway he must ease off his throttle and begin to apply his brakes. Wind resistance and gravity will aid materially in slowing his tremendous speed.

Campbell's new Bluebird has been stepped up 1,000 horsepower over the first Bluebird in which he established his world record here last winter.

He will make several trial runs prior to the final run. Then, when northeast winds have packed the beach to concrete-like hardness, he will launch his assault on the record. The dates, February 10-20, were selected by the Daytona Beach-Volusial county racing association as the time of the year when the beach speedway will reach its greatest perfection, in width, smoothness and hardness.

Corrugations or other imperfections in the beach would, of course, be disastrous to a record attempt.

War is Declared On "Gyp" Balls

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—War has been declared against "gyp" golf balls. Manufacturers recently have set certain Standards and specifications for the making of the rubber spheres to protect the public in the future.

The sale of these "gyp" balls reaped a handsome harvest during the past year and manufacturers have agreed to maintain certain standards so that the inferior balls will not pass as a good grade.

The grade of the ball will be determined by the size of the plastic centre, the size of the core and the quantity and quality of the rubber thread.

Winter And Schaller Leading By One Lap

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 11 (A.P.) — Winter and Schaller, the German team, shook off the French-Canadian team of Torchy Peden, of Victoria, and Henri Lapage of Montreal to lead by one lap at the end of the fifty-third hour of the six-day international bike race this morning. The leaders had covered 861 miles and 9 laps.

Trailing one lap behind Peden and Lapage for third place, was the Swiss team, Petri and Zach. The original field of twelve entries dropped to eleven last night when McCloy and Black, the Scottish team withdrew from the race. They were 11 laps behind the leaders.

LEAFS NEED TO-NIGHT'S VICTORY OVER RANGERS

TORONTO, Feb. 11.—(CP)—It's Toronto's turn to beat the Rangers tonight and the first full house of the season is expected to see the old rivals battle it out at Toronto tonight. The way things have been Rangers can win every time at New York and the Leafs are just as good when they play at home.

But this game is more important to Conny Sythe's champions than any in several weeks. They need the win to assure the three-game lead they hold in the Canadian section of the National Hockey League over Montreal Maroons.

Maroons, definitely a threat for the leaders, face Boston Bruins in Montreal and it's a long time since any team has held the Redmen in check at the Forum.

New York Americans, who still have hopes of catching both Leafs and Maroons, take on Detroit Red Wings Sunday night in Madison Square Gardens while Canadiens play the Black Hawks at Chicago.

HAZLETT CHARGES DISMISSED.

TORONTO. — Andrew Hazlett, former Reeve of Forest Hill, had acted unwisely or perhaps improperly, but there was not sufficient evidence to convict him of corruption, said Magistrate William Keith to-day in dismissing charges against Hazlett. The charge arose from a complaint by a former Reeve that Hazlett had been paid $420 as commission after the sale of two lots owned by the municipality.

RADIO NOTES

By R. H. CHILDERHOSE of City Radio Service.

The waves from short wave stations do not travel far along the earth's surface, as do the waves from ordinary broadcasting stations, but angle up into the sky. They are deflected back to earth by what is called the "Heavyside Layer," much as light is deflected by a mirror. For this reason, a receiver quite close to the sending station may not receive the waves, and a receiver thousands of miles away may receive it strongly. This phenomenon is known as "skip distance."

Radio Fan—Too long an aerial usually causes stations to mix badly, and sometimes picks up extra noise. One hundred feet of wire, or less, is ample for an aerial,—including the lead-in wire, of course, some modern sets work fine on very short aerials.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

Car Ferry Is Stuck Outside Of Cobourg

COBOURG, Feb. 11 (C.P.)—Firmly embedded in a sand bank, 100 yards outside the harbor, Car Ferry No. 2, with a crew of 38 and fully loaded, last night was waiting for the wind to die down in order that she may be pulled off.

The boat, plying between Rochester, N.Y., and Cobourg, laid to before entering the harbor yesterday afternoon, due to weather conditions, and when she tried to make the harbor mouth she ran aground on the sand bank.

No fear is felt for her safety, as the wind was gradually abating. Car Ferry No. 1 is waiting to pull her off at the first favorable opportunity.

ALLOW MATRON ONE AFTERNOON TWO EVENINGS

Second Nurse Gives Notice to Board of Health of Intention to Quit.

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS.

Rigid Inspection of Chefs in City is Advocated by Board.

By resolution of the Board of Health, Miss Price, matron of the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital, will be permitted one half-day and two evenings off duty each week, providing conditions at the hospital permit, and that she notify the hospital superintendent, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., when she is going off duty, and that she be permitted one day off with the consent of the chairman of the Board, Alderman Walter Stocker.

The Board of Health met in another special session this morning, and the resolution fixing the recreation periods of the matron was the chief work accomplished.

A special committee, composed of Chairman Stocker, Mayor Denne and Dr. Young, studied the changes necessary in fixing the matron's holiday program. They decided that she should be permitted two half-days and one evening free each week, providing conditions at the hospital permitted, and for any extra days off she must get the permission of the chairman.

Amendment Moved.

However, when the special committee's motion was brought before the Board, Aldermen McIntyre and Holland moved an amendment. The amendment, as quoted above, carried unanimously and will be added to the hospital's rules.

Something of a bombshell fell among the Board, when Miss Bacon's letter informing the Board that she was resigning from the nursing staff of the hospital to get married was read. The other nurse on the staff was married last week, and with Miss Bacon's resignation taking effect on March 7, only Miss Price, the matron, will be left on the staff.

Mayor Denne said: "That will leave no nurses up there."

Chairman Stocker, turning to Dr. Young, asked: "Are there any patients up there?"

Dr. Young: "Not just now."

CHINESE LIKELY TO MOVE AWAY

Claim Diplomatic Measures in Tokyo Useless if Japs Move on Jehol.

WAR GOING ON.

PEIPING, China, February 13 (C. P.) — A direct hint that the Chinese Minister to Tokyo would be withdrawn if the Japanese start a drive in Jehol Province was given to-day by T. V. Soong, Acting Premier and Finance Minister of the Nationalist Government. Soong arrived here on Saturday night by airplane from Nanking.

"My personal opinion," he said "is I do not see the use of keeping a Minister in Tokyo if there should be a drive on Jehol, as obviously diplomatic measures would be of no avail."

Asked if China were likely to declare war on Japan, Soong replied "This matter is of no consequence Japan has not declared war upon China, but to all intents and purposes is carrying on war against us. It is splitting hairs to say whether this undeclared war may or may not be considered warfare, but it is hardly reasonable to expect the aggrieved party to make such declaration."

Niagara Cataract Slows To Trickle

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 13 (C.P.)—Water bored a passage through the great ice masses above the American falls, and a little flow may be seen to-day in the centre of the cataract. Except for that, the brinks bare and filled with fantastic ice shapes.

The ice bridge has become quite thick and the ice "mountain" and mounds all along the edge of the falls are growing in height and thickness.

Buildings, trees and ground on both sides of the river are sheathed in ice, and trees and shrubbery in Queen Victoria Park present a picture of beauty in its tracery of frost.

There is a heavy flow of ice in the upper and lower rivers, and from Niagara Falls to Queenston there is a noise of grinding as the great ice cakes are carried to Lake Ontario by the swift current.

UNWISE TO PUT SCHOOL PUPILS OUT ON STREET

Would Be a Mistake to Reduce Collegiate Facilities Just Now, Declares Rev. C. D. Daniel.

ADDRESSES ROTARY.

Speaker Says That Training of Unemployed Boys is Essentially Relief Work.

"It would be the biggest mistake we could make at the present time to eliminate some of our Collegiate facilities," declared Rev. C. D. Daniel, of Mark Street United Church, in addressing the Peterborough Rotary Club at to-day's luncheon. "Under present conditions there are many boys attending the Collegiate who cannot find employment," he continued, "If for the sake of economy we were to deprive them of that training we would merely turn them out on the street and expose them to influences that would be harmful. To keep those boys in school is relief work, just as much so as is providing the other members of his family with food at $3.25 a week."

Rev. Mr. Daniel, who was introduced by Rotarian R. J. Kidd, delivered an impressive address on the subject of boys' work, which he prefaced by congratulating the Rotary Club on their general boys' work activities, and particularly on their boys' camp, which as camp director under the Ontario Boys' Work Board

70,000 CHINESE PERISH IN QUAKE

Foreigners Reach Peiping With Stories of Disaster in Interior.

WIDE AREA DESOLATE.

PEIPING, China, Feb. 13.— Reports of 70,000 killed in an earthquake in remote Kansu province were brought today by foreigners reaching Peiping from the desolated area.

The foreigners said the quake occurred on Dec. 26, destroying literally scores of towns and villages in the mountains of Kansu.

They arrived by camel, the caravans taking weeks to cover the thousand miles or more from the interior province. The foreigners said they encountered hundreds of destitute refugees fleeing from the quake area, as they travelled from Suchow, Kansu, to the "outside."

The extreme mid-Winter cold added to the misery of the quake victims, causing many deaths.

Kansu, in China's far northwest, near the great desert, is mountainous, desolate country, where constant civil wars and natural disasters make life precarious for the 6,000,000 inhabitants. An earthquake a few years ago was said to have been the worst disaster of its kind in recent history, and deaths of almost a million were related months after the catastrophe occurred.

Moslem chieftains harrass the countryside, adding to the hardships with semi-barbaric fierceness in their raids.

KIDNAPPERS ASK $60,000 IN CASH FOR DENVER MAN

Charles Boettcher, 31, Millionaire, Grabbed by Gunmen as He Enters Garage.

FRIEND OF LINDBERGH.

Note Left With Wife—Victim's Father Offers $5,000 Reward.

Boettcher, who is considered one of Colorado's wealthiest men, was accosted by the two kidnappers as he opened the garage door.

Covering him with revolvers, the men ordered him into their car, at the same time handing Mrs. Boettcher a note with instructions to "Give this to Claude and don't read it."

"Claude" is Boettcher's father.

Mrs. Boettcher, police said, rushed into the house and read the note. Its exact contents were not revealed and police declined to say whether a medium of payment was directed.

$5,000 Reward

The victim's father, Claude K. Boettcher, offered a reward of $5,000 for the safe return of his son.

Police announced a description of one of the men was obtained from Mrs. Boettcher.

A special officer known as Stephens, a night watchman at the Boettcher home who was absent when the abduction occurred, later appeared. He left almost immediately in a police car. Police denied he was under arrest.

The other morning when Mrs. Blakeney started to fix breakfast she found a $2 bill of the issue of 1899 lying in a pan with a bit of nibbled potato.

She believes it was left there by a mouse that knows the hiding place of a long concealed bank roll. Tasty tidbits are now scattered about the home to encourage the mice to keep up the good work.

Two of her crew she left 100 miles at sea. Another was hailed as the savior of the remaining 13.

The Newton sailed for the fishing banks Monday. Fire broke out suddenly in the oil-soaked engine room early Tuesday and in an instant flames were roaring from the port holes and licking up the masts. Explosion from the 5800 gallons of fuel oil seemed imminn-

Jacket Catches Fire Young Man Is Burned

Extensively burned about the body when the pyjama jacket he was wearing caught fire as he was in the act of lighting the gas stove at his home early on Sunday morning, William Sedgewick, 23 year old son of John H. Sedgewick, 516 Aylmer street, was admitted to Nicholls Hospital. His condition this morning is reported to be critical. He is being attended by Dr. E. A Hammond.

Dives Out Window After Reprimand

HAMILTON, February 13 (C. P.). — When he was reproved by Magistrate H. W. Burbidge in Adult Juvenile Court to-day, Cyril Lloyd, a youth, broke from police who were removing him to the cells downstairs, and made a running dive through a plate glass window in the courtroom. His body whizzed through the air and struck the ground about 12 feet below. Lloyd rose dazed and bleeding to his feet, and started to run, but collapsed before he had gone a block He was picked up by police and removed to hospital, where his condition is reported as serious.

The reproof was made when Lloyd made a remark which the magistrate considered imprudent. Lloyd's case had been settled.

NATIVE VESSEL SINKS, 13 PERISH

Bishop Antonin, Vancouver, Among Victims as Gale Upsets Craft.

ONLY THREE SAVED.

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, February 13 (C.P.). — Thirteen persons, among them Bishop Antonin, of Vancouver, ranking Bishop of the Russan Orthodox Church in Alaska lost their lives, belated reports here said, in a terrific mid-winter storm in which the small vessel Umnak Native was sunk in the Aleutians three weeks ago.

The small 59-foot vessel went down in a gale near Umnak Island on January 24, the message said. Three natives were saved.

Among those who perished were Captain Andrew Nelson, former skipper of the small motorship Eunice; the master, Captain Stankus, his wife and their infant child and a Russian priest of Umnak, Mike Tutiakoss.

JAPAN ADAMANT UPON HER STAND IN MANCHUKUO

Message Sent League Taken to Mean End to All Conciliation.

SLUMP ON EXCHANGE.

Tokya Will Refuse to Deal With Proposed Commission of Powers.

TOKYO, Feb. 13 (A.P.) — The Cabinet approved and the Emperor sanctioned to-day a message to the League of Nations declaring Japan is adamant concerning maintaining the independence of the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchukuo.

The message was speeded telegraphically to Geneva in reply to a League of Nations' inquiry as to Japan's views on discontinuing the present Manchukuo regime in Manchuria.

It was taken for granted in all official quarters that the reply means the end of conciliation in the Manchurian dispute and brings Japan on the verge of withdrawal or excommunication from the league.

Withdrawal Certainty

In view of the recommendations now drafted by a league sub-committee, calling for a commission of powers, including the United States and Russia, to direct negotiations between China and Japan, a foreign office spokesman said to-day he believed Japan's withdrawal from the league was a foregone conclusion.

A heavy slump in the Tokyo stock exchange resulted to-day from the league crisis, leading shares falling eight to 15 points.

Japanese officials have held all along that the nature of the league's recommendations would decide whether Japan would remain in the league. Now that these recommendations have been drawn up, it was stated to-day that Japan would refuse to deal with such a commission of powers as is proposed.

TUGS BATTLING HUGE ICE FLOES

Make Way Slowly to Port After Freeing Imprisoned Car Ferry.

SAILOR IS KILLED.

ASHTABULA, O., Feb. 13.—(A P.)—Ice-filled waters of Lake Erie to-day held 16 men aboard two tugs while a crew of 38 they had gone out to aid prepared last rites for a crew member killed in an earlier battle with the ice floes.

The tugs, the California and the T. C. Lutz, were forced to drop anchor two miles off shore when darkness halted their efforts to return to shore last night. They sent a message saying they would attempt to work their way through the ice floes to a harbor to-day.

The tugs were sent late Saturday to the aid of the car ferry Ashtabula, which was caught in an ice jam while on her way from Port Burwell, Ont. Alfred Soderman, 50, seaman, was killed when he fell on an ice floe as he attempted to climb to the deck and the other members of the crew took his body ashore.

Capt. Charles F. Meyers said the Ashtabula, with a load of 26 empty cars, was caught in the ice when about five miles out of Port Burwell. It was held fast until Saturday afternoon but worked itself loose after the two tugs were sent from Cleveland to aid her.

Two Small Children Have Narrow Escape

STIRLING, Feb. 13 (Examiner Correspondence)—Asleep in their beds two young children had narrow escapes from death, when fire from some undetermined origin ravaged their bedroom on Saturday evening.

The children Jean McIntosh, 4 and her brother Donald 6, were rescued by their mother and grandfather. The latter had been sitting in the living room and detecting smoke in the house rushed upstairs and discovered the children almost overcome by suffocation.

Fire which completely destroyed the contents of the bedroom, was confined to its source by the fire brigade and the remainder of the house was undamaged.

Windsor Suspect Found With Gun Taken During Raid

Border Police Claim They Have Recovered $750 Believed Part Of $5,000 Loot, And Car The Prisoner, John Boyd, Is Thought To Have Used.

DISCOVERY MADE FOLLOWING MAN'S ARREST FOR SAFE CRACKING—SILENT ON CONFESSION.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 13.—(CP)—John Boyd, Baltimore, Md., is held here today while police question him in connection with the holdup of a Bank of Toronto branch in that city last week.

Windsor police alleged Boyd had in his possession a gun taken from the bank, located at Kenilworth and Queen streets, Toronto. They further declared they had recovered $750, believed part of the $5,000 stolen from the bank.

Police refused to admit Boyd had signed a statement admitting a part in the robbery, but said he was wanted by Toronto police.

Boyd was arrested and first questioned in connection with two safe-blowings here over the week-end. One was at the office of an oil company and the second at that of a coal concern. About $130 was stolen in one robbery and an unstated amount in the other.

A light automobile today was found abandoned in Walkerville and the car, according to Police Chief James Smith, was connected with the Toronto bank robbery. A small bottle found in the machine bears the label of a Toronto drugstore. He believed, he said the car was used by John Boyd. Toronto police had been notified, he declared.

Gun Number Tallies.

Police reported two numbers were filed off a revolver found in Boyd's possession, but a third number in the breach tallied with that of a gun found in the teller's cage. Boyd was also said to tally with the desciption of the robber, except there was no moustache. Police say his lip indicated it had been shaved recently. They declared Boyd registered at a hotel yesterday under the name of John Gaynor.

Detectives were visiting at a local hotel when they saw Boyd's name on the register and decided to talk to him. Boyd was in bed. The police alleged they found the revolver under his pillow and say the man told them where $755 in five, 10 and 20 dollar bills, were hidden in the room.

FEAR FOR FISHERMEN.

Bitter Cold Grips Maritimes With Second Wave Moving East From Prairies.

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., Feb. 13. (CP) Reports of widespread damage are trickling into this capital city today following a week-end blizzard that swept Newfoundland, paralyzed shipping and railway traffic, and added to suffering of flood-stricken villages along the shores of Bay St. George.

Telegraph and telephone lines are down in several districts, and reports are coming in slowly.

The terrific gale lifted the Roman Catholic Church at Highlands from its foundation and carried it ito the sea. Another church was burned to the ground last week at Grabbes, four miles distant.

Buildings Destroyed

At St. Flintin's the roof of the railway shed was blown off and several barns were demolished.

It is believed the storm was fiercest on the western coast, where hundreds of fisherfolk had not recovered from the effects of last week's flood and gales.

No word has come from Sandy point to tell of the fate of 450 people who were forced into their attics on Thursday as the sea crashed through their breakwater and flooded their village, who were hungry and thirsty when they found the salt water had ruined their winter stores of vegetables and filled their wells and who suffered further hardship on Friday when another storm out of the northwest added to their misery.

According to a despatch from St George's the blizzard defeated all

REID STARTED HIS LIFE TERM

Is Taken to Penitentiary By Sheriff's Order.

HOMELESS WANDERER.

To-night the identity of Henry Walter Reid, who twice stood in the very shadow of the gallows, is lost. He is now a convicted "lifer" known only by a number.

This afternoon the big gates of Kingston Penitentiary closed behind him with grim finality, and the curtain was rung down on the tragedy that cost the life of "Butch" Harry Thomas, unemployed Belleville war veteran in Peterborough's hobo jungle early in September last.

Reid a homeless wanderer rode into Peterborough last summer on a freight train and with a group of other hoboes inhabited a boat house on the banks of the Otonabee River at the foot of Burnham street. Following the early morning discovery of the dead body of Harry Thomas, who had been knifed through the heart, the hue and cry went up for the murderer and resulted in the arrest two days after of "Shorty" Reid who had obtained employment as a farm hand in Dummer Township.

Convicted by a jury at the Fall Assizes on the capital charge, Reid was sentenced by Mr. Justice Wright, presiding trial judge to be hanged on January 6. As a result of a petition to the Governor General in Council urging executive clemency Reid's case was referred by the Federal Government to the Ontario Court of Appeal and Mr.

CHIEF JUSTICE FRANCIS ANGLIN QUITTING BENCH

Hands Resignation to Premier Bennett After 29 Years' Service.

DUE TO ILL HEALTH.

Expect Mr. Justice Lyman P. Duff Will Step Into Post After Feb. 28.

OTTAWA, February 13. — After 29 years' service on the Bench, Rt Hon. Francis A. Anglin, Chief Justice of Canada, is retiring. He handed in his resignation to Premier R. B. Bennett on Saturday. It is to take effect on February 28. Ill-health compelled the veteran jurist to retire. For the past year or two he has struggled with successive attacks of illness.

Eager to continue, the Chief Justice consulted leading medical men throughout Canada, but they advised him that to assume the responsibility of leading the Court through another term was more than he should undertake.

While no decision has been reached, it is expected Mr. Justice Lyman P. Duff will be appointed Chief Justice. Mr. Justice Duff has had a long and distinguished judicial career and has been on the Bench of the Supreme Court of Canada for some years.

Chief Justce Anglin came to the Supreme Court of Canada in 1909 from the Supreme Court of Ontario, to which he was appointed in 1904.

As a member of the Imperial Privy Council he sat in frequently at the hearing of appeals in London by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He was recognized as a great judge, and was noted for the austerity of his manner both on and off the Bench.

Born to Public Affairs.

The retiring judge was literaly born to an interest in public affairs. His father was the late Hon. Timothy Warren Anglin, who came from Ireland and settled at Saint John, to found a newspaper. He later entered politics and became Speaker of the House of Commons.

The bar of Canada will regret that Judge Anglin is unable to continue his duties as leader of the Supreme Court. His profound knowledge of law, the dignity of his diction, and the great care he took in dealing with the appeals which came before the court have been praised from one end of Canada to the other.

He has been highly honored by his country and by his church. He has represented the Governor-General on many important occasions. Several universities have honored him with degrees.

He was made a knight commander of the pontifical order of St. Gregory the Great on December 30th, 1924, and a knight grand cross of the same order on the 8th of November, 1930.

He became a member of the Inner Temple in April, 1925, and was elected an honorary bencher of that inn of court in the sae year.

BRITAIN AIMING TO GET FARMERS BACK UPON FEET

Peasantry, Once Pride of Country, Steadily Vanishing Since Industrial Revolution.

WHEAT AIDS GIVEN.

Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, Prepares Far-reaching Plan for Meats, Dairy Produce.

(y George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(C. P. Cable). —Rt. Hon. Walter Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, is to submit to Parliament new and far-reaching proposals to put British agriculture on its feet.

The steady decline of British agriculture has been the theme of poet and politician ever since the industrial revolution. Broad acres under grass—steady migration from countryside to over-swollen towns —the vanishing peasantry that was once a country's pride—there has been no end of the constant refrain. Now, with the reversal of free trade policies, Britain again seeks to bring agriculture within the ambit of her national economy.

She is endeavoring to make British farming pay. Wheat came first. Schemes on meats and dairy products are to come.

Under the Heatt scheme, registered growers receive a standard price for millable wheat of 45 shillings per quarter of 504 pounds.

No Selling Bounds.

The farmer can sell where and how he likes in order to secure the best price. The average price for the year is deducted from the 45 shillings and the difference—known

Property Owners From The County Discuss Grants

Cost Of Education As It Affects Property Owners In The County Discussed At Mass Meeting Of Farmers Called By County Council.

TOWNSHIP SCHOOL RATES AND GRANTS RECEIVED FROM GOVERNMENT MAIN ITEMS.

The cost of education as it affects property owners was broadly discussed at a largely attended meeting of farmers, most of them representatives of school sections, from all parts of the county at the Court House on Saturday afternoon.

Township school rates and Government grants were the two main subjects considered by the meeting, with occasional digression to kindred topics. The general sentiment was that the Government should maintain its financial assistance to the Public Schools, but that the local rates should be reduced. On this latter point several of the representatives of school sections in the northern townships expressed the opinion that the proposed legislative amendment recently submitted in a Middlesex resolution to the County Council, would react adversely on their ratepayers. To meet their objection it was suggested that their grade of school sections might be omitted as an exception in the proposed request to the Department of Education.

The Middlesex County resolution was adopted, and a sub-committee composed of Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, Reeve W. A. Anderson, and Michael Walsh, of Otonabee, was appointed to droft the petition embodying the wishes of the meeting and to deliver it to T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., and J. F. Strickland, M.P.P., with the request that they present it to the Minister of Education.

Revise Grant System.

Another resolution which was carried unanimously was moved by Dr. Smith, and seconded by David Curtin of Galway, that the schedule of legislative grants to schools based on the relation of salaries to the equalized assessment be revised by lowering the ratio of teachers' salaries to the assessment as set out in the schedule or by increasing the grants that are payable under the present ratio.

Started In Otonabee

Michael Walsh was appointed chairman of the meeting. He recalled that School Section No. 8, Otonabee, had started the agitation for lower township school rates, that it had been supported by other school sections of the township at a Keene meeting, and the same question had come before the County Council last month in a resolution from Middlesex County Council.

"At our annual meeting in No. 8 we thought the township rate should be cut 50 per cent., from $600 to $300," Mr. Walsh said.

This means that in a township such as Otonabee, Asphodel and

IMPERIAL ARMY FIELD MARSHAL TAKEN BY DEATH

Sir William Robertson, Great British Warrior, Passes at 75 Years.

HELD MANY HONORS.

Only Man in Army to Rise From Ranks to Highest Position Attainable.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(C. P. Cable). —Soldiers and statesmen joined today in expressing the nation's regret over the loss of Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, who died at his London home here yesterday, aged 75.

Sir William, the only man in the army who rose from the ranks to become a Field Marshal, was considered one of the greatest military scientists in the United Kingdom. He had been a soldier for 43 years when he retired in 1920 to become a vigorous worker for the cause of peace.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was visibly affected when he heard of Sir William's death. He remarked that after gaining highest honors as a great warrior, he ended his days as "one of the most forceful and convincing friends of the cause of peace."

Commander in Chief 1918.

David Lloyd George, who was Prime Minister when Sir William was appointed commander-in-chief in Great Britain in 1918 after some difficulty with the War Cabinet over strength of forces on the western front, said:

"We served together for years in the war, and the last time I met him was at a great peace meeting"

Lord Allenby, renowned for his services on the western front, in Egypt and in Palestine, declared Sir William was a man of sterling worth and splendid achievements whose death was a very great loss to the nation. "His work in France and at home," Lord Allenby said, "was very largely responsible for victory."

In 1920, in recognition of his war service, he received a baronetcy, official thanks of Parliament and a grant of £10,000.

Started as Private

Sir William Robertson was a living instance of the private who carried a field-marshal's baton in his knapsack. Of poor parentage, he enlisted as a private in the 16th (Queen's) Lancers at the age of 18, and closed an active career when he received the baton of a field-marshal 43 years later. For three years of the Great War he was chief of the Imperial General Staff and, ac-

Farm Co-operative Directed By Woman

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 13 (A.P.)—From a tiny office in a block-long building, a slender, alert woman directs the destiny of a farm co-operative whose members number 2,500 producers throughout Oregon and southern Washington. She sees to the receiving, storage and distribution of 100,000,000 eggs a year and directs a sales organization with 60 per cent of its markets in the east.

The office, barely large enough to accommodate a desk, a filing cabinet and a few chairs, is the headquarters of Miss Edna B. Reed, chosen a few days ago as the first woman in the United States to head a farmers co-operative organization.

WOE TO THE POOR MAN who forgets that Valentine's Day comes to-morrow—Tuesday, the 14th!

• • • • • • •

It is said that women still have a weakness for attention, and to be neglected on certain red letter days is to know bitter disappointment.

• • • • • • •

Flowers are the great favorites among gifts, because they never say too little, nor yet too much, and they will draw a gasp of pleasure from any woman, even the most confirmed "Independent."

• • • • • • •

Styles in valentines have changed during the ages. The ancient Romans held a festival day in February, and introduced the idea of restricting men from sending remembrances to young women unless they had been devoted and faithful for a whole year to their Valentines.

• • • • • • •

Along in the eighteenth century, enterprising beaus threw fruit or flowers with love lyrics attached into the maidens' window. What a difference to-day, when the modern hopeful can at the very last minute have flowers delivered to her, whether she is around the corner or around the world.

• • • • • • •

Love, through the ages, has found its expression in flowers. This is tulip time, or almost tulip time, and the hyacinth is another favorite spring plant.

• • • • • • •

And because many of you readers will be receiving many flowers this month, here are a few pointers on their care.

• • • • • • •

First of all, remember that a plant is in unnatural surroundings in your house, and requires more attention than the flowers in your garden.

• • • • • • •

The first essential is plenty of water. This does not mean that the poor plant should be drowned, or rotted. But it should be given a drink approximately every twenty-four hours.

• • • • • • •

Keep in as light a location as possible, but away from the draughts of a door or radiator.

• • • • • • •

When the flowering period is ended, the bulbs may be stored in a cool place until next fall, for planting in odd corners of your garden.

• • • • • • •

Water the plant even after the flowers are gone—until the foliage, too, has died down. When thoroughly dry, shake the bulbs out of the pots, clean them, and store them away.

• • • • • • •

If you are favored with cut flowers, they will keep longer if given the proper attention. Each night they should be given fresh water. About half an inch should be cut slantwise off the ends of the stems.

• • • • • • •

A sharp knife should be used for this. Cut flowers should always be arranged in a container that will permit the water to come at least half-way up on the stems.

• • • • • • •

The stems themselves should not be crowded, for it is as possible to choke a flower as to choke a person—and without a fraction of the effort.

• • • • • • •

At night, let the container of flowers stand in a cool room or in a refrigerator, but don't permit the blooms to freeze!

Weak After Flu and Pneumonia

Joseph English is Well and Strong After Taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to Rebuild Health

"I feel we practically owe my brother's life to the benefit obtained from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," writes Doris English of Fort Langley B.C. "My brother took the 'flu and, getting a chill, contracted pneumonia which later developed into an abscess on the lung. After an operation and a long siege of illness, he was so thin and weak he was a sight. He had no appetite for food, and we weren't given much encouragement that he would recover. However, we found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as good as they were advertised. From the beginning of the treatment there was a marked improvement. He soon had a good appetite, and his face took on a healthy color. He gained weight from the first. To-day he is well and strong and hopes others may benefit from this wonderful remedy as he did."

Gained From the Start

Whatever the cause of a run-down condition of health, use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They create new red blood which revitalizes the whole system and builds up new energy and vigor. For that reason they are equally good for young growing girls. Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pill's in the new glass container from your druggist. 50c a package.

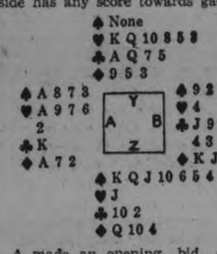
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

WHERE SHOULD BIDDING STOP?

The hand below appeared when both sides were vulnerable. What should be the final call? Neither side has any score towards game.



A made an opening bid of 1-Heart. Y bid 2-Hearts. Z bid 2-Spades, that Y shifted into 3-Hearts, showing that A's opening bid had been made largely upon distributed strength, and that Y really held the big heart hand. What can Y make at hearts against the best defense, and what can Z make at spades against the best defense? Study of such misfit hands affords excellent practice.

A's best opening lead with spades trumps, is the Ace of diamonds, giving his side two defensive tricks in that suit. Having won the second diamond trick, B's best return lead is a heart, which trick will be won by A's Ace. The best return lead for A is a heart and a ruff with the 9 of spades later on causing the declarer to lose two trump tricks to A, and giving the declarer two-odd, with 100 points for honors.

Suppose Y plays the hand at 3-Hearts. Probably B will lead his fourth-best club, picking up A's lone K. The natural return lead is the declarer's lowest heart. A's Ace will win the trick, and two diamond tricks will be won by A-B. What is B to lead next? If he leads a diamond, dummy will win the trick. The K of spades will be led. The declarer will trump the Ace of spades, and A will win a heart trick ultimately, giving him three-odd, as A must lead back a spade, enabling the declarer to discard his losing clubs on dummy's spades.

Instead of leading back a diamond, when B wins his trick in that suit, he may lead a club for A to ruff. If that is done A-B will have won their fourth trick. If A puts dummy in with a diamond, before spades are established in dummy, the contract of three can be defeated, as Y still must lose one club trick to B. It is possible to hold Y down to two-odd.

In case B leads a spade when he is in with his K of diamonds, the declarer can fulfill his contract by means of a grand coup. He will trump the Ace of spades. Y holds the K-Q-10-8 of trumps, and A has the 9-7-6-2. Y can lead his last diamond, winning the trick with dummy's Q. Then dummy's K-Q-J of spades will enable the declarer to discard his three clubs. When the fourth spade is led from dummy, A must trump before Y does, and all A's trumps will be picked up, giving the declarer four-odd at hearts.

Chuck Roast with Vegetables
Perfection Salad
Apple Brown Betty
Tea or Coffee

Perfection salad is made in molded form with any mixture of vegetables you prefer. Use lemon or lime flavored gelatine, and a good vegetable combination is cabbage, tomato (canned or fresh), green pepper, a wee bit of onion and grated carrot.

Today's Recipes

Chuck Roast With Vegetables.—Two pounds chuck, one-half cup onions, sliced; one-half cup diced celery, eight carrots, peeled; five medium potatoes, diced. Sear the roast on all sides, either in a hot oven or over the open fire. Sprinkle with salt, using about a half tablespoon. Add onion and one cup of boiling water. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, covered, for one hour. Add the vegetables and continue cooking until meat and vegetables are tender, about an hour longer. Serve meat on platter surrounded with vegetables. Thicken liquid in the pan, making it into gravy.

Apple Brown Betty.—Two cups soft bread crumbs, two tablespoons fat, three cups apples, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half lemon, juice and grated rind; one-fourth cup water. Prepare buttered crumbs. Chop apple and add remaining ingredients. Arrange crumbs and apple mixture in a baking dish in layers, having crumbs on bottom of dish and a layer on top. Bake 40 to 60 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot with sugar and cream or hard sauce.

Hard Sauce.—One-half cup butter, one cup powdered sugar, one teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter and add sugar gradually, then the flavoring. Chill and serve over hot pudding.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

'Dear Miss Glad: I have rather a nice figure, except for the fact that my posture is poor. My shoulders look hunched ordinarily, and when I attempt to hold them back, I look stiff and awkward. Could you tell me how to acquire better posture?

"MAIDA."

Posture is one of the most important features of a youthful figure. The shoulders should not hunch forward, and the small of the back should not curve too deeply. On the other hand, shoulders should not be forced back and the back held stiffly straight, as this gives an ungraceful, rigid appearance to the body. The back and shoulders should be flexible, not tense. If the head and chest are held high, the shoulder and back naturally fall into their proper positions. An excellent way to develop good posture is to practice walking around with a book balanced on the head.

"Dear Miss Glad: My skin has improved so greatly since I've been following the instructions in your 'Beauty Culture' booklet, but I simply had to write and thank you. All those ugly pimples and blackheads have vanished, and my skin is much smoother and finer-textured. However, I have some tiny red veins on my cheeks and nostrils. What can be done to eradicate these veins? Do you think that ice packs would do any good?

"CAROLINE."

Ice packs would not in the least improve the unsightly veins that have appeared on your cheeks and nostrils. However, a modification of your daily diet will help quite a bit in eliminating them and making them less obvious. You should abstain from all foods that stimulate the blood supply too much, for instance, such as highly-seasoned foods and alcoholic beverages. Such foods and beverages stimulate the blood too greatly and render the veins more prominent. However, these veins can be entirely removed by plastic surgery, or by expert manipulation of the electric needle.

"Dear Miss Glad: My hair has a tendency to curl naturally, and so during the past six months I have been submitting it to weekly shampoos and finger-waves. I use a warm air current to dry my hair, which has always been soft, thick and healthy. Recently, however, my hair seems to have become dry and harsh. Could the above treatment be in any way the cause of this change in my tresses?

"ANXIOUS."

The present dry, harsh state of your hair may be the result of several things. First, your shampoo may be too alkaline. Forego all strong shampoos, and use only a mild, bland soap. Second, you may be drying your hair with too intense heat. Remove most of the moisture from your locks before applying any heat. And then use only a mildly warm air current. Third, you may be using curling fluids that are too drying. A dry scalp needs an oil lotion to supplement the deficiency of oil glands, you know. Hot castor oil or olive oil shampoos, such as the excellent one outlined in my "Beauty Culture" booklet, will help greatly in correcting the dryness and harshness of your hair, and will assist in keeping it soft and glossy.

PARENTS URGED TO START EARLY IN TAKING CHILDREN TO CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Wilson is Guest Preacher at St. Paul's Church.

MASTERLY DISCOURSES

A masterly discourse in which he reviewed some of the Old Testament Biblical history in the light of current events was provided for the morning congregation at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday, by the Rev. James Wilson, D.D., who occupied the pulpit as special guest preacher.

"And it came to pass, when Moses came down from Mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount that Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him." Taking this text from Exodus: 34.29, the Rev. Mr. Wilson, who was for twenty-three years minister of Dovercourt Road Church, Toronto preached an eloquent message which appeared to make a profound impression on his listeners.

Special music was provided by the choir the two anthems being: "Just as I Am"—Bowles; and "Lift Up Your Heads"—Hopkins. Again at the evening service Dr. Wilson preached a message of equal strength and sincerity.

In reviewing the lives of some of the outstanding figures in Biblical history, and which included Abraham, Jacob and Moses, the preacher suggested that human nature had not changed very much since those days.

Man of Meekness

Dealing more particularly with the life of Moses, whom the preacher described as "a man of great meekness who did such wonderful things," he stressed the large part which a mothers' influence had had in shaping Moses' character for his successes in later life. "I venture to say that it was the teaching of his old mother that impressed upon Moses' heart the glory of God," said Dr. Wilson.

He pointed out that the "training of a child in the way it should go" was a wonderful privilege for any parents, and during the course of his sermon he stated, "Character is formed and life of a child is determined by the impressions received during youth. I would just like to say to you fathers and mothers being in early years to bring your boys and girls to church. It will have a determining influence upon their lives."

Touching upon the life of Moses, Dr. Wilson pointed out that it was only after forty years in exile during which he was undergoing a course of preparation, that the Lord called Moses out of the burning bush and gave him the leadership of Israel.

"In its essence what befell Moses has befallen men all down the ages," he said, "and may also befall us if we will listen to the message of the Eternal God."

In the same manner in which Moses had come out of exile and had gone to converse with God in the darkness of the mountain, said Dr. Wilson, so were the lives of most men a large interrogation mark. In ignorance mankind looked upon the darker side and failed to realize that God has taken us into the valley of humiliation out of His wisdom. "We walk by faith and not by sight, and our attitude toward life should be not my will and my pleasure but Thy Will and Thy pleasure," he said. "We must realize that there is no pain, no suffering, no depression that may come into our lives that can separate us from the love of the Lord Jesus in Christ."

When Moses had returned from the darkness of the Mount he returned with something that was to be a guidance to the people of Israel. He had gone to the mount carrying the stupendous burden of a new order that was beginning, and He went to God for direction and found it.

"To-day darkness is around us," said Dr. Wilson, 'but do you and I realize that in the midst of the darkness is the abiding love of Almighty God who has not yet taken His hand from the guiding tiller. The depression we speak of to-day," he believed, "is not all economic, but is largely a moral depression."

Two Great Principles

The minister pointed that as Isaiah had said the only sure salvation was to come back to God in humble simple things. Two great principles had been laid down for the guidance of Israel. They were: thou shalt reverence my sanctuary and thou shalt keep My Sabbath holy. When Israel failed to fulfill these commands, she also started to fail.

In closing he offered the thought, that God would not lift His hand from the present depression until the world had learned to respect the tabernacle of God and keep the Sabbath holy.

A CHECK ON SPEEDERS.

The Toronto Star supplies the interesting information that a new device has successfully been tried out in England by which the fact that any motor vehicle is exceeding the speed limit is automatically recorded, so that it can be seen at a glance that the car or bus or truck as the case may be is travelling faster than the law allows.

A light prominently displayed is the medium by which the breaking of the speed limit is signalled; as soon as the vehicle starts to move at a rate faster than the legal limit this light will flash green. At the same time a similar light on the dash also shows green as a warning to the driver.

It can readily be seen that if the use of this gadget becomes universal the style of some of our speediest drivers will be seriously changed; in fact, the system would make speeding so easy to detect that there would have to be a general slowing down or the state would be able to collect enough in taxes to build and maintain all the highways and use the handsome balance that would be left to reduce the public debt.

All a traffic officer would have to do would be to take the numbers of the cars showing a green light, and then see that the offenders were lined up before the magistrate.

A GESTURE NOT ENOUGH.

The complaint is heard that the action of the Ontario Government in reducing its grants for education merely means more municipal taxation.

It should not mean that if the school trustees of the province accept the reduction in its proper light, that is as a warning that the time has come for effective retrenchment in school expenditures.

What is required to meet the situation is not a mere gesture, but a genuine program of economy with every expenditure that savors of extravagance ruthlessly lopped off.

The desirability of giving Ontario children every opportunity for an adequate education cannot be denied, but when through unusual economic conditions the burden of education costs is crushing many taxpayers, it becomes necessary to adopt effective measures to relieve the situation.

Our school machinery was built up rapidly during prosperous years, and after a period in which expenditures went unquestioned and municipalities vied with each other in the matter of new schools and equipment, it is difficult for school boards to adjust themselves to the new conditions and to reverse the policy of the past decade, yet it must be done, and done at once, if the people who provide the money and whose incomes have been reduced are to be relieved of some of the load under which they are staggering.

The Government has pointed the way—and every school board alive to the situation will endeavor to follow the lead.

WHY NOT TAX FISH STORIES?

When it comes to the making of freak laws it would seem that some of the State Legislatures across the border are in a class by themselves.

Thus we have before the Legislature of Massachusetts at the present time a resolution calling for the passing of a bill to be known as "An act to restrict the taking of worms for bait," and which provides that before a non-resident digs fish-worms for bait he must first secure a license.

This measure would seem to be a direct slap at the early bird from outside the state, who, if the act is passed, will not be able to indulge in his favorite pastime until he has made a contribution to the State Legislature.

If our good friends in Massachusetts really want to make money they should not think of putting restrictions on the securing of bait or on fishing; rather they should invite the world to fish in their state, but license the telling of fish stories on a graduate scale, the anglers who circulate the tallest yarns to be taxed the heaviest.

There is a very rich field of revenue to be developed, for the average fish story would yield worthwhile returns, while if Jack Pearl ever happened to drop a line into Massachusetts waters, the Baron Munnchausen yarns he would relate would make it possible to retire the state debt in one season.

We passed this tip along out of the goodness of our heart, not expecting even a modest percentage of the profits.

FULL OF DYNAMITE.

Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader in Ontario, declared in forcible language to a St. Thomas audience the other night that so far as he is concerned there will be no coalition government in this province.

It is not known that anybody has ever proposed such a coalition, but nevertheless stranger things have happened in the field of politics, and it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that Ontario may see a re-alignment of political forces, and that Mr. Hepburn himself will have had a considerable share of the responsibility for the development.

If the Ontario field leader of the Liberals continues his swing-to-the-left speeches and his advocacy of inflation and other nostrums, there is the very obvious possibility that his attitude, coupled with the launching of the C.C.F. movement in this province, may bring about a shifting of the allegiance of many Liberals who are not Socialist-minded to the support of the Henry Government.

In fact, the logical development of what is now transpiring on the provincial political front is that the Hepburn section of the Liberal party and the Nixon element of the Progressive group may be swallowed up by the C.C.F. or vice versa, while more moderate Liberals will for the time being align themselves with the present administration.

The situation, as a matter of fact, is full of dynamite, and it would be a difficult feat to prophesy accurately what the political line-up will be a year from now.

GIVING WOODSWORTH PUBLICITY.

There was one of those gusty moment in the House of Commons when J. S. Woodsworth, Labor M.P. from Winnipeg, was speaking. The western member was dealing with Mr. Bennett and his money, and made this remark:

"Does anyone mean to say that the great fortunes of Canada have been built up by what could be termed honest toil? Has the Prime Minister's own fortune been gained by honest toil?"

At once, it is reported in despatches from Ottawa, the House was in a turmoil, and the upshot was that the Speaker forced Mr. Woodsworth to withdraw the statement.

With about 80 per cent. of what Mr. Woodsworth says we find ourselves in disagreement, but we cannot help wondering if there was not a point stressed here to give the words a meaning which the Labor man did not intend them to have? We have heard that phrase "honest toil" used a good many times, we have seen it, too, in letters which Labor men write to newspapers. By it they mean the pay a man receives for what he is actually doing, as opposed to income he may have from investments, and so on.

We find it hard to believe that Mr. Woodsworth meant that Premier Bennett was securing anything dishonestly, or that he was taking what did not belong to him.

Every time the House takes occasion to jump on this man from the West we are certain it adds to his prestige and is great advertising for the Commonwealth idea he seeks to spread. In other words, they are playing right into Mr. Woodsworth's mitt. —Stratford Beacon-Herald.

RUSSIAN TRADE.

The Hon. James Malcolm, former Minister of Trade and Commerce, is entirely right when he endorses the Bennett Government's refusal to finance the Russian barter plan recently proposed by a group of Winnipeg promoters, and just as right when he conlemns the Government's general policy toward trade with Russia.

The attitude of Mr. Malcolm is precisely that stated by the Star a short time ago. We agree that it is unreasonable to ask the Government to pledge the national credit and risk a chance of losing a considerable sum of money on any privately-arranged deal. We are just as sure, however, that the Government should put no obstacle in the way of an individual or organization wishing to trade.

Mr. Malcolm is a Liberal, but anything but a narrow partisan. Not long ago he told his North Bruce constituents that it was every man's duty to support the Government of the day in a critical period such as that through which we are now passing. His general attitude along these lines has been highly commended from various quarters. It appeals to us as being particularly fair, reasonable and encouraging. It might well be copied by certain other members of his own party and, also, by some members of the Government and their followers.

It may be argued, of course, that the Government has subsidized more than one form of national activity in order to improve the business situation and to help things along. The five cents per bushel bonus on wheat is a case in point. The millions appropriated for direct relief are in the same category. At the same time there are grave objections to asking the Canadian treasury to stake $8,000,000 on the financing of a suggested exchange of Canadian cattle for Russian oil and coal. The best answer is that if the deal is attractive enough to warrant the Government taking such action, with safety, there should be no trouble in securing private assistance to make it possible.—Border Cities Star.

THE INSTALMENT SYSTEM.

There is a proposal coming before the Quebec Legislature which will be watched with interest in many quarters. It is a measure dealing with the instalment system which requires that in the case of "luxury" purchases a down payment of fifty per cent. be deposited. This fifty per cent. initial payment negatives the vendor's lien upon the article, which may then be seized, if need be, for debt, including rent.

It is almost needless to say that the vendors of "luxury" goods, which would include automobiles and radio sets, are against the bill. A large body of opinion supports it—especially landlords who are chagrined to see debtor tenants riding along the main street in cars, the payments for which are being carefully kept up while nothing is set aside for rent.

The instalment system has come in for a good deal of praise and also for a good deal of blame. The champions of the system say that it has put into the homes of working people many things which they would not otherwise have been able to enjoy. It kept the factories busy and resulted in wages being paid to tens of thousands of men and women who would have had to remain idle. On the other hand, the opponents say that it was carried to excess, so many people mortgaging their earnings in advance that ultimately they could buy no more; they piled up their credit to such an extent that the whole structure became top-heavy and toppled over. Factories then had to shut down, millions, perhaps billions of dollars, were left owing all over this continent, and it has been one of the contributory causes of the "depression."

There are good arguments on both sides. The truth of the matter appears to be that the instalment, or credit system, good in principle, was abused and brought about the inevitable reaction on business.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With 22 constituencies to be carved off the Ontario political map, there will be a lot of battling on the part of many members to save their ridings from elimination.

The Ontario Hunters' Game Protective Association want the ban on dogs removed. No evidence has been offered as to what the deer have to say about the matter.

It cannot surely be claimed that only 200 people in Peterborough are financially able to contribute to the Relief Fund—and yet the list so far contains only that many names.

The winters may be changing all right, but you can't prove it by the weather of the past week.

Ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith says the United States needs a dictator in charge of public works. The former Governor, however, has not so far nominated anybody for the position.

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 41

Perhaps it was fortunate for Jere Kane at just that moment that he was out of reach, for Chief John Lee arrived, storming furiously, at the apartment of Lillian Hull.

Sergeant James greeted him amiably but:

"Why didn't one of you blinking idiots tell me about this?" he shouted. "The first thing you know we're all going to be out of a job."

"Yeah, but chief," the sergeant put in plaintively, "Mr. Kane was here."

"Kane! Kane! That's all I hear. Jere Kane! Why the way some of you birds refer to him I might think that he's some little god sitting on a pedestal for all of you to kneel down and worship. The next one of you birds to mention that name to me will get this right on the button."

He doubled up his fist and shook it menacingly at the detective.

"He only just left here a few minutes ago to go out to Miss LeRoi's—"

"I don't care," John Lee exploded, "if he is on his way to perdition. I had this girl locked up where she was safe and along he comes and——"

But he never did finish what he started to say. His eye fell on a white object lying under the divan. He gazed at it for a moment and then quickly recovered it.

Gingerly, he dangled it before him—it was a crooked-bladed dirk, the blade of which was wrapped in a frilly lace handkerchief. Removing the covering, he found the blade blood-stained.

He knelt beside the girl and superficially examined the sharp wound in her breast. When he had finished:

"Have you called the coroner?"

"Yes, sir," James replied, "right after Mr.——right after he left here."

At that moment there was a rap on the door. James opened it and the coroner breezed in.

"We're having a rushing business out here in Hollywood, it seems," he said airily.

"Yes," John Lee growled, "and it's going to be all of our necks if we don't stop it pretty soon."

The coroner, ignoring his thrust, knelt beside the body of Lillian Hull. A close examination was unnecessary. Arising, he said:

"The knife was thrust into the heart, or possibly the lung. Whoever wielded the blade had almost superhuman strength. There is also a bruise on the head, as though she had been struck down before the blade was inserted."

"Is that all?" the chief asked sarcastically.

"No, sir, it isn't. I found some marks on her throat. Undoubtedly, she had been choked after she was struck on the head."

"Whoever did this job was going to make it complete, wasn't he?" Lee snorted.

"An exceptionally thorough job," the doctor agreed.

"What, in your opinion, caused death?"

"Any one of the three was sufficient to cause death. However, I am inclined to believe that the knife thrust was the actual cause. The blow on the head appears to have been merely hard enough to stun her."

"I am not sure about the strangulation. Only an autopsy will show complete results."

"I see. Well, I guess that's all you can do here."

The coroner called his assistant and together they placed the body in the large wicker basket and prepared to remove it. He was about to depart when:

"About the inquest, chief. Do you think one is necessary?"

"I don't see how it would be?" Lee snorted. "You'd only return a verdict of death at unknown hands."

"I suppose so. Well, good day. I shall see you again.

And with that he was gone. The chief turned to James. "I don't like that man," he growled. "He thinks this is a holiday, or something."

"Well," with a shrug of his shoulders, "I suppose that's his job."

John Lee looked at his sergeant and snorted.

The police official did not for one moment try to make himself believe that he was up against any ordinary murderer. He knew that he faced the greatest test of his life; he knew that his whole future depended upon the solution of this series of crimes.

But how was he going to pierce the baffling wall of mystery that surrounded this case. There had been four murders now—four murders that were as near "perfect" as any that he had ever come in contact with. The murderer had, thus far, successfully and completely hidden his trail.

That one person had committed all four crimes was a foregone conclusion. He was also certain—or practically so—that three of them had been committed to cover the trail to that of Richard Bailey. He was also certain that he was faced with the task of finding a criminal who was both clever and cunning.

While these thoughts raced through his tortured mind he wandered about the apartment hoping against hope that he might find some clue which would set him on the right path. But in that he was not successful. There was nothing.

He said to James, "You, of course, kept a close guard over Miss Hull after she returned home."

"Yes, sir," sheepishly, "except when I——"

And he related, as he had to Kane, that he had left the floor only for a moment to tell the telephone operator in the lobby that Lillian Hull was to receive no calls or callers.

"That's only reasonable," John Lee muttered. "I guess I would have done the same thing myself. Did you check up to see whether she had any calls?"

"Yes, sir, I did. Mr. Kane also checked up."

"Kane!" disgustedly. "Bah!"

John Lee was about to take his departure when his eye fell on a small Queen Anne desk. He considered it for a moment and then went to it. He tried to open it, but it was locked.

"Open this," he commanded Sergeant James.

The detective worked with it for a moment, but not until he drew his pocketknife and pried open the top did they gain admittance. The various pigeonholes were full of papers of one kind or another, but nothing that would yield anything of valute to them.

The chief was just about to turn away when his gaze fell on an unfolded sheet of note stationery pushed far back, almost out of sight. More out of curiosity than anything else, he drew it out and read it.

As the words met his eyes he grew tense; the color mounted to his cheeks.

When he pulled out the sheet of paper, he also drew out an envelope. Hastily, he seized it and looked at its contents. He turned to James:

"Keep this knife and handkerchief," he ordered. "I'm going to headquarters."

ALL OF US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

CAN'T WE GROW OLDER MORE CHEERFULLY?

At last, after all these years, she has to wear glasses.

And she does not like it. She doesn't like the drops in her eyes. She doesn't like all the fuss and trouble. She think it's "the beginning of the end," having "her only nice feature veiled, hidden, ambiguous behind hot lenses." And why don't I write an article on "The Agony of Growing Old"? She means why don't I write one for women, "because is isn't quite so bad for men."

All right, I'll do it.

But I don't think there's any agony in growing old unless you think there's agony in it. Perhaps I'm not old enough, but I don't remember when I ever thought I was young. A boy thinks he's old. A man in his twenties thinks he's ancient. And by the time a man gets into his thirties and moves on to forty, he feels that life is racing past him and it'll be only a couule of minutes until he's an antique old codger.

* * *

The trouble comes from idealizing one stage of life and sneering at the rest of it. Youth is lively and inquisitive and strong, but it isn't everything. Youth suffers agonies, too, and they maye be far more terrible than the agonies of age.... But if a man or a woman thinks only of youth and what it was like to be young and active, then the approaching years wears a ghastly face. A very Medusa of a face that can turn all joyful thoughts to stone.

Growing old may be worse for a woman than for a man. I know that many women think so, and that's partly the fault of the men and considerably the fault of the women.

Too many men—and I think American men—may emphasize youth in women at the expense of more mature qualities.

But too many women seem to think that the only precious part of their lives lies in the years that are flying swiftly away.

They think about that too much.

* * *

I have known happy old men and happy old women, and I do not think they were happy because they were "resigned" or had "given up." I don't think they were stupid nor were fooling themselves into cheerfulness. I think the truth is that they knew how to be happy at any age. They were happy as children, happy as young people, and happy in the later years. Regardless of aches and pains and creakiness and the sorrows that had come to them....And when we are old we should all be like these happy old people I have known.

P.S.: On second thought, I'm sure that men suffer greater agonies than women as they grow old. Because they have more vanity.

HON. GEORGE S. HENRY
Country Gentleman, Premier of Ontario, Industrialist, Politician

In this signature we have the best type of "Country Gentleman"—the man of balance and responsibility whose strengths are those solid ones of character rather than those spectacular ones of temperament. He is conservative and practical, concerned with fundamentals. He is motivated not so much by personal ambition (indeed hardly at all) as by zeal for working out certain ideas which commend themselves to him, which by reason of his highly developed religious sense usually involve a moral issue. There is obvious a high degree of executive ability, and of integrity, sincerity and directness in the exercise of that ability. He thinks clearly and carefully—and deliberately; he distrusts haste. He is kindly, simple in his tastes and desires, generous.

50,000 BOYS ENTER BIG COMPETITION

Two University Scholarships of $5,000 Each Offered by Fisher Bodies.

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 13.—Greater than ever is the interest young Canadians are taking in fine craftsmanship. Almost 50,000 boys in the Dominion, between the ages of twelve and nineteen years, are responding to the ideals of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild and have set themselves the task of building a miniature model Napoleonic coach in the guild's $85,000 craftsmanship competition.

Undoubtedly the offer of two university scholarships, valued at $5,000 each, to be given exclusively to Canadian winners, has done much to increase interest in fine workmanship among the youth of the Dominion, according to R. S. McLaughlin, president of the Canadian section of the Fisher Guild. Where there were only 15,000 Canadian members of the guild last year, upwards of 48,000 have already enrolled for the 1933 competition.

A wonderful trip and valuable cash awards await the best boy craftsmen of this province, Mr. McLaughlin pointed out, explaining that two boys from each of seven districts in the Dominion would attend a two-day convention in Toronto next summer and would later join the best young craftsmen of the United States at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

Even at this early date, Mr. McLaughlin urges members of the guild to speed up their work, setting a definite schedule of day to day labor, so that they may be certain of having their model coaches completed in time for judging in July. No further enrollments are being accepted this year at guild headquarters in Oshawa. It is felt that sufficient time does not remain before judging date for the proper construction of one of the little models.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE McLEOD PILGRIMAGE

On this date, in 1853, there ended in New Zealand one of the most remarkable pilgrimages in Canadian history. Many years before, in 1817, there had sailed from Lochbroom, Scotland, the barque Frances Ann, 400 tons, bound for Pictou, Nova Scotia, which some 400 men, women and children, broken hearted at leaving their Highland homes but looking forward with hope to a new life in a new country. Just before they sailed the company was joined by a young "stickit minister," Norman McLeod, who had broken from the Church of Scotland and was preaching "on his own," like the Methodist circuit riders of our early days. Then 36 years and a fine figure he was a natural leader of men and proved his prowess by saving the ship in a storm, when her captain was about to abandon her.

When the ship eventually reached Pictou they settled at first on the Middle River but conditions were hard and it was a poor exchange for Scotland. So that when an invitation came in 1819 to join a Highland colony at Hamilton, Ohio, it was decided that the whole colony should go. A ship was built, christened the Ark, duly launched, and on May 1, 1820, after a farewell service, the party embarked. But they were not destined to proceed. Once through the Straits of Canso they were buffeted by storm and finally driven to shelter in St. Ann's Bay, Cape Breton. There the country looked good and the party settled down under McLeod's leadership, seemingly for all time.

But in 1847 McLeod received a letter from a son at Adelaide, Australia, telling of a soft climate, and it was then decided, despite the fact that McLeod was then 66, that the colonly should go there. Two ships were built, the Highland Lass and the Margaret. The former was frozen in, but the latter got away in 1852 with McLeod, three sons and three daughters and 136 of his people. After months of wandering at sea the Margaret reached Adelaide, but conditions there did not suit McLeod, who ordered progress to Melbourne. The place was then in the midst of the gold fever, no place for God-fearing Scots; McLeod was much worried until he had a dream telling him to take his people to New Zealand. Thither the Scots went, in a strange ship, the Margaret having been sold, and eventually landed at Adelaide. There McLeod went to a place revealed to him in his dream(he later called it Mount Pisgah) and there the wanderings ended. Joined later by the party on the Highland Lass, McLeod's people were able to buy 15,000 acres at ten shillings an acre. Once they got settled they sent word back to Cape Breton with the result that between 1851 and 1860 over 1,000 folk went south to found the New Zealand dairy industry and three quarters of a century later ship butter to Canada to compete with that produced in the Canadian home of their forefathers in Nova Scotia and elsewhere in Canada.

MEANS NOTHING TO RECOGNIZE SOVIET, ALEX K ERENSKY CLAIMS

er war minister of Russia, whose inspired eloquence caused the female members of his listeners of 1914 to swoon.

Thunderous Voice

A short-cropped leonine head, massive but bent shoulders, and a thunderous voice still distinguish the former leader.

His present occupation is conducting anti-Bolshevik propaganda in a French newspaper. He spends his time between London and Paris in a feverish and unceasing attempt to foment sentiment against Stalin and his disciples.

It was the possibility of recognition of Soviet goverment by the United States in which I interested him.

"It doesn't mean a thing" he thundered in French. "Should such a recognition be made, it would be just a piece of paper. There is little advantage in it for either Russia or America.

The only advantage America could get out of it would be to have a strong, well-organized military nation to act as a buffer in the event of war with Japan. Russia to-day is badly organized and militaristically nil.

"Russia, of course, might gain certain superficial advantages. Stalin would go about shouting, 'See how powerful we are. Recognized at last by a great country like America. This moral benefit would last only a few months, during which Russia would be aided in distributing further Communist propaganda.

Anticipates Victory

"But Russia anticipated similar victory when France recognized her, and later it was the same with other countries. It has made no difference. Russia can not really by interested. I am indifferent.

"Economically, America has no need of Russia. If Russia did patronize American products where would she get the money to pay for them?

"As for the support which American capital and genius might give, Russia already has that. It has done no good. The great industrial plants are like pyramids in the desert.

"Russia a warring nation? Absurd. Russia doesn't want war. She is too delicately balanced. She would not dare. She is self-sufficient. She has everything she needs within her boundaries, and will never want war. Furthermore, she is foolish to attempt to foment Communist sentiment in other countries. Such manifestations as the London hunger marchers are none of Russia's business."

Speaking of Russia's future, Kerensky expressed the conviction that the royalist would never smell his native soil again, but then neither would Trotsky, his arch-enemy, and, according to him, the arch-enemy of Russia.

Japanese Link U.S. Russo-Chinese Pact

TOKYO, Feb. 13 (A.P.)—A Japanese foreign office spokesman who said last week that he had received information that China and Russia have signed an offensive and defensive alliance, said to-day he would not be surprised if the United States had a "secret understanding" with those nations.

"I am confident such an alliance will be sprung on the world sooner or later and I would not be surprised if America has had a secret understanding with the parties thereto," he declared.

New Clue Discovered In Roth Murder Case

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Feb. 13.—(CP)—A new clue in the Roth murder case came to light today in story of two boys, Ed. Voisard, 15 and Harris Kemmitt, 12, who declared they found a black jewelry case during Christmas holidays and later threw it into the river. Roth was carrying a similar case when he disappeared three months ago.

Roth's body was found frozen in the ice of a little lake near here Friday. A bag had been placed over his head and his feet were fastened with wire.

The two boys declared they found the jewelry case under a railway trestle and after playing with it for a time threw it away. A search of the area today failed to reveal any trace of the case but police are still searching.

Advertising Scheme Is Judged Legal

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 13 (C.P.).—Advertising schemes which call for prize awards to customers who have collected coupons on purchases are legal, according to a judgment today handed down in Division Court by County Judge A. A. Ingram.

The question of legality arose when a Toronto advertising agency sued a shoe and tobacco shop here for the cost of prizes and coupons sold to the shop. The prizes were cameras. The local firm refused to pay on the grounds the scheme was contrary to the laws of the Dominion.

EIGHT CONVICTS NOW COMMITTED

pected to appear before the end of the week.

The first two appearing before Magistrate J. M. Farrell were Alexander Manson, 21, and Norman Teetzel, 20.

Boucher's Story.

Guard W. W. Boucher testified Manson and Teetzel were in the tin and paint shops on the afternoon of October 17, when the first of two riots began.

"Manson came at me," said the guard, "and I tried to take a club from him. He said, 'You try it and I'll brain you, you——'."

Manson declined to make any statement and was committed. Teetzel was called.

"Convict Teetzel," said Boucher, "joined Convicts Jolliffe and Manson. Convict Teetzel had a heavy hardwood roller and was rushing to the door behind Manson. Teetzel was swinging the club and I stepped aside. Teetzel battered at the door with the club and the door was finally broken open. They joined more than 300 rioting convicts in the shop dome." Jolliffe was committed for trial last Friday.

No further evidence was given against Teetzel and he was then committed.

Convict Harold Cosh, 32, was next before the court on a similar charge. Instructor George Burton said Cosh was engaged in the office of the stone-cutting shop and had left his work and joined in the tumult on October 17.

"He asked me," said witness, "if I didn't know the disturbance was to be at three o'clock. I thought everyone here knew. Cosh then went back to the office and broke open the desk. He got the accounting book and started to tear out the pages. He then got the day book and started to tear them. Then he went to the farm desk and tore up some blue-prints. The convicts were in absolute control of the shop dome."

Convict Collapses

Cosh suddenly collapsed in the dock, and guards rushed to his aid, while another convict, chained to Cosh, also helped. He revived and declined to make any statement, but almost collapsed again as he was committed for trial.

Convict George Liticoff, 22, was the fourth convict called today. He is serving his first term in the penitentiary and was admitted last March.

Guard Oren Earl was on duty in the carpenter shop, where Liticoff was working. "At three o'clock," the official said, "I heard yelling in the yard. I saw some convicts congregating. I asked some convicts to assist me in barricading the door. They did, and I looked through a peep-hole and saw what was going on in the shop dome. Convict Evans and others were breaking locks and using an acetylene torch. Liticoff and others ran to the door and threw off the barricade. They went through the door as the lock had been broken from outside, and joined the mob in the shop dome."

Magistrate Farrell committed Liticoff.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Feb. 13 (C.P.).—Noranda and the Nickel stocks, International and Falconbridge, were under accumulation in the Standard Mining Market to-day, and all three closed with small gains. The gold shares held firm, the high-priced group remaining comparatively quiet, due perhaps to Wall Street remaining closed, and trading continued in good volume in Macassa and Ventures of the secondary group.

International Nickel closed with a gain of 25 at 9.90, Falconbridge advanced about 5 and Noranda about 25. The other coppers were quiet and firm.

Small gains were registered for Lake Shore, Hollinger and McIntyre, while Dome, Teck Hughes, Wright Hargreaves and Pioneer were steady. Macassa was in demand and advanced to 35½.

Oil shares were inactive.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, February 13 (C.P.).—The trading list broadened and the price level held firm to strong in Toronto Stock Exxchange to-day, but volume was down. Wall Street being closed for the Lincoln anniversary, traders preferred to await Wall Street developments before making new commitments.

The oils were fairly quiet to-day, with most of the trade passing in British American, which was unchanged. Imperial dropped a small fraction, Supertest was stronger at 13, and McColl Frontenac was slightly better.

Consumers' Gas hit a new high for the year at 175½, while Bell Telephone was down a fraction. Canada Bud was well taken and showed a gain. Distillers Seagram and Walkers Common were also on the up side, and Canada Malting slipped fractionally. C.P.R. closed unchanged, Brazilian was off ⅛, and Ford A a like amount, and Nickel closed moderately stronger at 9⅞. Smelters held its ⅜ gain at 63½.

In the food group two new highs for the year came out, Loblaw A trading at 12, and Weston's Preferred at 71.

WINNIPEG MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 13 (C.P.).—Indifferent overseas cables, together with the general lack of support, accounted for fractional losses in wheat prices at the start to-day. Pit trade during the first hour was extremely dull, with operations rather mixed in character.

Prices at mid-session held steady at levels, ¼ below the opening level, with May selling at 47-3-8; July at 48¾, and October at 50.

Scattered buying from houses with Vancouver connections came in from time to time and further declines were checked. Export sales over the week-end were estimated at about 250,000 bushels, worked chiefly from Vancouver. With the United States markets on holiday outside news generally was restricted.

Liverpool wheat moved within a narrow range and near the close quotations were unchanged to 1-8d lower per 100 pounds. Buenos Aires wheat at noon was unchanged in both futures.

TORONTO CHEESE

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—(CP)—The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 10c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New, large 11½c; twins 11¾c; triplets 12c; old, large 17¾c; twins 18c; triplets 18¼c; medium, large 15¼c; twins 15½c; triplets 15¾c.

BAR FORECLOSURES

LINCOLN, Neb. — Governor Charles W. Bryan to-day issued an "emergency" proclamation calling upon farm and home mortgage holders to suspend all foreclosures until the state board of conciliation, the legislature and congress could act.

Murdered Salesman Buried At Hamilton

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Feb. 13 (C.P.)—Harold Roth, believed murdered and thrown into a small lake near here, will be buried at Hamilton to-day while provincial police follow up clues in search of Roth's slayer.

The police to-day refused to comment on reports one or more persons had disappeared from this district shortly after the finding of Roth's abandoned car on the Merritville road three months ago.

Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert of the Ontario Attorney General's Department, returned to Toronto after performing an autopsy on the body, but did not divulge the cause of death. It was admitted Roth's skull was not crushed in, as was at first believed, however.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13 (C.P.). — Eggs, fresh extras, 25-26c; fresh firsts 23c; fresh pullets 22c; fresh seconds 20c. Butter, No. 1, 21-21½c; cheese, current Ontario, whites 9-9¼c; colored 10-10¼c; early Ontario colored 11¾-11 3-8c; white 10½-¾c. Potatoes unchanged.

Knight May Attempt Speed Test Tuesday

DAYTONA BEACH, Florida, Feb. 13 (A.P.) — Sir Malcolm Campbell of England, here seeking to break his own world automobile speed record of 253 miles an hour, decided to-day not to attempt a test run in his Bluebird racing car at least until to-morrow.

He plans to give the beach, here the trials will be held a thorough inspection at low tide about 3.30 p.m., however and if it has undergone the continued gradual improvement it has in the past 48 hours he said he probably would decide to try out his car to-morrow.

UNWISE TO PUT SCHOOL PUPILS OUT ON STREET

he was able to tell them was the best Ontario Boys' Camp in the Province.

The speaker stressed the fact that the period between 12 and 17 years of age was the most dangerous and most important of all. It was the most impressionable period; it was the period of transition when the influences of the home and church were met by the change in the boy himself, and it was the period of decision, when the 'teen age lad made up his mind as to different things that would make or mar his future life. It was not only a period of opportunity, but was likewise the dropping-off period when many boys who had hitherto attended church and Sunday School dropped out of their connections with those things. The problem was to tide them over that dangerous period, and it was that task that called for the support and sympathy of older men.

Rev. Mr. Daniel pointed out that these agencies helped to solve this problem of the 'teen age boys. First there was the Cadet Corps, which had played its part in the past, although he was not quite sure that it fitted into the present picture. Then there was the Boy Scouts, an international organization that had done and was doing a wonderful work. Third, there was the C.S.E.T. program, a movement that started with the churches and that in the past fifteen years had been able to accomplish a great deal in the all-round training of the Canadian boy. In stressing the importance of this organization, Mr. Daniel pointed out that it was a truly Canadian movement. The speaker from his own experience, gave a number of illustrations of how effective the C.S.E.T. work had been in salvaging different boys who had slipped.

Rotarian Dr. C. V. McLean, in thanking the speaker, referred to the fine leadership Rev. Mr. Daniel was giving boys' work in Peterborough.

A visitor to-day was W. J. Green, the city's veteran tax collector, who celebrated his 85th birthday yesterday. Introduced by Rotarian Fred L. Roy, who referred to the honored guest's long service, his keen enthusiasm for sporting events, Mr. Green was greeted with three rousing cheers by the Rotarians.

In acknowledging his welcome, Mr. Green said that when he took over his duties 33 years ago, the tax collections amounted to $80,000, while to-day hte amount runs close to the million mark.

DUGGAN GIVEN TEN-DAY TERM

Found Guilty of Assaulting Clarence Blodgett, His Employer.

STRONG LANGUAGE USED.

"Nobody ever called me that and got away with it," explained James Duggan, farm hand, charged with assaulting and doing grievous bodily harm to Clarence (Con) Blodgett, farmer on the second line of Smith Township, in relating to Magistrate Langley in police court this morning his story of the fight which occurred at the Blodgett farmhouse early Thursday morning when Blodgett called him from his slumbers.

Duggan said he attacked Blodgett because the farmer called him a foul name and used abusive language. He swore that the stick he had used to strike Blodgett was a mere foot long, while Blodgett testified that it had been a heavy piece of scantling.

There were other marked differences in the evidence of the two men.

Blodgett, with the right side of his face still swathed in bandages, stated that Duggan had struck him repeatedly over the face and head with the piece of scantling. "He caused all my injuries by the blows with the scantling, and he tried to choke me by taking a strangle-hold with his hands around my neck. And he pulled out several handfuls of hair from my head".

Blodgett ducked his head to permit the Magistrate to inspect it and observe any signs of missing hair. He did not deny that he had used strong language when he found that Duggan had not got out of bed on his first call.

"When he call me that," Duggan testified in his turn, "I sprang out of bed. I picked up a small piece of wood and went after him. I hit him once on the shoulder and then we clinched. As we struggled in the clinch we fell over the stove. It was when he fell over the stove that Blodgett got the injuries to his eye and face."

Magistrate Langley found Duggan guilty and sentenced him ten days in goal.

Provincial Police said that Blodgett had sworn out the information against Duggan on Saturday and that in the afternoon of the same day they went out to where Duggan has been staying but failed to find him. "Yesterday afternoon he walked in and gave himself up, saying that he heard we were looking for him," Provincial Constable W. Warren explained to The Examiner.

CREW WIN FIGHT AGAINST DEATH

ent. Captain Christian Christianson ordered the crew to the boats.

Albany Surrette and Audin Audunson leaped into the first boat that was put over, but with the Newton plunging relentless ahead at full speed, the dory was torn away, and, with its human cargo, left in the darkness.

Engineer Plays Hero

Seeing that launching the boats with the trawler under way would be extremely perilous, Edward Slade, second engineer, plunged into the engine room to shut off the motors. Three times the angry flames drove him back, but he grimly fought through on the fourth attempt, shut off the engines, and collapsed as he staggered to the companionway ladder.

Expecting an explosion and instant, all hands took to the life boats, and, at a safe distance, circled the burning craft as she drifted.

The flames seemed to subside after an hour. The crew returned, and for five hours a bucket brigade fought a winning fight with the blaze.

With steering apparatus rendered useless, wireless silenced, and engines disabled, the heart-breaking search for rescue began. Gales lashed the helpless craft with icy waves. Finally, early Sunday morning, the Black Diamond Line freighter West Aldara came sufficiently close, wirelessed the coast guard, and stood by until the cutter Mojave arrived to tow the trawler to shelter.

REID STARTED HIS LIFE TERM

Justice Wright ordered that the condemned man be reprieved until February 10.

The five appeal court judges did not arrive at a unanimous decision, and the case was in turn referred back to the Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice. The Governor in Council commuted the sentence to one of life imprisonment at Kingston Penitentiary.

Following his conviction, Reid who was ministered to by Adjt. E. M. Falle of the Salvation Army was reported to have undergone a spiritual conversion. He read daily portions of the Bible in the solitude of the death cell, and upon being informed of his reprieve he was stated to have exclaimed: "I knew I'd get it. That's what prayer has done."

Reid left the County Gaol at about eight o'clock this morning in custody of the Sheriff's officer. The journey to Kingston was made by automobile.

Some time before leaving Reid was seen by Adjutant Falle, who has commended him to the care of the Salvation Army oficer at the Penitentiary. The adjutant who was himself the official representative of the Army at the "big house" at Kingston for a period of three years advised Reid to enter upon his life term with the resolve to be a model prisoner.

Reid promised that he would conduct himself well, and undertook to write to Adjutant Falle as occasion permitted.

Promise of milder weather was given for most of Canada to-day, with lower temperatures again creeping into the western provinces and Ontario to-night or to-morrow.

Meanwhile, the Maritime provinces were digging themselves out of the second destructive storm within a week, and hundreds of telephone poles were being repaired by linemen in bitterly cold weather. HAROLD S. EDGAR

A series of weekly articles on advertising and merchandising prepared for the merchants of Peterborough district with the co-operation of The Peterborough Examiner.

DRY GOODS ADVERTISING

Why called "A Dry Goods Store"? is a question I cannot answer. Not so many years ago the "Dry Goods Stores" in our towns and small cities carried almost everything in textiles and other products of the loom and knitting machine. In those days the sewing machine had a place of high honor in every household, and outside of a few of the heavy garments, most of the clothing worn by the members of the family, from the new baby to grandfather, was the handiwork of the housewife. The accessories which went with the piece goods sold over the counter, such as buttons in great variety, trimming of many kinds, silk, cotton and linen thread, occupied an important place near the dress goods counter.

To-day, what were important departments in some of these stores, have become individual specialty shops, such as ladies' wear and men's furnishings; the carpet department has been shifted over to the furniture store, and the main store, while paying considerable attention to women's wear, competes with the specialty shop. The silk department, the print department, the serges and flannels are to-day largely supplanted by these goods in made-up form, and the bleached cotton which used to be sold to make up bedding now reaches the housewife in the finished sheets.

The merchant's advertising in these days occupied small space and was just a recital of the main items in stock. It was difficult to work up enthusiasm for products manufactured on a utility basis and with very little of the modern appeal of color, texture and finish.

To-day the dry goods merchants has a line of products worthy of the pen of an artist, and a good deal of the most carefully written and sales producing copy is that of our merchants handling dry goods and that of the two off-shoots—the men's furnishings and ladies' wear shops.

BRANDED MERCHANDISE: The manufacturer of textiles, early in the history of the industry, started to name his products—in many cases, the name was merely an 8 x 4 printed slip pasted on the outside of a bolt of cambric, gingham or lawn, a slightly larger label on cottons bleached and unbleached, a tag on a string tucked into the roll of serges, velvets, silks, satins, etc. Other forms of advertising used by the manufacturer were lithographed store cards.

The manufacturer of goods that are consumed from day to day has the opportunity for regular advertising, because for him and the consumer every day is a new day, while in the dry goods line goods are neither eaten or swallowed, rubbed in or dabbed on, but will only be replaced as they become worn out or out of fashion. A manufacturer of dry goods therefore cannot do as much advertising or as regular, because his goods are for the most part seasonable, and also while every grocer will carry a dozen lines of breakfast foods, soaps, etc., the merchant selling things you wear endeavors just as far as possible to have goods that are different from those of his neighbor.

There is, however, a very considerable quantity of manufacturers advertising individual textile and other products to support the local merchant. The influence of this advertising is very largely collective—several glove manufacturers boosting their own individual trade-mark line swing the fashion toward a definite type of glove; a special type of textile for dresses is building up demand and making old fashioned the fabrics of a few months ago, and the local merchant tying up with these national advertisers and the trend of fashion swings the crowd into his own store.

While in package medicine advertising the manufacturer and the druggist gets a good deal of benefit from the word-of-mouth testimony of the individual, this testimony has to be spoken, while the wearer or a new dress, a hat, hose, etc., is a walking advertisement for the new fashion.

Corsets were about the first article of ladies' wear that was advertised, and such names as Crompton, Brush, D. & A. and E. T. were very well known. Some of these have passed out of the picture, but D. & A. and E. T. are still catering to fashion's needs, with P.C. and Gossards later in the field.

HOSIERY: Among the silk hosiery lines with supporting advertising are Kayser, Corticelli, Orient, Eastern and Mercury. In the underwear, most of the hosiery manufacturers are also represented in the list of those making knickers, vests and step-ins, with the addition of Woods, Prue, Knit-to-Fit, Novasilk and Harvey's.

GLOVES: This also is an added line for many of the manufacturers of hose and lingerie including Kayser and Niagara Maid. In kid gloves we have Dent's and Perrin's.

PIECE GOODS: Most of our piece goods lines are advertised as a product whether in piece goods or in manufactured form. We would refer only to Celanese, Courtauld's and Viyella. In the miscellaneous items there are the yarns of Monarch and Corticelli. Both Corticelli and Coat's are in the picture with spool silk and cotton.

The modern housewife takes a great deal of pride in bed linen and blankets, and the manufacturers vie with each other in the production of products that will both catch her fancy and give service. Not only are the products worthy of being named, but they bear the manufacturer's trade-mark, and to a reasonable measure are supported by advertising. Those lines most familiar to the readers of our papers are the Kenwood, Bates & Innes blankets, Wabasso and Prue cottons, with Torfeaco comforters.

Next Week—More Wearing Apparel Advertising

BIGGER NEW FORD CANADIAN BUILT

All Canadian Materials Enter Into Its Construction by Canadian Workmen.

A BEAUTIFUL CAR.

The largest and most powerful Ford car built since Henry Ford launched into volume production of motor cars nearly 30 years ago will be introduced throughout Canada Saturday, February 18th, Wallace R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, announced to-day.

Building at Windsor

Manufacture of the new Ford—a V-8 cylinder 112-inch wheelbase car—has been in progress for several weeks at the Ford plant in East Windsor, Ontario. Due, however, to the pursuance of a long established policy of producing Ford cars in Canada, of Canadian materials and by Canadian workmen, postponement of the Canadian showing for one week after the display in the United States has been decided upon, Mr. Campbell said.

The new Ford has new and distinctively modern lines, a most attractive front end ensemble, longer wheelbase, larger and roomier bodies, faster acceleration, and increased power and speed. It is exceedingly economical in operation. With its 75 horse power V-8 engine, the new Ford is capable of a sustained speed of 80 miles an hour.

New Type Throughout

The styling of the 14 body types expresses the new mode in motor car building. The modern note is found in the sloping Vee radiator grill, the skirted fenders, newly-designed headlamps, cowl lamps, and bumpers, the curve of the hoodside ventilators, the 20 degree slant of the windshield, the curved roof header, the reverse curve of the rear quarter and the backward sweep of the apron masking the gasoline tank.

The new all-steel bodies are materially wider, almost a foot longer and consequently much roomier. The attractive instrument panel is directly in front of the driver, with a large package compartment at the right side of the instrument board. Front seats are fully adjustable. Interior fittings are luxurious. Options in upholstery and a wide choice of body colors are available.

The improved V-8 engine is fitted with all-aluminum cylinder heads, one of the most noteworthy forward steps in motor design in many years. Because aluminum dissipates heat more rapidly the use of the aluminum cylinder heads permits higher compression and results in increased speed, power and smoothness, faster acceleration and added fuel economy. Hot spots and the tendency toward detonation also are eliminated and carbon deposit greatly lessened.

Smooth Running Car

Smooth engine performance results also from the basic 8-cylinder design and the 3-point rubber mounting. Cylinder blocks are set at a 90-degree angle. The crankshaft is fully counterbalanced and the crank throws are at 90 degrees. Opposing pistons and connecting rods are matched in weight. All of these features combine to place all moving parts in natural balance, resulting in exceptional smoothness of operation. The engine is fitted with downdraft carburetor and air-intake silencer.

Features of the 12 inch wheelbase chassis include an extremely rigid double-channel, double drop X-type frame, torque tube drive, a straddle-mounted rear axle drive, spring shackles are designed to insure insulation for the life of the car; transverse cantilever springs, internal expanding mechanical four wheel breaks, 17-inch welded steel spoke wheels and tires of 5.50 inches section.

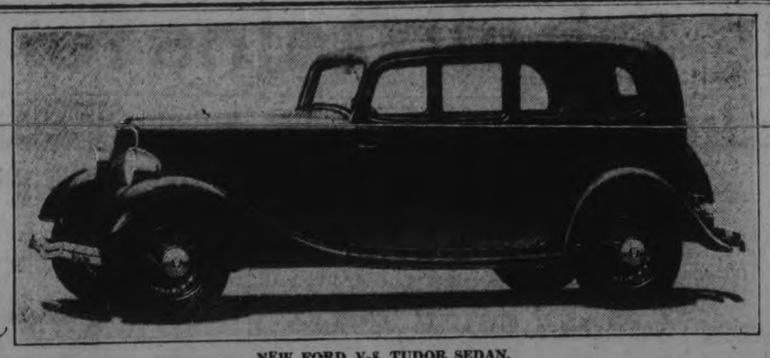
New Chassis Features

The new frame is one of the outstanding chassis features. It consists of four full length channel members, the two members which form the X-brace being continued inside and to the ends of the main channels, thus providing a structure of great rigidity. Where the X-channels are brought together they are joined by a semi-circular cross member on which the rear end of the power plant rests in a circular rubber mounting.

In the new three-quarter floating rear axle, the driving pinion is mounted in a double taper roller thrust bearing at the front and a straight radial roller bearing at the rear. This maintains permanent alignment of the pinion with the ring gear under all driving conditions and results in extremely quiet axle operation.

The frame is cushioned by four double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. The shock absorber links are insulated in rubber. The rear fuel tank has a capacity of 11 gallons.

The transmission is of the synchronized type, with helical constant mesh gears, and functions unusually quietly both in second speed and during gear shifting. The clutch is of the double-disc type and is spring cushioned for soft engagement.



NEW FORD V-8 TUDOR SEDAN.

This is one of the most popular Ford body types, and a splendid family car at a low price. Exceptionally roomy and comfortable. Two wide doors. Driver's seat is adjustable. The other front seat automatically slides forward when back is folded, giving easy access to wide rear seat. There is also a new De Luxe Tudor Sedan, with safety glass throughout, special appointments and upholstery.

BRITAIN AIMING TO GET FARMERS

as the deficiency payment—is paid to the grower for every quarter of wheat sold and delivered. The fund from high deficiency payments are made is obtained by a levy on the millers of two shillings and ninepence for each 280-pound sack of flour they sell and on every sack of flour imported.

Voluntary schemes for limiting importations of beef, mutton, lamb and bacon now in effect are to be superseded by more permanent schemes. The Government has accepted the broad principle of the pig industry commission's report. The report deals especially with marketing.

The Anglo-Canadian agreement, concluded at Ottawa, it is further significant to note, contains a special provision in regard to eggs, poultry, butter, cheese and other milk products. The main agreement runs for five years, but free entry of the Canadian products mentioned is not granted for more than three years. At the end of three years, the British Government reserve the right, if they consider it necessary in the interests of the British producer, to review the basis of preference on these products and after notifying the Canadian Government, either to impose a preferential duty on Canadian produce or in consultation with the Canadian Government to bring it within the scope of any general quota scheme.

PROPERTY OWNERS DISCUSSED GRANTS

Smith, where the average equalized assessment of school sections is $100,000 or more, the township rates for a public school principal be $600, and if there is an assistant teacher that an additional $400 be provided.

Middlesex Resolution.

The Middlesex resolution advocates the reduction in the rate for principal from $600 to $400, and for the assistant teacher from $400 to $300.

It further proposes that where the equalized assessment is from $80,000 to $100,000, the rate for principal be out from $500 to $350, and in township having an average equalized assessment of the school sections from $40,000 to $60,000, the grant be reduced from $400 to $300; less than $40,000 equalized the reduction be from the present amount, $300 to $200.

Where the equalized assessment is less than $20,000 the proposed cut is from $150 to $100; but this category should be excepted, according to Saturday's meeting.

Concurrence in the Middlesex amendments, with that exception, was moved by Joseph Burns of Otonabee, and was adopted.

The proposal of S.S. No. 8, Otonabee, was embodied in a motion which was finally withdrawn.

Must Cut Expenditure

"The reason we are asking for these reductions in the township rates is simply the position the ratepayers are in" Fred Eason of Otonabee said. "Years ago when the rate was only 50% of what it is to-day conditions were a lot better than they are to-day. As times got better the government saw fit to increase salaries.

There is no use saying we are going to pay $700 or $800 next year, because we can't. That is the real position we are in. So we want to take time by the forelock and reduce our expenditure. But we feel that the government should help by maintaining the grants.

Mr. Eason referred to the recent reduction in grants announced by the goverment and said that would hope to be taken into consideration.

Reeve Anderson, Otonabee, expressed his sympathy with the movement the Trustees had started and mentioned that he and Warden McIntosh had moved the motion in county council enorsing the Middlesex resolution.

Reeve Brown of Burleigh objected that a 50% reduction was too drastic. He thought 20% would be enough.

David Curtin, Galway, said the assessment in his school section was only $11,000 and the general school rate $150. If the general rate was lowered the levy on the ratepayers in their section would have to be increased and it was already high.

George Fife's Comment

Replying to George Fife, Mr. Curtain said his section paid their teacher $1,000. There were 30 pupils in the schools.

"That only means you fellows will go broke sooner than us" Mr. Fife remarked. "The people from the north had a chance to save the county $3,000 at the January meeting of the council, but you wouldn't do it."

Leo Copp said it was not true that the government's grants were solely for teachers' salaries.

"If you reduce salaries, the grants are reduced by proportional amounts" Mr. Copp said. He and R. F. Downey, Public School Inspectors for the district including Peterborough county, said they were averse on account of their positions, to entering into controversial matters.

Misery across Kidneys

FOR those who suffer from pains across kidneys, heavy dull feelings and sometimes swollen ankles or feet, Dr. Pierce's newest medicine, called "Anuric" brings relief. Read what Ronald Spooner of 3 Drummond St., Brantford, Ont., says: "I would get a 'catch' across my kidneys every time I stooped over. In the morning my back would be so stiff and sore that I could hardly stoop to tie my shoes. Then again the kidney action was very irregular, the secretions passed very often and burned in passage. Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets drove away every sign of the kidney complaint." Sold by all druggists.

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Children do not eat unless coaxed usually do so for psychological reasons. Or to put it more plainly and more accurately, they refuse to eat because they have been badly trained or have acquired a false mental attitude, which is often the parents' fault.

Children, especially those who are conscious that they are pretty, enjoy being watched and, like everybody else, desire to be admired. They make a sort of rite out of a meal, pausing to be watched as they put a spoonful of food in their mouths.

The best way to handle this situation is to put the meal on schedule and let the child understand plainly that that is the way it is to be done. Sweets are prohibited except in small quantities at the end of the meal. Water is not to be taken until after the soup. The food should be served rapidly, and the second course be placed before the child immediately after the first is removed. Conversation at the table in front of children of this kind is a mistake, as is also admiration of their movements.

Coaxing seldom does any good. In fact, it usually does harm because it creates a distaste for food and spoils the child's appetite.

People who are over-solicitous about food, who think too much about it and talk too much about it, have a bad influence on a child. The best way is to assume that eating food is perfectly natural, or not eating it if you don't feel like it is perfectly natural, and let it go at that. Trying to make the child eat food that you think is good for it, when the food is distasteful, when the parents themselves do not eat it, is equally a mistake.

Many children are badly trained in that they are allowed to eat food at irregular times and, therefore, do not have any appetite at regular meal times. In general, children should be considered more important than their elders in the matter of the regularity of meals, and no child should be kept waiting an unreasonable length of time if father or mother is late to a meal.

It is unwise to assume that a child is naughty or ill because it does not like certain foods which the dietary authority says are good for it. A child is perfectly within its rights not to like certain foods and not to eat them if it does not like them. There are very few foods in the world that are so important that a child should be made to eat them if they are distasteful. And there are very few foods which are so important that they cannot be replaced with others having the same nutriment and chemical content, which the child does like.

COMMISSION WILL SUPPLY POWER ONLY BY AGREEMENT

Seymour Rural Users Granted Privilege of Using 3 H.P. Through Meters.

BELL TELEPHONE WORK.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 13 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent) — If residents of Seymour Township wish to use power from the Campbellford plant they must enter into a contract with the Water and Light Commission Board. This fact was brought out on Saturday evening at the regular meeting of the Board over which Chairman J. O. Benor presided, when a delegation from the township consisting of J. A. Thompson and W. Atkinson again appeared before the Board requesting permission for the erection of a power line.

This matter has been under consideration for some time, the request being that an extension be made to a power line already on that route and erected some years ago by Nathan Atkinson to supply himself with power from the town power plant. There appears to be no written contract with the Board for this privilege or no consent from the township council, only a verbal agreement at the time given by that body.

Messrs. Thompson and Atkinson experienced difficulty however with Nathan Atkinson in coming to an agreement for the privilege of linking with his line and the Board was appealed to.

A contract was drawn up by Manager Denyes and discussed at this meeting, which was found to be agreeable with the delegates. A report of estimated cost of the building of this pole line, submitted by the manager was approved by the Board. This set the average cost at $323, the cost in the contract being set at $300. The line to the Atkinson property was set at $228 and to the Thompson property at $418. It was understood that a by-law is already drawn up by the Seymour Council giving permission for the erection of a line on this road and was only awaiting the signatures of those concerned.

Commissioner A. J. Meyers speaking on the subject stated that the matter should be settled as soon as possible and thought Nathan Atkinson should be advised that the contract with the Board was ready for signing. The Board was there he said to give service to all the public and would have to take a stand in the matter.

Must Sign Contract

A resolution was therefore sponsored by him, seconded by Mayor H. N. Carr, that the secretary notify Nathan Atkinson requesting him to sign the power purchasing agreement which has now been prepared before the next regular meeting of the council in as much as the Commission can only continue to supply power under agreement.

And another condition which rural power users have felt in the past to be a little unfair was rectified at this meeting when all rural users were granted the privilege of using a 3 h.p. motor through their meters. In the past only a 1 h.p. motor was allowed.

F. Lee, John Locke and Ernest Craighead, who are linked with the English Line Power Company, appeared before the Board making this request. Mr. Locke pointed out that the Commission was losing many users and much power by not granting this privilege as many farmers were using their trucks for power for crushing and such like. Hower, in granting this privilege, one stipulation was made that permission to use the 3 h.p. motor upon application to the board, thus enabling the board to keep a check on these motors on the rural lines.

And following many requests from the Bell Telephone Company for alteration of town lines in the corporation, the board approved this action after Manager Denyes had outlined the work required by the Bell Telephone Company and the necessity for the work. He set the town cost at $75. The Bell Telephone Company will supply all new poles, the outfits to work on this in conjunction with each other.

The work to be done will include the erection of a forty foot pole at the intersection of Rannie and Bridge instead of the present thirty-five foot one; alterations of lines at Rear and Bridge streets; raising of cross arms at Canrobert and Sebastopol street; and the erection of a thirty-five foot pole at the intersection of Pellasier and Sebastopol streets.

cordingly, one of the most important military figures among the Allied commanders. He was also an independent thinker.

Sir William became chief of the Imperial General Staff in December, 1915. He immediately introduced great improvements in organization and during the first year and a half of his holding the appointment was successful in keeping the general control of operations on sound lines. While convinced that the Western Front represented the decisive theatre of war, and fully aware how mischievous was diversion of force in principle, he saw to it that, where circumstances unfortunately rendered operations in distant regions unavoidable, the commanders on the spot were furnished with what was deemed essential to achieve success—with the result that the position of affairs in Mesopotamia, on the Suez frontier and in East Africa was completely transformed within a very few months of his taking up his task.

He had always experienced some trouble in sufficiently impressing upon the Government that the war could only be won on the western front and in the later months of 1917 he found it more and more difficult in view of the disappointing results obtained by Allied offensives in France and Flanders to persuade the War Cabinet that diversion of fighting resources to Alexandretta, or to Palestine, or to Macedonia, or to the Austro-Italian frontier, endangered prospects of victory at the decisive point and might lead to disaster near home.

Field-Marshal Robertson held high honors from the United States, Belgium, Italy, France, China, Japan, Serbia and Russia. He was created Knight Commander of the Victorian Order, 1913; Knight Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George, 1919. He held the D.S.O. from 1896.

WITT JUNIPER BACK IN TIME TO STOP SALE

City Was Going to Sell Factory for Arrears in Taxes.

SERVING TERM.

Anxious to Make Good in City of Adoption Where He is Best Known.

Witt Juniper, proprietor of the Peterboro Tool Works, King street, arrived home on ticket of leave from the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph last week in time to chase the wolf from the door of his factory, with the beneficent help of a few friends.

"Several copies of The Examiner are sent to men in the institution," Mr. Juniper told The Examiner this morning, "and one day last fall they showed me an advertisement that the city was going to sell my factory to meet arrears in taxes. This came to the attention of Charles W. Dawson, the Salvation Army officer in Guelph, and he applied for ticket of leave in order that I could come home and save the place. The superintendent of the Prison Farm, Mr. Hunter, also Mr. Stone, the machine shop guard and foreman, also tried to help, but there was objection made by the authorities in Peterborough, and the application was not granted. Adjutant Buntin of the Salvation Army in Toronto, took up the matter in an effort to help me, and succeeded in having the sale held up for ten weeks.

Given a Parole.

To make a long story short, when we learned last week that the sale was going ahead Mr. Stone called me into his office and asked me how I was getting on with some special jobs that had been assigned to me in the tool shop. I told him they were well on to completion and were in the hands of two good toolmakers, and there were five other men on the job. The sale was advertised for Wednesday, February 8, and late on Tuesday when I showed them the new advertisement I was informed that there was a ticket of leave at the office, and that I had no time to lose if I were going to get to Peterborough on time. Mr. Holloway, the chief clerk, had one of the staff look up the train connections, and they did everything to help me get away at once. I arrived here about two o'clock Wednesday morning last.

Because of the feeling that had been shown against my first application for ticket of leave I thought I wasn't wanted any more by the people of Peterborough, and I intended to move to some other place, but I have received such real help that I changed my mind at once.

Helped By R. C. Braund.

Mr. Dawson told me to see R. C. Braund when I came to Peterborough. I went to a bank and some others, but they all turned me down. Said they could do nothing. I then called on Mr. Braund and he spent most of the day helping me, and saved my shop.

I cannot express how grateful I am to the officers at the Prison Farm, to Charles W. Dawson and Adjutant Buntin, Mr. Braund, Rev. William MacDonlad of Knox church and others for their kindness at a time when needed help most.

I want to say that the officers at the Reformatory seemed to me to be excellent men. They are friendly and helpful if the men are looking for that. The food and ventilation is fine, and I have seen men come into the machine shop looking thin and poorly, and in a month or two they showed many signs of improvement. They had become men again.

I was in the "bull gang" just a day and a half. The guard, Mr. Ralston, said he was willing to do anything he could for us if we behaved. We were working on an artificial lake or fish pond. I went to Sergeant Maguire and told him I would like to use my experience in the tool shop. I said I might be able to teach some of the men mechanics. In a day or so I was called out of the "bull gang" and Mr. Stone told the clerk and the inmates' foreman to give me anything I wanted.

Improved Dinner Articles

I started by repairing some machinery, made some jigs and fixtures, and about the middle of last summer Mr. Stone wanted me to go into the tinshop to make some tin cups that are used by the men, just plain drinking cups. I told him I didn't like the two seams on the old cups, and I thought I could make a seamless cup out of monel metal that would be an improvement.

He told me to go ahead, and I made the dies, and Mr. Stones was pleased with the samples. He asked me to go ahead and make plates, saucers and soup bowls in addition to the cups, and I made them all out of monel metal, two thousand pieces. The doctor and chef experimented with milk and coffee in the money cups, and found after days that there was no sign of chemical reaction.

I then started making two buffing lathes for polishing the monel pieces, and that was the job I was working on when I was called into the office to get the ticket of leave. These lathes are nearly completed, and the men working on them when I left are capable of finishing them.

I understand that it is the intention of the authorities to go ahead and make table supplies out of monel metal for all the other institutions which were using tin cups and other articles. Monel is a product of the International Nickel Company, and consists of two-thirds nickel and one-third copper. You see it is used a great deal today on refrigerators and many other articles."

If Witt Juniper's experience during the last year wasn't a social asset, it enhanced his technical skill and enabled him to devote his exceptional ability as a tool and die maker in the only channel that was open to him, and with results that promise to be of permanent value to the various public institutions operated by the government of Ontario.

Native of Poland

Born in Rega, Poland, he served as an apprentice in a machine works there during his years from thirteen to seventeen. He went to the United States in 1905, attended night schools and day schools and also studied by correspondence, specializing in die and tool making. In various cities in the United States he worked as foreman, superintendent and tool designer, in Chicago, Cleveland, Dayton, Indianapolis and Dayton.

He spent fourteen months at the Guelph farm, and his full term, for which he has been paroled, ends next summer. "I am hoping that I may be able to manufacture monel articles here", he said this morning. 'I am also interested in a light seven cylinder radial engine for airplanes. I worked on the Liberty engine in Indianapolis and on Curtis fuselages in Buffalo, as foreman in die making. The reason I came to Peterborough years ago was that my health had failed, and I came to Toronto. I found improvement at once, and decided to stay here. So I came to Peterborough. There have been many friends who have been kind to me, and I hope they will all feel how much I appreciate it."

Mr. Juniper worked on automobile markers while at Guelph, and apparently established himself in the goodwill of the officials of the Farm. At any rate he is home on parole, is back to work at his bench in the King Street shop he built, and is anxious to make good in every way here in Peterborough where he is best known.

SPYING on SPORTS

"Gossip and Such

LONG BEFORE WE SEE the last of February's snow flurries, the major league training season will be under way. Not all clubs or players will be engaged by March 1, however. The A's, Yanks and several other American league clubs will not get going until that date—a month and a half before the major league season opens.

* * *

EARLIEST OF THE EARLY birds will be the Giants and the Pirates. Battery men of both clubs have been ordered to report to their California camps on Feb. 19. The Cubs will start, on nearby Catalina island, the fololwing days.

* * *

THE WHITE SOX WILL BE the first American leaguers to begin training, the Chicago pitchers and catchers being due in camp Feb. 23.

* * *

LAST ARE THE TWO ST. Louis teams—the Browns and Cardinals are not scheduled to start their workouts until March 7.

* * *

SEVERAL YEARS AGO Florida appeared in danger of losing its huge quota of major league guests, but the trend westward of teams seeking training camps apparently has ceased. Again, the Grapefruit State wil have more than half of the major outfits practicing on its soil.

* * *

NINE CLUBS WILL TRAIN in Florida—five National, four American league teams. California is next with four. Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas will have one each.

* * *

THE FLORIDA TEAMS WILL be in the New York, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis American league teams; the Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, Brooklyn and Cincinati National league clubs. California will see the Chicago Americans, New York, Chicago and Pitsburgh Nationals. Cleveland sticks to New Orleans, La.; Washington to Biloxi, Miss., and Detroit will train in San Antonia, Tex.

* * *

THE ONE IMPORTANT switch in training quaters will be made by Brooklyn, the Dodgers forsaking Clearwater for Miami, Fla.

* * *

THE EXTENT TO WHICH the nation-wide financial stress has cramped major league activities may be seen in the fact that only 367 exhibition games have been carded. That is 98 less than in 1932.

* * *

EXHIBITION GAMES ARE not the money makers that the general public may believe them to be. Even in good times not all major league clubs could show a profit on their pre-season shows. The Yankees at one time earned handsome coin on the trek north but, then, the Yanks alone had an attraction like Babe Ruth.

* * *

THE MAGNATES HAVE virtually cut the average number of pre-season games played by each team from 21 to 16. Economy, unlike charity, apparently is not beginning for major league teams in their homes, but before they get home!

RANGERS LOSE FOR 3RD TIME TO SMYTHEMEN

Aitkenhead Plays Brilliant Game in the Nets for American Section Leaders.

CANUCKS LOSE 2-0.

"Hooley" Smith Scores Two Goals as Maroons Triumph Over Bruins 4-2.

TORONTO, Feb. 13. (CP) — Six weeks from the end of the National Hockey League campaign and the start of a play-off session that barely misses including all the entries anyway, a distinct absence of any white flag on the nine fortresses around the circuit pointed to a two-group struggle likely to go on right down to the finish line.

So far only three teams have shown a definite desire to finish on top—Toronto Maple Leafs in the Canadian section and Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers in the American. But interest in the six play-off berths is somewhat widespread.

Chicago Black Hawks, who would be in second place if they were demoted to the Canadian group, aspire to a play-off standing ahead of Boston Bruins despite the fact they are two and a half games back of the Bruins. If they'd allow the Hawks to play only Canadian opposition Tommy Gorman's team would probably pull through.

At home last night the Hawks batted out a 2-0 victory over Montreal Canadiens, who hold down the cellar in the Canadian group.

Canadiens, re-organized a little bit, tried hard to do something worthwhile at Chicago but they couldn't find a weakness in Charlie Gardiner's armor and even with Howie Morenz speeding along as fast as ever there wasn't much punch in the French attacks.

Paul Thompson scored for Chicago late in the second period and Johnny Gottselig got the second goal in the third session.

Dillon Scores First Goal

Rogers, hwo have found the Leafs unbeatable on Toronto ice all season, threw a scare into the champions of the world by scoring the game's first goal in the second period, Cecil Dillon potting a pass from Murra Murdoch. But the Leafs deadlocked the teams in another 38 seconds and got the winner in the third period. Harold Cotton scored the first ad Charlie Conacher the second.

Maroons, speeding along to the play-offs as impressively as any team, ran in three goals before the Bruins got started. Dave Trottier scored in the first period and Hooley Smith and Glen Brydson in the second. The Bruins came back with a rush that almost toppled the Redmen. Nels Stewart rapped n a pass from Vic Ripley and in the third period Eddie Shore looped a drive from the blue line past Davie Kerr.

Detroit came within 16 seconds of building up quite a commanding lead over Rangers. With that much time left of the third period they had a 2-1 advantage over the fighting Americans. Then Duke Dutkowski pounded a long shot against the chest of John Ross Roach and American attackers blundered right into the gosler, knocking him and the puck into the cage.

The goal umpire flashed the red light and 15 minutes of argument by Red Wing players couldn't make him change his mind. So they went on to an overtime tie.

Red Jackson figured in both American goals scoring the first himself and aiding Dutkowski in the deadlocker. Likewise Carl Voss a hand in each Detroit counter, providing Herbie Lewis with an opening for the first and passing to Eddie Wiseman for the second.

High School Girls Win At Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 13.—The High School girls defeated the Public Schools at a second game of hockey played on Thursday afternoon, M. Fleicher was the outstanding player of both teams, scored the only goal and at the close of a lively session the score was 1-0. Robert Stenner handled the bell. The Public School again relied on the services of one of the sterner sex as goalie, but the High School team was strictly suffragette. The following is the line-up:

MILLBROOK'S ANSWER.

The Sports Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,— Millbrook certainly does get its name in your columns—and how! Maybe you'd be glad to print a letter FOR the town, after all the adverse criticism that has been sent in to be published.

By passing up the lacrosse squabble, we are not admitting defeat in the matter, but that has nothing to do with the hockey club, and is certainly no concern of Cavan's. That CAVAN hockey team—2 Cavan players, 2 Cavan subs—and the rest of the line-up collected from Nestleton, Yelverton and Bethany—ho-hum! Now why should Cavan take all the blame—er pardon me, credit—for that team of February 4th?

Considering the "parasites" who "line the boards"—the stand is always filled with spectators who have paid their admission and it is just too bad if, because the seating capacity is inadequate, the people should be denied the pleasure of seeing the games. Anyhow, that's a bad argument for you to use. Cavan, half of the "parasites" or more were Cavan supporters.

This hockey team of Cavan's may have been sportsmanlike in its former defeats, but when they won—did you hear them?

That thinly veiled threat against the "180-lb., 19-year old, dough-boy" (your error by 30 lbs. there, Cavan) by the anonymous "One Who Likes Fair Play" is a little hard to take. Don't put the lad on guard against the whole Cavan team or he might just get rough and slap a couple of them on the wrist, and very severely. From your statements, Cavan, he might be very ferocious when aroused.

Must we allow the Cavan supporters to break the club house windows? That is why the school teacher was "abusing" their youthful supporter (who is 18 years old and just as big as the "dough-boy"). And didn't we see that Cavan manager put his coat on and sit down when invited by the same school teacher to finish it outside if he must interfere?

I could go on and refute all those Cavan arguments, but I don't want to bore you. I'll just add that Millbrook teams play as clean hockey as any team they ever met up with, and are just as good sports, if not better—this exhibition considered. They have a town league and were quite content to play their regular schedule but whenever Cavan asked for a game they took them on. Then one night Cavan won, and what a row they raised. If they don't like the Millbrook team, why are they still trying to arrange more games here? If the referee doesn't suit them, why don't they bring their own? Is it because no one is capable? It seems like real sportsmanship to insult their hosts behind the screen of a newspaper alias, doesn't it?

I like fair play, too, but where I differ from your other writer in the matter is that I'm not afraid to sign my name when I say so.

M. SAYLES.

P.S.—Isn't it queer what will grow from dark blue beauty marks that "would-be" professionals receive from certain "dough-boys?"

M. S.

(Editor's note: In regard to the Cavan writer, it is only fair for us to inform Mr. Sayles that he had signed his name, and was not hiding behind a newspaper alias. This name will be supplied Mr. Sayles should he request it.)

INDIANS DROP TWO DECISIONS OVER WEEK-END

Detroit Takes 3-2 Victory on Saturday While Syracuse Walks Away With 6-5 Win Sunday.

STARS DROP POINTS.

TORONTO, Feb. 13 (C.P.)—The charm Alfie Moore brought with him when he took up his position between the goalposts for Cleveland Indians of the International Hockey League appears to have lost its power and as a result Indians have three straight defeats recorded against them to-day.

Moore played a big part in the four-game winning streak the cellar-occupants startled the fans with two weeks ago, but a defeat by Buffalo last Tuesday broke the spell and over the week-end, Indians dropped two more games, a 3-2 decision to Detroit on Saturday and 6-5 decision to Syracuse Sunday.

Incidentally neither winning team was able to make it a 'double', Syracuse dropping a valuable two points to the league-leading Buffalo Bisons by a 2-1 score Saturday, while Windsor swept their five-game series with Olympics on Detroit ice with a 2-1 win.

Hoping to see their favorites take at least one game from their bitter cross-river rivals, 4,000 fans turned out last night for the Windsor-Detroit feud. They were disappointed, however, as the Olympics, obviously tired from the Cleveland game the night before, failed to match the pace of their opponents.

Russell Blinco scored the first Bulldog tally and Len Huggins notched the second on a pass from Eddie Rodden.

Gus Marker combined with Emil Hanson, both former Red Wings players, to garner the losers' lone counter.

Heavy Scoring Session

It was a high-scoring session between Syracuse and Cleveland. Six of the 11 goals were netted in the second session and the winning marker with less than two minutes to play.

Jack Daley scored two of the losers' goals, while Halliday garnered a pair for Syracuse. The other markers were distributed among the individual players.

In the Buffalo-Syracuse game, Sammy Godin, Bison sub winger stole some of Lloyd Gross' thunder, pounding in the winning goal on a solo and helping young Bud Schultz to score the other.

Earl Miller picked up the rebound of Jack Markle's shot and slipped it past Bus Taughter for the Syracuse counter.

Two Goals in Third

Cleveland held Detroit even entering the final frame, but two pucks slipped by Goalie Moore, while Indians were only able to push one past Cox in the Olympic nets.

The game was strenuous and speedy throughout, with Detroit presenting a better organized attack. Tommy O'Neil, Deacon Waite and Williams were the winners' marksmen, while the two Brophys—Mike and Bernard—scored for the losers.

LAKEFIELD HAWKS BEAT GROVE WINGS

Morin and Wannamakers Are Stars of 5-4 Victory at Lakefield.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 13.—The Black Hawks defeated The Grove Red Wings on Thursday night in a game of hockey which had more warmth than the weather man apportioned. The game required overtime to decide and was very closely contested.

The Grove team which was the second team, were superior in team work but in speed they were equalled by the Black Hawks who had the advantage of weight. Braden Blewett handled the game. The first period was without score. Doug Davis and Mike Wannamaker were penalized for tripping. In fact tripping was the reason for all penalties and the reason was the fast pace of both teams and sticks interfering with the progress.

Strickland opened the scoring in the second after three minutes and one minute later, Fred Wannamaker evened the score. Keith Wannamaker was the only offender in this period.

The third period opened with Morin scoring, but the lead was brief as MacPherson scored three minutes after then Gunn scored again in two minutes and in five minutes Morin again scored. The last minutes of the period were even faster than the others but there was no score. MacPherson was the only penalty. Morin scored after three minutes of the first overtime period while Strickland scored after two minutes play in the second but one minute before the bell rang Morin again got one past Burgess and the game was over and a hard fought victory for the Black Hawks won. Morin and the Wannamakers were the outstanding players in the winners line-up with Morin, much the most effective.

The Grove forwards were particularly strong and played a fine game. The line-up was.

Black Hawks: Goal, Webster; defence, Lawless, Morin; centre, Davis; wings, M. Wannamaker, K. Wannamaker; subs, F. Wannamaker, G. Wannamaker, Stewart, Payne.

Grove Red Wings: Goal Burgess; defence, Atwood, Dawe; center, MacPherson; wings, Gunn, Strickland; subs, Grey, Gunn, Fener.

TOOLMAKERS GAIN PLACE IN C.G.E. SERIES

Machine Shop Eliminates Armature Winders by Registering 3-2 Victory.

DRAFTSMEN LOSE 2-1

The senior Toolmakers, last years' champions of the C.G.E. Inter-department Hockey League, gained a place in the playdowns this season on Saturday afternoon at the Brock Street Arena by the slim margin of one point when they defeated the husky Draftsmen 2 to 1 in a superb display of classy hockey. The Machine Shop, group leaders in the intermediate section of the league eliminated the Armature Winders from further competition by registering a three-two win while the Fractional Motors who previous to Saturday were gracing the cellar position, wiggled into second place in the group standing by virtue of their 5-2 victory over a crippled team representing the Structural Steel.

Thus the final games in the schedule produced two upsets, which only tended to add more zest in the race for the coveted Works' Championship. The first games to decide the group champions will be played on Monday night, and perhaps the fans this year will see a new champion crowned as the Machine Shop, at present leading Group two, have everything necessary to make them real contenders for the silver trophy.

The Tool Room stalwarts took the stage against the Drafting Room in the first senior game on Saturday's bill of hockey and the fans were treated to a slam-bang battle that showed two very evenly matched teams fighting to a finish. The first period showed play starting fast and the two forward lines carried the battle with remarkable speed from one end of the rink to the other. Fred Earle missed the first real opportunity to score when he carried the puck to the Drafting goal-mouth only to overskate the rubber. The Drawing Makers came back strong with one of the characteristic three man rushes which brought the disc to the Tool Room net and resulted in a rather lengthy scramble on the Tool Maker's doormat but Stan Jones finally ended the pile-up by falling on the puck.

Tallies First Goal

Eric Howe tallied the first goal of the game in this period on a lone sally that beat the entire opposing team and his high shot picked the open corner of the net. However the Drafting cheers had hardly died away before Jay evened the count by working inside the Drafting blue line and beating Kearns with a high fast shot.

The second session was scoreless but produced a great deal of brilliant hockey, Grant Palmer for the Drafting holding the spotlight with clever individual rushes and persistent checking. His teammates, Allen Price and Rooke also showed good form while Shields showed to advantage defensively. The Tool Room line of Jay, McGregor and Williams outplayed their opponents practically all of the time that they were on the ice and it was this combination that finally salted away the decision, in the third period. McGregor playing right wing slipped along the boards, skirted the defence and gave George Jay, a perfect pass at the goal-mouth to secure the winning goal of the game.

Regulars Absent

The losers were without the services of Cadd, Davis and Masterson and their absence was noticeable, while the winners on the other hand had their strongest line-up on deck. Routley, Wheeler, Sanderson and Griffin all played splendid hockey for the winners while Stan Jones in the net was almost unbeatable.

The teams—

Tool Room—Goal, Jones; defence, Connors and Griffin; centre, Williams; wings, Jay and McGregor; alternates, Routley, Earle Sanderson, Wheeler.

Drafting Room—Goal, Kearns; defence, Howe and Shields; centre, Palmer; wings, Rooke and Allin; alternates, Hickey and Price.

Penalties — Connors 2, Rooke, Wheeler.

Eliminate Winders

The Armature Winders hooked up with the well balanced Machine Shop outfit in the first intermediate game of the day and battled through three periods of hockey that was anybody's game until the final gong sounded. The Machinists took the decision 3 to 2 to further strengthen their hold on first place while the Winders fade from the picture, for this year.

The winners won the game with a more finished style of play that carried the puck close-in on most of their attacks, as their combination plays were clicking nicely, while most of the shots were right on. The Winders however missed more chances to score as Millard centred the puck repeatedly only to have the passes wasted when his teammates failed to combine with him. Both defences worked splendidly while Wilson in goal for the losers in place of Ivan Pearson, who is ill, covered himself with glory when he turned aside a barrange of shots, many of them at short range.

Clarke and Pearson were the goal getters for the winners, the former securing two while Pearson scored one goal and assisted in another. Jones, McGillen and Gibson were the other stars for the winners.

Milliken, Millard, McCullough and Calladine were the best for the Winders with the first two dividing the scoring honors. On defence Menzies, Muir and Auld broke up several attacks and all three showed to advantage in their offensive work. Teddy Tice in the winners net was a tower of strength to the team and pulled himself out of several difficult situations by his speed in clearing the puck.

The teams—

Machine Shop—Goal, Tice; defence, Clair McGillen and Gibson; centre, Craig; wings, Jones and Pearson; alternates, Clarke, Hetherington and Rogers.

Armature Winders—Goal, Max Wilson; defence, Muir and Auld; centre, Millard; wings, Calladine and Milliken; alternates, Ben Wilson, McCullough, Menzies and McGillen.

One-Sided Struggle

The Fractional Motors-Structural Steel duel was a rather one-sided struggle as the latter team were one player short of a full team and only heroic work on the part of the few players present together with the goal-tending of Black in the net kept the score from mounting into double figures. Hatton, Thomas and Cathcart were prominent for the winners while every player for the losers played good hockey.

The teams—

Structural Steel—Goal, Black; defence, Howarth and Pilling; centre, Shadgett; wing, Hughes.

Fractional Motors—Goal, Routley; defence, Hatton and Cathcart; centre, Hollingsworth; wings, Hayes and Thomas; alternates, Rainey, Fanning and Hall.

Referee for all games—Archie Weir.

CANADIAN SKATERS WIN NORTH AMERICAN TITLES

Mrs. Samuel and Montgomery Wilson Take Singles Honors and Combine to Capture Pairs Championship.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Once again Canadians have glided their way to domination of the North American figure-skating championships.

Before a critical assemblage in Madison Square Garden Saturday night, Mrs. Constance Wilson Samuel and her brother, Montgomery Wilson of Toronto, outshone a brilliant field of men and women skaters from Canada and United States to take the major title.

The sister and brother act, rulers of the championships since 1929, won both single events for the third successive time, and then teamed to again account for the pairs title, first won in 1929 and retained in 1931.

Mrs. Samuel, who also holds the Canadian title, was forced to give one of her best exhibitions of free skating to gain the decision over Mrs. Edward F. Gooderham of Toronto, who as Cecil Smith, was runner-up for the 1930 world's championships.

U.S. Skaters Second.

Back of the two Toronto skaters finished the three United States entries with Suzanne Davis of Boston, in third place. Andrey Peppe, 15-year-old New York miss in fourth, and Dr. Hulda Berger, also of New York, fifth and last.

Wilson, third in the last Olympics, outclassed his four rivals, skating with grace and smoothness that left little to be desired in the execution of many intricate spins and spirals. The lanky 23-year-old Canadian adding to an advantage piled up by the school figures with his faultless exhibition in the fancy figures, was the unanimous choice of the six judges.

J. Lester Madden of Boston, despite two falls in attempting difficult jumps, finished second in front of Blond Robin Lee, the 13-year-old junior United States champion from Minneapolis. William J. Nagle of New York was fourth and last.

Defeat Toronto Entry.

Mrs Samuel and her brother were the class of five teams that competed for the pairs title. With perfect timing, they swung in and out of loops and reverse spirals to defeat another entry, Maude Smith, sister of Mrs. Gooderham, and Jack Eastwood.

The two United States combinations could do no better than fourth and fifth as the Ottawa team of Kathleen Lopdell and Donald Cruickshank finished in third. Madden, paired with his sister, Grace Madden, gave the Boston team fourth, with Gertrude Meredith and Jack K. Savage taking fifth.

Mrs. Samuel and Mrs. Gooderham, long rivals for Canadian titles, staged a bitter battle for the women's crown, only a point separating them at the finish. Whatever advantage Mrs. Gooderham piled up in the school figures Friday she lost Saturday night, when Mrs. Samuel went through a long repertoire of sensational spins, jumps and spirals that gave her the decision.

Also Canuck Victory.

The fours championship, a new form of competition to the United States, also was controlled by Canadian teams, a quartet from Ottawa, composed of Mrs. Elmer Davis, Prudence Holbrook, Melville Rogers and Guy Owen, winning the event over two other fours. Mrs. Samuel and her brother teamed with Elizabeth Fisher and Hubert Sprott to give the Toronto quartet second place. The United States entry from Boston, made up of Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard, Suzanne Davis, Richard Hapgood and Fred Parmenter, was third.

KING EDWARD LEADS LEAGUE

Will Meet King George in Public School Loop Play-offs.

REGULAR SCHEDULE ENDS.

The Public School Hockey League schedule was brought to a close with three games being run off at All Saints' rink Saturday. The two finalists, who will meet in the play-offs, are King Edward in first place, and King George. Both teams won their games again Saturday, the East City outfit beating Central, 7 to 1; and the K.E. team getting a 9-1 victory over Queen Alex. In the other game, Prince of Wales ran up a record score for the season, beating Queen Mary, 14 to 1.

The first fixture was a speedy affair with the strong King George, though missing their star, Bousfield, who was killed a week ago, proving too good for Central. They showed up strong on defence and played well as a team, going in fast in combination to give the opposing goalie little chance. Hopcroft and Legon both played a fine game as did their teammates. The losers never quit trying.

The teams—

Central—Goal, Lomax; defence, Campbell and Wright; centre, Hoy; wings, Copperthwaite and MacInnes; subs, Denston and Wood.

King George—Goal, Hepburn; defence, Hopcroft and McLean; centre, Blade; wings, Legon and Davies; subs, Craig.

9-1 Victory

King Edward boys had no trouble finishing their season without a loss, getting a 9-1 count over Queen Alex. The southend squad again showed a lot of class defensively and offensively, though the Q.A. team fought back hard in the third, scoring one goal then. King Edward got four in the first, two in the second and three in the last stanza. There were no outstanding players for either side.

The teams—

Queen Alex—Goal, Herriott; defence, Ash and Galley; centre, Edwards; wings, Morrow and King; subs, O'Neil, Flitton and Metcalfe.

King Edward—Goal, Strickland; defence, Grose and Patterson; centre, Wainman; wings, Post and Jobe; subs, Hall and Leggitt.

One-Sided Exhibition

The final affair was a one-sided exhibition of hockey, Prince of Wales' boys trying, with success, to run up a record score for the season. They won 14 to 1 from a weakened Queen Mary bunch. The latter had only five players and had to borrow one from their opponents. The Wales players all figured in the big win, and a number of newcomers were used as alternates. Webb, McIlmoyle and Williams had a lot to do with the high score which came about more through lone rushes than teamwork.

The teams—

Queen Mary—Goal, Graham; defence, Kent and Ackford; centre, Mortimer; wings, Gray and Lucas.

Prince of Wales—Goal, Jones and Lucas; defence, Webb and McIlmoyle; centre, Williams; wings, Jay and Johnston; subs, Macdonald, Buchanan, Leal, Lasby and Cummings.

Referee for three games — D. Crawford.

Games Concluded Sheffield Series

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 13.—(C.P. Cable.)—The last game of the Sheffield Cricket Shield League was concluded to-day although New South Wales was awarded the coveted shield last week.

The final point standing saw New South Wales with a big lead. The standing was:

New South Wales	28
Victoria	16
South Australia	15
Queensland	0

It is the 20th time New South Wales has won the trophy, which is competed for annually by the major elevens of the Commonwealth.

In to-day's game, the last of the schedule, Victoria won from South Australia by 73 runs.

HALF GAME SEPARATES REDS AND THE ARROWS

BOSTON, Feb. 13 (C.P.). — The race between the Philadelphia Arrows and the Providence reds for championship honors became more exciting as the Canadian-American Hockey League season entered on its last stages, and to-day, for the second consecutive week-end, only a half game separated these battling rivals.

The Arrows had a glorious opportunity to pull ahead Saturday, but the Reds attacked them with such vigor that they pulled out a 6-2 victory to remain at their heels. A 3-1 victory over New Haven Sunday sent the Reds ahead. The Boston Cubs continued third in the five-club circuit with the New Haven Eagles and Quebec Beavers still trailing in that order.

M.C.C.'S DROP OPPORTUNITY TO REGAIN "ASHES"

England Loses Last Six Wickets by Mediocre Batting Display.

HEAT HANDICAPS PLAY.

BRISBANE, Australia, Feb. 13.—(C.P. Cable).—England had scored 271 runs for eight wickets at close of play to-day in the fourth cricket Test match with Australia for the coveted ashes. The Aussies were all out in their first innings for 340 runs.

The day's play saw another reversal of form in which England tossed away a fine chance to take a good lead by displaying only mediocre batting. Starting with a fine score of 158 for two wickets, it seemed the M.C.C. were out to clinch the victory in the fourth Test, but thereupon wickets fell quickly and cheaply.

Heat Handicaps Play.

Play was resumed under the broiling sun, which handicapped the M.C.C. fielders on Saturday and Friday. Only about 7,000 persons were attracted to sit in the hot stands throughout the match, but they were treated to some brilliant fielding.

Bert Sutcliffe and D. R. Jardine remained unbeatable for more than three hours until Jardine hit one from O'Reilly to Love. His score was 46, and the first wicket fell for 114. Wally Hammond joined Sutcliffe, and the score mounted slowly until the latter was fooled by O'Reilly, and lost his leg stump with his own score at 86.

Hammond's attempt was cut short by a fast yorker from Stanley McCabe, which took the Gloucestershire professional's wicket at 20. The total was 165 for three wickets. R. E. S. Wyatt was out with 12 when he lofted one from Ironmonger to Love.

Maurice Leyland came to sudden grief, however, when he drove one to the leg boundary from O'Reilly into the sure hands of Don Bradman. Leyland was out with 12 runs, and the fifth wicket had fallen for 198.

Sends Score To 200.

G. O. Allen came to bat and began by knocking O'Reilly for a boundary six to send the score to 200 in five and one-half hours. Play was adjourned for tea, with Ames at 10 and Allen at 13, and the total at 215 for five wickets.

After tea Allen gave Love an easy catch from T. Wall, and went out with his score at 13 and the total at 216 for six.

Edward Paynter, the Lancashire professional, had been in bed until 11.00, but insisted on batting. He took his stance with a heavy muffler about his neck, and proceeded to put in the third biggest score.

Ames mistimed one from Ironmonger and lofted it to L. S. Darling, the new Aussie player, at mid-off, and was out with 17.

Paynter defended his wicket stubbornly. Meanwhile Harold Larwood was hitting out in free style, but was shortly after taken by a fine yorker by McCabe. Larwood scored 23, and his, the eighth, wicket fell with the score at 264. Hedley Verity and Edward Paynter were in with one and 24 runs respectively when play was closed for the day with the score at 271 for eight wickets.

Lakefield Defeats King George 5 To 3

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 13 (Examiner Correspondence)—Lakefield School team defeated the King George team in an interschool fixture on Saturday afternoon by a score of 5-3. It was one of those closely contested games which make junior hockey worth while. The boys are playing a good game and are a credit to Mr. Chaplin, their coach and manager. The visitors had already played one game in the city that day but they showed little fatigue and in weight, speed and combinations the teams were well matched. Braden Blewett was referee.

In the first period Junkin scored the first goal after ten minutes of fast play, close checking and useless shots on the nets by both teams. Five minutes later, Jewell added another and the first period ended with Lakefield two up on the play. Davies was the only penalty.

The second period showed a stronger combination in the visitors and a general tightening up. Jewell scored two minutes after the play began and three minutes later Blade scored with Legon getting the assist. Elwood Riel and Irwin Charlton were the occupants of the penalty box.

The third and decisive period was hardly fought. Davies opened the scoring after three minutes and five minutes afterward "Woody" Morin put one in then seven minutes later Legon shot one past the Lakefield goalie and one minute after McFadden got past with one. Morin drew the only penalty. Penalties were for tripping and none were with intent.

The teams—

King George—Goal, B. Hepburn; defense, K. Hopcroft, B. MacLean; centre, H. Blade; wings, J. Legon, J. Davies; sub, S. Craig.

Lakefield—Goal, D. Yale; defense, I. Charlton, W. Morin; centre, C. Jenkinson; wings, N. Jewell, J. McFadden; subs, E. Riel, T. Junkin, K. Patterson; sub goal, R. Mason.

Here is Freddie Tucker, victor in the greatest game he will ever play, wearing his special collar about his broken neck, slowly healing. He is shown with Rudy Felnus, his great pal and the football used in the national intermediate gridiron championship between St. Thomas Yellow Jackets and Westwards of Montreal. The ball was autographed and presented to Tucker by his teammates.

Peterborough may have a junior lacrosse team next summer in the O.A.L.A. A numberof young players, when they heard of Orillia's plans along this line, prevailed upon Jack Creighton to make an effort toward organizing one here. The material is around and if maybe Norwood and Campbellford and one or two other places nearby were interested, a classy little junior group might be promoted.

We got a letter Saturday from a sportsman in the south end of the city, speaking of an incident that took place recently when some Southend League hockey games were called off at the Sacred Heart rink, owing to the extreme cold. It seems that one of the minor players went up to President Ches Mowry, swinging a goal-stick and saying he had a mind to knock his head off. The temperature was 11 below zero at the time, and this is an open-air rink, so Mr. Mowry didn't like to take chances on any of the kids getting nipped by the frost.

* * * * * * *

"The kid asked Ches if it were he who stopped the hockey" the letter states, "and being told it was, threatened to hit him over the head with the stick. Mr. Mowry said he was president and was going to run things as he though best, and 11 below was too cold out-doors. He was quite right, and no mere pupil in sport can tell Ches anything. But such actions make good men retire from sporting circles. Young fellows should not get hotheaded and act childish in things like this." Fair Play.

Toolmakers took a fine 2-1 decision over Draftsmen in a tough senior game Saturday afternoon at the Brock to move into the play-downs. Machine Shop, of the C.G.E. intermediate section of the Shop League, eliminated Armature Winders, 3-2; and Fractional Motors took second place by climbing all over a shaky Structural Steel team, 5 to 2. Machine Shop and Fractional Motors are billed to meet tonight in the first game of their play-off series. These C.G.E. games are well worth seeing.

* * * * * * *

By hanging a 7-3 licking on Port Hope Saturday, the husky Bowmanville juniors qualified to meet the Petes in the group finals. They won the series by eight goals, and fans here will recall how both Port Hope and the Rubbertown outfit gave the locals tough battles. We go to Bowmanville tonight in the first fixture, return game being at the Brock Wednesday. Goals count in this titular series, and the second game goes overtime if it's tied at the end of sixty minutes. We're looking for the largest junior crowd of the year Wednesday, and reserve seats may be obtained now.

* * * * * * *

Guess the local intermediates will be idle till the end of the week, probably playing the winner of that Campbellford-Belleville D. A. C. tonight and Wednesday. Both Peterborough teams were finished their schedules in good time this year, and have every chance to keep in shape without going stale on too many games in a limited space of time. Every O.H.A. contest here from now on is a playoff one and should not be missed by those who hang back during the season, saying "Oh, I always wait till the playoffs."

* * * * * * *

Speaking of playoffs, two in the Church Hockey League hit the deck tonight at All Saints' rink: Mark Street midgets and Knox tangling at six, followed at seven by St. James' juveniles and All Saints. Then two postponed tussles will be run off, Trinity juniors going on against All Saints at eight, and Knox Juniors playing St. Paul's at nine. Tomorrow at seven down at the Sacred Heart rink, Canucks and Pirates will meet in an intermediate setto at seven bells, and this will about wind up proceedings down that direction.

* * * * * * *

Some smart church basketball is being played these Saturdays as that cage loop approaches the end of the trail. In the juveniles playoffs, first game, the other night George Street A won from Trinity, 13 to 12, and you can't shave 'em much closer than that without a stinging face resulting. They go to the mat again Saturday in the last grapple. Murray Street juniors have to beat Mark Street juniors next Saturday to cop the junior duke without a playoff, but if they lose, they'll still have a two-game alibi and opportunity to clamp their mitts on this title.

Sport-hash: It's Norwood at Lakefield this e'en in an E.P.L. fracas . . . . Lakefield P. S. took a 5-3 count over King George in Cementville Sat'day . . . . Quite a gang saw the Leafs win over Rangers, 2-1, in Toronto the other day . . . . More will take in the excursion trip Saturday next to see Red Wings swoop down on the Smythemen . . . . We understand George Merrett gets almost four C's (meaning hundreds) from that benefit game, but will have it for sure tomorrow . . . . GEORGE STREET "A" OUTFIT WINS FIRST PLAY-OFF GAME

JIMMY DYKES, third baseman traded to the Chicago White Sox by the Philadelphia Athletics, keeps in trim by bowling on the alleys of Philadelphia, where he continues to make his home.

HOWIE MORENZ PLAYED GOALIE

But Gave Up Custodian's Position When 21 Goals Scored on Him in Game.

BORN IN STRATFORD.

STRATFORD, Ont., Feb. 13.—(CP)—Hailed as the greatest hockey player of this or any other decade, leader of three Stanley Cup title teams, Howie Morenz never won Stratford a Canadian championship.

Howie Morenz

The speed boy of the National League from the time he stepped into it, fresh from helping Stratford Indians win the intermediate championship of Ontario, Morenz made his first National clean-up the year after he left here—but he couldn't do it before.

In 1921 Stratford's famous Midgets, riding on the flaming speed of Young Morenz and the bullet shots of Frank Carson, reached the finals of the Dominion Junior playdowns. They faced Winnipeg Falcons in the intersectional final, heavy favorites to down the Western challengers.

But something happened. Maybe the large and strange crowd at Toronto unsettled the Midgets— and especially Morenz—but the result of the first game left the Midgets four goals behind. Total goals on the two-game round decided the championship and though Morenz ran wild in the second game he couldn't quite make up the margin.

Most Colorful Figure

They haven't been able to stop the Stratford streak any more consistently since that season. The Mitchell-born flyer, who started playing hockey as a goalie and quit the day after a team of kids ran 21 shots past him, has won the National Hockey League's most valuable player award three times, led the circuit's scorers twice and become the most colorful figure in the ice world.

Stratford has produced other stars, including the Carson Brothers—Bill, Frank and Gerald— but Morenz stands alone as this city's greatest athlete.

BOWLING NOTES

Games must be started on the dot. Other skips with teams report to Roy Disney or H. Freeman, to-day or early Tuesday.

STILL PLENTY OF WOLVES IN NORTH SAYS HIKER

SIOUX LOOKOUT, February 13 (C.P.). — There are still plenty of wolves in the North, according to Bill Cooke, one of two trans-Canada hikers, who has reached this point en route to Winnipeg.

"The people who told me I wouldn't see any wolves on my trip were certainly all wet," he said. "At night I drag a tin can behind me to keep the brutes at a distance. You see, I'm not carrying any weapons—not even a knife. My luck has held good thus far At different times moose have blocked my way. Big monsters."

Carry One Point Margin Over Trinity in Juvenile Church League Final.

KNOX LOSES 31 TO 6.

George Street "A" won the first game of the juvenile Church Basketball League finals, 13-12, over Trinity at the "Y" Saturday. This gives them the slim margin of one point to carry into the return game next Saturday. In the junior game played the same evening, Murray Street defeated Knox, 31 to 6, thereby eliminating the latter. If Murray wins from Mark Street next Saturday, no play-off will be necessary as they have already won the first half.

The juvenile fixture was a classy one between two well-matched teams of junior calibre. The score was 6-4 for the winners to end the first half, but their lead was cut to a lone point by the end. Kingdon was the star of the game. He played defence but acted as pivot for many plays and counted eight points himself. Fair and Heard were also effective, while Galley and Wright each dropped in a field basket, Fair making a free throw as well. Ward and Thorburn were best for Trinity, with Edmonson and Gates forming a strong defence. Thorburn got eight and Ward four points. Davern failed to score for the first time this season, he and Galley checking each other close. The teams:

Trinity: W. Ward, J. Thorburn, C. Davern, M. Gates, and E. Edmonson.

George Street "A": A. Fair, H. Kingdon, W. Wright, A. Roberts, R. Heard and H. Galley.

Referee—V. Holmes; scorer, D. Charlton.

KNOX LOSES 31-6

Knox Juniors were minus three of their regulars, Hammell, Wallace and Archibald. They had as much play as Murray Street but lacked a shot. Londerville missed many chances right under the hoop. Cunningham and Seabrook were the best players. Murray Street had a well-balanced and strong defensive team, Miller and Welch checking nicely. The forwards were shooting well, V. Holmes getting 19 points, with A. Holmes and Galley each notching six points. They all turned in a stellar performance. The teams:

Knox: S. Seabrook, J. Cowling, O. Benson, G. Masters, H. Cunningham and J. Londerville.

Murray Street: A. Holmes, V. Holmes, L. Galley, D. Welch, J. Miller and C. Lasenby.

Referee, C. Routly; scorer, A. Stinson.

Two-Day Bonspiel Starts On Wednesday

One of the major events of the curling season, a 2-day open bonspiel, is to commence at Charlotte street rink on Wednesday of this week.

The first day will see the tournament for the Morrow Trophy, while the second day will be a battle royal for the Matthews Blackwell Trophy. A large number of entries is expected, the events being open to all Ontario.

While no outside rinks have recorded their entries yet, eight local skips have slated ther rinks, as follows: J. H. Sedgewick, G. F. Cairns, W. J. Oke, A. Archibld, Dr. N. H. Sutton, I. Hamley, Geo. Hill, D. M. Bissell.

Dr. Harvey, of Orillia, holder of the O.C.A. Silver Tankard, dean of curlers, and a visitor to the open bonspiel here annually for about twenty years, will be absent this year, it was regretfully announced. The doctor will be tied up at the time of the two-day event here in his games for the McDonald Brier Trophy.

The slate for to-night's schedule games promises the following lineup: Suton vs. Moore; Marshall vs. Shirley; Cruthers vs. Foote; Hall vs. Downey; Metcalfe vs. Kay; Dobbin vs. Morrow; Seymour vs. Donldson.

Described by one of the rink officials as being the nicest bit of curling he had seen in a long time, the final in the boys' bonspiel on Saturday afternoon resulted in an 11-10 victory for George Robertson and his rink, playing against M[illegible] Cornstock. Robertson got his one shot lead in an extra end.

The personnel of the rinks in the finals, was as fololws:

L. Martin	Don Carr
Alan Clarke	Jack Dobbin
Bob Cathcart	M. Ruiter
G. Robertson	Max Comstock
Skip.. 11	Skip.. 10

Members of the winning rink, it is learned, are to receive individual cups in addition to a trophy presented by the Hon. G. N. Gorwdon, K.C.

Skating in almost her old-time form, the Canadian defeated a classy field on Sunday in the mile event on the Golden Skates Tourney program. She breasted the tape in 3.27 4-5 to beat Rose Marie Brady, Detroit's best, and Adele Roberts, also of the Motor City.

SEE MENNONITES ABOUT TO MOVE

Paraguay Acts to Keep 5,000 Canadians in Newly Settled Chaco.

DISLIKE WAR.

By GIDEON SEYMOUR

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 13 (A.J.)—Threatened migration of 5,000 Canadian Mennonites from farms in the chaco to new and warless fields in Uruguay or Brazil will be averted if any concessions which Paraguay can make will induce the sturdy colonists to remain.

Official sources deny that a commission sent to treat for land concessions in northern Uruguay and the Brazilian state of Santa Catalina represents the majority of the chaco Mennonites, but serious attention is being given to the matter because the Paraguayan programme for development of the chaco counts heavily upon the Mennonites.

In its war with Bolivia for possession of the chaco, Paraguay has relied more upon hoe and plow than upon armaments for eventual victory. Colonization has been a Paraguayan weapon which Bolivia could not match.

Secession of the Mennonites would not only remove a sixth of the white population of the chaco and leave idle a fourth of its cultivated area, but would halt a colonization project which had been counted upon to bring 80,000 members of the sect eventually onto farms wrested from the wilderness. When the first Mennonites came from Canada in 1927 they acquired 120 square miles of land in the central chaco and made plans for an eventual 400 villages of 20 families each. The colony has grown steadily.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

I gave my pig a cabbage leaf
I gave my pig a carrot,
I wish my pig would talk to me
But a pig is not a parrot.
—Shadow Sayings.

"If only you wouldn't grunt," Hanid told the pig. "It isn't nice to grunt, you know."

"We don't grunt," Mij, Flor, Knarf and Yam said.

The little pig looked at them for a minute or two, then it grunted. I don't know just what it grunted, and I don't think the shadow children knew either; but it grunted anyway.

"We just told you it wasn't nice to grunt," Hanid scolded. "Please don't grunt. If you have anything to say, say it quietly."

"Grunt, grunt," went the pig.

"Dear me, you won't learn, will you?" Hanid sighed.

"And why don't you wash your face?" Yam asked.

"If you had a cean face, you wouldn't look so much like a pig," Knarf started to say, then he remembered that if a pig couldn't or wouldn't look like a pig, what could it, or would it, look like?

A Poor Pupil

At this moment the farmer came along and threw some cabbage leaves into the pig pen, and the pig, with many loud grunts, stuck its snout right into the middle of the leaves and began swallowing them as fast as it could.

"It isn't good manners to grunt, you know," said Hanid.

"Eat slowly!" Flor cried.

"Use a knife and work!" Mij added.

"Where's your napkin?" Yam wanted to know.

But the piggie didn't bother to answer them. It kept right on chewing up the cabbage leaves. Finally, when it had chewed them all up, it ran round and round the pen, grunting.

"What are you looking for?" Yam asked.

"It's looking for more cabbage leaves," Hanid explained. "It has no manners at all. I wonder what its mother would say if she knew how it was acting? I'm going to tell her your mother, the very next time I see her," Hanid cried, shaking her finger at the little pig.

Was the little pig upset to hear this? I guess it was, for it turned right around and tried to hide itself behind the fence. But it didn't succeed in hiding itself. No indeed, it slipped into a little puddle of black mud. It was a most unpleasant thing, but the piggie didn't seem to mind it. I'm afraid—I'm very much afraid—it enjoyed it. But don't tell anybody....please.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, February 14

The astral operations of this day, both by lunar and mutual aspect, point to an extremely rapid unfoldment of current affairs both business and private. It might be that things would be accelerated to such a degree as to be cyclonic, but with small element of the disastrous and much of promise, accumulation and advancement all along the line. It is a time for action, but be careful with litigation. Social liveliness accompanies the other activities and much solid gain is shown in prestige and pleasure.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a splendid year, with much activity in both business and the personal life. There will be much to stabilize the fortunes through real possessions, business, writings, promotion, etc., with much to be gained by aggressive action as well as from assistance of those in power. A child born on this day should be brilliant, versatile in so many ways that it may have many choices of success, with better chances if it could be induced to "stay put" awhile.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Eczema On Hands For Five Years

Mrs. Andrew Volk, Burdette, Alta., writes:—"I was very much bothered, for five years, with eczema on my hands and wrists.

I tried all kinds of ointments and salves, but they did not help me.

A friend told me about Burdock Blood Bitters, and after I had taken two bottles I found I had received complete relief from my trouble."

PETER PAN, M.P.

At 73 George ("Peter Pan") Lansbury, M.P., likes breakfast in bed.

First a daughter takes him a cup of tea about 7.15 a.m. Along with the papers.

Then between 8 and 8.30 she takes up his breakfast.

A real breakfast. Eggs and bacon. Bread and butter. Porridge in winter. Lots of tea.

"I'm a great tea drinker," says George.

He goes downstairs soon after 9 o'clock.

A stroll round his garden—a surprising little oasis of green in the East-end of London—and then to his desk in the study.

A stream of callers. George opens the door to most of them himself "Come in!"

Two stone lions guard the front door. But they were there before the house was George's. They frighten no one now.

For down in Bow and Bromley and Poplar they all take their troubles to George. Every man, woman and child knows him and his wife.

He has been their Mayor, M.P., magistrate, councillor, Poor Law Guardian, school manager, and general fairy godfather for half a century.

And all the time he has lived in the middle of them. They love him so much.

He sets out for Westminster as soon as he can after breakfast. He goes to his private room. He receives deputations. He deals with the day's letters. He thinks out plans for handling the debates.

And he goes back to the East-end for the mid-day dinner—not 'lunch.' "Cut off the joint and two veg." with a sweet.

Then back to Westminster again by 2 o'clock, to preside over his Party executive. Hust'e, that, for a grandfather aged seventy-three.

Next stop for a pot of tea, bread and butter, and a toasted bun, when Question Time is over.

Later, when most M.P.'s are eating the official seven-course dinner George slips into the tea-room. And his supper—not "dinner"—is a few oranges, a welsh rarebit, or a bit of fish, with a pot of tea.

He has always been a great orange eater.

Most nights George gets home from Parliament — third-class season ticket on the Underground — soon after midnight.

A glass of milk. Then off to bed.

On off-nights he loves a family sing-song. Mrs. George plays the piano. One of this sons the saxophone. Another the violin.

A great musical house is the Lansburys'.

"When the children were all young, we almost had a band of our own," he says.

And there are nine children still living. There were twelve. The grandchildren already number 17.

Two of them are twins. Their mother is Moyna Macgill, the actress, wife of George's son Edgar.

In the big lounge — that runs from the front of the house to the back—there is still plenty of music. Piano, organ, gramophone, wireless.

George likes jazz just as much as straight stuff.

Sometimes th room is cleared and the family dances.

"But I have never learned to dance," says George, woefully. "When I was young, dancing was wicked.

"I feel out of it when the young ones are dancing. But it's too late to learn now."

George is a bit of a film fan, too. And he likes the theatre.

And books. They are ranged nearly all round the walls of his study. History and biography he reads mostly. Not much modern fiction. But he likes a "blood-and-thunder" occasionally.

There is an official looking desk for work. But a rocking-chair waits near the fire for off-duty moments.

See him rocking joyfully in that chair—more the schoolboy than the grandfather.

There's a bust of Lenin in that study, too. He talked with Lenin in Moscow.

As a pacifist, he doesn't believe in Lenin's ways.

"But Lenin knew what he wanted—and did it.' That makes nim one of the greatest men in history in George's eyes.

George's other recreations include cards with the family Solo whist chiefly. But he has never gambled a penny.

He has never backed a horse either. Or even been to a race "But I would like once to see the Derby or one of the other big races," he confides. "Just for the spectacle."

Football and cricket he cut out in his 'teens to take up politics. But he stil likes to see a good game

George used to box when he was young, too. A pacifist—but not namby-pamby. Years of hard manual labor and a spell in the Australian bush made a man of him

George is a great believer in swimming. That' swhy he opened the Hyde Park Lido. He is not a champion swimmer himself. He could just about save himself from drowning. He has always been a teetotaller.

He signed the pledge with the Salvation Army when he was ten. But he did not enroll as a Salvationist.

He has not smoked since he was 22. Only for three months did he smoke then.

George gave it up because his young brother was living with him. He did not want to set a bad example.

This Christmas there will be a party of Lansbury grandchildren. Down in the old Bow Road house.

The Leader of the Parliamentary Labor Party will enact Santa Claus Peter Pansbury . . .

MARY LOU GOES SHOPPING

SHE is only eight, but, even at this tender age Mary Lou is a daily customer at the neighborhood stores. Perhaps it is a package of crackers, and a pound of coffee at the grocer's. Perhaps it is some tooth-paste or toilet soap at the drug store.

Of course Mary Lou doesn't decide on what she is going to buy. Her mother writes a list—this brand of crackers, this brand of coffee, this make of tooth-paste, this kind of soap. She knows the prices, and gives Mary Lou just enough money, with an extra penny or two, perhaps, to spend for herself.

Buying is just as simple and easy as that because of just one thing—Advertising.

Advertising has given all of us a lot to be thankful for.

Because of advertising, people in Texas know about and buy Michigan motor cars. People in New Hampshire buy oranges raised in Florida and California. Because of advertising, merchants and manufacturers are forced to improve their products. It has standardized quality. It has increased consumption and thereby lowered costs. It promotes competition and thereby keeps dealers and merchants wide awake to secure for you the most for your money.

But bets of all it writes "Finis" on the business career of any merchant or manufacturer who attempts to fool the public or give them less than value received.

Chairman Stocker: "Then we don't need any nurses."

Other members of the Board took an entirely different view. Alderman Holland suggested that it might be arranged that nurses-in-training at Nicholls and St. Joseph's Hospitals might be able to take several terms during their training at the Isolation Hospital. "It would give them experience in treating contagious disease cases, and I think they would be glad of the experience," he said.

Quarantine Laws.

Dr. Young told the Board that the period of quarantine required for nurses after nursing contagious cases might make the scheme unworkable. "The Provincial health rules in regard to such matters must be enforced to protect the public," he warned.

He said that the Isolation Hospital should have two nurses, one a graduate nurse and the other a nurse-in-training. "If you have a graduate nurse you can leave her in full charge on the days that Miss Price is off and there will be no complaints from anyone," he explained.

Mayor Denne:: "Yes, but we haven't the money to pay what a graduate nurse would want."

It was decided that applications for two nurses-in-training for the Isolation Hospital will be advertised for. Time for receiving such applications will close on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Applications should be made to Miss Price, the matron, and the Board will consider them with the matron's recommendations at the regular meeting on Tuesday morning, February 21.

Rigid Inspection.

A more rigid inspection of chefs and others handling cooked food and dishes at local cafes was suggested by Alderman Holland. "It is to the best interest of the public health that those employed in cooking meals in the cafes should be in good health and free of all disease," he said. "I have been advised that there is no inspection in regard to these cafe men's health. Mr. Stapleton makes regular inspection of the sanitary conditions of the cafes, and I would suggest that if he notices any of the employees are diseased, he should report immediately to the Medical Officer of Health and an examination be made."

Mayor Denne suggested that the employees of the cafes should be periodically subjected to a medical examination. However, Dr. Young said he did not think he had authority to make such examinations. "Not without some excuse, such as some visible signs of sickness," he said. He said that twice Mr. Stapleton had reported kitchen helpers in cafes to him, and in both cases an examination showed the man suffering from tuberculosis. "Both were shipped out of the city at once," he stated.

Library Books.

Alderman McIntyre asked if there was any disinfection of Public Library books, in particular those that were known to have been taken into homes where contagious disease was later found. Dr. Young said that the proper steps were taken in such cases to prevent spread of the disease from the books.

That in his position as chairman of the Board of Health, Alderman Stocker is not going to neglect a strict supervision of the Isolation Hospital, could be judged from his statement, "That when the weather opens up and I have my car running, I'm going to be up at the hospital every day."

Chairman Stocker, when Miss Price's off-day program was being considered, maintained that the days each week that the matron was permitted off duty should be named. But the other members took a different view, saying that the matter of fixing the days should be left to the matron's discretion.

NATIONAL POLICY OF PERSIA FOLLOWING OCCIDENT'S LEAD

form, but with the substance intact, you have the latest decree of the Shah of Persia. It took the Sheik Sayed Kubash, who acts as our interpreter a full hour to translate it into French. But when the work was done, the Shah's whole policy was as clear as the sun that shines over Teheran. The Shah is a nationalist. That explains everything. It explains the abrogation of the Anglo-Persian Oil Concession, the abrogation of airline monopolies, the agitation against the Persia-Soviet Trade Agreement and the more increasing hostility against foreigners in general in this land.

Although not a betting man I dare wager a year's subscription to The Star that our nationalist newspapers at home had already put the blame for the cancellation of the Anglo-Persian oil deal on Moscow. That was the most convenient thing to do under the circumstances. It required no effort, except a grandiloquent dash on the typewriter and served at the same time the noble purpose of keeping the Russian bogey-man fairy-tale alive.

But it is not in Miscow that Shah Riza Khan has gone to school. That Potentate of Potentates, it now becomes clear, went to school in .... Ottawa. His teachers are not called Volodarsky, Molotoff or Staline. Their names are Bennett, Chamberlain and Baldwin. The Shah has been an adept pupil too, it seems. "You build a nice wall, I build a nice wall," he seems to have said. "You think, in your Western wisdom, that the British Empire will recover her prosperity by shutting out the rest of the world, well the medicine ought to work as well in my domains. Persia is closed from now on."

Thought Move A "Bluff"

From a distance the cancellation of the Anglo-Persian oil concession appears puzzling. Why should a government, like the Persian, terminate an aggrement which has proved so important a support of the Persian Exchequer? Is it a case of wanting to kill the hen that laid the golden eggs? Do the Persians want all the profits themselves henceforth? Why this sudden break. Did the Shah act on the prompting of another foreign power? What pushed him to this act of apparent unfriendliness towards Britain, an act which made the jingoistic press in Britain promptly clamor for warships, for an armed demonstration in the Persian Gulf? "It is a bluff" exclaimed the London Express speaking of the Shah's policy. Whereupon the Government was advised to "Call the Shah's bluff!"

The first thing to be born in mind about Persia's new nationalist policy is the general situation in the Orient. The mentality of the East is changing. The war is responsible for this. The war gave the East a new conception of the West. It laid the West bare to the gaze of uncounted millions of Orientals. Who shall affirm that it was an inspiring spectacle? The East saw right through the pretences of the hurrah-patriots. They knew over there that the struggle was a struggle for markets and nothing else.

They know in the East that Western assurances of good faith have never excluded the subsequent employment of violence or the threat of violence. They also know that the West does not come, as it pretends, merely to bring the blessings of modern progress, or the sweetness of the Gospel's message. The West comes for the sake of profits and dividends. To the Easterner's logic, the attempt to universalize Western civilization appears as a pretext to mask domination and the missionaries from the West as mere advance agents of commercial penetration. This does not mean that I personally think every missionary a conscious agent of imperialism. I merely affirm, what the overgreat majority of Orientals think of missionary endeavor. In the East they have begun to observe and compare. They are perhaps a long time in reaching conclusions. But in the end they do see clearly.

West Is Hated

It is the greatest possible fallacy to think that we are considered altruistic benefactors in the East. The reverse is true. On the whole we are hated. We are detested. We are despised as men of blood and lies, and as cruel taskmasters. It is only our technical superiority which keeps us on top. Morally and ethically we appear to the Easterners as hypocrites. This is not merely the case now. It has been so ever since the East made our acquaintance. Uilenspiegel said once: "They hate me, but I can't deny that they have good reason" That man at least, saw the reality.

Whereas the East was for long inclined to accept our physical superiority in the spirit of Oriental resignation, the war opened its eyes. All our intellectual, social and moral values were thrown into that war. They came out if greatly damaged, some of them irreparably mutilated.

And now the East has discovered among other things, that by following our example that is by taking and utilizing our mechanical equipment, by adopting our form of egotistical nationalism and also our political and moral dualism, that is to say our method of setting up moral precepts for the individual, which are not made applicable to the collectivity, to the State; by doing all these things, the East believes that it can become strong in a western sense. We have got them so far that they are beginning to follow our example. This change, this evolution is growing more rapid every day.

We are Westernizing the East. That is to say we are supplanting the Eastern mentality of docile resignation with a will to break away from alien tutelage. We are infusing a spirit of nationalism in the East. Kemal Pasha, bosom-friend of Riza Khan, liberated the Ottoman Empire from French and British control. Kemal, nearest to the West, had the best opportunities to study our methods. Amanullah of Afghanistan tried next. He failed. Now it's Riza Khan's turn. The immediate future will show whether the ex-stable boy who became Shah, will succeed or fail. But blame him for trying we cannot. For we are showing him the way every day.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 44c to 46c; oats, 23c to 24c; barley, 32c to 35c; corn, 33c to 35c; rye, 30c to 32c; buckwheat, 29c to 29c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Indications of better demand from overseas hoisted wheat prices late Saturday.

China was reported to have bought seven cargoes of Argentine wheat additional to recent acquirements, and there were estimates 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken for export to Europe. Other stimulating factors included Washington advices that the Senate Agriculture Committee had voted to restrict the domestic allotment bill to wheat and cotton.

Wheat closed firm, ¼c to ½c above Friday's finish; corn, unchanged to ⅛c higher; oats, unchanged to a shade advance, and provisions unchanged.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—The cold weather that swept Canada last week sent prices higher on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market. Eggs, butter and cheese all advanced while potatoes remained steady.

The upturn in egg prices was the most marked, four cents a dozen being added to the previous week's closing quotations. Strong markets on other cities also influenced the Montreal market. At the close of the week Winnipeg inquired if eggs en route here could be reshipped to the Prairie city. Receipts showed an increase over the previous week, a total of 7,844 cases arriving. Graded fresh extras in carlots or less finished the week at 25 cents, firsts at 23 cents, pullets at 22 cents, and seconds at 20 cents a dozen. Effective Monday prices to retailers will be advanced two cents a dozen.

Demand Is Good.

Good demand in addition to the cold weather caused No. 1 grass butter to gain a quarter of a cent at the close of the week to 20½ to 20¾c a pound. Receipts for the week were 376 boxes.

On the cheese market Ontario colored make advanced a quarter of a cent to 10 cents for current receipts, 10¼ cents for November-December make, and 11¼ to 11½ cents a pound for last summer make. Only small uantities of Ontario white cheese are available. Last week's receipts were 322 boxes.

Potatoes held steady, New Brunswick Green Mountains finishing the week at 75 cents per 80-pound bag; Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at 80 to 85 cents per 80-pound bag, and at 90 to 95 cents per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, February 13. — Bolstered by reported export trade and steadiness in outside markets, the prices stiffened on the short Saturday session of the Winnipeg wheat market. Lightness of offerings also was a factor in the advance, and the close found values at the day's high levels, ¾c to ⅞c higher. Trading was fairly active throughout.

Easing only a minor fraction in late dealings, May future ended at 48¼c. July and October deliveries however, held firmly at the highest points touched to close at 49c to 49⅛c and 50¼c respectively.

Trading Active.

The market was buoyantly active, scattered offerings of Chicago interests making no impression against the steady support offered by houses with continental connections. Seaboard interests, also, were active on the buying side.

Canadian export sales were estimated at more than 500,000 bushels, considered good in view of the present lack of demand for Canada's wheat. Plentiful resting orders also were reported at levels slightly under present prices, which gave a strong base for the upswing.

Spreads closed another dull session in cash grains practically unchanged. Coarse grains closed fractionally higher, influenced mainly by action in wheat futures.

Redistribution Shuffle Merges City Under County

Three Hastings Ridings To Be Cut To Two, Conservative West Section Being Absorbed By Prince Edward—Both Durham And Northumberland Are Unchanged

LIBERAL NORTH VICTORIA JOINS TORY SOUTH; NORTH ONTARIO TO GO—SOUTH UNCHANGED

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—Latest reported aim of the Ontario Government in its redistribution bill which will be forecast in the Speech from the Throne at to-morrow's Legislature opening is a reduction of 24 seats in the present House membership of 112.

Three Toronto seats, one Hamilton, one Ottawa, and one Windsor—all strong Conservative ridings — are due to be dropped in accordance with present plans. Impending mergers of the Algoma and Manitoulin ridings; the Sturgeon Falls and Napissing ridings; and the Kenora and Rainy River ridings reduce the Northern Ontario membership by three, and will provide stiffer fighting ground in future provincial general elections.

Three other distinct features of the present scheduled shuffle — and it must be borne in mind that present plans of the Government are subject to the consideration of the House Committee that will be appointed to study them—are the absorption of the Conservative city of Brantford riding by the Progressive riding of Brant; the merger of the two Conservative Elgins; and the fusion of the two Eastern Ontario ridings of Grenville and Dundas. If these schedules are adopted by the House Committee, they will mean (in connection with the next Ontario ballot battle) that—

Martin-Nixon Battle

1—Hon. William G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, will be opposed to Progressive leader Harry C. Nixon.

2—Mitchell F. Hepburn, provincial Liberal leader, will have the the whole of Elgin County to turn Liberal instead of half the county.

3—Hon. George H. Challies, Provincial Secretary, and James A. Sanderson, successor to former Premier Ferguson in the Grenville constituency, may oppose one another in nomination unless another nomination is found elsewhere as has been rumored, for the Provincial Secretary.

Two new seats are likely to blossom out of the impending redistribution. One will likely be a fifth York, here is sufficient population, even on the increased unit basis of 50,000 for city ridings and 25,000 for rural constituencies, to warrant a new York. The second new seat will come, it is reported, in the name of Dufferin. Plans are to split the present single Progressive Dufferin seat up, add part

CREDIT CONTROL MUST BE TAKEN FROM THE BANKS

Liberal Party's New Financial Policy is Outlined to House of Commons.

CENTRAL BANK.

Debts Must Be Written Down Hon. Mackenzie Declares in House.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (C.P.).—Parliament has before it to-day an exposition of the new Liberal financial policy, including the establishment of a central bank, Government control of credit and steps to write down public indebtedness and reduce interest rates.

Joining in the debate on the proposal of William Irvine (U.F.A., Wetaskiwin) that the banking committee review the Bank Act this session and study the advisability of abandoning the gold standard and linking the Canadian dollar with the pound sterling, Hon. Ian MacKenzie, Liberal member for Vancouver South, urged establishment of a central bank and proposed a huge conversion loan, preferably a voluntary one, but compulsory if necessary.

Statement From Government.

Discussion was not ended, and when the matter comes up again there will be a statement from the Government made by either Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, or Premier R. B. Bennett.

The control of credit must be taken away from the banks, Mr. MacKenzie told the House. He also claimed no financial program could be of any value unless it was based on a central bank, an organization of experts, possessing the confidence of both the people and the Government which would regulate currency and credit.

Hon. Ian MacKenzie, a member of the last Liberal administration, said: "We must write down our debt." Federal, Provincial and municipal debts were crushing the Canadian people, "and the greatest necessity before Parliament is to meet this situation with courage and vision. I advocate a big conversion loan in this country, voluntary by preference but compulsory if necessary. It was compulsory in Australia to the extent of £17,500,000."

The Vancouver member suggested a wholesale cut in interest rates

CONVICTS QUIET CHECKUP SHOWS

All Work Proceeding Normally—670 Employed of 955 on List.

DENY UNIONS ORGANIZED.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 14 (CP)—Refutation of a report appearing to-day to the effect convicts of Portsmouth Penitentiary were still unquiet and only one-third of them were at work in the big prison was obtained to-day when the penitentiary was visited and all work was found proceeding normally.

At least 670 of the convicts were at work, out of 955 in the institution, and it was stated that at no time since the beginning of the year have less than 600 men been at their usual labors.

Every shop, the kitchens, hospital, cell blocks, women's prison, the prison farm and in fact every portion of the big penal institution wracked by riot last October was visited and there was an entire absence of any abnormal atmosphere.

All Quarters Visited

Free access was allowed the visiting reporter to all quarters of the prison, including the great dome in which 400 rioting convicts raised havoc in the autumn revolt. Everything was functioning smoothly in all departments.

Tim Buck, former leader of the Communist party of Canada and mentioned as a ringleader of the October disturbance (he is to appear in court yet for his part in the affair) was as busy as any other worker in the blacksmith shop. Convicts Garceau, Evans and other alleged fomenters of trouble were carrying on their ordinary work.

Against the wall surrounding the prison construction was going ahead on big iron cages in which armed guards will be installed.

Col. William Megloughlin, warden of the institution, emphatically declared there was no foundation for a report emanating from Ottawa that the convicts in the shops had organized unions.

BAKERY BURNS.

KITCHENER.— Fire early to-day gutted the Bardon Bakery here and caused damage estimated at $10,000. The flames raced through the second floor of the frame structure immediately above the boiler and were believed caused by an overheated boiler. Machinery was badly damaged and water loss was considerable. Mr. Bardon, sleeping above the store, detected the fire.

TRIBUNAL HEARS PENSIONS CASES

Widow of Lieut.-Col. W. T. H. Rogers Seeks Claim Before Board.

GASSED AT AMIENS.

Among the pension applications that are being heard by the Pension Tribunal in session in the City Council Chamber here until Thursday of this week, was that of the widow of Lieut.-Colonel W. T. H. Rogers who died in July last at Christie Street Hospital Toronto. The application was heard this morning, testimony being given by Mrs. H. Rogers and by Dr. T. W. H. Young, the late Colonel Rogers' medical adviser.

Colonel Rogers died of cancer, a condition which it was claimed had been originated by a fall from a horse while on service in France.

According to the evidence of Dr. Young cancer was not diagnosed until fifteen years after the alleged injury, and in his opinion he did not think that the condition had been caused by the late Colonel have fallen from his horse.

The Tribunal is composed as follows: Major J. F. McKay; Major Leo Warde. Registrar-Colonel W. T. Colclough. Medical Adviser— Dr. Douglas Wallace. Commission Counsel representing the Board of Pensions—W. G. Robertson. Counsel for applicants—Harry Bray of Toronto.

Gassed At Amiens

Another application heard this morning was that in which Cephas McDonald, 44, of Havelock claimed that a present chest condition was the result of having been gassed while on active service with the 38th Battalion at the battle of Amiens. He was in France, he said, from June to October 1918. In October of that year he received a gunshot wound in the right arm at Cambrai.

In answer to counsel, applicant

VERIGIN SENDS PARTY ADVICE

Urges Doukhobors to Pay Taxes, Live Honorably, Avoid Demonstrations.

AWAITS FUTURE CALMLY.

HALIFAX, February 14 (C.P.).—Peter Verigin to-day admonished Doukhobors to be calm. Locked in the immigration detention quarters here, awiating the outcome of a legal battle against deportation to Russia, the bearded spiritual leader issued a message of peace to the 16,000 members of his sect in Western Canada, asking them to abstain from demonstrations.

"I ask you all to be calm and to continue industriously in your daily activities just as if I were still among you," his message stated. 'Do not be disturbed, and do not trust provocators and agitators, for by so doing you will punish yourselves. Once more I exhort you to guard against unwise and foolish action. Do not follow the example of the foolish Sons of Freedom, provocators who have been banished from the land and with whom we have nothing to do whatever.

"I repeat my former advice to pay punctually all your taxes and obligations, and conduct yourselves in an honorable and businesslike manner."

BEXLEY REEVE'S HEROISM SAVES DOUBLE DEATH

Roy Shields Leaps Into Swirling River for Sinking Mother and Son.

AT COBOCONK.

Near Tragedy Occurs as 4-Year Lad Falls in and Mother Goes to Rescue.

LINDSAY, Ont., Feb. 14 (C.P.).—Reeve Roy Shields of Bexley to-day was acclaimed a hero in saving the life of a mother and her four-year-old son from drowning in the river at Coboconk.

When young Beverly Pearce fell into the freezing river yesterday and was swept out from short into the swift current, his mother, Mrs. Jack Pearce, plunged in after him. She reached him and had brought him almost to the shore when her strength failed. Reeve Shields then happened along, plunged in and swam out to the mother and her son and succeeded in bringing them to shore safely.

Welland Man Killed As Car Hits Train

WELLAND, Feb. 14.—George A. Porter, 32 Church street, Welland, was instantly killed last night when his car crashed into the rear end of a Wabash train at the Wabash crossing at Chambers' Corners in Wainfleet township. Just how the accident happened is not clear.

Mr. Porter was employed by the Ontario Hydro Commission as a right of way purchasing agent, and it is supposed that he was on his way hom in his car when he struck the train. The wreckage of the car showed that it had been hit on the left front corner, turned around, and the right door torn off by a near-by post. The car came to a halt against the railway fence, but was still on the highway. Porter was found under the car, with his feet toward the fence.

Dr. Duncan Allison of Welland was called and will open an inquest to-day, which will then be adjourned for one week.

FIGHT CONCESSIONS

WINDSOR—No concessions to separate schools, with respect to the division of assessments, should be made by the province of Ontario, the East Windsor Public School Board decided in a resolution adopted and forwarded to the Minister of Education. Another resolution passed advocated reducing the fee for high school examinations from $1.50 to 50 cents per paper.

Acute Financial Emergency Forces Closing Of Banks For An Eight-Day Holiday

550 Bank And Trust Companies In the State of Michigan Are Closed, Tieing Up a Total Of $1,510,385,767.00.

CLOSING OF ALL THE BANKS IN STATE EVOLVES AROUND CONDITION OF ONE BANK.

Henry Ford Refused To Consent To Subordinate His $7,500,000 Deposit In Union Guardian Trust Company.

DETROIT, Feb. 14. —(AP) —A total of $1,510,385,767.00 held in Michigan's 550 banks and trust companies, was tied up today by a sudden eight-day state bank holiday decreed by Governor William A. Comstock, who declared an "acute financial emergency" existed in the state. The action was unprecedented in the state's history.

In his proclamation the governor said the closing of all the state's banks evolved around conditions in the Union Guardian Trust Company owned by the Guardian Detroit Union group, which operates some 20 Michigan banks and trust companies. He said he believed it would have been necessary to close the trust company this morning, and decided on the boldest stroke a Michigan governor has made—the closing of all the state's financial institutions.

Henry Ford Refuses

Henry Ford's name was prominent in statements from the governor following his issuance of the proclamation. He declared that if Ford had consented to subordinate his $7,500,000 deposit in the Union Guardian Trust Company the affairs of that institution might have been settled without delay.

"In the meeting at Detroit last night (attended by bankers, state officials, and others) it was believed two or three times that a settlement could be reached," the governor said today. "The company had been assured of a $23,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan if it could get its large depositors to subordinate their deposits to the claims of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the small depositors. Other large depositors agreed to do this, but Mr. Ford refused. I have been criticized for making this public, but it is true and I stand by it."

Governor Comstock said he had had no direct communication with Henry Ford. He said all he knew about the matter was what he was told by trust company officials.

Edsel Ford is a stockholder in the Guardian Union group, which owns the Union Guardian Trust Company.

Meeting of Payrolls.

The Governor declared he believed a plan will be completed within the next 24 hours to permit sufficient withdrawals from banks

French Pretender

With French cabinet after French cabinet tottering and falling, France's pretender to the throne, now residing in Belgium, has issued a manifesto to the people stating that by birth he is the logical ruler and that his statesmanship would lift France out of her dilemmma. ABOVE is Le Duc de Guise, who would be King Jean III. The royalists claim to have 60,000 troops behind him.

LINDSAY RINK IN SEMI-FINAL

Orillia, Cobourg, Shelburne Default in First Round Play for Governor-General's Cup.

37TH COMPETITION.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—(CP)—Curling began today in the 37th annual competition for the Governor-General's trophy, following last week's play for the Ontario Tankard, captured by Orillia.

The preliminary round scheduled for the High Park club today with Orillia to meet Cobourg and Shelburne opposed to Lindsay did not take place as the first three clubs failed to put in an appearance and Lindsay therefore goes into the semi-finals without any play. The semi-finals are scheduled for tomorrow at the Granite Club.

High Park's two rinks are playing against Kitchener in the first round at Strathcona Club, and the matches starting at the Victoria Club are Thornhill vs. Hamilton Thistles and Lakefield vs. Agincourt.

Hamilton Thistles are the present holders of the Governor-General's Trophy.

ROYALTY WILL RETURN TO LONDON FEBRUARY 18

LONDON, Feb. 14 (A.P.)—The return of King George and Queen Mary to Buckingham Palace from Sandringham has now been fixed for February 18. The return was postponed from February 6 on the advice of the King's physician owing to the prevalence of influenza in London.

It can therefore be inferred that the King's physicians considered the risk of influenza now has decreased sufficiently to permit the court's return.

CONTRADICTORY CAUSES GIVEN SCHAAF'S DEATH

New York Medical Examiner Claims Heavyweight Boxer Died of Natural Causes.

SPECIALIST DIFFERS.

Carnera, Managers and Garden Officials to be Questioned at Investigation.

NEW YORK, February 14 (C.P.).—Dr. Charles W. Norris, chief medical examiner of the city, today said that the death of Ernie Schaaf resulted from natural causes and not from any injury received in Schaaf's bout with Primo Carnera last Friday night.

Dr. Norris, who peformed an autopsy on the body, said the exact nature of the substance that was pressing on the young boxer's brain was to be determined by a microscopic examination later to-day.

Dr. Norris' opinion goes contrary to that of Dr. Byron Stookey, brain specialist, who performed the operation to remove a blood clot from Schaaf's brain yesterday.

In discussing the case with newspapermen following the operation, Dr. Stookey said:

"He must have been knocked out on his feet. The damage could not have resulted from anything but this match."

Never Regains Consciousness.

Schaaf died in the hour before dawn, at 4.26 a.m. without regaining consciousness, after the finest of New York surgeons operated on his brain yesterday to remove a blood clot, deep in the motor area.

Thus with tragedy such as New York boxing has not known since the Sunday morning in 1924 that little Jerome died as a result of the beating he took from Bud Taylor, did the tow-headed youngster who always wanted to be a priest answer with his life the critics who thought he "laid down" to Carnera so that

SHIP IS RUSHED TO SAVE BISHOP

Alaskan Prelate, Reported Drowned in Wreck, Found on Island.

ILL FROM EXPOSURE.

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Feb. 14.—(A.P.)—The Bureau of Fisheries was requested to-day to send the ship Penguin to the rescue of Bishop Antonin Pokrovsky, formerly of Vancouver, who struggled ashore after the werck of the trading vessel Umnak Native and was found seriously ill on Umnak Island.

The Alaskan prelate of the Russian Orthodox church was believed to have died with 12 others when the ship broke her moorings and foundered in a fierce gale Jan. 24, until word came from the steamer Starr last night that natives located him on the island, one of the Aleutian group. The Starr was unable to enter Inanudak Bay without charts and natives apparently were unable to bring off the Bishop.

Reports from Umnak village said natives found both his legs frozen, and that he was ill from exposure. Messages that he was alive were confirmed by the United States' coast guard.

No word was heard of the fate of the 12 still missing.

PERSIAN TRIBES SWAYED BY EVERY FICKLE RUMOR

Wild Tales Pass as Gospel Truth in Tribal Land.

FEAR GREAT BRITAIN

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
(Special to The Examiner. Copyright, 1933)

BASRA, Persia, Jan. 18.—There is no evidence of a special war-like attitude against Britain in Persia.

Pierre van Paassen

The sentiment of xenophobia is directed against all foreigners, irrespective of nationality. In a land where there is virtually no press, except in the capital, and a land that is for the most part inhabited by wild tribes there can be no question of public opinion. The common people in the Southern district where the oil-wells are to be found are indeed vaguely aware that some tension exists between their exalted ruler and the English oil company, but on the whole the details leave them cold.

Fear for Property

Yet the situation is not wholly without danger. The Persians are an inflammable Oriental people.

Windsor Cuts Tax Rate By 9 Mills

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 14. — (C.P.)—A tax rate of 28 mills for 1933 was set by Windsor City Council to-day. The rate last year was 37 mills, with assessment $89,215,000. The assessment this year is approximately $80,000 000.

The levy is based on an estimated collection of 65 per cent. of the amount on the rolls and this will realize about $650,000 less than the estimated expenditure.

Load Of Hay Upsets On Hunter St. Bridge

Noon-day traffic on the Hunter street bridge to-day had to detour around an upset load of hay. Uneven packed snow, and perhaps a poorly balanced load turned the top-heavy load over about the middle of the bridge at five minutes to twelve. While a steady stream of cars poured past, going in single file around the obstruction, the driver gazed in heavy disgust at the scene. Eventually he found a helper and the two forked it back on, but it was about an hour and a half later before this was finished. The load then proceeded east, but kept carefully to the centre of the street.

GO BACK TO GOLD REDUCE ARMIES HOOVER'S PLEA

Retiring U. S. President Offers Advice to Debtor Nations, and Successor.

WAR DEBTS EXAGGERATED.

Urges "Tangible Compensation" if U. S. Makes Sacrifics Asked by World Nations.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—A call to the world to re-establish itself upon the gold standard, as the only means of avoiding an "incipient outbreak of economic war," was made tonight by President Herbert Hoover, coupled with a suggestion that a swap on war debts might be acceptable to gain this end.

Standing before the Linsoln Day gathering of the United States Republican Club to deliver probably the last address of his Republican Administration, the President gave also a rallying cry to his party to support the new Democratic Administration in all constructive measures, while opposing "those which are harmful."

Although stating he wished to speak of matters upon which there should be no partisanship, the President fore-cast that the Republican Party "will be recalled to power by the American people."

Points "Only Way."

In his call for co-operation among nations against the depression, Mr. Hoover asserted flatly that the answer "can only be found, and found quickly, through the re-establishment of gold standards among important nations." He gave the following formula:

"Nor is it necessary, from an international point of view, that those nations who have been forced off the gold standard shall be again restored to former gold values. It will suffice if it only is fixed. From this source are the principal hopes for restoring world confidence, and reversing the growing barriers to the movement of goods, and making possible the security in trade which will again revive a demand for such goods.

"To do this, it is necessary to have strong and courageous action on the part of the leading commercial nations. If some sort of international financial action is necessary to enable central banks to co-operate for the purpose of stabilizing currencies, nations should have no hesitation in joining in such an operation under proper safeguards.

"If some part of the debt payments to us could be set aside for temporary use for this purpose, we should not hesitate to do so. At the same time, the world should endeavor to find a place for silver, at least in enlarged subsidiary coinage."

"I trust the American people will not be misled or influenced by the ceaseless stream of foreign propaganda that cancellation of war debts would give this international relief and remedy. That is not true. These debts are but a segment of the problem. Their world-trade importance is being exaggerated."

If America is asked for sacrifices on debts, however, he said, it should have in return assurances of co-operation that will positively result in monetary stability and the restoration of world prosperity."

He asserted there should be "tangible compensations" in restoration of United States' share of the debtor's imports, and added that "the world should have relief from the sore burden of armaments."

Isolation Is Alternative

"If they are unable to meet us in these fields," he said, "this nation, whether you or I like it or not, will be driven by our internal forces more and more to its own self-containment and isolation, as harmful to the world and as little satisfactory to us as this course may be."

This, however, he said, is the "counsel of despair." International prosperity, he added, cannot be builded upon mutual impoverishment. He asserted it was to the interest of the world to "join in bold and courageous action which will bring about economic peace."

Rescued In Thrilling Sea Drama

Safe in Westport, Conn., after rescue from the disabled schooner Saugatuck, two women and eight men told a thrilling story of their battle with heavy seas and zero weather. The schooner left Westport in search of Edward Connolly who had been swept to an island in a rowboat. The rescue craft became disabled and the party was picked up after 41 hours, by the crew of Middle Ground lighthouse. A newspaper plane engaged in the search located the schooner and the rescued were taken to the mainland. Lower shows the schooner as sighted and (top) the lighthouse. Left insets show, Capt. John Mulhaley telling his mother of the experience and right is 17-year-old Betty Mulhaley who suffered from exposure.

INTERESTS OF CHEESE TRADE ARE DISCUSSED

G. A. Gillespie of Peterborough Addresses Meeting of Northumberland County Cheese Factory Patrons' Association.

MARKETING PROBLEMS.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 14 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—"There is no man living, a greater trader and gentleman than the Englishman," declared G. A. Gillespie of Peterborough, speaking at a meeting of the Northumberland County Cheese Factory Patrons' Association held in Campbellford yesterday. This statement came from the speaker when some of those present expressed the opinion that the Montreal buyers of cheese were a combination and worked together in an effort to keep cheese prices down.

Mr. Gillespie stated that he had been through the mill as a buyer for twenty-five years, and had found the Montreal buyers gentlemen. This also applied to the U.D.C.; no man had been finer in England than Mr. Mills of this company. Of the buyers collectively in Montreal, he said that there was no getting together of them there for the competition was too keen.

The meeting was presided over by George Van Volkenburg, and was called to discuss problems relative to the industry of the cheese patrons in the county.

R. H. Ashton, of Belleville, addressed the gathering on the matter

THE BROWSER.

A serious fellow said to the Browser, "Why do you read trash? You know you do, you admit that you do, but why do you do it when there's so much fine ennobling, inspiring literature in the world?"

Marshall Maslin

Answer from the Browser: He reads it because he is curious. How's he going to know anything is trash before he reads it? How's a miner going to know there is gold in the creek bed before he pans it? The Browser will continue to read trash until his old eyes are rheumy and weak and he's not apologizing.

When the Browser was a kid his favorite hunting-ground was the town dump and many a fine axle or wagon wheel and many a sack of bottles he collected there and peddled to the junkman, and many a fine dividend he drew from that place. . . . A snapper-up of unconsidered trifles, that's the Browser, and it's too late to change.

But the Browser is also an excellent judge of literature and that's why he's apologetic to-day. . . . Somehow, during 1932, he missed a fine novel: "Saint Saturnin," by Jean Schlumberger, and didn't even know it existed until last week. And what the Browser wants to know is Why Somebody Didn't Tell Him About "Saint Saturnin"?

Yes, he knows it won the Northcliffe prize in England in 1931, and yes, he knows that it was the Book-of-the-Month club selection and, yes, he knows that Dorothy Canfield praised it, but why didn't somebody force it on the Browser with nagging recommendations?

Such a beautiful book! Such a shiningly truthful book! Why are people so secretive? Why don't they share their treasures with the Browser? And why don't YOU read "Saint Saturnin"? You'll never forget if if you do.

* * *

Alexander Woollcott's writing a series of studies, in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, of "that handful of glamorous men and women who to-day are citizens of the world." He began with Noel Coward. . . . Woollcott likes to play croquet with Kathleen Norris. The Browser used to play croquet. . . . at the Chateau Pierrefond, France . . . during the war . . . with two maiden ladies. . . . On a little spot of lawn above a moat right near the drawbridge. . . . It was fun. . . . Woollcott's place is called "Wit's End."

Harold Loeb's "Life in a Technocracy" is interesting. . . . So is "Introduction of Technocracy" by Howard Scott (technocracy has already been introduced—and snubbed).

Mrs. Belloc Lowndes boasts that she has read almost every book on Russia published in French and English. . . . S. S. Van Dine uses the word "mentation" in the Kennel Club Murder, when he means "thinking" and that is rank showing-off. . . . Havelock Ellis' "Psychology of Sex" is out, and a very good book it is. . . . Once the Browser lived in a rented furnished house and discovered, hidden behind the drab classics in the bookcase, two volumes of Ellis' studies in sex. The lady liked them but was ashamed of letting you know she owned them. . . . But that, of course, was 10 years ago and now she probably keeps them on the parlor table for the children to read.

John Dos Passos' novel, "1919," was second choice for the Prix Femina Americain and was also on the Nation's Honor Roll for 1932. . . . Cozzens' new novel, "The Last Adam," is selling at the rate of a thousand copies a day. . . . "The Mutiny on the Bounty," by Hall and Nordhoff, now is a best seller, so a lady who keeps a bookshop told the Browser.

* * *

Yesterday the Browser met a woman who reminded him every time she opened her mouth, smiled, spoke, laughed, of Ann Vickers, heroine of Sinclair Lewis' novel. He told her to read the book because it was about her. She said she would. "Ann Vickers" has been translated into 13 languages in 16 countries.

Quotation from "Ann Vickers": "In this age no one ought to be more than decently virtuous; it is too hard on the neighbors.'

Quotation from Schlumberger's "Saint Saturnin": "It is perhaps presumptuous of man to rely on the nobility of his impulses alone. . . . Quotation from Huey Long in February Forum: "I don't start things much. I jump on wagons other people start and go places." . . . Quotation from the multiplication tables: "Two plus two equals four." . . . Quotations from the Literary Exchange: "The Browser, Inc.: High 999, Low 999, Close 999." (Quotation from Barlett's book of quotations: "Blow your own horn!") Such silliness from

Wrong Economy

LUCAN, Ont., Feb. 14 (C.P.).—The town bell, which for more than 60 years has called the people to labor, sent them home again for lunch and for dinner, is ringing again.

Momentarily overcome by a persistent demand for economy, the council voted to discontinue the ringing of the bell. A monster petition was circulated by the townsfolk, and the bell now rings again.

WOMAN'S DEATH LEADS TO PROBE

Former Kingston Resident Found Dead in Jefferson County Jail.

AWAITING DEPORTATION.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Feb. 14 (AP)—Physicians of this city last night were at a loss to explain the death of Mrs. Kathleen Holland Hennigan, 23, native of Kingston, Ont., in Jefferson County jail at 3.30 a.m. yesterday.

A post-mortem by Dr. J. M. Smith revealed no cause, he said, and no trace of poison or indication of heart disease were found. He stated a more thorough examination of the contents of the stomach would be made.

Mrs. Hennigan, wife of Arthur W. Hennigan of this city, had been held since early January to await outcome of deportation proceedings.

She was married in a doube ceremony at Toronto on July 5, 1932, her sister becoming the bride of D. E. Howland of this city. Mrs. Hennigan was born at Kingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos F. Holland. Her father is in California, and another sister, Mrs. Harry Bone, resides in Toronto.

COURT-MARTIAL OUSTS BROWN FOR HIS ACTION

Scandal at Masquerade Leads to Dismissal After 25 Years' Service.

PENSIONS GRANTED.

Rebitt Reprimanded for Firing Shot at His Superior Officer.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 14 (CP)—Captain Charles Graham Brown of the Lord Strathcona's Horse last night prepared to leave what has been his home for many years, dismissed from His Majesty's forces which he served for almost a quarter century.

Convicted of 'behaving in a scandalous manner and forcing the wife of a fellow officer to accompany him to a single officer's quarters, there attempting to molest her," the tall gaunt captain, a victim of diabetes, prepared to move his wife and family from the Fort Osborne barracks, where only a few hours before he had heard read the findings of the court martial before which he and Captain Henry Rivers Rebit faced trial. Rebitt was sentenced to be reprimanded.

Not far from the apartment where Brown for the last time changed from his captain's uniform to mfuti, Rebitt was reunited with his family, free from military arrest for the first time since November. It was on the second day of that month Rebitt "offered violence to a superior officer" after his wife had complained Brown had molested her at a Hallowe'en masquerade the previous evening in the officers' mess quarters.

Admits Firing Shot

Rebitt admitted going to the quarters of his brother officer, who with his wife the night before had been guests at the Rebitt home, and firing a shot from his service revolver. It was for this offense the military tribunal ordered him reprimanded. He was not convicted on a second charge of using menacing language, namely "Stick 'em up, I have you covered."

The second charge against Brown for "conducting himself to the prejudice of good order and military discipline" also was dismissed.

So he and his family would not be deprived of a pension he would have received if dismissed as medically unfit, the court, with no alternative but to order Brown cashiered, made a unanimous recommendation for mercy in view of his previous good conduct, long service and gallantry on the field as testified to by senior officers of his and other units.

Recommendation that the sentence be computed to one of dismissal was made by the Minister of National Defence. This was concurred in by the Privy Council and approved by the Governor-General.

Two new members were obtained for the seniors and one for the juniors. The adult members met on the afternoons of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and the girls on the evenings of Thursday and Friday, finishing their course on Saturday morning.

Andrew Harper, a native of Madoc village and a graduate of Queen's, has been appointed a county judge in Vancouver, to succeed Judge Hugh S. Capley, who is retiring upon superannuation.

Good Citizen?

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—(A.P.)—Henry Kus is the kind of a man who believes every good citizen should get out and shovel the snow off the sidewalk.

A street car crew protested he was shovelling his snow on their tracks, but he kept on with his work.

A policeman appeared. Kus was still shovelling, but stopped long enough, the police said, to strike the officer with his shovel, sending him to a hospital.

The police then sent out a whole squad. Kus was still shovelling. They managed to take him to a police station.

SAY BRITAIN SUGGESTING ABOLISHING WAR AVIATION

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(C.P.)—A Geneva cable to the New York Times says the British Government is understood to be making soundings among the other great powers to ascertain how they would receive a proposal to abolish all war aviation.

The cable continues:

"It appears that Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, has won the Conservatives over to his viewpoint sufficiently for the government to make this proposal soon if the soundings do not frighten Britain off or assure her at least the strong support of some important power."

Veteran Ends Life At Montreal Home

MONTREAL, Feb. 14.—(C.P.) — With a bullet through his head, his revolver lying a short distance way, Major R. Stephenson Smith, 52, was found dead last night in the basement of the home where he was a boarder.

Little was known of Major Smith by the family of L. McDonald Cairnie, with whom he boarded for sevaral months. He had told them he was a civil engineer by profession, but had not worked for two years. Major Smith was a veteran of the war, they understood, but neither Mr. or Mrs. Cairnie could tell with what regiment he served. They believed he was from Ontario and had a daughter in Kingston and a son at Belleville.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Are there among your friends or relatives, some to whom you would like to send something, just a little different, for a birthday anniversary gift?

* * * * * * *

Perfume alone constitutes a most desirable gift for some women. But a woman is thrilled tremendously by a little bottle of "Gardenia" tied in a loop of the bow on a corsage of real gardenia.

* * * * * * *

That's the very latest thing—matching real flowers to perfume.

* * * * * * *

The favorite odors this year, I am told, are flowers odors—Sweet Pea, Orchid, Lily of the Valley, Rose, and Violet. And clever women are complementing their perfumes with real flowers, upon every occasion.

* * * * * * *

Everyone—man, woman, or child—loves flowers. It is born in us to appreciate their beauty and fragrance. Tehy arouse in us all that is good and sincere.

* * * * * * *

It is a firm belief that flowers in a home make that home a better place in which to live—a more cheerful place, breathing happiness and harmony and contentment.

* * * * * * *

More and more, homemakers during the bleak winter months, are using flowers daily to supplement and bring out the interior decorative schemes of living-rooms, dining-rooms, and boudoirs.

* * * * * * *

If the flowers are arranged with intelligence and care, it is surprising how few of them are needed to brighten up the scheme of things. It therefore can be seen that floral decorations for the home need not be too expensive.

* * * * * * *

Giving due consideration to color combinations in the various rooms, types and styles of furniture, hangings and drapes, one can add just the proper flower combinations to enhance the entire atmosphere of the home.

* * * * * * *

If the living-room has brown or dark green cretonne drapes, the flowers should be such as to bring out the colors in these hangings—and not to blend with them.

* * * * * * *

The flowers should form a warm spot of color that says: "Welcome, and make yourself at home."

Trinity Auxiliary Meets At Neill Home

At the regular meeting of the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity United Church, held last night at the home of Mrs. R. Neill, Miss Giles presided.

Interesting reports were given by various secretaries, and reports of the W.M.S. Peterborough Presbyterial convention were made by the delegates, the Misses M. Brown and E. Thomlinson.

Miss Stewart read the Scripture lesson and Miss Mina Edwards read a very interesting letter written to the Presbyterial by a missionary in Morley, Alberta, containing a message of appreciation for a bale received and outlining the great need of the Indians in that district.

Two very fine duetts were rendered by the Misses Helen Ludbrook and Violet McNevan on their Hawaiian guitars, and the social hour which followed made a pleasant close to a profitable evening.

Proper Dress Hints Given By Professor

NEW YORK, Feb. 14. —(C.P.)—The majority of women to-day do not know how to dress properly according to Professor Lillian H. Locke, of the Department of Household Arts, Columbia University.

"There are always two things to be considered when a woman dresses," Professor Locke said today. "First, she should dress to make the most out of her physical appearance and bring out her best points; second, she should dress to bring out the best traits of her personality. The two are quite different things. The first has to do with the size of nose and lips, and shape of hips, while the second has to do with charm and grace."

Professor Locke listed five principles, as follows: Avoid repetition of color or lines; avoid clashing opposites of color or lines; try for transition of colors; subordinate the entire costume to the central color note; and try for symmetry of lines.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

Who wouldn't want to be a stamp collector and own such beautiful works of art as are shown above? You cannot really appreciate the artistic coloring and clean cut engraving of the above stamps until you see the originals yourself, and being a brand new issue, a little description of the designs and colors will probably be welcomed by most collectors.

As may be seen on the illustrations, the stamps are issued by the Falkland Islands, a more or less little known group of islands, located in the Atlantic Ocean, near the southern tip of the continent of South America; they are a British colony.

The complete new issue consists of 12 denominations, from the halfpenny to the one pound. All are in two colors and a more beautiful set of stamps is hard to locate.

On the half penny is shown a "Romney Marsh Ram" standing in a field of green grass. In the background may be seen far distant mountain peaks. The ram is black, delicately shaded and clear cut. The border of the stamp is in green harmonizing with the grass and other surroundings of the centre design.

The one penny shows a huge "Iceberg." The sun must be shining, as the berg shows very plain shadows, in gray and black, the parts exposed to the sun being white. One or two clouds may be discerned in the sky, and although the sea is calm, little ripples or wavelets may be distinguished. The outside border is carmine.

The one and a half penny shows us an exceptionally good view of a "Whale Catcher." Details in the original are quite clear, and a little examination of the stamp will show many interesting points of the boat. The sky is a delicate blue, the clouds being white. The sea is a gray-black, with the white caps plainly visible, as well as the white trail left by the whale catcher. The border of the stamp is blue.

Very soon I hope to be able to show some of the other values of this interesting new issue. All are attractive, and will do credit to any collection.

A block of four of the latest two cent stamps of Canada, with the plate number attached (in your case plate No. 1) will, as yet, have no greater value than their face value. Such items usually take some time to acquire any particular value, other than their face value, especially when it is still possible to secure them at most any post-office branch.

The 1927 Confederation issue of Canada, consisting of 1c, 2c, 3c, 5c and 12c postage stamps, and the 20c orange special delivery stamp, used, catalog at 58 cents. Unused they catalog at 95 cents. They do not, of course, sell for these prices, but somewhat less.

The author will be pleased to answer all questions regarding stamps or stamp collecting. If your question is of general interest it will be answered in this column. If written reply is necessary, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. Address your letter in care of this paper.

OPENING TWO-NO TRUMPS.

The modern idea of an opening bid of 2-No Trumps is one that several years of trial have convinced me is excellent. Such an opening bid, of course, may show four Ace , but that feature is a mere incident. The chief object of the bid is to show at least one stop in each of the four suits, in a hand counting not less than seven probable tricks, so that partner may shift or support upon considerably less than he would any bid of one. In general, an opening bid of 2-No Trumps shows either no biddable suit or lack of two biddable suits.

Examine the hands shown below. No. 1 has no biddable suit. No. 2 has only a single biddable suit. Both types should be utilized for opening bids of 2-No Trumps. The first hand may support a take-out of either major suit. The second hand may support a take-out of spades, but this hand should bid 3-Spades in case partner bids 3-Hearts. Either hand should prefer 3-No Trumps to any minor take-out not insisted upon by partner.

No. 1—
♠A K 6 ♣Q J 8 3
♥K Q 2 ♦A J 10

No. 2—
♠A K 6 2 ♣Q J 8 3
♥K Q ♦A J 10

Hands Nos. 3 and 4 have two biddable suits, rendering them somewhat more adaptable to opening suit bids than to 2-No Trumps. Either may shift to no trumps over any suit take-out except spades or the long minor suit held by the opening bidder.

No. 3—
♠A K 6 2 ♣Q J 10 8 3
♥K Q ♦A J

No. 4—
♠A K 6 2 ♣Q J 8
♥K Q ♦A J 10 2

The partner of the 2-No Trumps bidder should take-out with any one of the next four types of hands.

No. 5—
♠J 10 8 7 ♣A 10 7 4
♥9 7 3 ♦Q 7

No. 6—
♠J 10 8 7 ♣9 7 2
♥A 10 8 7 ♦Q 7

No. 7—
♠J 10 8 7 3 ♣K 9 7 4
♥9 7 ♦Q 7

No. 8—
♠8 3 ♣A K 7 4 2
♥A J 9 4 3 ♦7

Over 2-No Trumps make the following take-outs: No. 5, 3-Clubs, then support a shift of spades or let 3-No Trumps pass; No. 6, 3-Hearts, then support 3-Spades or pass 3-No Trumps; No. 7, bid 3-Spades, and then pass whatever partner may bid. No. 8, bid 3-Hearts, then shift to 4-Clubs in case partner bids 3-Spades or 3-No Trumps. There should be at least a small slam with the great strength contained in No. 8, but that slam may either be in no trumps or one of the partner's two long suits.

Watch for possible small slams and grand slams when holding about everything that partner cannot have to give him an opening bid of 2-No Trumps. Bid 7-No Trumps on hands 9 and 10.

No. 9—
♠Q J 8 ♣A K 7
♥A J 10 3 ♦K Q 2

No. 10—
♠Q J ♣A K 10 7 6
♥A 5 4 3

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The disease known as migraine, or periodic sick headache, is quite as likely to affect physicians as anybody else, and several physicians have written accounts of their own cases. The only account of this kind by a layman which I ever have seen, recently appeared in a medical journal.

The man is now 66 years of age and has had migraine ever since he was 19. He believes he inherited it from his mother. This corresponds with medical opinion. The disease usually is considered to be hereditary. It begins in early adult life. In about three-quarters of the cases the headaches cease when the patient is in middle age—about the time of change of life for a woman and the corresponding age for a man. The other quarter continues having migraine all through life. It is evidently to this class that the present patient belongs.

The attacks are brought on by anything which lowers the patient's threshold of resistance. He believes that the most important thing for a person who has periodic sick headache to do is squarely to face the fact that it probably can never be cured and try to adjust life so that the smallest number of attacks possible will occur. In order to do this both choice of occupation and choice of a mode of life are important. A large amount of sleep should be obtained every night. A carefully regulated diet, with a minimum of stress—mental and physical—and active elimination are all advised. An outdoor, carefree life is the ideal but, as the patient says, few can arrange it.

"Excitement, especially sex; cards; social whirl; movies; overwork; tension; worry—all have their price."

Most of the patients eat too much. Most of them eat too much animal proteins and what he calls "purin-producers," such as coffee, alcohol, tea and chocolate, and these should be abjured. According to his experience, every patient should drink at least two quarts of liquid per day.

Under the heading of "Medication," he believes that the best drugs are canabis indica and calomel. According to his custom, he uses calomel to abort an attack. Upon the first indication that an attack is impending, he takes one and one-half grains of calomel. If this does not bring relief after 12 to 18 hours, the dose is repeated.

Finally, he says, to combat a lifelong migraine is a task to tax the patience of a saint, and the courage of a paladin.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

Those of you who read "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will probably recall how Topsy, the little pickaninny, scrubbed herself viciously with hot, soapy water, in the hopes of making her naturally black skin as white as little Eva's. And you will also undoubtedly recall how fruitless her efforts were. For no amount of scrubbing could ever have transformed the trustful Topsy's natural ebony skin to the whiteness of the Caucasian race.

There is little that can be done to very greatly change the natural color of any woman's skin. For the skin derives its coloring from the pigment cells in the epidermis. Often, however, skins become dark, sallow and discolored, especially in this age of smoke, grime and sun-exposure. And as a result, they lose their natural clear coloring and appear most unattractive.

In such a case, of course, a great deal can be done to lighten the skin through the use of bleaches. But some women employ skin-lightening methods that are just about as fruitless as Topsy's scrubbing. To be effective, a bleach must be a good one. And, in my opinion, the bleach pack described below is one of the best.

This bleach pack that I refer to is composed of oatmeal, almond meal, rosewater, glycerine and lemon juice. To prepare the pack, two tablespoons of fine oatmeal, two tablespoons of rosewater, four tablespoons of glycerine and the strained juice of one lemon should be mixed thoroughly together, and enough almond meal added to form a thick, smooth paste. Before the pack is applied, the skin should be thoroughly cleansed, and a bit of nutrient cream smotohed about the eyes and mouth. Then the paste should be spread evenly over the face and neck, and permitted to dry. The neck, of course, should not be neglected, for it will present an ugly contract if not bleached to the same lightness as the skin of the face.

When the bleach pack is entirely dry, it should be gently removed with tepid water and a soft cloth. If the skin is sensitive, and this pack seems too drying, a bit of cold cream or nourishing cream should be applied after the pack has been removed, in order to keep the skin soft and smooth.

CHEST COLDS Best treated externally

2 WAYS at once!

Mother! The night coughs of children can usually be relieved by one application of Vicks. Just rub on freely and cover with warm flannel.

When a cold goes down into the chest, take no chances. Go to bed and start Vicks double-action treatment.

Rub Vicks vigorously over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Relief is two-fold:

(1) By stimulation—Through the skin like a plaster Vicks "draws out" tightness and soreness.

(2) By inhalation—Its medicated vapors, released by the heat of the body are inhaled direct to the air-passages.

To increase the stimulative effect, redden the skin over throat and chest with hot wet towels before applying Vicks.

A HELPING HAND.

At the suggestion of Mayor Stewart, an organization is being formed in Toronto to link up the relief agencies and the Toronto citizens who are being helped through this financial crisis, the idea being that there is much that can be done beyond the mere furnishing of relief, in the direction of bolstering up the morale of the workless and their families.

There is a great deal in this plan to command admiration; it is easy to see that there is need of such an organization and that a very useful work can be accomplished by its members in the personal contact, and the sympathy, advice and encouragement that can be provided through an intelligent working out of such a movement.

It is necessary to provide food and fuel and shelter for those who are unable to provide them for themselves, but something more than that is needed if the demoralizing effects of the present situation are to be prevented from developing.

The acceptance of direct relief has been forced upon many of our people, and there is an obvious danger that self-respect and courage may be destroyed in the process if there is not a concerted effort to deal with that aspect of the situation.

ANOTHER ANGLE TO MARKERS QUESTION.

A correspondent sends The Examiner an editorial clipping from the Toronto Telegram in which the menace of automobiles which mask their identity with dirty number plates is dealt with, and suggests that the police should be more active in getting after the offending owners as well as those motorists who drive one-eyed cars, instead of chasing them for 1933 markers.

There is no doubt that both classes of drivers referred to cause trouble and should receive some attention from the authorities.

"Whether accidental or not," says the Telegram, "it should be recognized that a man who drives a car with dirty markers is properly just as much a subject for police curiosity as a man who goes about wearing a mask."

That may be putting it a little strongly, of course, but certainly the purpose for which the law requires the carrying of license numbers is frustrated if the markers are allowed to become so dirty that they cannot be easily read, and no car-owner has a legitimate excuse for keeping his markers in that condition.

As for "one-eyed" cars, that is automobiles with only one headlight burning, they create a menace that surely does not need to be stressed.

The wonder is that there should be so many of them, and that there should be so very little done about it.

SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

If the provincial health regulations permit of such a plan, it would seem that it would be good business for the Board of Health to investigate the possibility of having the Isolation Hospital staffed by nurses-in-training from the Nicholls and St. Joseph's Hospitals, as suggested by the mayor and Ald. D. Holland.

This plan would give the nurses from the hospitals some needed experience in infectious and contagious diseases, training that is not possible under the present arrangement, and would materially cut down the overhead of the Queen Mary Hospital.

At present a nursing staff is maintained at the hospital whether or not there are patients to be taken care of, and the expense is greater than it need necessarily be if it were possible to make use of nurses-in-training when their services are required.

It might be well before dismissing the suggestion entirely for the Board of Health to make some inquiry into this whole matter, with a view to finding out the experience of other cities in this regard and to consulting the provincial health authorities as to whether or not the suggested scheme would meet with their approval.

There are obvious advantages in the plan, and they should not be lightly discarded if there is a chance of obtaining a change in the system.

MR. POULIOT'S QUESTIONS.

Jean Francis Pouliot, Liberal member for Temiscouata, Que., who asked so many questions about better station facilities in his constituency that the Government in desperation had to do something for him, has turned his guns upon the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, launching a series of queries that are likely to keep Mr. Woodsworth busy if the C.C.F. leader should undertake to answer them all.

The questions Mr. Pouliot is propounding are those that many people in the country are also asking; they are decidedly curious as to the details of the program that is being offered Canada by this new political group.

For instance, Mr. Pouliot wants to know just how the C.C.F. would change privately-owned lands into socially-owned and controlled property; just what the new organization proposes to do about mortgages; who is going to decide how much work should be done by any particular person, and how much goods he should receive; what is going to become of the present parliamentary organizations under the new scheme, and some fifty other equally pertinent questions that will be difficult to deal with.

We agree with the Border Cities Star when it says:

"We feel sure that Mr. Woodsworth will have something of a task on his hands when he comes—if he comes—to answer all the questions asked by Mr. Pouliot. They are too embarrassing. Frankly, we doubt if Mr. Woodsworth knows the answers to most of them. He and those who share his thoughts talk vaguely of the new system, the new order, the co-operative commonwealth and all that sort of thing, but it is doubtful if they have anything but the haziest of ideas as to how it could be brought about, how the new 'ideals' could be transformed into reality."

"CONTROLLED" INFLATION.

Apropos of a discussion in these columns of currency problems, a number of correspondents have asked why we should object to "controlled" inflation. "If a Government can regulate inflation," they ask, "what is there to fear?"

Our answer must be a twofold one: (1) that inflation, even though it could be controlled, would be bad, but that (2) in any event, we do not know how it could be controlled.

Nobody favors an unlimited issue of fiat money. Not even our Progressives would have the depreciation of the currency go beyond a certain point. The calamitous experience of Germany in printing marks until a billion or two of them were worth less than a shilling stands as a continuous reminder and warning before the eyes of even our extreme inflationists. But they keep on talking about the need of "more money," though always strictly under "control" of some unspecified kind. The only assurance they give us is that somehow or other we shall "pull up" in time to prevent such complete devaluation of our money as drove Germany to despair ten years ago. The trouble with this theory is that once a country begins going down the steep decline of a depreciated currency there is danger of no stopping until the final crash.

Take the case of England. When the pound went off the gold standard, it was believed that a drop of 30 per cent. in its value would lead to an advance in prices. Confidence was also felt that cheaper money in England would give that country a great advantage in export trade. But the event has falsified the prophecies. In a recent address at Oxford by Sir Robert Horne, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, he lamented the fact that the effort to "raise prices by abandoning the gold standard had signally failed." He aded that "cheap as money is, it is not being sought for the development of business."

What inference may be drawn from this? Simply that the depreciation of the pound has not gone far enough. Since the small dose of inflation has not had the hoped-for results, a larger one must be tried. This, in fact, was the theme and leading outcry in the recent discussion of financial policy by the Federation of University Conservative and Unionist Associations. We read in the London Express how one delegate from Oxford moved that the conference—

> "deplores the continuous deflationary tendency in British monetary policy, and calls for a more actively reflationary scheme having for its object the stabilization of sterling, not on gold, but upon the basis of an index scale of commodity prices."

Even another former Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Reginald McKenna, went so far as to declare that—

> "The true standard of stability is what the currency will buy, not of gold, but of all commodities which enter into daily use."

There it is. If a little inflation does not work as expected, more must be ordered, and then still more. This has been the history of depreciated or inflated currency from the time when men first had any kind of medium of exchange of goods down to the present hour. The only security, surely, is to cling to a currency that is sound and secure.

Depreciation of the Canadian dollar would be bad for Canada even if the depreciation could be controlled. We hear a great deal about the terrific burden of England's war debt payments to the United States. How many Canadians realize, we wonder, that Canada's obligations to the United States this year exceed the sum of England's war debt payments? In England's case it is argued, and rightly, that the depreciation of the pound makes continued debt payments intolerable. If that be so—and it is so—what would depreciation of the Canadian dollar make of Canadian debt payments, which are greater than England's? And for but ten million people?

To sum up, depreciation, even though it could be regulation, might easily prove ruinous. When, on top of that danger, we consider that it is about as easy to control inflation as it is to "control" a runaway locomotive with no engineer on board, such a policy becomes all but unthinkable.—Ottawa Journal.

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 42

When Jere Kane had given directions to the police chauffeur to return him from the home of Nanette LeRoi to the apartment building on Highland avenue he settled back into the cushions of the machine and gave himself over to a consideration of the events of the morning.

To him the motive for the murder of Lillian Hull was all too plain. Obviously, she had been put out of the way because she knew too much. Undoubtedly, she knew who killed Richard Bailey — and Chivington. What other reason could be assigned for the attack on her?

Of one thing he was convinced more than ever: The murderer was as cunning as a beast o the jungle. The murder of Richard Bailey was as near to being a "perfect crime" as anything with which he had ever come incontact.

So far as clues were concerned, the death of the old houseman and Evelyn Deane was equally perfect. And now —the murder of Lillian Hull!

The car moved slowly down Hollywood boulevard in the early afternoon traffic. Kane was so engrossed with his thoughts that he paid little heed to what was going on about him. That might account for his failure to see Rodolf Holmes speed past him in the opposite direction, headed for Beverly Hills.

Nor was he aroused from his reveries until the driver brought the car to a stop and:

"Here you are, Mr. Kane."

He started and looked dazedly about, but soon recovered himself. When he went upstairs to Lillian Hull's apartment he found Sergeant James and two other detectives.

"They just left with the body," James said.

"What did the coroner say?"

"The wound was a deep one. The knife blade must have punctured the heart."

"What?" Kane could hardly believe his ears.

"That's right," one of the other officers affirmed.

"Someone with the strength of an Atlas must have wielded that blade—"

"Yes, sir," the sergeant nodded. "That's what the coroner said."

"Were there any other marks on the body?"

"Well," Sergeant James seemed doubtful, "the coroner said there were marks on her throat that looked like she had been strangled."

"Strangled?" excitedly.

"Yes, sir, and there was a bump on her head that looked like she was knocked out first."

"That ties them up!" Kane exclaimed, and repeated slowly, "that ties them up."

He gazed about the l ttle apartment. It was not unlike hundreds of others in Hollywood occupied by those whose means do not permit of the more sumptuous establishments of the highly paid stars. But the actress had added a touch here and there which gave it individuality and hominess.

"Have you gone over the place?" he asked James.

"Yes, sir. Thoroughly. We found this." The detective handed him a wicked looking dirk. It had a curved, badly rusted blade and was smeared with blood. The handle was of ebony, and was carved into many exotic designs. "It was under the divan."

Kane handled it gingerly, carefully refraining from placing his hands on the hilt.

James said, "There's no use being that careful with it, Mr. Kane. There wasn't a fingerprint on it. Whoever handled it wore gloves."

"The Bertillon man went over the place thoroughly?"

"Yes, sir, and there wasn't a fingerprint in the place—except those of Miss Hull."

"I didn't think there would be," dryly. "Was there anything else?"

"Yes." The detective drew a frilly lace handkerchief from his pocket. It was a small, dainty thing, of good quality. Numerous bloodstains were smeared upon it. "This was wrapped around the blade of the knife."

Kane took the kerchief and studied it. His eyes sought its corners, obviously seeking an initial, but there was none. Nor was there any other identifying marks. After a moment he returned both articles to the officer but on second thought took the dirk, wrapped it in his own kerchief and placed it in his inside coat pocket.

"If you want me," he said, "I'll be at the hotel. Tell the chief, if he calls, that he can reach me there."

"Is there any use in us staying here?" James asked plaintively.

"By all means, I want a man here. Is there anyone at Bailey's house?"

"I don't think so."

"One of you get up there just as quickly as you can, and stay there until relieved. It's important."

"Yes, sir, but I can't see any reason why—"

"Never mind, sergeant," Kane snapped. "This is important."

"Yes, sir."

Kane took another turn about the apartment and then left. H stopped at the telephone desk on the way out.

The operator was a pert little creature who didn't appear to be any too intere ted in her work. She was reading a cheap love confession magazine when he approached her.

"Do you know whether Miss Hull had any callers this morning?" he asked of her.

"Ain't it enough to have something like this happen here without everybody being asked—"

"I asked you if Miss Hull had any callers," Kane said coldly.

The girl almost swallowed her chewing gum he frightened her so. "N-no, sir," quickly. "I don't think she did—except one. You saw her."

"You're quite sure there was no one else."

"There was none that stopped by the desk."

"Did she have any te'ephone calls?"

"Yes, sir, she did."

"Who were they?"

"Listen," she blazed, "I don't make a business of tuning in on the tenants' conversations. "But," she added, more quietly, "I do know that one of them was a man and there were at least two women who called."

"Did they leave any messages?"

"No. They talked to her," she snapped.

"And you're quite sure no one came in to see her," he pressed.

"We have strangers coming in here all the time," she exploded. "It ain't my business to ask everyone of them what they're doing here. If I did I wouldn't have time for anything else. My business is to attend to this board."

He was about to make some caustic retort but dec ded against it. Instead, he went out to the car which had been placed at his disposal, ordered the driver to take him to the Embassy hotel, and, when he reached his destination he dismissed he machine with:

"I don't think I'll need you any more today. Give my thanks to the chief."

But Jere Kane did not know how much he was going to need that machine later. If he had he would probably not have been so quick to leave himself without transportation.

It was getting late and he was hungry. He went to the coffee shop and ordered a light luncheon, but, somehow or other, the food was not appetizing and he pushed it aside.

He stopped at the desk to get his key. The clerk handed him an envelope. Tearing it open, he found it was from Rodolf Holmes.

"I must see you," Holmes had written, "about Nanette. I'm worried."

Dear sir:

Your editorial "A significant reduction" points the way to necessary action

These are topsy-turvy days. Such plenty that crops are being destroyed to raise prices, though never were so many in dire need of what Providence has so bountifully given. Wonderful machinery should be a great blessing to humanity, but for the present, is one cause of the vicious circle of more and more unemployment, and less and less buying power, ad infinitum.

Enterprising, energetic, and thrifty citizens, buying a home, or placing savings in houses for rent, are being penalized thereby. Many are losing their property. Their liabilities are no whit less, while the wherewithal to pay is woefully reduced. Returns from stocks, bonds, and mortgages are nearing the vanishing point.

As a result of all this, the city worker is less a producer and more and more a restricted consumer only, and the farmer, because of a sagging market, both home and export, is desperate indeed.

In the face of this indispustable condition, salaries are being much reduced, except in the one case of civic and school salaried worker, who is better off than ever except for a slight reduction. Denton Massey and other well known citizens declare the cost of living is down 35 per cent, therefore these workers have really had a 35 per cent automatic and very real, increase in salary.

There is nothing to show that those who have thus benefitted by the misfortunes of their neighbors, are spending any more but the evidence is rather that they are withholding, fearing the day they know now what. Ask any merchant.

Many of those drawing salaries from the city (from the people) are of a higher character than the present position of things would indicate. They bear no specific burden, and I believe many of them respect that old injunction which calls us to, "Bear ye another's burdens, and thus fulfill the law of Christ." Who would openly deride this?

To reduce salaries commensurate with reduction of living costs, and to eliminate unnecessary costs, would be no injustice and would still leave the burden to be borne by the ordinary citizen. It is an injustice to these salaried citizens ethically, and to the general public materially, if our governing boards do not with legal notice very considerably reduce salaries and all unnecessary costs.

To borrow experience from the War, we know that we had to get down to united prayer service and sacrifice, bringing co-operation on all fronts to win that war.

This is a moral and spiritual, as well as an industrial, and economic war. National unity, and civilization itself are at stake, and we ourselves are choosing our sides.

Faithfully yours,
SERVICE.

C.C.F. IS NOT COMMUNISM

Editor, The Examiner,
Peterborough, Ontario.
Dear Sir:

How many people in their right minds would state that democracy is autocracy and autocracy is democracy? Not many. And yet, there are those who proclaim with an air of finality that the C.C.F. is Communism and Communism is the C.C.F.

The absurdity of such a statement is evident from even a superficial examination of their respective aims and purposes.

The C.C.F. proposes to carry out a program of social and economic reconstruction when it becomes the expressed will of the Canadian people as shown by their vote at the polls. It presupposes that democracy is a fact and not merely a pretense, and if democracy means anything, it means that such a proposal is entirely in accord with the accepted principles of democratic government.

To a Communist, democracy is a sham and democratic methods a futile waste of time. In the words of the Fish Committee, appointed by Congress in the United States to investigate Communist activities in that country, the Communist Party "advocates the overthrow of the Government by direct means, through force and violence, and despises the evolutionary method of democratic governments." In its statement of aims and purposes the Red International sneers at "the absurd hopes for a peaceful transition from capitalism to socialism." In its constitution it attacks the Amsterdam International of Labor Unions because "It sets forth the idea of class co-operation, social peace and peaceful transition from capitalism to socialism." In the estimation of the Communist Party democracy is a sham and will be proved to be a sham whenever it is put to any real test.

It has repeatedly shown throughout the world its antipathy to political parties which have been founded upon democratic principles. In Germany it has been relentless in its attacks upon the Social Democrats and mildly sympathetic towards the autocratic and reactionary Hitler. In England it has been a greater source of irritation to the Independent Labor Party than to any other, and in the United States it has been more venemous in its attitude towards the Socialists than towards either the Democrats or Republicans. It has never tolerated, either within the Party or without, the democratic methods and objectives of the C.C.F., and it would be impossible for such an organization to become a part of the Communist movement, because the structure of the latter is no less autocratic than the government of the U.S.S.R. Its dictatorial policy does not permit the holding of divergent views by its members, who must submit entirely to the dictates of the central authority in Moscow or else subject themselves to the bitter animosity of the whole Communist Party. With a lack of political astuteness that suggests complete ignorance of the Communist movement— an ignorance which has been exemplified rather forcibly in the last few weeks—our government destroyed the one working class organization in this country that could be counted upon to fight the C.C.F. with tooth and nail.

Not only did the government unwittingly remove a potential stumbling block from the path of the C.C.F.; it considerably dulled its most effective weapon against the new party. Quite naturally when people are told that the C.C.F. is Communistic, they ask why, if that is so, the government does not use the same tactics against it that were used against the Communist Party of Canada. Unfortunately, tying a Communist tag with a pink ribbon to the C.C.F. does not necessarily make it Communistic. The government, so far, has found no way of destroying the C.C.F. without at the same time verifying the Communist belief that democracy will no longer remain democracy once the will of the people runs contrary to the interests of a rich and powerful minority.

Yours truly,
W. H. C. COULTHARD.

Explorer, Scientist, He Has a Scholarly Mind—A Vein of Pragmatism

In this signature, perhaps contrary to general expectation, the virile and the inteprid are not the main themes of the story. Love of adventure per se is not the motivating force. The dominant note is composite of the main characteristic of the artist, scholar and scientist. Imagination of great vitality backed up by physical vigor predisposes to conception of epic proportions and a basis of romance. A scholarly mind insures cultural significance. A vein of pragmatism guarantees factual content. A scientific spirit of approach allied with conscientiousness and striving for perfectability of detail insures meticulous accuracy in the handling of factual material. On the side of character the values are those of idealism. This man is possessed of a high degree of sensibility and is greatly concerned for the welfare of others, generally at the expense of his own well-being. He has so schooled himself in self-reliance and reserve as to present an apparently impenetrable surface. Actually he is not so self-sufficient as would at first sight appear to be the case, but is eager for approval and liking. A sample of writing recently to hand betrays no diminution whatsoever in capability. But indications of ill health and consequent curtailment of activity are plainly marked by a general lassitude along with a sort of distress or anxiety.

JOE DEAN PLANS NEW RESTAURANT

Building Opposite Capitol Theatre is Being Remodelled.

A restaurant which it is claimed will be second to none in Peterborough, is shortly to be opened by Joe Dean in the premises formerly occupied by Peterborough Automobile Supply Company opposite the Capitol Theatre, and immediately south of the new Eaton store.

The premises are now in the hands of the contractors, but already some semblance of order is beginning to present itself, and the finished result promises to be very pleasing.

Having a floor space of 63 by 21 feet the main dining room, is being handsomely equipped with glass-topped tables and cubicle seats in walnut effect. Seating accomodation will be provided for eighty persons.

In addition to a full restaurant service, there is to be a soda fountain dispensary, and also a candy and cigarette counter.

The whole restaurant is to be brilliantly lighted by six powerful ceiling lights, and by wall lights affixed above the mirrored panels at each of the tables.

Alterations to the property which including the building of a pantry addition at the rear of the kitchen, are all being undertaken by local labor at a cost of some thousands of dollars.

The contracts were distributed as follows: bricklaying and carpenter work, A. Olin; fixtures, Canadian Alladin Company; painting and varnishing, Rumary's; plumbing and heating, Regan and Shaughnessy; electric fixtures, Watson.

Mr. Dean commenced in business in this city twelve years ago in the premises which he is still occupying until his new store is ready and which is situated immediately to the south of his new location.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

"TO THE FOOT OF THE THRONE"

On this date, in 1861, Hon. John Hilyard Cameron, M.L.A., then grand master of the Orange Order in British North America, literally went to the foot of the throne to present a protest of the Orangemen of Canada against the manner in which they had been treated by the Duke of Newcastle, the colonial secretary, during the visit of the Prince of Wales the previous year. During the royal tour the duke, who was in charge of the prince, not only forbade the presentation of any addresses from the order of the prince, but deliberately prevented the landing of the prince at Kingston and Belleville because the Orangemen had gathered in force to welcome the heir to the throne. There was a possibility of the same thing happening at Toronto, but better counsels prevailed and the Orangemen participated in the parade as citizens and not as Orangemen. On the Sunday, however, when the prince attended service at St. James cathedral, the Orangemen quickly erected an arch on an adjacent street on which the prince was supposed to pass and gathered in force to greet him, in their full regalia. The duke, was however, tipped off and at the close of the service the route was suddenly changed and the prince drove back to Government House, as he had come, much to the disappointment of hundreds who had gathered along the announced route.

There was naturally much anger among the brethren and as soon as the prince had left it exploded. Meetings of protest were held; fiery language was used the Orangemen resenting the aspersion upon their loyalty; and the officers of the grand lodge drew up a very strong protest against the action of the duke "by which his royal highness was borne away from the loyal gaze of a loyal people"; and the grand master was intructed to carry the protest directly to the queen.

Mr. Cameron went to London. At once the colonial secretary put obstacles in his path and sought to prevent his access to his sovereign, and delay followed delay. Thereupon the Orange leader appealed to the queen's private secretary and was given permission to attend a levee on February 14th. What happened is best told in Mr. Cameron's own words: "I attended the levee, was presented to her majesty as the grand master of the Loyal Orange Association of British America, placed the address in the hands of her majesty on bended knee and heard the synopsis read by the lord chamberlain, while the Duke of Newcastle stood by and saw the queen most graciously receive, in the presence of a crowded court, an address from the very man who had endeavored to turn me away from the presence of her son. I believe it is the first instance on record of such an address being so presented and received."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Feb. 14.—(C.P.)—The stock market broke sharply to-day and losses, some of them fairly substantial, extended to all sections of the list. The declines broadened as the day progressed and the closing tone was heavy. Against three gains were about 20 losses. Turnover was moderate.

Consolidated Smelters dipped 5½ to 58⅛. International Nickel declined ⅜ to 9, Canadian Pacific ½ to 12 1-8 and Brazilian ½ to 8¼.

Shawinigan was weakest of the Utilities, slumping 1¾ to 103. Bell Telephone lost 7-8 at 90 1-8, Montreal Power 5-8 at 29, B.C. Power 7-8 at 15 1-8, B.C. Power B ½ at 3½, Montreal Power debentures ¼ at 42 and Power Corporation ¼ at 7⅜.

WINNIPEG MARKET.

WINNIPEG, February 14 (C.P.).—Unresponsive Liverpool cables and lack of outside support carried wheat into low ground in early trading to-day. Pit trade from the start was rather slow, with houses with selling connections in on both sides of the market.

At mid-session all futures were ⅜c off, May at 48, July at 48⅞, and October at 50⅛.

Other support came from Continental and seaboard interests, and as offerings were very thin further declines were easily checked. Early reports indicate that only a small export business was worked in Canadian wheat overnight, and the bulk of this out of Vancouver.

Liverpool wheat opened slightly lower owing to increased hedging against Plate wheat ordered to Liverpool and quotation snear the close of the English market were ¼d lower to ¼d higher per 100 pounds. Buenos Aires wheat at noon was ½c to ¼c higher per bushel.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (A.P.)—A selling squall swept over the stock market to-day, forcing prices of many leading issues to fall from 1 to more than 4 points. Liquidation appeared chiefly in the rails. Delaware and Hudson registered an extreme loss of 6 points. Louisville and Nashville, Union Pacific and Santa Fe were off 3 to 4. New York Central and Chesapeake and Ohio lost more than 2 and Pennsylvania dipped more than 1. Declines of 1 to more than 2 points occurred in American Tobacco B, Westinghouse Electric, Dupont, Consolidated Gas, United States Steel and American Can. American Telephone and Case lost more than 3. Liquidation, which had subsided in the early afternoon session, reappeared in moderate volume near the close. Transfers approximated 1,600,000 shares.

CAMPBELL WILL TEST BLUEBIRD

Considered Unlikely English Knight Will Attempt to Set New Record To-day.

BEACH UNFAVORABLE.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 14.—(A.P.)—Sir Malcolm Campbell of England, who seeks to break his own world's automobile speed record of 263 miles an hour, ordered his Bluebebird racing car towed to the ocean beach at 3 pm. to-day for a series of test runs.

He said he probably would drive at a speed of from 150 to 200 miles an hour to make sure his 2,500 horsepower machine is working properly, and also test out the condition of the beach.

Racing officials were of the opinion the course would not be in suitable condition at low tide for Sir Malcolm to make an official race for a record to-day, even if his car is found to be functioning properly.

Because the tide will not recede from the course until late this afternoon, it was impossible to determine before then the exact condition of the sands.

Wheat Prices Drop In Winnipeg Trade

WINNIPEG, Feb. 14 (C.P.) — Declaration of an eight-day bank holiday in the State of Michigan disrupted trading in United States wheat market to-day and wheat price declines at Chicago were followed by losses of more than one cent in values at the close of trading on the grain exchange here to-day.

May and July futures each lost one cent to close at 47⅝ and 48¼, respectively, while October dipped 1⅝ to finish at 49½.

Unsettlement at Chicago caused heavy selling of Winnipeg wheat in the southern market and bullish factors here were not strong enough to prevent the prices closing at the low points. Canadian export was estimated at less than 750,000 bushels, most of it sold for shipment out of Vancouver.

PRINCE DRIVES TRAIN

LONDON.—The Prince of Wales added to his already wide list of experiences to-day when he drove one of the latest London tube (underground) trains.

The Prince took a journey in the engineer's cab over the new section of the Piccadilly underground line recently extended from Finsbury Park to Southgate. The route will soon be extended to Cockfosters.

KIDNAPPERS IDENTIFIED.

DENVER, Colo.—Chief of Police Albert T. Clark said to-day that "two racketeers who have been in Denver the last year" had been identified as the kidnappers of Charles Boettcer, 2nd, wealthy young broker held for $60,000 ransom.

BURNED BY LYE.

WOODSTOCK. — Danny, 19 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Stauffer, of Chesterfield, is in Galt General Hospital with little hope held out for saving one of his eyes. It was badly burned by liquid lye yesterday.

Identifies Guy As Murderer

This courtroom picture of Marion Smith, pretty member of Capt. Walter Wanderwell's cruising party, and William (Curley) Guy, on trial at Long Beach, Cal., for Wanderwell's murder aboard his yacht shows how she dramatically walked from the witness stand, placed her hand on the defendan't shoulder and declare: "This is the man I saw through the porthole that night." Guy, who claims he has a perfect alibi, merely looks up and smiled.

PRICES TUMBLE AS LIQUIDATION SWEEPS MARKET

Closing of Michigan Banks Throws Scare Into Toronto Exchange Patrons.

INTER-LISTEDS LEAD.

TORONTO, February 14 (C.P.).—Crumpling prices on the New York stock market resulting from the closing of the Michigan banks, threw a scare into patrons of the Toronto Stock Exchange, and they unloaded stock rather freely this afternoon, causing the price level to break severely. Interlisted stocks led the retreat with Nickel and Ford A well up in the front.

Michigan's financial troubles hit Ford A to the tune of 1½ points, and Nickel was off ⅝ at 9, while C.P.R. slipped ⅝, Brazilian ⅜, and Smelters nearly 4 points. The trade in Nickel ran into more than 10,000 shares.

Selling pressure descended upon the oils and all broke ground. Imperial slipped ⅜ and British American a similar amount, and Pete ⅛. McColl-Frontenac and Supertest issues closed unchanged.

The Utilities weakened nearly as much as the interlisted group, Bell Telephone weakened 2 to 89, Shawinigan almost a point, while Power Corporation and Montreal Power were off a half point each.

MINES FOLLOW INDUSTRIALS

Base Metal Stocks Lead Downward Trend on Standard Exchange.

ALL BIG GOLDS DOWN.

TORONTO, Feb. 14. (CP)—The props were knocked from the Standard mining market to-day and prices tumbled rather sharply. Following the industrial markets into a decline on banking news from Michigan the whole market turned soft and the newly developed colony of traders and speculators who have been counting substantial profits from the rise of the gold shares, were given a shaking out.

Base metal stocks, although they have had only a short run up compared with the golds, seemed more ready to turn tail than the yellow metal issues. Noranda dropped 1.85 to 23.50, but picked up a little before the close. Nickel flopped from 9.75 to 9.00.

All the big gold stocks were down. Lake Shore and McIntyre dropping more than a dollar, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves more than 25 each and Dome and Hollinger about 50 each.

The silver shares were shaken with the others, both Mining Corporation and Nipissing losing 10 to 15 and Eldorado dropping about 10 points.

POLICE GUARDS ADDED.

CHARLOTTETOWN. — Armed Royal Canadian Mounted Police have been added to the guard at Queen County jail as a precaution against a threatened uprising there.

The police are particularly watchful while the prisoners exercise within the recently-built 10-foot fence surrounding the jail.

A fire on Sunday, the latest of several in recent months, was believed to have been part of a plan to destroy the building.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—(A.P.)—All around setbacks in grain values took place early to-day. The majority of wheat traders construed the Michigan eight day banking holiday as a bearish factor. Failure of the Liverpool wheat market to follow Saturday's advance here acted also as a weight on prices. Opening ½-½ down, wheat dropped further. Corn also started ¼-½ off, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

KILLENBECK WINS APPEAL

Conviction of Laverne Killenbeck is Quashed at Osgoode Hall.

GIVEN 5 YEARS.

TORONTO, Feb. 14 (C.P.).—The Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall to-day quashed the conviction of Levurn Killenbeck by Judge Huycke at Peterborough, who sentenced appellant to five years' imprisonment for receiving a diamond engagement ring stolen from Walter M. Fowlds, grain merchant, Hastings.

J. C. McRuer, K.C., who was nominated by Chief Justice Sir William Mulock to appear for appellant, pointed out that two witnesses for the Crown, F. A. Hully and Arthur Gilders, who were already under sentence for breaking into a school, had sworn they had given him the ring to sell. The ring had not been found and the two had not been prosecuted.

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY REPORTS BIG POLICY INCREASE

In Depression Company Has Added $478,000,000 of New Insurance.

62ND ANNUAL MEETING

MONTREAL, Feb. 14 (Special to Examiner).—Four hundred and seventy-eight million dollars increase in assurances in force from the peak year 1929 to the end of 1932 is the achievement of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. This period internationally famous economists agree to have been the most severe business depression the world has known in the past one hundred years, the downward movement being four times greater than any other in history. Statistical records reveal that general business activities declined 54 per cent. with over 30 per cent. of the working population without employment.

The globe-encircling Canadian Sun Life has been called upon to face adverse world business conditions to a far greater degree, during the past three years, than most Canadian financial institutions; but in spite of these troubled conditions it has maintained its position as a world company emerging with a sizeable increase in assurances in force. This business is just as valuable to Canada as the export of merchandise and, incidentally, conclusive proof, if any is needed, of the progress and stability of this great Canadian company. During that same period the assets of the Sun Life increased by over forty-three million dollars to reach a total of well over six hundred and eleven million dollars.

62nd Annual Report.

The 62nd annual report of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada was made public at the annual meeting held here to-day.

T. B. Macaulay, who was in the chair, addressed the meeting on world business conditions and expressed his well-considered opinion that a fundamental basis had been laid for a return to more normal conditions, and that the coming world economic conference should accomplish much good. Previous depressions lasted on an average of but twenty months This depression has already lasted for exactly twice that time, or three years and four months. The feature of the depression which has been most serious has been the steady and prolonged drop in prices of all kinds, the decline in wholesale prices being approximately 35 per cent. since 1929. This has either wiped out or greatly reduced the margin of profit in every line of business, and this in turn has reduced purchasing power in every direction, and produced a vicious circle of disastrous results from which we are only now even beginning to emerge.

Arthur B. Wood, vice-president and managing director of the Sun Life, spoke on the company's progress during these troubled times, and in a lucid manner reviewed the financial statement of the company for 1932. He emphasized the progress made by the company during the three years of depression and its resistance to the world-wide business contraction, the Sun Life's policyholders increasing during that period by over two hundred thousand, to reach a total of nearly a million, business in force increasing by approximately five hundred million dollars, and assets by forty-three million dollars. Mr. Wood stressed the part life insurance is playing to lessen the financial strain of the individual and how the benefits of life insurance have been taken advantage of by policyholders. The Sun Life had averaged something like one hundred million dollars a year in payments to policyholders and beneficiaries during the three years of depression.

Feature Of Report.

Perhaps the feature of the financial report for 1932 was the large amount of paid-for insurance secured in the face of such troubled world business conditions. The amount is considered, under present conditions, to be a remarkable showing, the Sun Life reporting business actually paid for in 1932 reaching a total of over two hundred and eighty-four million dollars, bringing total assurances in force to practically three billion dollars.

Little change was made in the investment portfolio, which stands practically the same as last year. The company's activities in the investment of its funds in 1932 were confined, for the most part, to the purchase of Canadian Government bonds. The few sales of securities that were made resulted in a profit of approximately one-quarter of a million dollars, while the list was strengthened by extensive writing down. Investment income held up remarkably well during 1932, while total income exceeded one hundred and sixty-one million dollars, leaving an excess income for the year of over thirteen million dollars after taking care of all disbursements.

It has been stressed on many occasions the part that life insurance is playing in this depression. It has been a most powerful factor in easing the financial distress of individuals In 1932 the staggering sum of over three billion dollars was paid to living policyholders and beneficiaries by the insurance companies of this continent, and during the past three years over six billion dollars have been paid out by the same companies. The Sun Life, in 1932, fully played its part in helping to ameliorate the financial strain by paying more than one hundred and eight million dollars to policyholders and their beneficiaries. Since the organization of the Sun Life, just over sixty-two years ago, a total of over seven hundred and two million dollars has been paid by the Sun Life to policyholders and beneficiaries, and at the end of the year over a million policies and group certificates were in force.

ACUTE FINANCIAL EMERGENCY FORCES CLOSING OF ALL BANKS

to provide for meeting payrolls and providing living expenses for depositors. He also said it is probable that the holiday may be cancelled before it runs its full course.

Steps were taken immediately by financial and business organizations to meet the crisis in the State's business activity. Between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 in gold, consigned to the Detroit branch of the Federal Reserve Bank from the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, arrived early to-day under an escort of 15 detectives. It was transferred to the vaults of Detroit banks.

Government officials took immediate steps to halt the spread of unfounded rumors regarding the stability of banks in the State. William H. Moran, chief of the United States' Secret Service, said he had despatched 350 secret service operatives throughout Michigan to keep a close observance on "scandal-mongers, and others who might spread unfounded rumors."

The Governor said he had given definite assurance that the banks "most certainly will re-open" at the end of the eight-day holiday, if not earlier.

Meanwhile, business in the State continued as usual this morning, while heads of practically every concern conferred on methods of procedure. Several concerns announced they would pay their employes in cash, since the cashing of cheques was practically suspended, except in small amounts.

The extraordinary holiday, unprecedented in Michigan is effective to-day, to continue through February 21. As a matter of fact, the banks will not reopen until February 23, since February 22 is Washington's birthday and a legal holiday.

Governor Comstock's proclamation said the holiday was proclaimed "In view of the acute financial emergency now existing in the city of Detroit and throughout the State of Michigan."

Governor Comstock explained that he was summoned to Detroit from Lansing yesterday afternoon to a conference "precipitated by an unforeseen and acute situation which had suddenly arisen in the affairs of one of our leading financial institutions, the Union Guardian Trust Co."

Iron Out Difficulties

He said it was "The consensus after long conference of those present that the difficulties might be ironed out provided time could be had for negotiations."

"At 3.00 p.m. Monday, February 13th, I was requested by telephone to reach Detroit from Lansing at the earliest possible moment to take part in an important conference relative to the general banking situation. This conference was precipitated by an unforeseen and acute situation which had suddenly arisen in the affairs of one of our leading financial institutions, the Union Guardian Trust Co.

Confusion Was Caused

A statement by Arthur A. Ballantine, under secretary of the treasury said he believed, "from close contact during some days with phases of the banking situation existing in this state that Governor Comstock acted very wisely in making his declaration of public holidays."

Acted Very Wisely

A supplemental statement from Arthur A. Ballantine, under secretary of the treasury, said that he believed Governor Comstock "acted very wisely."

The proclamation was issued in response to a formal request signed by John C. Hicks, president of the Michigan Bankers' Association, and Robert O. Lord, president of the Detroit Clearing House Association.

They said that "this request is made after consultation with the banking authorities, both national and state, with representatives of the United States Treasury Department, the Banking Department of the State of Michigan, the Federal Reserve Bank, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and with the United States Secretary of Commerce."

"We deem it necessary" the formal request said, "in the public interest and for the equal safeguarding without preference of the rights of all depositors and for the preservation of the public welfare."

Participating in the conference from which emerged the proclamation were Roy D. Chapin, secretary of Commerce, whose home is here; under secretary of the treasury Ballantine and representatives of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and of the Federal Reserve Bank in addition to men representing the Michigan Bankers' Association, the State Banking Commission and all Detroit Clearing House banks.

Secretary Chapin, who said he came to Detroit with Ballantine Saturday to "co-operate with the bankers here," concurred in approving the extraordinary measures and expressed the belief the holiday would provide time to 'stabilize the entire banking situation."

"Certain conditions had developed in which Detroit bankers deemed assistance of federal agencies necessary" he explained. "The requirements as well as the time involved to arrange all details, which were changing rapidly, made it seem wise to the bankers and to us that a public holiday be requested of Governor Comstock. He has seen fit to declare this and during its period an opportunity is provided to work out plans which we hope will stabilize the entire Michigan situation."

The Union Guardian Trust Company is of primary importance in Michigan's financial scheme. With it are affiliated numerous other banks scattered over most of Michigan's lower peninsula.

The proclamation came unexpectedly. Outside of financial circles there had been no suspicion that such a thing was impending. It was closely followed by statements from Detroit banks and the Michigan Bankers' Association saying the closing order would be observed.

There was no clear idea how business would be carried on during the holiday. It was all without precedent.

Stock Exchange Closed.

DETROIT, Feb. 14. — (A.P.)—Governors of the Detroit Stock Exchange at a special meeting this morning decided to close the exchange for the period of the bank holiday proclaimed by Governor William A. Comstock.

The announcement by the governors of the exchange informed members that "members of the exchange are prohibited from trading in Detroit bank stocks over the counter or otherwise during this period. Violations will be summarily dealt with."

May Ignore Order.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 14.—(C.P.)—Faced with an almost complete suspension of business as the result of the proclamation of an eight-day holiday for all Michigan banks and financial institutions, bankers of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich, are meeting to-day. One of them declared they may decide to ignore the order and remain open for business.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—(C.P.) — Sir John Aird, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, declared he did not wish to discuss the closing of Michigan banks for an eight-day period until he had received further advice from the Windsor branch of the bank.

"Our Canadian banks are not tied up with the banks across the line," said another prominent banker. "There have been 11,000 bank failures in the United States since 1921, half of them in the last three years."

J. A. McLeod, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, would make no comment.

No Effect on Canada

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 14 (CP) The eight-day banking holiday decreed for all banks in Michigan will not have any effect on the banking situation here, according to local bankers to-day. It was pointed out Canadian banks operate under Canadian laws and are not connected with the Michigan banks at all.

Cheques drawn on Michigan banks and presented at Canadian banks in Windsor to-day were accepted only on a basis of collection. Any accounts opened in Canada for interests in the United States will be opened in Canadian funds, it was stated. The current rate of exchange will be recognized in all deposits and withdrawals; when these are transacted in United States money.

Canadian banks are sound and depositors will not be affected by the closing of the Michigan banks, one prominent Windsor banker said. The State of Michigan, he declared, faced with their own problem andw ould have to iron it out their own way.

On opening to-day, banks in Windsor accepted cheques only on a basis of making collections and would not advance cash on paper. Cheques would not be taken for deposit because local banks were not certain the Michigan organizations would be meeting their obligations 100 percent on resumption of business on Feb. 23.

Numerous inquiries were made at local banks to-day as persons holding cheques of Michigan firms agains banks within that state wanted to realize on their holdings. Cheques were regarded as notes here, possibly payable later but not at once. One rule was definite: "You get your money when the bank on which your cheque is drawn pays up."

If Detroit or Michigan people desire to open accounts in Windsor or other border branch banks during the eight-day holiday in Michigan, the accounts will be operated in Canadian funds, leading bankers said.

United States funds will be handled on a basis of exchange strictly.

Plan To Meet Emergency.

DETROIT, Feb. 14 (C.P.)—Caught unaware by the suddenness of Governor William A. Comstock's declaration of an eight-day bank holiday in Michigan to-day, merchants and citizens at once began making plans for meeting emergency situations.

Telegraph companies announced they were making arrangements to ship in enough currency to meet their normal demands. Postal officials said ample funds are available to meet postal savings payments.

The cashings of individual cheques, however, presented a problem. Banks in the Canadian border cities announced to-day they would accept cheques on Michigan banks only for collection during the eight-day holiday, and Detroit business houses said they had not definitely determined their policies.

The Detroit Stock Exchange was closed, and meanwhile a number of local brokers were accepting selling orders to be made on exchanges outside Detroit, providing the customer had stock to deliver or an account to back the transaction.

The problem of groceries remained to be solved, as officials of the larger concerns called conferences as soon as their stores opened this morning. Some of them reported they were working on a system of food coupon books with industrial companies.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (C.P.). — Any effect on Canadian banks as a result of the Michigan proclamation for an eight-day public holiday for banks and trust companies in that State would be of a beneficial nature. This was the opinion expressed in financial circles to-day. The belief is that Canadian banks along the border near Detroit might benefit temporarily.

APPEAR FOR QUESTIONING.

NEW YORK, February 14 (C.P.).—Primo Carnera, whose blows brought the injury that caused the death of Ernie Schaaf, to-day made arrangements to go to the District Attorney's Office for questioning.

Several other officials at the bout in Madison Square Garden, which ended in Schaaf being knocked out in the 13th round, also were asked to appear for questioning. They included Dr. William H. Walker, brother of the former Mayor, and Athletic Commission physician, Frank Bagley, Jerry Buckley, and Bill Duffy, of Carnera's board of managers, and John Buckley, Schaaf's co-manager.

Carnera issued the following statement:

"I have been advised of the death of Ernie Schaaf. I was indeed surprised and greatly shocked. He was a very fine young man and a clean sportsman. I wish to extend my profound sympathy to his mother and the rest of the family."

No warrant has been issued for Carnera's arrest, the police explained, and what charge, if any, will be placed against him, will not be decided until after the consultation with District Attorney Crain.

COUNTIES' COUNCIL EXPLAINED BY DEPUTY REEVE ALEX MACCOLL

Composition and Function of Civic Body Described to Campbellford Rotary Club.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

CAMPBELLFORD February 14 Examiner Staff Correspondence).—"The County Council" was the theme of a talk by N. Alex MacColl, Deputy-Reeve of the town of Campbellford, at the regular Rotary luncheon of the Campbellford club yesterday. Elie Brunelle presided over the gathering, which was featured by a lengthy business discussion.

"The Counties Council of Northumberland and Durham," said Mr. MacColl, "had the important function of administrative work, and athough there were many who claimed that it should be done away with, he felt that it was in closer touch with the affairs of the district and could take greater care of them than a central office in Toronto." It was so important that last year it raised in these two counties $236,000 in taxes and sold debentures for paved highway amounting to $330,000.

The Counties Council is comprised of the reeves and deputy reeves of each municipality comprising forty in all, Cobourg. Because the population exceeded 5,000 Cobourg used to have two deputy reeves, but now that was done away with, the deputy reeve from that town having two votes instead. In the election of the warden the highest municipality in regard to assessment had the privilege to two votes to cut a tie. This privilege goes to Darlington township.

The seat of the council is at Cobourg where the offices and council room is. The latter is arranged similar to the Dominion Legislature, where the members are separated from the public gallery, flanking the tables at the end of which is the clock and behind him the dias from where the warden presides.

The session for this body opens the fourth Tuesday in January of each year, the first business being the election of a warden. Before this takes place the speaker said, members are canvassed by the nominees, but as a general rule the election of a warden follows along party political lines. This seems to be the rule the speaker explained, declaring that "as long as a member stands four square to all winds he is accepted at his face value" but that once he votes out of his party, neither party will trust him.

Majority of Whole

For the election of the warden there must be a majority of the whole, Mr. MacColl said, meaning 21 votes, for each nomination five votes being taken. If there is no majority for election, a recess is called and another vote taken. It has been known he said, that the council has voted all one evening and all the following morning before a majority has been gained. Every one knows how the other fellow votes and there can be no shirking of responsibility.

After this election the standing committees, of which there are seven, are appointed, these really doing the work of the council. On these all municipalities are represented. Nearly all the business on the floor of the house is handed to committee. In the case of the Finance Committee, which is the most important of all, the chairman of this body being rated second only to the warden, this office is as a rule given to the defeated candidate. Last year this committe had the job of salary revision, which again faced it this year, but this year a sub-committee was appointed to help out on the same matter, salaries being cut considerably.

It is in the committees that the individual member comes into his own and his vote carries weight, and all the members take their full responsibility and share of the work even though they may never talk on the floor of the house.

All reports are read at the end of the council receive $4.50 a day out of which they have to pay there own board bill and in the case last Monday, when a special session of the council was called, the members attended without pay.

The talk of good times in the Counties' Council should be discounted Mr. MacColl declared, for although there is the pleasure of social intercourse, the sessions often last from nine o'clock in the morning until eleven and twelve at night. During these sessions most of the work is done by the Warden and chairmen of committees. The council sits three times a year he said and has jurisdiction over an area greater than some of the states in the American Union.

C. B. Williams and N. Alex MacColl were apointed a committee to meet with similar committees from Cobourg, Port Hope and Trenton to arrange for a combined ladies' night and a social evening which it is expected will be held in Cobourg early in the spring.

OLD HASTINGS BOY IS MINING IN WEST

J. B. Coughlin, Managing Director of Claim in Revelstoke, B.C., District.

HASTINGS, February 14 Examiner Correspondence). — Information from British Columbia contains much interest to the residents of Hastings and district to the effect that another Hastings boy has made good. J B. Coughlin, son of the village's pioneer resident, John Coughlin, has discovered a placer mine at Camp Creek, 65 miles north of Revelstoke, B.C. A company has been organized to be known as the Camp Creek Gold Mining Company with Senator Riley of High River, Alta., president, J. B. Coughlin, as managing director, and Dr .A. E. Shore of Calgary as secretary-treasurer. Mr. Coughlin controls 70 per cent. of the company. A lease has been secured on a large area around the creek, but owing to the cold weather little work has been done on it. Scraping of rock alone has produced nuggets to the value of twelve and fourteen dollars, some of which Mr. Coughlin has sent home to his brother, T A. Coughlan. The camp is now ready to go to work as soon as the break-up comes.

In West Kootenay placer mining has been active at widely separated points, but somewhat concentrated in the Big Bend section, north of Revelstoke and in the district tributory to Wilson. In the Big Bend secton clean-ups for the season by the French Creek Development Company aggregated $13,125. In the same district Mr. Coughlin and his associates had a production of over $2,000 for the very short time they were in action.

Mr. Coughlin, who was born in Hastings, receiving his early education here, going to Western Canada in 1910. For a number of years he was in the hotel business in Calgary. Hastings will watch this enterprise with interest, and wish the best of luck to a native son.

To Settle Crossing Question Wednesday

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Feb. 14. — Village Clerk Alex Wilson received a telegram Monday that the Board of Railway Commissioners would meet the council at the Town Hall at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, February 22nd.

At the important meeting it is expected that the Bridge street crossing will be settled, the 1932 council passed a resolution to the effect that the Railway Board will do away with this expense or pay the salary themselves, for years the village have been paying $200.00 towards the cost. Shortly after the resolution was forwarded, a petition was sent in containing the signatures of a number of ratepayers. The board decided to leave the man on. The question was thought to have been settled until the telegram on Monday.

Doctors Ask Clear Stand Upon Relief

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 14 (C.P.) —Physicians here are asking for clarification of the uncertainty which prevails regarding medicine for families on the welfare list. Under a plan recently authorized, families designate the doctors they want and the pay is $1 per month per family with a limit of $100 per month.

The fee is one-half the usual fee for indigent work and the physicians claim if they have to dispense their own medicines their revenue is cut too deeply, and it is also unfair to druggists. The plan is being delayed until this point is settled.

The matter was placed before the council by a delegation of doctors and druggists.

CREDIT CONTROL MUST BE TAKEN FROM THE BANKS

"commencing with savings bank deposits and cutting across the interest rates charged by mortgage, trust and loan companies," and the suspension, if necessary, of redemption of Dominion notes in gold.

The House was debating a resolution introduced by William Irvine, U.F.A., Wetaskiwin, suggesting the Parliamentary Banking and Commerce Committee make a general review of the Bank Act, stressing the advisability of abandoning the gold standard and considering ways of reducing the internal debt.

Cut Grain Rates.

The Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways have proposed a 50 per cent. reduction in the differential between domestic and export grain rates in the West, Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, announced. The reduction would apply to feed grain moving westward from Prairie points.

Discrepancies between export and domestic grain rates in the West were discussed at the recent Dominion-Provincial conference. The railways were asked to make some proposition which would be referred to the four Western Provincial Governments. One of the Provincial Premiers, Dr. Manion, said to-day, had accepted the railway proposition and replies from the others were expected daily.

Customs regulations of the United Kingdom specify Canadian grain must be consigned direct from this country to the British market to receive the six-cent Empire preference, Premier R. B. Bennett told the House.

The United Kingdom has made no recent changes in regulations governing Empire shipments of wheat, the Prime Minister informed E. J. Garland, U.F.A., Bow River. The recent New York cargo of Canadian grain on the Britannic was refused the preference because it had not been consigned direct from this country.

James S. Wodsworth, leader of the C.C.F., scored a point when he succeeded in introducing a bill to repeal the famous section 98 of the Criminal Code, dealing with unlawful assemblies.

Amid numerous interruptions, points of order and continued sparring with Mr. Speaker Black, the Federation leader succeeded this year where last year he failed. The House refused to let him introduce the same bill last year although it had been passed by the House of Commons and turned down by the Senate, several times in the past 10 years.

A brief reference by the Federation leader to the eight Toronto Communists, now serving time in Portsmouth penitentiary was the starting point for the interruptions. "There are eight men in penitentiary, serving time because of violation of this legislation. So startling is the extent of this legislation that these men are guilty of no overt act . . . . "

Mr. Speaker ruled this was irrevalent.
